JAS. V. JENKINS DIES AT AGE OF 84

Proprietor of Hotel Quinte Had Long and Successful Career

The death of James V. Jenkins which occurred at his residence, Hotel Quinte, on Tuesday evening, Dec. 31st, has caused deep feelings of regret to be entertained by many friends not only in Belleville but in many parts of Canada. Being engaged, as he was for so many years in catering to the public and the travelling public, his acquaintanceship was large and as a result of his constant service, which he rendered, that of a proprietor of Hotel Quinte, which he owned and managed, was widely and most favorably known. Possessed of an excellent palate for cookery for the travelling public, he endeared a service to his city of which he was a man of pleasing personality and engaging manner. Ownership of many personal friends by whom pleasant memories of him will long be cherished.

The late Mr. Jenkins was born at Port Hope, Ont., (St. Valentine's Day) 1852, and was in his 84th year. He was married in 1875 to Miss Mary Ann Dewson, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Dewson, and the year 1875 his brother-in-law, the late Mr. Ingall, opened the Hotel Quinte in the city, which was then, a frame, hotel in Central Ontario at that time and stood upon the site of the present Hotel Quinte. Mr. Jenkins came to Belleville at that time to assist in the management of the hotel and in time he had continuously resided in Belleville for the past 61 years. He leased the original Hotel Quinte from the Belleville Hotel Company and in 1894 he purchased the property outright. On Jan. 4th, 1901 the hotel was destroyed by fire and it was immediately Mr. Jenkins commenced rebuilding and the present handsome and splendid Hotel Quinte was erected.

Interested in City

Mr. Jenkins was interested in the advancement of his adopted city, as he loved the scenic beauty of Belleville and of the northern district with the many lakes. In his young manhood he took a keen interest in sports. He was a noted curling enthusiast and was a member of the Belleville Lodge No. 168, A.F. & A.M., King Baldwin Chapter and Rameses Temple, Toronto. He was one of the oldest members of St. Thomas' Anglican Church and a member of the Parochial Church Council. He was a member of the Belleville Club, the Bay of Quinte Country Club and the Rotary Club.

On the 25th of May, Mr. Jenkins married Miss Katherine Wiseman of Cobourg, who survives him, together with one daughter, Mrs. William J. Sills, of Belleville, and a grandchild, Mrs. Jenkins, to them the sincere sympathy of many friends will be extended in their bereavement.

The funeral took place this Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Fred Sutherford and Miss F. Fisher, Alexander Street, Belleville, are sisters of the late Mr. Jenkins.

Twenty-Fifth Wedding Anniversary Celebrated

Monday night a number of friends of Mr. and Mrs. George Drummond, Dawson Street, met at their home to celebrate the 25th anniversary of their marriage, which had taken place at Paisley, Scotland. The early part of the evening was spent in playing euchre with Miss Winnifred Drummond, Mrs. David Peoples, Miss Bessie Gothard, Lome hand, Mrs. David Peoples and guests first, Mr. David Peoples, Larry Corrigan and Lome hand, Mr. David Peoples, Central Ontario at that time and stood upon the site of the present Hotel Quinte. Miss Winnifred Drummond and Miss Bessie Gothard were tied for first place and cut for the prize, which was won by Mr. J. Cuthbert. After the prizes were distributed by Miss Mrs. Drummond were called to the centre of the floor and as the wedding march was played by Miss E. Robinson, Miss Margaret Drummond and J. Cuthbert Jr. entered as an old fashioned bride and groom with Miss Marion Cuthbert dressed as flower girl carried in the beautiful silver gifts. Mr. Ralph Plumpton made the gifts on behalf of all present and Mr. Drummond thanked them all for the surprise. After lunch singing and dancing was enjoyed and also singing for "They are lolly god fellows" and "Auld Lang Syne" and wishing the host and hostess many more years of happy wedded life.

ITALY CLAIMS SCIENTIFIC ARMS

Reluctant to Use These Weapons Against Ethiopia

By CHARLES H. GUPTILL

Rome, Jan. 3 (AP) — Reliable sources reported today the possibility of an Italian campaign of "retaliament" from the Ethiopians, said to have begun the use of "certain quantities of scientific weapons" it was reluctant to use against Ethiopia.

The weapons have been withheld, these sources said, until such a time as Ethiopian war practices might make national demand to "fight fire with fire".

However, some predicted a violent campaign from the air might supplement battle as Italian "punishment" for the ambush beheading of one or two aviators by hostile warriors.

Informed sources, referring to the bombing of a Swedish-Ethiopian Red Cross unit, said Italy might consider explanations to Sweden to be necessary.

The government now has been informed no Swedes were killed in the bombing, contrary to reports of Ethiopian front and only one was wounded.

An Ethiopian communique from Addis Ababa today stated 26 Ethiopians were killed and two Swedish physicians wounded in the attack.)

Italy's military war aims must necessarily take risks, Rome said.

POLICE BLOTTER

"It was one of the quietest New Year's in our department experience," said Chief Kidd of the Belleville Police Department in relationship to questions regarding the activities of the local police over the holiday period. Chief Kidd stated that the activities of the Belleville police department in relationship to questions regarding the activities of the local police during the New Year of 1936. The absence of the New Year's celebration in relationship to the year 1935 was also a factor in the quiet year minus crime in Belleville as 1936," added Chief Kidd hopefully. Mounted officer Hall was also present in relationship to questions regarding the activities of the local police over the holiday, no sign of any serious cases of major motor accidents being reported. Despite the icy conditions of highways and local streets, only one motor accident was reported over the holiday period which happening on North Front street early Tuesday night as the result of a motor car skidding on the icy pavement and colliding with a second motor vehicle. Watchnight Services Held in 2 Churches

New Year's was greeted in two churches in Belleville with watch night services. At Bridge Street United Church the Rev. T. Ingall Semple, minister of the church spoke on the theme of Parting Plans. "What it was written of the year 1935 and reviewed world trends of the past year. Also in light of the coming of the year and the story upon a new chapter of life," the Rev. Mr. Ingall assisted in the service.

Hymns appropriate for the occasion were sung. The attendance was very good.

The Rev. Harold Reid spoke at the service at Holloway Street United Church on New Year's Eve. Under the subject "Instant Doubting" the minister dealt with the subject in relationship to questions regarding the year 1936. The service commenced at 11:30 p.m. and continued until twelve fifteen. Rev. Mr. Newman, minister, was in charge.

STORY OF RAT WINS GRAND CHAMPION

"Fiber McGee" Jordan of Chicago's Called Greatest of Liars

Chicago, Jan. 3 — Jim "Fiber McGee" Jordan of Chicago's radio fame claimed as the grand champion liar of 1935 in the Liars' Club of Burlington, Wis.

Jordan, a radio performer who has the greatest collection of "Fiber McGee" and specializes in fibbing, won the club's annual contest with a story about a rat.

"Two years ago the weather was cold so I put three inch drain tile into our house for shelter.

"In winter I would, I could not catch him, even with the most cleverly baited traps. Finally, I hit upon a plan.

"The cold drove you in," says I to myself, 'and the cold will catch you.'

"That night, after supper, I brought in our large thermometer and put it in the kitchen, putting a big piece of cheese beneath it.

"The next morning I left that. The mercury had fallen so low that the cheese that it had pinned him to the floor."

Other stories read by the judges —only the most outstanding are included—included a tale submitted by Dizzy Dean of Arkansas, about a fishing expedition in Ireland.

Being unlucky, she said she obtained the services of a local lad, who threw snuff into the water, causing the fish to come to land where they hammered themselves to death on a large rock.

Another story told by Carlos G. Elizondo of Costa Rica concerned a church in his home town. When the bell so worn the clapper has only holes in it. He alleged these holes are also worn and that in these don't hear the bell ring.

Thousands Celebrate New Year's Eve

Thousands of persons celebrated the coming of the New Year in Belleville and district last night. Many of the churches held watch night services and the streets were filled with merrymakers. Despite the fact that the celebrations were the largest in years, the police report that there was no disorder and that the crowds were well behaved.

Many of the hotels and restaurants held dances and parties and the dining rooms were filled with guests. Many of the clubs also held parties and dances.

Shortly after midnight the sirens and whistles of the city were sounded and the bells of the churches rang out the old year and rang in the new.

McBRIDE ELECTED TORONTO MAYOR

Defeats Harry Hunt And James Simpson, Former Mayor

(By the Canadian Press)

In Toronto, St. Catharines and Peterborough today, Civic administrations were in a state of transition as new municipal officers prepared to take over their duties.

Municipal elections held in these three cities on Monday and yesterday saw Sam McBride victorious as Mayor of the Queen City, Alderman Walter J. Westwood the new Mayor of St. Catharines and George A. Macdonald the chief magistrate of Peterborough.

Elections were held in ten municipalities surrounding Toronto.

Sam McBride, Mayor in 1928 and 1929, defeated Alderman Harry W. Hunt and last year's Mayor, James Simpson, to march once more into position at the city hall. Questions from both defeated candidates were to the effect that a sectarian issue, the question of the free text books to Separate School children whose parents are on relief, decided the election. McBride, who was in favor of extending the aid to Separate School children, drew a strong Roman Catholic vote, which reacted markedly against Mr. Simpson, discussion generally centred on Toronto Federation mayor, who opposed the grant.

Mr. Simpson ranked thirg in the voting.

All of Controllers Alderman Hamilton polled 76 votes more than Controller Thompson, who was second. A similar situation was that of Mr. MacDonald at Peterborough, where Clare E. Phelan was defeated by the vote to 1,631.

LACK OF CANADIAN HONORS LITTLE NOTED

London, Jan. 3—The absence of Canadians from the New Year honors roll caused virtually unnoted in London newspapers. There was no editorial comment.

The Daily Telegraph, in its column "London Day by Day" alone observed: "Distinguished men in Canada for the present list. Under the last Canadian Liberal Government the number of honors was discouraged. Mr. Bennett (former prime minister) reversed this policy but it now to be seen that Prime Minister Mackenzie King has returned to his normal practice."

12 PERSONS LOST IN AIR DISASTER

Crash of Air Liner is Mediterranean Due to Stalling Engines

London, Jan. 2—Hope was abandoned last night for 13 persons lost in the Mediterranean when the Imperial Airways liner City of Khartoum Tuesday night.

Crash-expected had worked in 12 victims of watery cliff Alexandria, Egypt, attempting to raise the liner and find the bodies of the victims.

Two bodies—both unidentified were recovered yesterday afternoon.

The nine passengers and three members of the crew plunged with the plane beneath the sea a few minutes short of an Alexandria landing Tuesday night. Apparently all three aboard died. The only survivor, pilot Vernon Gerry Wilson, was in critical condition aboard H.M.S. Brilliant, which took him from the water.

Two Women Perish

Two women were among the passengers lost, but their names were not known. One was an Italian and one an American.

Pilot Wilson, who was in the water for five hours before the Brilliant found him, was too weak to be questioned by the police. Because of the tragedy, the Royal Imperial Airways accident in two years.

The Admiralty, however, said in a statement, "the crash apparently was due to all three engines cutting out."

COMMANDING FLEET—Duke of Spoleto, cousin of King Victor Emmanuel of Italy, may have been leading in the direction of Dowding, Frankfort, when he said that the Italian naval manoeuvres in the Red Sea recently completed prove that the Italian fleet is ready to "face any eventuality." According to observers, the fleet was the most powerful ever concentrated in those waters and the manoeuvres according to all neutral witnesses, were carried out with great efficiency. The Italian fleet is about one-third the tonnage of the British fleet, but more modern, and is particularly strong in submarines. Il Duce has nothing to match Great Britain's R. M. S. Hood or H. M. S. Renown.

STOCK-IN-TRADE SHOW—Marie Wilson (above), the "dizzy" blonde music salesgirl in "Stars Over Broadway" is really a bright actress, it seems. She is listed among 10 hit players who did the best job of "scene stealing" in the movies in 1935.

ETHIOPIA'S "ARNOLD"—An artist wishing to depict "The Spirit of Youth" could do better than create a study from this photograph. The man is Ras Gugsa, Prince of Amhara, in Tigre province, who defected to the Italian side. Now the Ethiopian counter-advance has penetrated much of his former domain. Ras Gugsa, himself stricken, frosty time a plane flies overhead he cringes in this manner, his eyes mirroring his abject fear. It is of no use for others to tell him that Il Duce's planes are the ones that are flying about—but Ethiopia's air force is not even negligible.

DUCHESS RECOVERING

Windsor, Eng., Jan. 2—A bulletin issued Monday from the Royal Lodge, Windsor Great Park, said the Duchess of York continues to make progress in her recovery from an attack of influenza and pneumonia.

"The condition of her lungs is improving satisfactorily, though necessarily slowly," it said.

It was announced December 19 that her Royal Highness, wife of the Duke of York, was suffering from influenza, but only two days later it was announced that she had been complicated by pneumonia.

WINDSOR POLICE OFFICER KILLED

L. J. Bowden's Car Collides With Taxi-Cab on Street

Windsor, Ont., Jan. 2.—(CP)—A police constable was killed and two other men injured, one seriously, in a collision between a motorcar and a taxicab on Ouellette Avenue early today. The accident occurred within a few feet of the spot where a young man were killed in a motor car street car, crash on New Year's day, 1935.

Leonard J. "Jip" Bowden, member of the Windsor police force for more than four years, died a few minutes after his admittance to Hotel Dieu hospital.

Richard C. McBriane, Detroit, a passenger in the taxi, suffered a fractured skull and is not expected to live. John Manlin, taxi driver, suffered injuries to his legs and is being detained in the hospital for observation.

According to a report submitted by police, Bowden was proceeding north on Ouellette, when his car got caught in the streetcar tracks. He whilst then swerved directly into the path of the approaching cab and the two machines struck each other, both being reduced to debris.

Bowden's features were so mutilated that it was with difficulty his identity was established. Bowden leaves a widow and young son in Windsor and his mother and brother in Ottawa.

STRIKE OF COAL MINERS LOOMS

Agreement Must be Reached This Month to Avoid Walkout

London, Jan. 2 (CP)—The shadow of a nation-wide strike of coal miners darkened new year economic prospects in the United Kingdom today.

Unless some agreement is reached this month between coal miners and mine operators, strike notices will be issued either Jan. 13 or Jan. 20, calling the miners to down their tools and quit work on Jan. 30.

Mine owners, who contend the only way in which they can grant the miners' demands for higher wages is by raising the price of coal to consumers, acknowledged they had been able to make little progress towards avoiding a voluntary price increase.

The railway companies, among the biggest consumers, are definitely opposed to a plan whereby they would get an extra shilling a ton for coal. The railways are confronted with demands from their own employees for restoration of the balance of wage cuts imposed in recent years.

WIDOW EXPECTED TO VIEW BODY

Police Believe Death of Man Found Due to Suicide

Napanee, Ont., Jan. 2.—(CP)—The widow and father-in-law of Henry Hamilt of the town were expected here today from Desoronto to view the body found in a lodge's swamp near Marlbank, village to see if it is that of the 50-year-old man, who disappeared in April 1932.

A metal belt buckle bearing the initial F. and the part Smith also appearing while visiting relatives near Marlbank, 16 miles north of here, led authorities to solve the three-and-a-half year-old mystery might be solved.

Fred Busby, one of several woodcutters working in the swamp, found the body late Tuesday. It was fairly composed and indications were that the man's body suicide as the head was lying a few feet from the body underneath the limb of a tree and a rope around the neck, tied with a slip-knot at the lower end.

Police, coroner, relatives and friends hunted the district for three days and nights at the time of Smith's disappearance, but no trace was found him.

Edward Duncan, a member of Deseronto Council, and Mrs. Smith, widow of the missing man, were hoping to find the body when they were here today to view the remains.

THE BIRDS WILL MISS HIM.

(In Memory of Sir Walter Scott.)

The birds will miss him when they come again,
He was the first to greet them—for his voice
Was ringing in the orchards and the lane.

And some all the little things they do
He loved their vendetta haunts by wood

'Twas his delight to take them unawares
Or mass upon them and with mind attuned
Worship the God who thought of things so fair.

The birds will miss him—nay, for with the spring
He shall awaken and go out once more.

His spirit shall go wandering as of yore
Beside the streams or in the sequrid woods,
The genius of his native solitudes.

IN A GRAVE IN BELLEVILLE CEMETERY lies all that is mortal of Samuel T. Wood, formerly on the editorial staff of the Toronto Globe, whose articles on agriculture subjects always occupied honorable position on the editorial page of that newspaper. Sam Wood was a nature lover and got so close to nature that he knew the personal habits of the feathered and furry inhabitants of Ontario. The above poem, written by an editorial associate on the Globe staff of Sam Wood, T. Lovell Milligan, for a time editor of the Belleville Intelligencer fitly expresses the lovable life that was Sam Wood, who left Belleville as a young man with the usual hopes and aspirations—and attained his objective when his musings on the lives of birds and animals, reduced to words, found frequent place on the editorial page of that sane and honorable publication of public opinion, The Toronto Globe. Sam Woods lived a full life but a comparatively short one. He died in Toronto and his body was brought home for interment in the Belleville cemetery. Wm. Stewart Lyon, once editor of the Globe, now head of the Hydro Electric Commission of Ontario, was the pallbearer. Sam Wood did not die that his body is resting under the green tented sward just over the hill from Belleville town,—that his soul goes marching on to continue to make the world better and sweeter and more worthwhile living in. Hail, but not farewell.

WHERE TEENS IS NEITHER SIGHING OR SORROW—in that Never Never Land where the souls of little children like fragrant flowers perfume the landscape and there are no tears but the air is full of the laughter of the angels, rejoicing that the frets and fetters of earth have been dissolved in joy and gladness of a better world. There's a new face in the Never Never Land, where there is never any more sorrow, pain or sighing, a lad from Belleville, a little lad who despite affliction always wore a big smile. He was pet and mascot of the Y.M.C.A. Boys Camp at Moira Lake this past summer and not a boy there but would go through fire and water for him. He couldn't romp and run and swim like the other lads but he never let on, enjoy watching them disport themselves and as he hobbled around on his crutch the other boys were always careful to see that his steps were guided where no accident might befall him. A cheery bright lad, this despite the fact that he had spent 1147 days in the Hospital for Sick Children at Toronto, where specialists vied with one another in doing all they could to remove the disabilities of this boy and through another medical miracle restore him to full citizenship in the community of health. Success attended the efforts of the medical specialists, spurred on by the grown-up friends of this boy who counted not the days and hours and years of suffering to health of the boy. All went well and complete recovery seemed near when a few days before Christmas the soul of the boy took flight to the Father. There is no more sorrow or sighing or pain or tears—where the old defective shell which he wore on earth will not worry him any more—for his skin, like that of the garments of the redeemed, clean and pure and spotless—this a life that began in Scotland ended in Belleville and was reborn in glory in the Never Never Land.

THE TWO BIG DRAMATIC HITS OF BROADWAY ARE ENGLISH, Miss Helen Hayes in "Victoria Regina" pictures the beloved Queen Victoria from her accession to the throne to old age—an English play performed by American actors in the United States—forbidden production in England where it is lese majeste to imitate royalty or the Deity on the stage. The other hit is "Idiot's Delight" with English actors and the locale a court room in old England. Helen Hayes is receiving great praise for her portrayal of good Queen Victoria in a play which has quite a rise to command it artistically or entertainingly aside from the personality and talents of the star.

Eleven Penalties Handed Out Including Four Majors

CANADIENS WIN

Substitution lists for the newspaper statements their managers have been tossing at each other. Dec Hird, Wings' coach, and Art Ross, Bruins' are carrying on the battle, with the Toronto manager claiming victory for Jack Adams' team.

Charges and counter-charges of rabbit tactics by Adams and Manager Conn Loughlin of Hawks occupied the last period of the game in Chicago that Wings won 4-2. It brought them into a tie with Montreal Canadiens for National League's American division leadership.

Meanwhile Montreal's Canadiens were winning their fourth game of the season when their lively victims 2-0 at Boston. A packed house of 12,000 came to see the two-point teams battle and got most of their action in the second period when Pete Lepine and Sylvio Mantha scored the game's two goals.

Four of the former goalies at Chicago were majors. Louis Trudell and Pete Palangio, the two netminders when they tangled in the second period and Trudell came up with a badly cut right eye.

Scores On Penalty Shot.

Eddie Goodfellow of Habs Coolidge took up the battle in the third and were both given majors. They had the length of the dressing room to cool off in, as there were only a few seconds left to play.

Detroit won the game through the outstanding skill of Larry Aurie and Gordon Pettinger who clicked for four Wing goals evenly. They both scored in the first period, Pettinger getting Wilder Larochelle, former Canadien, and his first goal for Detroit.

Goodfellow combined with Aurie for Wings' second period counter and Doug Young helped Pettinger to their fourth tally in the final minute of the game.

Paul Haynes beat Normie Smith, Wing goalie, on a penalty shot with only 31 seconds to play for the second Chicago goal. It was the first store by a penalty shot this season.

Tonight Toronto Leafs' clever crew on their trusty rivals Maroons in a game at Montreal while New York Americans and Rangers clash at Madison Square Garden. Tommy Gorman will handle Maroons after a one-game layoff necessitated by a cold.

All Scoring Done in Last Fifteen Minutes

San Francisco, Jan. 2 (AP)—The Shriners' Crippled Children's Hospital counted the proceeds today of the United States' 13-12 victory over west in the all-star "Charity Bowl" football game.

Officials said the result would not be known for a day or two but it took only the thrill-packed last quarter minutes to decide the outcome on the gridiron yesterday.

After three periods of battling on even terms, the west broke the scoring ice with a field goal but it only caused the stars from the east of the Mississippi to fall with devastating fury upon the westerns.

IT HELPS JOCK—The secret is out as to why Jock McAvoy, the British wallopper, bites his gloves when he leaves his corner for a fight. Ring writers who saw McAvoy knock out Babe Risko in New York, wrote that Jock had a fit or heaven. Now it is learned he bites the leather in his teeth and pulls it down to relieve pressure on the heavy glove on an old thumb injury. Here is a closeup of the grinning Britisher "in action."

Stamford Indians Defeat S.M.U. in Rose Bowl Game

Score Touchdown And Convert And Thus Stop Aerial Attack

(By Paul Zimmerman)
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Pasadena, Calif., January 2—(AP)—The Stanford Indians had every reason to believe in the "third time's the charm" adage today after tying haliers on the hitherto unblemished Rose Bowl football escutcheon by defeating Southern Methodist in the 21st Rose Bowl game.

The big rag team of the West was 7-0 and thinkward itself after distressing defeats in the last two years of Rose Tournament play.

One determined thrust late in the first period turned the trick but in doing it ran a valuable lesson on pass defence learned at a costly price in the Rose Bowl and a year ago made the lone touchdown stand up.

For it was the fierce rushing of Jack Stevenson of Coach Maddy Bell's fatsog aerial circus, that figured largely in the upset, which surprised a heavy share of the 85,000 persons who crammed into the Pasadena bowl. It was Stevenson Bill Paulman to stocky Jimmy Coffis, the ball in scoring territory and the Indians took full advantage.

From the 19-yard line, where Coffis was tackled as he grabbed the Mustang pass, Bobby Grayson and Bob Hamilton packed the pigskin to the two-yard stripe and Paulman slid off tackle to score. Coffis converted Mcscrip promptly and accurately kicked good.

Rushed Towards

For the Mustangs it was the first time they had been behind in any of the 13 games played this season. The fans—the Western ones—went wild. Coach Bell gave his beleaguered gray hat a tug.

Overlooking the aerial display of Alabama here a year ago still was Stanford's big line which held the Indians, for they viciously rushed the pitching artists of S.M.U., continued to get penalized only a few of the throws to be completed, when they might do the most harm.

The one lapse came in the second period and Southern Methodist took full advantage of it. Starting on their own 25 Coach Bell's players, led by the brilliant Bobby Wilson, drove 75 yards only to be disappointed.

The crowning feat in this parade was a forward double lateral pass play, that ate up 24 of those yards and almost became a touchdown play.

The triumph put the West out in front by two games over the 21 years of play with nine victories against seven defeats, discounting the two service games of the great war period.

Shore's Holdout Gives Prexy His Biggest "Kick"

Montreal, Jan. 2—(CP)—The biggest "kick" Frank Calder, President of the National Hockey League, has had from his quarter-century hockey career came with the 1933 holdout of Eddie Shore, star defenceman for the Boston Bruins.

"There were two kicks, "to be mathematically correct," said Mr. Calder today, and they came close in a most unexpected way.

One particular Friday afternoon I received word from the Boston club, that the squabble over Shore's holdout was in grave danger of ending in a walkout. I pondered the thing a while and then the idea first occurred to me, that I might be able to get Shore on the telephone. I got him somewhere near Edmonton, but exactly where, or whether he had a telephone in his house, was something I was quite in the dark about. However, I took a hand and gave the operator this instruction: "I want to speak to Eddie Shore, lives somewhere near Edmonton, Alberta; is a well-known hockey player; probably the Edmonton operator can locate him."

"Within four minutes Shore was on the other end of the line. By the time we were ready to hang up, he had agreed to take the first train to Montreal.

"Waiting for the train, with smoking complete my need would not be absent. I received my second kick." Shore, the tall and of the long carriage alighted two grown-ups and a child. Towards me came Eddie Shore, a pair of skates in one hand the hand of his little son in the other hand Mrs. Shore on the other side of the child."

Sees Signs Of Contract

Back in 1921 "Jumping-Jake" Forbes, brilliant centre-fielder for the Toronto St. Patricks, was the first "holdout" that Mr. Calder can remember. Forbes left with his contract Forbes staked out of the game during the season he had been displayed with St. Pats again for young John Ross Roach stepped into the position that was to immortal that Forbes was soon forgotten.

Bert Sellers, Kitchener's defenceman for the New York Rangers, capitulated a couple of times. Charlie Conacher of the Toronto Maple Leafs and Lorne Chabot, Chicago Black Hawks, had their troubles ironed out last year. The worries of Harvey Jackson, Leaf winger, and Aurel Joliat of the Canadiens, were settled with little difficulty this season.

"Taffy" Abel, of Chicago, stayed out of the game last season and this year realized the task of getting back into shape was too great. In Montreal, and Joe Calder, he did "the smart thing and retired."

LEAGUE LEADERS

SUDBURY SKATER WINS FEATURE

Canada Will Provide Stiff Competition at Olympics

Newburgh, N.Y., Jan. 2—(CP)—The skating world again today had proof Canada will provide serious competition in skating events as the winter Olympic games this year at Garmisch-Partenkirchen.

Frank Stack of Sudbury celebrated his 20th birthday yesterday by capturing the 440-yard event in the middle Atlantic outdoor skating championships. He also chalked up the fastest time in the one-mile preliminary heats at 2:37 2-5.

The only other Canadian entrant in the meet, Lillian Halsworth, finished second in the ladies' 220-yard event.

Stack's performance at the meet left him in fifth place with 30 points. Top points went to Leo Freisinger, 18-year-old member of the United States Olympic team from Chicago. He won the 880-yard event and amassed a total of 50. Three others—Allan Potts of Brooklyn, N.Y. holder of the championship for the past two years. Bob Peterson and Delbert Lamb, both of Milwaukee, ranked second with 40.

Stack covered the 440-yard event in 38 3-5 seconds. Second place went to Peterson and third to Joe Bree, Tuckahoe, N.Y.

Eli Klein of Buffalo, N.Y., won the women's title, triumphing over Mile Halsworth in the 220-yard event and also capturing the other two women's events, the 440-yard and the mile. She scored 90 points, while the Toronto girl had 20.

FIRST FIVE ARE CLOSELY BUNCHED

Walter Hornby Wins Annual 10 Mile Race at Hamilton

Hamilton, Ont., Jan. 2 (CP)—No records were broken but Walter Hornby struggled through to victory in one of the closest finishes in the history of the event as the annual 10-mile road race was staged here yesterday.

The field of 22 narrowed down to 19 early in the race and of that number five bunched together to go into the lead.—The Hamilton Olympic marathoner won in 54.20 1-5, not much more than four seconds ahead of the fourth man. His time was three minutes behind the record of 51.14 set some years ago by Cliff Bricker of Galt.

Milt Walker, Toronto, two seconds behind Hornby, placed second, while the veteran Harold Webster, Hamilton, was third with a time of 54.23 3-5.

These three, with J. Yeaman, Galt and Hubert Young, Hamilton, pulled away from the field early in the race and stayed within arm's reach of each other until near the finish. Hornby sprinted into a five-yard lead 100 yards from the finish line and was able to hold it until the end.

W. Fedorick, Hamilton, won the four-mile race for boys, run at the same time.

N. H. L. STARS

FIVE TEAMS IN CENTRAL LEAGUE

Marmora, Madoc, Stirling, Tweed And Belleville Entrants

Marmora, Dec. 2 (Special)—The hockey season is being eagerly looked forward to by Marmora who expect one of the best seasons in years for the local team. At a District League meeting held in Madoc on Friday, Dec. 27, Marmora entered the league composed of Madoc, Tweed, Stirling and the Belleville Aajmaa Club. Originally this league was formed without Marmora and the Belleville Athletic and Yachting Club forming the fifth team. However, Madoc and Stirling out-voted Tweed in a measure to retain the old Central Hastings League which naturally included Marmora.

Although some of the fans objected to Marmora's open air rink, the players objected to the lighting system here. It is difficult for the goalies to do justice to their ability when the light is poor. Hence an effort will be made to strengthen the lights with additional wiring.

The first hockey practice was called on Monday night and about fifteen players turned out full of enthusiasm and eager to make the team. The practice was under the direction of Bill Shannon who will be coaching the local squad. A full hour of practice ensued and some promising material was seen. The boys are in good condition and anxious to meet their opponents. All agreed to turn out to practice every night before their first game.

Following the practice an informal meeting was held in the dressing room. Ralph Neal was elected manager and secretary-treasurer of the hockey club and has already taken over his duties. Bill Shannon was elected coach. After a few more practices the team will be picked. Meantime rigid practice is in order and it is hoped that the executive will endeavor to instill the boys their unqualified support and co-operation. Keen interest in hockey that used to exist in Marmora. A double schedule was drawn up for the local team by the league in Madoc. Although some time was spent on it, some changes may be necessary. The schedule is as follows:

First half:

Jan. 2—Tweed at Marmora.
Jan. 3—Belleville at Madoc.
Jan. 6—Belleville at Stirling.
Madoc at Tweed.
Jan. 8—Stirling at Belleville.

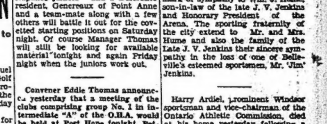
CURRENT SPORT

DAY BY DAY

Here is another year begun in the quest of sport and athletic honors, one of the most promising years to look forward to by any athlete, more especially amateurs. In 1936 the Olympic games will again hold precedence for a period will also push professional sportdom into the back-ground. In the meantime naturally we are peeking around the corner to see if better sport revivals for Belleviliam than was generally enjoyed in 1935.

Pop out of the New Year bee came the initial parties of the Belleville juniors on New Years eve and again last night. A host of junior hopefuls were on hand and kept Manager Thomas' eye busy observing the better qualities of the most proficient players. On Tuesday night about 40 kids, under the age of 20 years, answered the initial call and equally as many shook down there New Year's dinner in the stiff work-out last night. Manager Thomas announced that practice for the juniors would be held this evening and again tomorrow night, as the locals are scheduled to open the current junior O.H.A. season at Kingston on Saturday night.

Although it was quite hard to distinguish the better players among the many, qualities, and goodness knows there was plenty of material regardless as to top quality, Skipper Thomas did manage to determine some of the better material at hand. Hinton and a newcomer a lad named Thompson, took the best of the goalies while McCreary, Johnston and Rowbotham of the B.C.I. squad were well and got an invitation to return tonight along with Yelson, Cliff Howie, Whitehead, Morris, Amo, Thompson, all last year's Napanee juniors and a Deseronto resident. Genereaux of Point Anne and a Glen-mar lad were also in the others will battle it out for the coveted sweaters on Saturday night. Or course Manager Thomas will still be looking for available material tonight and Saturday night when the juniors work out.



Convener Eddie Thomas announced yesterday that a meeting of the clubs comprising group No. 1 in intermediate "A" of the O.H.A. would be held at Port Hope tonight. Petarboro, Oshawa, Campbellford and Bowmanville will be in attendance, but as all clubs have specific ideas of their own in relationship to the calibre of schedule that is to be drawn, goodness knows what the ultimate result may be. Doubtlessly, however, it is safe in assuming that Oshawa and Peterboro will play a double schedule with all four teams meeting home and away in the regular schedule, thereby giving Belleville, fans a peep at Peterboro and Oshawa, once at Campbellford on two occasions, but as we intimated before, it is safe to be surprised at any outcome that may eventually arise.

The latest information from Norman Hastings is to the effect that Dick Smith's Belleville Yachting and Athletic Club hockey team has been invited to attend a special meeting of the Central League at Marmora directly following a league game tonight. We understand the "Northerners" are seriously considering the admission of the "sailors" into their loop, an excellent gesture on their part as the "south enders" will be an asset to the roster of the north loop.

The Belleville Industrial Hockey loop cleared its decks for the 1936 season on Tuesday night, when four certain starters signified their intentions of opening hostilities in the near future. Jack Wilson, of the American Hardware, was named as President, while Gerald Harrigan will handle the secretary-treasurer's duties for the coming season. The Hankers, the fun hardware companies, American and Belleville, Sargent and Corleys are the cream of the new combination of the hockey loop. Other industrial teams are expected to join this circuit before the schedule is actually drafted, however. A practice game will be held by some of the teams this evening night. The meeting was held at the Y.M.C.A.

The Arena will be closed for a short time this afternoon as a mark of sympathy to Wm. J. Hume, son-in-law of the late J. V. Jenkins and honorary President of the Arena. The sporting fraternity of the city extend to Mr. and Mrs. Hume and also the family of the late J. V. Jenkins their sincere sympathy. For this loss of one of Belleville's esteemed sportsmen, Mr. Jim' Jenkins.

Harry Ardiel, prominent Windsor sportsman and vice-chairman of the Ontario Athletic Commission, died at his home yesterday following a sudden attack of pneumonia. Mr. Ardiel has been prominent throughout the province for many years as a sportsman. Z. Mills, of this city, is a member of the O.A.C. and speaks very highly of Mr. Ardiel in the matter of clean sportsmanship.

RYDER CUP DONOR DIES IN LONDON

Samuel Ryder Succumbs to an Attack of Pneumonia

London, Jan. 2 (AP) — Samuel Ryder, 77, donor of the Ryder Golf Cup, for competition between professionals of Great Britain and the United States, died suddenly today in a London hotel.

Ryder, who went to the hotel for the Christmas holidays, succumbed to pneumonia.

He presented his trophy at St Albans, Eng., in 1926. It was first competed for in 1927. Two years later, the conditions of the deed of the gift were altered, confining the British team to British-born professionals resident in Great Britain, and the American team to American-born professionals residing in the United States in the year of the current match.

The contest takes place in alternate years, each country being visited in turn.

American Section.

Section—Detroit and Rangers tied with 20 points.

Points — Thompson, Chicago, 10 goals, 8 assists, 18 points.

Goals—Thompson, Chicago, 10.

Penalties—Siebert, Boston, 34 m.

Shutouts—Karakas, Chicago, 4.

WHERE OLYMPIAD ICE SPORTS WILL BE PRESENTED—Skating rink at Garmisch-Partenkirchen—In the little village of Garmisch-Partenkirchen, Germany, lying over 2,100 feet above sea level, is this ice skating rink which may well become the focal point of the winter Olympics. On this sheet of ice the leading ice sport competitors of the world will vie for honors. The Olympic hockey championship, with Canada favored to repeat its earlier wins, will be played here. The rink is 100 feet wide, 200 feet long. Seating capacity for 1,500 is provided.

The low temperatures of the past two weeks has caused the ice on the Mill, manager of the Tweed Arena, to prepare a fine sheet of ice which is being thoroughly enjoyed by local skaters. On Saturday night Tweed-Stirling Band played for the first appearance at the rink and provided music for the skating. There was a splendid crowd of skaters on the ice and they thoroughly enjoyed themselves. The band will be present at the rink once or twice a week during the winter.

Mr. R. H. Elliott and two children, Arline and Lemuel, of Toronto, are visiting at Mayor's parsonage. Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Elliott for a few days.

Mrs. J. G. Frost, former organist of Tweed United Church, played the organ on Sunday in the absence of Miss Lois Richardson, the regular organist. Mr. R. H. Elliott sang "My Task" at the evening service. The minister, Rev. R. B. Nicholson, delivered two splendid addresses appropriate to the last Sunday of the year.

The annual meeting of the ratepayers of Tweed Consolidated school section was held at the school on Thursday morning, December 26th. The meeting was presided over by the chairman, Mr. Fred Blakely. Two trustees were nominated to fill two vacancies, Mr. O. R. Porritt was re-elected for a term of three years to represent Tweed portion of the school district. Mr. Lincoln Elliott was elected to represent the Farnsworth division of the district, replacing Mr. E. A. Graham, who for many years has been a member of the Board continuously and his retirement from the board at a later meeting. Mr. S. H. Connor, principal of the Consolidated school, expressed on behalf of the teachers their appreciation of the co-operation of the Board during the year. There was some discussion by the bus drivers of the difficulty they experienced in getting away after school, according to the schedule owing to the fact that the High School pupils are late. It was decided to ask the High School to co-operate so that the pupils will be ready to leave in the buses not later than 4.15 p.m.

"Shanghai Rose"

By Anne Forester

Mad, he was: hers a kid, that man who had held her on night nurse duty, who had smiled his thanks at the memory of that dark face bent above her own. But memory when sorely stirred revealed and reunited together. She gave an exclamation that was almost a cry.

"Let's forget it, shall we?" Larry was rising to go. "It's a true, Rose —we're friends? And it can never happen, again....."

Friendly. The girl smiled into his eyes, regarding his tall figure wistfully; seeing him, it seemed, for the first time. The straightforward look, the square chin, the kind, blue eyes and the hint of weakness about the good-humored mouth. It brought something back to her, a memory of feeling. Harvey had been like that at first, too; charming, good-natured Harvey, who got gracefully drunk and as gracefully accepted tolerance of his weakness as a right-ful due. Harvey—at first defiant and independent, as Larry was independent now.... so soon to lapse into a bewildered, sorry boy.... Harvey, with his jealousy, his sudden, quick suspicions, his short-lived remorse, always culminating in that wrenching grief which was partly due to illness and partly, alas to his own weakness of will...

After Larry had gone, Rose left the hot kitchen, and went out to sit in the swinging seat on the little back porch. It was quiet and the air was sweet with the breath of flowers. The pungent, bitter scent of the flowers that would soon be gone.

How strangely Larry had acted about Harvey; she thought irrelevantly. Maybe he hated Harvey too—how could anyone do that? Harvey had been a boy, an irresponsible child. She could understand Larry's one hating Jeffrey Therrold.

And on the back of the thought came again the disquieting conviction that she, too, had known Larry Morgan somewhere before. Yet how could that be—if Catherwood had been his home town—she would never heard of Catherwood until she had married Harvey Therrold.

Wearily, Rose leaned her head against the back of the swing. The short afternoon was fading into twilight; and in the early dusk the dim white bulk of the Clubhouse on the hill showed dimly through the gloom. Lanterns, swinging about the verandas, glowing rose and blue and gold, casting a glamor she now knew they did not possess. The music of the orchestra, the regular Sunday night dance muted by distance to a mild, sweet tempo.

Glamor was over and done with again for Shanghai Rose.

CHAPTER 25.

A RISK IN THE RAIN

"I declare," Lolita said with a sigh, "I most hate to see the summer going. I've grown downright attached to these 'sessas!"

She was helping Rose in what she termed "getting up a snack" for supper. Larry, stretched out in the swing on the little back porch, grinned at her wickedly over the top of his newspaper.

"Just so your don't come wanting to borrow my extra pair of trousers, Lolita," he drawled cheerfully. "I'm going to need 'em myself, you know, when the snow flies!"

Kitten, patient for the sake of her mother, came out of the bedroom and slid herself with regal unconcern into the man's lap, beating his big shoulder with small adoring fists. Above her dainty suits his eyes sought Rose where she stood in the doorway, her hands filled with small garments and a badly mangled woollen doll.

"I'll say," he said softly, "I would have loved you for a mother of that kid, the light of her face and the blind seems to be your weakness...." He stopped, a dull flush mounting to his brow. The blue eyes filled with such a look of embarrassed remorse that a small ripple of laughter trembled for a moment along the girl's grave mouth. He looked so like a little boy himself, Rose thought, who has asked the wrong thing at the dinner-table. In the two weeks since the events at the Country Club here Larry had let no further mention of the subject on the part of either the man or the girl. Life had swung almost insensibly back to a casual, comfortable cycle—a harmonious routine of little days.

The walk through the town of a morning for Rose. Past the Boston store, where the pimply clerk never failed to stop in his task of window-trimming to stare after her slim figure. Past the Catherwood Hotel, with its row of tilted chairs and chewing drummers. Past the real estate office, the Rialto Cafe. In the great shadowy dining-room of the National House she could usually discern the efficient figure of Bertha Hardy, whisking about among the tables, a white wraith in the gloom.

A block or two further across the tracks and she was in another world; a world of narrow, unpaved streets, lined with the flimsy houses of the mill-workers. Shacks those here, no hill-top country club..... only the bald facade of Wilkie's Store, sporting its false yellow front as self-consciously as an old man wearing a new hat. Rose, waiting to engulf her in a mass of trivial tasks—until she should come again and she was free to call for Kitten and turn once again toward the river and home. Yet with it all Rose knew that in a measure she was battling against the encroaching tide of monotony. Even the gradging bow of the thin, dark woman who was the proprietor of "Emmeline's" .... all had their place in the tempo of her life. And—admirable.

Larry himself, with the fall elections coming on, was—as she put it to herself—like little monkeys who heard, saw and said damned little."

Add to that, he had recently been appointed Justice of the Peace to fill a temporary vacancy, was out to become settled on his own merits and Larry was taking to politics in a big way.

"I" he announced sonorously to the little group on the cottage porch, "am for America first, farm relief, waterways and flood control. And to that the Ten Commandments and the multiplication table, Mike Hilton—and you've got the platform of L. Morgan, Esquire."

And he went on, without further preface or pause to sing the remainder of the verses about the "Little Red Wagon" and the plaintive piping frog, and the cat whose one extravagance was clothes" to an outrageously wide-eyed child.

"You're quite sure," Rose asked slowly, "that you can spare your car this afternoon, Larry?"

"Dead sure," he answered cheerfully, "and I'll put on a good gas, oil and red ink. It isn't more than an hour's run into the County Seat and it's highway all the way. Wish I could go with you Rose but St. Luke's needs me for a few choir-practice exercises on the typewriter."

It had been arranged, after some debate and considerable preliminary arrangement on Larry's part, that Rose was to drive his Stover into the County Seat that afternoon to personally interview the manufacturer there whom Larry thought might be interested in handling the formula for the lotion which had so interested the old Catherwood drug-gist and which had proven to be what Lotlie aptly termed "a God-send for my skin."

It really was half as good as they claimed it to be.... the very thought of making some definite contact in the matter had lent a new zest to Rose's thoughts for days. The frail, aromatic bubble of her content with her present life was instantly tinged by the shadow of its possible impermanence. Even Larry, loathe to disturb the little haven by the river, saw the fairness and importance of her trying to plan ahead for the future.

"Even if they only make some selling arrangement with me, she planned happily, "I could still live here and keep this house—"

"Ah! maybe it would mean a beauty shop of our own sometime!" Lotlie, transported on a carpet of her own weaving was already installed behind frosted glass windows, wings to Rose's thoughts for days.

September had slipped without warning into October. An October of tawny yellows, burnt-orange and gold—with the smoke from burning leaves in front doorways purpling the trees in the twilight and filling the air with a pungent, acrid taste. The fumes on the hillside had turned to scarlet and from the bursting spurs of the hose-chestnut trees the nuts fell to the ground.

All afternoon, while he had been closeted with the man at the County Seat, it had rained steadily, deterringly but Rose, driving the little car homeward along the furrowed brown road, was unconscious alike of the rain-dimpled puddles or the lowering skies ahead. Her heart was but one refrain..... the dream was coming true.

The manufacturer, impressed and interested, had been encouraging. He had heard of the old formulas..... It had been a favorite on the market a generation ago..... Odd, how these old things dropped out of sight, only to reappear as a good as ever! they could secure it abroad of course, through inquiry, through their agents, if they desired to do so—but they would so much prefer dealing direct with Mrs. Therrold since she had it here. The formula was her own property? She could, perhaps, raise a little capital for an agency? Or she might, if she preferred, act as demonstrator if they, themselves, produced the product? In any case, if she would come right in after the first of the year.

Miss Abby, thought the girl, driving exultantly along..... Miss Abby had meant what she said about buying the sweetmeat box..... only had she had leaned comfortably from her sedan in front of Caselle's and reminded them of her promise to call.....

The little car, bumping through a puddle deeper than the rest, slewed sharply to one side. Record to her surroundings, Rose gripped the steering wheel firmly. Rain beat against the windshield now, and the side-curtains flapped in the rising wind. A flood of water, sloshing upward from a gully by the wayside, came in under the rickety door. She began to drive more slowly....her knuckles showing white with the tenseness of her grip on the wheel.

MR. AND MRS— By Briggs

TARZAN THE INVINCIBLE (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service)

There were tears of happiness in Zora Drinov's eyes as she advanced to meet Colt. Then the bushes before her parted, and there stepped into view, before her horrified gaze, a monstrous hairy ape. To-yat the king, was as much surprised as the girl.

It was with horror that To-yat viewed this white, she-Mangani. To the girl there was naught but cruelty in his brutal face, before his mien, though in his breast was an entirely different emotion. He lumbered toward her, and then as though released from paralysis, Zora turned to flee.

But how futively, she realized an instant later, as a hairy paw gripped her roughly by the shoulder. For an instant she had forgotten the fierce mate that Colt always left with her for her self-protection. Jerking it from its holster, she turned upon the beast.

To-yat, seeing in the weapon a club with which she intended to attack him, wrenched it from her hand and hurled it aside, and then, before she managed to regain her freedom, he lifted her lightly to his lap and lumbered off into the jungle.

French Kidnap Law Introduced Today

Paris, Dec. 31 (U.P. Havas) — France's equivalent of the "Lindbergh Law" was introduced in the Chamber of Deputies today.

The measure provides two types of punishment for kidnappers convicted in French courts. They are:

1. Death, if the kidnapping results in the death of the victim.

2. Life imprisonment at Devil Island or if the kidnapped person is a minor. If ransom is demanded the guilty person will be sentenced for life at hard labor regardless of victim's age.

Starting with new songs from the Stella pens of Mack Gordon and Harry Revel, with gorgeous melodies by Dr. Joe Pasternack, Gordon and Ted Sparks, and with dialogue that is beautiful enough for background, Paramount's "Collegiate" will be presented in three capacity audiences at the end of the week.

The title tells you you won't spend anything during this elaborately-different film, you'll find yourself listening to one of the most catchy scores of the year or feasting your eyes on the lavish display of beautiful ladies.

"Collegiate" is the first picture to give Frances Langford an important role though she has had dazzling parts in a number of films. She not only sings in her own lovely way, but also acts in it like a veteran. Her principal number, "Will I Ever Know?" should become a favorite of the months.

Jack Oakie is cast as the newspaper reporter of old days who has become like a girls' seminary at the outset of the story with the reporter had to sing his way from the brimming lagoon for a happy finish.

Lynne Overman, Oakie's handsome, and Ned Sparks, his sniffy-sarcastic pals, are in the picture to help the heroine through the big Mitch-Milling journey to the land of the golden chip. Another Joe Penner, who has a nice, easy, plenty of money, and a bad case of the blues.

Then four bags into the school, and home and a bit of romance with Mr. Hudnut's institution, very dull and unimpressed, where the action is and the humor, and the romance, and even the Xavier dance.

Besides we find Ned Langford, wearing spectacles and generally unattractive, but singing a popular song and a swell one, "Moonburn", Chas. Quartet of Lotharios, Gus Shilling, Collegiate, Charlie host of the school and modernistic it. In short, they've taken the old-fashioned story that is old-fashioned and transform the place into a "modern school."

Mrs. Langford is in love with Oakie, while Penner, in his escapades, mistakes Lynne's and Ned's friendship, Betty Grable, a screen newcomer, is an attractive girl in the part that any one girl could desire.

The transformation of Miss Grable from ugly duckling to beauty is really a rich polo player and he is made Prom-King of Pelo. Connee Boswell is the "fashionology," in stimming and dying, in make-up, in songs and in her part. The story is cleverly designed to make the young women charming. Miss Grable proved a perfect foil to the spirit of things and stitches from a prim little girl to a vivacious, alluring vixen.

All this transpires with a background of catchy tunes and impressive dance routines. There can be no question that it is one of the most skilfully produced and directed musicals yet to come out of Hollywood. Containing all the elements necessary to success at the box office and satisfaction to the audience.

Bon-Bon Parade Scores

Probably one of the most novel and beautiful productions since talkies began is "Bon-Bon Parade", a gorgeous cartoon in beautiful technicolor presented by Fleischer studios to encourage the kiddies to see this wonderful picture every chance they get to their strenuous school studies. A Treasure Chest miniature and a "Betty Star Comedy" entitled "Ladies Love Hats," concludes an entertainment that should prove an entertainment to be repeated again tonight and Friday, matinee and evening.

AT THE CAPITOL

"I Found Stella Parish"

Kay Francis and Ian Hunter Cosstarred in Bitzer Rosenthal Production of "I Found Stella Parish" at the Capitol theatre for the last time we find Kay Francis giving the best performances of her career in "I Found Stella Parish".

The film is based on a powerful story by Mary McCall, Jr. Sensational Miss Francis has the intensely emotional role of a woman who topples from the heights of success to the depths of despair.

Fighting to hide a terrible page in her life in order to protect her stepdaughter from scandal, she finds she is betrayed by the man she has come to love, and started on the downward path in her profession.

Separated from her child when she is placed in hiding with a faithful retainer, her love turned to bitter hatred, she lives by a terrific emotional stress that eats into her heart and makes her life a horrible nightmare.

The battle of the young journalist, who has been pulled into the story of her life after having won her confidence, to bring back her stepdaughter and bring to her the justice he had done her, is a gripping one from start to finish.

Ian Hunter, the English stage and film star, has the role of the journalist, with Paul Lukas playing the part of the suave, sophisticated menace and sullor at the time she had been the victim of unscrupulous men. The clever child actress, Sybil Jason, is seen as Miss Francis' daughter. Others in the cast include Wallace Ford, Mary Bersford, Jo Ann Kingsford, Harry Bersford, Robert Strange, Mervyn LeRoy directed from a screen play by Casey Robinson.

Bette Davis, cast at last in a role in which she will have the opportunity hailed by her audiences is coming to the Capitol Friday and Saturday in "The Girl From Tenth Ave."

Also on the same program "The Sagebrush Troubadour" with Gene Autry, the Singing Cowboy.

Saturday matinee will give you a real treat with "Silver Temple" in "Pardon My Pups", also cartoon and serial.

Illustrated Sermons by Rev. J. A. Kefford Create Interest

On the following Sundays throughout the next few weeks Rev. J. A. Kefford will give an interesting series of illustrated sermons with the aid of artistically designed lantern slides. The first of the series was given in the special Christmas service a week ago when a large congregation listened and observed the picture depicting the life of Christ and in the evening a very good number gathered for the second of the series which dealt with the "Book of Esther". These sermons which are quite different from the usual Sunday evening services are creating a great deal of interest in the district. Interested in the Sunday evening service this week was added to by the presence of Mrs. H. Ellis, soloist of St. John's Anglican church, who was the guest soloist for the evening and offered a very pleasing soprano solo during the service. Mrs. R. H. Williams presided at the organ.

2 BARONS RAISED TO BE VISCOUNTS

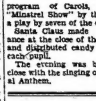
Canada Disappears From New Year's Honor List

London Jan. 3—Two Barons are raised to the rank of Viscount, while the King has been pleased to create two Viscounts.

Privy Councillors and Peers whose names are announced in the New Year's honors' list issued Tuesday night.

One Order of Merit and about four new Knights' orbits are also included in the long list of those whom His Majesty honors on New Year's Day.

After two years' inclusion, Canada again disappears from the list.



Two of the King's sons appear in the list, Lieutenant-General the Duke of York is given a triple promotion, becoming Vice-Admiral of the Fleet, Lieutenant-General in the Army and Marshal in the Royal Air Force. The King's fourth son, the Duke of Kent, receives the Royal Victorian Chain.

Elevated to be Viscounts are Lord Hanworth, former Master of the Rolls, and Sir Maurice Hankey, former Commissioner of the Metropolitan Police.

THOUSANDS OF NICKELS LOST
Ottawa, Jan. 2.—Canadians lose from $15 000 to $20,000 a year in nickels and coppers. Where they disappear to is a mystery. They simply vanish out of circulation through some non-traceable channel.

The Standby of 3 Generations

For more than 60 years physicians have prescribed Fellows' Syrup as a restorative tonic.

The prescription of a Canadian chemist, F.Leslie Fellows, composed of Iron, Calcium, Quinine, Sodium, Potassium and Manganese. Doctors in 33 countries prescribe it for Chronic Fatigue. If you're "tired all the time" your weakened system is open to attack. It will help to restore your energy and relief of dragging lassitude.

Nerves Do Lodge. If you are irritable and can't sleep, "Fellows" will help steady and correct nerve tension; restore physical and mental vigor. Fellows' Syrup of vital minerals in "Fellows" will sharpen your appetite, renew your zest for food, and strengthen your whole system.

The name "FELLOWS" IS very important

Fellows' Syrup is perhaps the most widely imitated pharmaceutical preparation on the market today. Look for the name "FELLOWS" on the wrapper. Two sizes—at your druggist's.

FISH CONFERENCE DEVISE MEANS TO KEEP UP SUPPLY

Show Need of Permanent Hatchery in Algonquin Park

CONTEST WATER LEVELS

Movement of Game Fish And Protection to be Studied

Ottawa, Jan. 3 (CP)—Need of a permanent laboratory and hatchery in Algonquin Park to keep up the supply of game fish in the lakes and rivers of the Park was described as the chief object of the Fisheries Conference held today by W. J. K. Harkness of Toronto University. Wood, coal and hydro-electric experimental work would be applied to the fish-hatching plant and the game fishes of definite size and in definite numbers and also to the rearing and planting of Pacific Salmon.

The study of the effect of power dams was stressed by Mr. Harkness. He particularized the changes caused by the Gatineau dam.

The streams flowing into Lake Ontario from the north could be studied from their source to mouth, he said. If any parts of the streams could be found favorable to the stream-improvement methods, this should be carried out and trout planted.

Control Water Levels

A resident biologist at Peterborough would soon give a very positive return in advice to the department of Trade Valley Canada on the control of water levels which would be the most favorable to the spawning of the muskinonge, black bass and pickerel.

A study of small-mouthed bass in the Kawartha Lakes, Lake Simcoe, Lake Erie, Lake St. Clair, Georgian Bay, Lake Nipissing, Lake of the Woods and other inland waters would give satisfactory results, Dr. Hoffman said. The establishment of muskinonge in the Kawartha Lakes would constitute a hybridized experiment.

A report on commercial fishing was submitted by H. E. MacKay of the Ontario Game and Fisheries Department. A careful study should be carried out, he said, on the life cycle of lake trout to find the most favorable locations for planting fry and fingerlings.

Study Movements

A study of the movements of the herring population of Lake Erie was suggested by Mr. MacKay. These studies would reveal the time of the year the herring needed protection and proper regulations could be drawn to meet the situation.

"Every fish is being affected," Mr. MacKay said, "to ways and means of producing larger trout for restocking purposes in Southern Ontario. In fact, our object is to have trout of legal-sized trout." To do this, he explained, economically suitable feeding methods must be developed.

Fishery scientists from nearly every province, members of the Biological Board, National Research Council and other officers of the Department of Fisheries were in attendance at the conference. In addition, representatives of several travel bureaus, including the Canadian Pacific and the Canadian National Railway, were present. Hon. J. E. Michaud, Minister of Fisheries, formally opened the conference.

Planting Young Fish From Airplanes Tried

Ottawa, Jan. 3—(CP)—Planting young fish from airplanes in lakes in the lakes was described by B. W. Taylor of the Provincial Department of Game and Fisheries here today. He was addressing the Fisheries Conference.

"In The Laurentian counties," Mr. Taylor said, "There are a number of small lakes on which a plane could not possibly land. Consequently experiments were carried on in dropping fish directly from the flying planes to the water. With improved nets on one occasion there were dropped from 100 feet at an approximate speed of 70 miles an hour, 2000 two and a half inch fingerlings." He explained only 46 dead fish were found or the loss was less than five percent and not more than one to the fish.

TIP-OFF CAME FROM BANK

Montreal, Jan. 2. —(CP)— The "tip-off" which sent Provincial Constables scurrying into the Laurentian mountains on a rain search for Albert Laroche early this week apparently came from a bank official who gave Laroche 25 cents in bills as he was a beggar, it was learned today.

NEWS BRIEFS AND ODDITIES

Cool, Calm, Jan. 3 (CP)—The cool head of a man who fell from a telephone pole with a feather after he had been struck by the father of the boy.

Lorraine, the son of the man, is a good looker, and kept saved her unfortunate experience from being serious. Not worry about losing one.

"I had no idea what was going on," explained Miller, "My wife told me she was suffering from concussion of the brain, and she was going to Los Angeles."

Miller, who is a chiropractor, the reports said he went to the hospital and told his wife and two children good-by respectively.

Detroit, Jan. 3 (CP)—Frederick Courtland, 4, and two other girls drove safely on an elevated railway track in Dearborn, Down the tracks a locomotive whistled.

Stiffened with fright, they saw a headlight glare in the distance. Forty feet below was the road where Courtland's father had parked and calmly he moves the car.

The whistle thundered down. Inside the auto fright turned to despair. The freight train roared on and the children were safe.

Vancouver, Jan. 3 (CP)—A man was being questioned by police on charges of assault and banditry, one armed with an automatic pistol, had held three men prisoners in the Castle hotel beer parlor, and escaped with an estimated sum of $250.

St. Thomas, Ont., Jan. 3 (CP)—Reports reaching here that old-fashioned winters are not dead as high as $18, led to C. Cotter deciding while plowing his farm near here last summer he uncovered one of the valuable relics other than the Canadian Pre-conl pieces, the old-fashioned 12-inch hand-saw a trifle bent.

Victoria, Jan. 2 (CP)—Frederick Hamilton, 21, of Victoria Harbor, an island near here, was Victoria caterer, Fred Stocks, who styled him as "the best waiter on the West Yew," closed up his place for a month and went on a honeymoon trip with his better half. Fred's debtors owed him $1.63.

Portland Ore, Jan. 2 (CP)—A woman who ordered "service" at her post coffee Thursday in a way she didn't expect got a cup of tea.

Calmly she tossed a cup of coffee full into the face of one Dean, Mrs. Kelly said.

New York, Jan. 3 (CP)—A $2,000-a-year accountant employed by the city's relief bureau has been suspended "very good" to the query "what is your marital status?" on his application for employment.

Borough President Lyons disclosed the action today in commenting on the "unpatriotic power" of New York's relief employees.

Other answers to the same question were:

TARIFF BOARD SCOPE WIDENS

Foreign Countries Given Right to Make Representations

Ottawa, Jan. 3 (CP)—In extending to Japan and the United States the right to make representations to the Dominion Tariff Board in connection with valuations of goods imported into Canada, countries Canada has entered somewhat the scope of that Board and, according to experts, has established a new thing of a precedent.

Heretofore the right of other countries to make representations to the Board has been confined to the nations of the British Commonwealth. Under the terms of the Canada-Japan agreement, however the flowery empire now enjoys that right, beginning New Years Day, while it is specifically set forth in the agreement with the United States that the latter be admitted treated.

There is a difference, however, in that representatives of British countries may make application for revising of the Canadian Customs Tariff; but the two foreign countries, United States and Japan, may make representations only in the matter of valuations for duty purposes. The Board, it is said, has as high as $18, to C. Cotter discretion while making such representations as to whether or not the valuations uncovered one of the valuable relics other than the Canadian Pre-coal pieces, the old-fashioned 12-inch hand-saw a trifle bent.

'DIRTY LETTER' AROUSED WATT, HE TELLS REGAN

"Decided to Out With It to Clear Myself of Charges"

NO HONEY DEMANDED

Regan Asks Ex-Constable For Sample of His Handwriting

Toronto, Jan. 3 (CP)—Former Constable W. J. Watt was recalled to the witness box for cross-examination today before the Royal Commission investigating Toronto police affairs. Particularly the commission is inquiring into Watt's charges in the Legislature that cars and stores in downtown Toronto. Watt himself served a reformatory term in connection with the thefts.

At the time of his arrest Watt did not incriminate any of his associates on the force, he said, but admitted he had been friendly with them.

Says he Was Warned

Mr. Regan pressed Watt for a possible reason why Sergeant Sam Boyd might have had to approach Watt, as he claimed, with a message to "keep your big mouth shut."

Watt said that Boyd had advised to "keep his mouth shut" but the ex-constable insisted Boyd had reason to warn him.

Details of Arrest

Watt gave details of the circumstances of his arrest. He said Inspector Alex. Mitchell summoned him to the station in plain clothes, and Detective-Sergeant Frederick Hinsche he went to his summer cottage at Sand Lake, north of Toronto. Watt followed a statement by Constable Alex. Hood implicating him. They were in Jail Lake, March 24, 1933. It was while at the lake Watt first considered turning self under arrest.

Mr. Regan asked whether Watt did not like his lunch hour outside the station and the former Constable replied that he did.

"Was it not at these lunch periods that you are said to confess to fellow officers you have described?" At counsel's request, Watt read from his statement the story describing him as having lunch in the police dining room. The words were not in his writing but had been signed by him.

In Handwriting

Further examination over the noon hour adjournment of 1933 showed some entries in what Watt admitted was his own handwriting describing him as "in station for lunch."

"Not once out of 10 times did I eat my lunch in the station," Watt said in reply to Mr. Regan, and the entries were also signed by the sergeant on duty.

Watt said he could not recall names of the three officers he admitted the suggestion they would be remiss in their duties in signing for lunches they had not eaten. They have known Watt was absent from the station.

"Was it always your intention from the time of your conviction to clear yourself when the proper time arose?"

"Yes, it was not."

"Dirty Letter" Came

Watt said he decided on this step on receipt of a "dirty letter" May 17, 1934. He waited till expiry of his probationary period during which he had to report to police headquarters. Then, following his release from reformatory.

Watt said he was aroused by this typewritten letter containing charges he had been driving a car driven with the police car loaded."

HAS NARROW ESCAPE

Peterborough, Ont., Jan. 3 (CP)—Leslie Hamilton, 21, of Lakefield, had driven narrowly escaped death when the motor truck he was driving was wrecked five miles east of here today on a level crossing. He was brought to Peterborough on the train and was given first aid at the Standard Medical Clinic and then taken to his home. He suffered scalp wounds and several fractured ribs.

PERJURY CHARGE PROCEEDS

IN MARRIAGE LICENSE CASE

Guelph, Ont., Jan. 3—(CP)—Gordon Ellis Steel of Mount Forest was found guilty in police court today on a charge of subornation of perjury in connection with the issue of a marriage license while Dorothy Minnie Hiller, 17, was freed when a charge of perjury against her was withdrawn by the crown.

Steel was remanded.

Twenty-Three Prisoners Revolt in Ville Marie Jail

Detachment of Provincial Police Taken by Plane With Authority to Quell Rioting—7 Non-Participants Are Women

Ville Marie, Que., Jan. 3—(CP)—Twenty-three of the 36 prisoners in the Temiscamingue District jail here are under indictment charged with offences in orders of jail officials. The seven non-participants are women.

When the situation became critical Governor Julien Edwards, who was urgently appealed to Assistant Provincial Chief Constable Lemieux in charge of Quebec provincial police, asking assistance in handling the revolting prisoners. He was informed a detachment of Quebec Provincial Police had been dispatched by plane with full authority to quell the revolt by whatever means necessary.

Those taking part in the revolt are said to be three or four men believed to be former prisoners in St. Vincent De Paul Penitentiary, Montreal. They are said to have led the other prisoners in comparatively successful action against food and discipline conditions.

Ville Marie is on the Quebec side of Lake Timiskaming across from Cobalt, Ont., about 75 miles north of North Bay.

Revolt Flares

Revolt against the prison discipline flared first yesterday, alleged poor food conditions. Refusing their leaders, the 23 prisoners refused to work and declared they would be confined to their cells. They spent the night foaming the corridors of the three-storey brick building and at noon today were reported still out of control.

Efforts have been given pourings for their evening meal yesterday. They declined them and refused milk or sugar to make it palatable. It was then the trouble said to have started.

Neither Governor Edwards nor any of his staff has entered the threatened cell block of the prisoners. It was believed this course of action was advised by provincial authorities pending arrival of the police bringing help.

Most of the prisoners at Ville Marie jail were sentenced at Rouyn by terms ranging from three months to one year for various offences. Some of the prisoners are second offenders, and have served previous in other Canadian penal institutions.

It was learned today an effort was made to have the men clean their cells and give up their jail uniforms when the disturbance began last night. Every scrap of paper available was shredded and scattered about the cell blocks while the prisoners refused to unfold the cups against them.

Women Not Upset

Since the prisoners became free of their cells they have been intermingling with women prisoners. The latter are understood the seven female prisoners are still in their cells and took no part in the disturbance.

DUCE'S PROGRAM TEN YEARS AGO

Address at Trieste Is Said to Read to Populace by Officials

(By Charles H. Guptill)

(Copyright 1936, by the Associated Press)

ROME, Jan. 3.—Italy's Fascist Party, glorifying Duce anew as the way to dispose of its enemies, summoned the people to meetings throughout the kingdom today to hear officials repeat Premier Mussolini's speech t a decade ago and sending strong-armed methods to crush domestic opposition.

"When two elements conflict and are irreconcilable, the solution is force," Il Duce told the parliament 10 years ago today.

Informed sources said his attitude toward the same policy is unchanged.

Well-informed observers attributed special significance thus to the Kingdom-wide repetition of his address now, with Italy not only engaged in warfare with a foreign power but with the League of Nations economic sanctions.

Call "ew Volunteers

Today marked the start of the fourth month of East African hostilities.

It found the thoroughly supervised Italian Press calling unanimously for "more heroic, fierce, relentless methods" in the conduct of the campaign.

The Air Ministry called for 3,700 volunteers in what Fascists described as the greatest military enlistment in history" amid reliable reports that the African strife might grow more severe.

"The Air Ministry's summons for 1,500 volunteer pilots and 4,200 air base experts. More than 1,000 of the non-pilot specialists were reported to be machine gunners.

Reliable reports insisted Italy might strike back with more punishing aerial "warfare for the alleged bombing and wounding of a fallen Fascist aviator.

Italy officially expressed regret for the bombardment of a Swedish Red Cross unit during the aerial assault on Sunday near Dessie, a rail transconcentration point for Italy and Ethiopia alike on the southern front. But at the same time warned Sweden against "tendentious versions of the incident."

ROAD CONDITIONS BAD

Hamilton, Ont., Jan. 3.—(CP)—Road conditions in the Niagara Peninsula today were the worst in years. Numerous automobile accidents were reported to police. Two persons were injured, one seriously as a result of collisions while another crash was the cause of a $300 fire.

STAVISKY FRAUD TRIAL ENDING

Perpetrator of Swindle Shot Self in Lonely Cabin in Alps

(Copyright, 1936

By The Havas News Agency

Paris, Jan. 3.—(CP-Havas)—Three years after Serge Alexandre Stavisky, the perpetrator of one of the lonely cabin in the French Alps the trial of those allegedly implicated in his huge frauds is nearing a dramatic finish.

The arch-swindler was charged with inflating a $30,000,000 bubble which brought ruin to thousands, political life to its foundations. A Paris court still is unravelling the tangled skein of intrigue left by the Stavisky dragnet are on trial as his accomplices.

The prosecution rested after yesterday's session and the counsels for defense have launched their arguments.

Premier Camille Chautemps, whose government collapsed in the February riots of 1934 arising out of the Stavisky scandal, and Dec. 17 fuji investigation had been the chief witnesses of the accusations against him.

Bears Rebuke

Former Minister of Justice Albert Dalimier, alleged to be Stavisky's pal has borne the formal rebuke of Justice, commenting sadly:

"I left office after I'd explained to the chief all end my days like the most wretched of criminals." Then on Dec 9 session Dalimier denied he consciously had aided or profited in any way from the frauds of the City of Bayonne municipal pawnshop as cornerstone of his financial house of cards.

A witness to the bewildering maze of testimony has been Stavisky's widow, the former Arlette Simon. Her testimony that she was in La Palz, Mme. Stavisky was jailed when the scandal broke and is among the prisoners in the dock.

The fastidious "M. Alexandre" promised her he would go straight when he made her his bride, she testified.

At the Nov. 15 session Mme. Stavisky collapsed and had to be carried from the courtroom when an underworld associate of the swindler's testified Stavisky justified the fraud given to Stavisky the gun which killed him.

Other newspapers charged Stavisky was murdered by police to keep him from telling the full story of the death is suicide, however.

Say Youth Murdered Grandfather Over Horse

Sherbrooke, Que., Jan. 3 (CP)—Philemon Boisvert, 18-year-old fifth son of Wolfton district, was charged today with murdering his grandfather, Moise Boisvert, 85, last Christmas Eve when refused admission to borrow a horse and go to a dance midnight mass. The youth was remanded Jan. 8 for preliminary hearing.

NEUTRALITY BILL TO REPLACE ACT WIDENS POWERS

Permanent Neutrality Bill Would Strengthen President

FRANCE HAS FEARS

Neutrality Bill Would Give Discretionary

Washington, Jan. 3 (AP)—A permanent neutrality bill which would give the President broad discretionary power to enforce war materials and retain existing mandatory embargoes on actual belligerents as well as nations which nations was introduced in the United States Senate today by Senator Pittman, Chairman McReynolds (D.-Tenn.) of the Foreign Affairs Committee.

Paris, Jan. 3 (AP)—French commentators expressed anxiety today over the United States' decision to write a new neutrality act with broad provisions for belligerents automatically cut off France's oil supply in case of war.

2 GIANT ISSUES BEFORE CONGRESS

President to Give Radio Address to Open Bitter Session

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

Associated Free Staff Writer

Washington, Jan. 3—(AP)—In an atmosphere electric with political hatreds, the 74th Congress of the third degree gathered today to open its second session with brief formality at noon, to hear President Roosevelt make a precedent-smashing address by radio, and then to plunge almost at once into those two giant issues.

1. The complex problem of keeping United States out of war.

2. The long-mooted question of paying the bonus immediately to veterans, even if in the last one.

A coming event—the great campaign struggle leading up to November's presidential election—cast its shadow over the whole proceedings. Democratic or non-party organizations announced their bill to pay the soldiers' bonus. They said it would take a billion, $1,000,000,000 immediately, would be introduced at once.

The neutrality issue was off to a quick start when Chairman McReynolds (D-Tenn) of the House Foreign Relations Committee and Chairman Pittman (D-Nev) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee rushed separate bills into the hopper. Both committees met in conference with the President and Secretary of State Hull.

Advance reports indicated the bill would give the President broad power to determine to what extent such commodities as cotton and oil should be exported in belligerent vessels. The bill was described too, as including restrictions designed to prevent loans and credits to warring countries, although its details were kept secret.

BRUNO STOICAL, STILL HOPING

Newspapermen Will Be Among Witnesses of Execution

Trenton, N.J., Jan. 3 (AP)—Bruno Richard Hauptmann relaxed in his stoical calm in the belief "something" will save him from the electric chair for the kidnap-murder of Charles Lindbergh baby.

Hauptmann, convicted of the kidnapper and slayer of the Lindbergh baby will die Tuesday night, Jan. 14, at 8 o'clock, unless the Governor of Pardons grants clemency or a reprieve.

About 20 persons will be admitted to the execution chamber, including guards and prison officials. Among them will be one or two physicians but no newspapermen. Only newspapermen, for whom places will be reserved.

Col. Mark O. Kimberling has refused to moving pictures will be taken and no broadcasts made from prison property. He also has ordered women witnesses be barred.

The law requires 12 witnesses. Col. Kimberling said it should be large enough to include a number of newspaper men.

German Border Defence Problem Faces Britain; Query Made by France

Is Britain Willing to Send Troops to Border if French Withdraw?

DEPENDS ON ITALY

British Authorities State Talks Concern Only Italian Reprisal

Paris, Jan. 3 (AP)—Paris newspapers reported today France has asked Great Britain if she would be willing to send troops to the German frontier to replace French forces in case of war with Italy.

A Foreign Office spokesman, however, said the report was untrue.

The newspapers Paris-Soir and Intransigeant indicated the question was raised in conversations between the British and French general staffs, in which the two nations were considering how they would aid each other in the event of Italy attacking British ships in the Mediterranean.

The French were represented as feeling if their aid was required by Britain in fighting off the Italian fleet it would mean taking troops from the Rhine frontier to reinforce those along the Italian border.

French Defences Weakened

This would weaken French defences against Germany from which the French fear there is danger because of Reichsfuehrer Hitler's rearmament program.

The question has yet has been reached in the Franco-British talks on the subject, said Paris-Soir, "although" of the French contention "is admitted."

Premier Mussolini of Italy is being kept informed of the conversations, the Paris-Soir added, "since it depends only upon Italy" to keep the talks entirely theoretical.

London, Jan. 3—(AP)— Whether British troops will be ordered to assist France with troops on the German border if France is called upon to aid the British fleet in the Mediterranean went unanswered in London today.

Authorities refused to discuss the talks between members of the general staffs of the two nations in Paris except to say they were strictly limited to the scope of the present situation. The officials, it was understood, did not go into hypothetical attack in the future.

THAMES FLOOD NEAR 1915 LEVEL

Lowlands of Sussex Became Lake as Adur River Becomes 2 Miles Wide

London, Jan. 3.—(CP Cable)—The Thames valley was in flood today approaching the record level of 1915, flooding thousands of acres, reports said.

At Windsor the river was a mile and a half wide. The grounds of Windsor Castle were flooded and the playing-fields of Eton formed vast lake.

Swans, unable to reach their usual feeding grounds because of the flood, regularly visit the doors of houses to beg for food.

Residents of Maidenhead are going about the town in punts, of which there is a large number.

South of London there were similar conditions.

The lowlands of Sussex became a lake extending from Steyning northward nearly to Horsham. The river Adur, which flows into the channel a few miles west of Brighton, was two miles wide today between Beeding and Corfield.

Some roads in Kent were three feet under water and many cellars were isolated.

There was a decrease in rainfall yesterday and there is some prospect of the flood receding but weather reports said there was more threaten further downpours.

Great Western Railway engineers said today they expect to save the bridge between Devizes and Salisbury, in the west of England. Traffic was diverted on Wednesday when the supports for the bridge began to subside in the flood.

Acclamation Accorded Burlington Mayor

Burlington, Ont., Jan. 3.—(CP)— As far as youthful George A. Harris newspaperman here, was concerned, the election of the mayor was by acclamation was as big a story as he had seen around town in many long months. Why? He was the mayor-elect.

That was why 15 minutes after the town clerk had read out the official list of candidates elected without opposition for the Burlington Gazette was in the streets with an extra telling the news.

The Gazette is published by Mr. Harris and his father, Elgin A. Harris. Since it was New Year's eve, when the results were announced, and the whole town was celebrating undaunted, the mayor-elect took the bundles of extras from the shop where having set the type and helped run the press rod delivered them to the breakfasting subscribers. As a result he didn't get a chance to interview himself.

Mr. Harris, who is 23 years old was Reeve last year and warden of Halton county in 1934. His father has held all the same offices before him.

FAMILY AGREE RELATIVE DEAD

Prepare to Bury Man After Funeral Delayed Two Weeks

Elzag Du Nord, Magdalen Islands, Jan. 3 (CP)—One of the strangest chapters in Canadian history was nearing a close today as fisherfolk of this coastal village prepared to bury Hubert Landry, whose funeral had been delayed nearly two weeks because there were no signs of life in the body.

Not until last night when rigor mortis was unmistakable and a doctor declared him definitely dead family gave up hope the 71-year-old fishery officer and mail courier would recover.

Daughter at Halifax Anxious

Then a telegram arrived from his father, Didier Fougere, may go to Halifax to see his daughter Mrs. Pilon of Halifax hopes to reach him before his funeral.

Accordingly last night the relatives at Elzag Du Nord had for the first time given up hope. Arrangements for the one-legged man who had lain in his bed since he believed to a strange state of unconsciousness prepared to leave when she was informed by telephone of her husband's death.

"If she does not see her father herself before they bury His body, she will not be satisfied that he was buried alive," her husband stated.

The funeral is to be held today.

Six Month Deficit is $1,879,651,192 in U.S.

Washington, Jan. 3 (AP)— The United States government closed its books on the six months' fiscal year—with expenditures exceeding income by $1,879,651,192. This deficit compared with the $2,227,000,000 deficit which President Roosevelt estimated for the full fiscal year ending next June 30.

One of the most interesting Christmas stories this year comes from Kingston concerning Donald Barnett, Canadian Pacific Railway trainman, who formerly lived in Peterborough. Early on Christmas morning Mr. Barnett was accidentally left behind on a siding for miles east of Kingston. With the temperature hovering near the 15 below zero mark, Mr. Barnett was forced to trudge through the snow to the station and send a wire to his family advising them of his latenes.

CHRISTMAS TREES ADD GARBAGE MEN'S WORK

Where do all the Christmas trees go? Garbage men answered the city collections know the answer to that question. Most of the trees have found their way into the trucks of the department for disposal in the city dumps. The week following is the busiest time of the year for the garbage men, who have been busy with the hefty loads of pungent pine boughs, Christmas trees and the inevitable accessories of Christmas.

HILLS AND CORNERS GET COATING OF SAND

Tons of sand 81 which generous quantities of calcium chloride have been added, were used to coat hills on roads and streets throughout the city today by department of public works employees in an effort to relieve the extreme slipperiness of the pavements. Completion of the work late last evening, the extra men hired by the department were up early this morning and were engaged throughout the greater part of the day.

SIGNAL CORPS HOLD THEIR MONTHLY SHOOT

High scores and keen marksmanship featured the regular monthly shoot held by the Signal Corps of the Argyll and Lathi Infantry in the Armouries this week. The following scores were made by the marksmanship: Irvine McGrimmon, 48; Jack Bradford, 46; Harry Cochrane, 45; Sergt. J. Bancroft, 44; R. Wilson, 42; Sergt. J. Whale, 106; Sergt. D. BROTHERS UNABLE TO PAY COURT FINE

Herman and Truman Woodcock of Bancroft appeared before Magistrate J. L. Lloyd of Northbrook at Bancroft on Thursday afternoon and pleaded guilty of "being in possession of a still suitable for making illicit liquor". Both of the men pleaded guilty and were fined $100 and costs each and in default three months. The fine was not paid and Cpl. McPhee, who conducted the investigation brought both men to Belleville, where they were lodged in the county jail. The police stated, that a dissembled plant was found in the Woodcock home also some illicit liquor and mash.

COLLISION IS DUE TO SLIPPERY ROADS

Over $100 in damages were caused by a collision of two cars near Charles Street on Dundas and east on Thursday afternoon. W. H. Smith, R.R. No. 2, Hillside, was driving his car east on Dundas Street, Cyril Minaker, 39 Prospect Street, was driving a Ford coupe also on the same thoroughfare, when due to slippery conditions of the road, the left front wheel of the Minaker car caught the rear left wheel on the Smith car. The Minaker car was tied amicably between the two parties and the police, who investigated did not lay any charges.

ARRESTED 7 MOS. AFTER OFFENCE

Fred Day, Pinnacle Street, Pleads Guilty to Taking Drill

Stenographic trial before His Worship, Magistrate J. L. Butler, K.C., Fred Day, Pinnacle street, Belleville, was heard from the city since late in May, pleaded guilty to breaking, entering and theft at the Belleville Fruit Machinery Company on May 22nd, taking from the office some cash and an electric drill. He also to pay costs. Supt. B. C. Donnan K.C., Crown Attorney, requested that sentence be postponed for one week, to which the Magistrate agreed.

Day, who has just arrived from Western Canada, was picked up by Plainclothesman Fred Izard near his home on Pinnacle street. Thursday afternoon and taken to the police station, although the police had but slim clues to work on, the accused finally broke and stated last evening, gave a statement to the officer, admitting his guilt. He stated, that he went into the Fruit Machinery shortly after eleven o'clock on May 22nd, and entering the office "rifled" the safe and took an electric drill. Later he proceeded to Toronto, where he sold the drill to a second hand dealer under an assumed name, for $5, only a pittance of what it was worth. He then moved into Western Canada and there was convicted of an offence and spent two months in jail. At the court proceedings today there was no evidence tabled.

Joseph Jones of Prince Edward County, who admitted taking a can of money on two occasions from a neighbor woman and for which rectifies had been imposed, one being $15.00, was given one month in the county jail, on both counts to run concurrently. Magistrate Butler remarked "it was a bold thing for the man to go and help himself to the woman's money." "I think he should be punished for his offence," said the Crown Attorney and the sentence of the court was immediately passed.

Gerry Babcock, charged with using milk bottles not belonging to him was found guilty after argument by counsel and fined $10 and costs amounting to $27.50. In default of payment the dairyman was ordered to spend one month in jail, but the fine will be paid. R. D. Arnott, appearing for Mr. Babcock stated that the public could be deceived as the "Sunshine Dairy" had been out of business for three years. "The business is now known as the 'Walmsley Dairy" and everyone knows the business by that name", argued Counsel. Magistrate Dunlap said that the Act was framed to protect such as the complainant and it was obvious that Babcock knew the bottles were not his. Magistrate Butler stated Babcock knew the "Sunshine Dairy" had been purchased by Mrs. Walmsley and could keep the bottles and peddled milk in these bottles, he could be convicted for misappropriating property to his own use. "I have no other course but to find the accused guilty," said Magistrate Butler and imposed the above mentioned fine.

SCHEDULE DRAWN FOR O. H. A. GROUP

Belleville Plays First Home Game on Tuesday Night

After a great deal of discussion and challenges, the schedule for Group No. 1 of the O.H.A. was drawn last night in Port Hope with the chairman Ed A. Thomas in charge. Delegates were present from Belleville, Campbellford, Port Hope and Oshawa. It was finally decided, that Campbellford and Belleville should play a double schedule with each other, while Oshawa and Peterboro would do the same and the four teams play an interlocking schedule, that is Oshawa and Peterboro would visit Belleville and Campbellford once and the latter two teams make this trip to Oshawa and Peterboro. The winners of the most games regardless of Belleville and Campbellford will move out into the intermediate "B" playdown, while the winners of the most games separating Peterboro will move into the intermediate "A" playdown. This decision was reached, when it was shown, that Oshawa and Peterboro were both too strong for Belleville and Campbellford. The schedule drawn gives Belleville its first home game on Tuesday night next, when Peterboro visits the city. The other games in the schedule are.

Jan. 7—Peterboro at Belleville
Jan. 10—Campbellford at Campbellford
—Belleville at Peterboro
Jan. 14—Campbellford at Belleville
Jan. 17—Peterboro at Campbellford
Jan. 20—Belleville at Campbellford

Election Campaign is Gathering Momentum

Estevan, Sask., Jan. 3 (CP)—With voting taking place Monday, campaigning in the Federal constituency of Assiniboia by-election gathered momentum today with Hon. J. G. Gardiner, Liberal nominee, and William Irvine, candidate of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation, debating the whole question.

Mr. Gardiner, Federal Minister of Agriculture, spoke last night at Kipling while Mr. Irvine, former Irvine's Social Credit studies would in no way affect his loyalty to the C.C.F. platform.

MASONS INSTAL YEAR'S OFFICERS

Wor. Bro. W. D. Embury And New Officers Assume Duties in The Belleville Lodge

The Belleville Lodge No. 122 A.F. & A.M. held its Installation Meeting at the Masonic Temple on Thursday evening last. Wor. Bro. Cecil Clarke installed the officers of The Belleville Lodge No. 122 A.F. & A.M. into office for the year 1936. The forty-nine postmasters of the order assisted the installing officer and pledged their support to Wor. Bro. Wallace D. Embury, the new master and his officers. In the absence of the Installing officer spoke at some length to the members on matters Masonic and on behalf of the lodge a gift for Mrs. Clarke was entrusted to Wor. Bro. Clarke. Wor. Bro. J. T. Noakes who has presided over the lodge in the past twelvemonth received at the hands of the Most Worshipful the Past Grand Master Col. W. N. Ponton a past master's jewel on behalf of the lodge.

Nearly one hundred members of the order including visitors from other lodges took their seats and subsided on the fourth degree which was held in the dining room. Wor. Bro. J. L. Noakes, Past Master, acted officiating as toastmaster. After a repast of delectable viands, the company was called to honour the pledge of the King and the Craft.

Wor. Bro. Percival Rapsley and Wor. Bro. Arthur Hill proposed the loyal toast, "Grand Lodge and Grand Lodge officers", Rt. Wor. Bro. R. A. Backus replying. Reference was appreciated to the leadership which Past Grand Master Col. W. N. Ponton of Toronto has provided as a member of the two other local lodges, had been the order for many years. Tribute was made by Rt. Wor. Bro. Backus, who noted that within a few weeks the Masonic Temple would be celebrating the eighty-first anniversary of its dedication.

Wor. Bro. Carl Crosby called the Masons to the pledge of "Our Immediate Officers" and voiced the hope that Rt. Wor. Bro. Clarke who has given such splendid service in the capacity for his mother lodge would continue for years in the same role. Rt. Wor. Bro. Clarke replied briefly in thanks to the brethren for what Masonry has done for him and for its place in the life of men. He assured the brethren that he loved the work of the lodge and that he was always at their service in anything to aid the order and the members.

The Rosedale Ladies Orchestra, under the baton of Wor. Bro. Walter Aselstine played during the evening with Mrs. Fred Chapman at the piano, A cornet duet was given by Bros. Harold Deshane and Albert Brasseour. Bros. R. E. Yeadah at the piano, Bro. the Rev. Roy Rickard led the gathering in singing while the orchestra followed with "Chimes".

Newly installed officers:

Wor. Bro. Fred Chapman proposed the health of the newly installed Worshipful Master, Wor. Bro. Wallace D. Embury in response declared that he would endeavour briefly to thank Past Grand Master Ponton and Rt. Wor. Bro. Clarke as the guiding forces in his Masonic career. He reminded for a moment and declared that many years ago he had been in the Fifteenth Battalion bugle band with other Masons who had been in the band at the time and that the Past Grand Master was also a member of the regimental band of the regiment. He spoke of the hospitality at the home of Mrs. Ponton which was always a delight in the days of the old bugle band.

On behalf of the officers and lodge the new master presented Bro. Harry Shaws a Past Master's jewel as a gift. The new senior warden, Bro. C. MacDonald, the new junior warden, A. E. Ostrom, Bro. J. A. Tulk, K. Bird, and others spoke, in acknowledgement of the toast.

At Home in Masonry.

Past Grand Master Ponton received the thanks and applause of all and praised the work of Bro. Prof. Morgan at the piano and the orchestra for the real treat he hoped the guests felt at home and recited the lines:

"The Germans live in Germany,
The Italians live in Rome,
The Turks live in Turkey,
But the Anglo Saxon lives at home."

As a Mason nearing the age of eighty-one years he told the brethren that he was at home which counts in life. He spoke of his Masonic work as the Grand Master and who is the subject of the rejoicing at this season of the year. He said that at every Masonic meeting there was the Unseen Guest of the Spirit of Masonry, the spirit of the Mason who had passed away. Masonry was one great family.

Wor. Bro. Brown of Moira Lodge replied to the toast and V. Wor. Bro. L. R. Williams replied for Eureka Lodge and on behalf of his father, Wor. Bro. J. E. Walmsley who was one of the oldest Masons in Belleville.

Master-elect Bro. Fox of Madoc Lodge, though a resident of Belleville, brought greetings from the lodge at Madoc where he is to be installed as Master in a few days. The gathering broke up with the Junior Warden's Toast and the singing of Auld Lang Syne.

The newly installed officers for 1936 are:

The former constable said: "I decided to out with it to clear myself of the charges in the letter. As to the letter I wouldn't dream of it. I wouldn't take that from anybody. I also wanted to clear myself, clear my conscience and explain what I could.

Walter Shoe Store

Watt described breaking into a shoe store. He said Constable Ivan Dulmage called him out of the store and said he had got a piece of celluloid down in the toe of the door. Watt said he was unable to help him and Cullen remarked he would have to look his foot through the door to open it and recover the celluloid.

Later Watt returned and inspected the building with the watchman, finding the glass door of the shoe store broken. Cullen came along and Watt remarked to him he had "picked a hell of a mess of this". He said Cullen replied, "Well, I had to get the celluloid out."

Watt was remanded to continue on the stand all day.

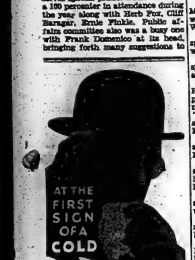
ACTIVITIES OF KIWANIS GIVEN

Phil McKee Presents Clear and Concise Achievement Report



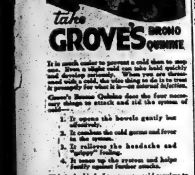
Kiwanis members bid goodbye to 1935, the officers for the year, and welcomed 1936 in a fitting manner at their weekly luncheon on Tuesday. Phil McKee, chairman of the Community Committee, gave one of the most concise and best reports ever presented to the club and the manner in which he dealt with same with the effort and staked so in no uncertain terms. The thanks of the Club were expressed to Cliff Barsar, president during the past year, for his part in connection with Ernie Shapiro, and secretary George Griffin for their untiring efforts on behalf of the Club. Leo B. Riggs came in for warm praise for his duties as pianist for the Club, and thought being expressed that the Club was indeed fortunate in having as pianist one the calibre of Leo and who so whole-heartedly gave of his time and ability in lending music in the Club.

President-elect Frank Domenico was remembered for his fine effort as Carnival chairman, while George A. Lee as campaign manager and Cliff Barsar as members of the committee, in connection with the Kiwanis Club of last year concluded one of the most successful in a financial way in the history of the organization and the result was due entirely to the above mentioned members for the time and thought they devoted to the project. Their work in the Club will not be forgotten. Another member, who highly praised was Eddie Logie, chairman of the membership committee, who with his able assistance increased the membership of the Club from 31 to 45 in the year. The year in membership was reached in June, when 48 were listed but three withdrew due to several causes.

Installation on Tuesday

The Club is looking forward to the next meeting, on Tuesday night, when the officers elected for the ensuing year will be installed. Rev. "Bill" Johnston of Toronto will be the special speaker. It is expected that a large number of visitors from other clubs will be in attendance. Fine talent is promised and many stunts are promised for the occasion , besides an excellent program.

Phil McKee in submitting his report gave a request to each committee in function during the year. He reported the finances of the club to be in excellent condition with practically $13,000.00 in the bank and everything satisfactory. All the balance was made possible by the campaign that was conducted and there is some more to add to the account form this source. The transportation committee in committee was quite active arranging many delightful outings for field day at Oshawa. Eddie Shapiro was in charge of this committee and deserves special praise. Eddie also had a 100 percenter in attendance during the year, along with Herb Fox, Cliff Barsar, Ernie Pinkle. Public affairs committee also was a busy one with Frank Domenico at the helm in bringing forth many suggestions to



It is much easier to prevent a cold than to stop it once you have it. Don't wait until you feel drowsy and dull. When you are threatened with a cold, take Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine at once. It promptly for what is—an internal infection.

1. It opens the bowels gently but effectually.
2. It combats the cold germs and fever in the blood.
3. It relieves the headache and "grippy" feeling.
4. It tones up the system and helps to prevent complications.

You will demand the Grove's box when you buy. Remember the name Grove's and the look of the box. Price 30 cents. Ask for Grove's Bromo Quinine, however, when you purchase.

THE MORE EVIDENCE, THE MORE MYSTERY IN THELMA TODD CASE—Principal witnesses testifying before the Los Angeles grand jury in an effort to shed some new light on Hollywood's latest mystery case which the film comedienne operated, over which she had her living quarters and which is located near the garage where her lifeless body was found. The witness, most of them, also took a Thanksgiving dinner at the beautiful mansion of the cafe, and his estranged wife, Jewel Carmen. Ida Lupino, who gave what proved to be a farewell party for Thelma Todd, Jean Peitz, film actress and an ex-wife of Roland West, famous mystery director. Robert Ames, another former husband, Pat Di Cicco. The further the investigation is carried, the more confusing it becomes. Medical testimony states Miss Todd died of carbon monoxide fumes from her car.

CHINESE STUDENTS TAKE UP FIGHT AGAINST JAPAN—With increased efforts by Tokio to force anticooperation with Nanking, student agitation by Chinese students is becoming rife and may only be the forerunner of possibly lead to another "Shanghai incident". The above was taken in 1932 and was one of a series of events which finally led to the landing of Jap marines in Shanghai. Male and female students are shown parading toward the International settlement carrying anti-Jap banners and urging boycott of Japanese made goods. Similar scenes are being re-enacted today.

Marmora and District

Marmora—The annual New Year's Eve Frolic was held in the Deloro Hall, by the staff of Deloro Smelting and Refining Company. The hall was very tastefully decorated Large balloons, a bunch of green and white crepe paper artistically arranged around the walls. A platform stage was also decorated in Christmas colors of red and green. The lights were very effectively shaded with crepe paper.

A very large crowd attended the Frolic with guests present from Bellevue, Stirling, Madoc and Belvelock. The music was supplied by Jack Desmark's Aces. At 11.30 p.m. a delicious lunch was served consisting of sandwiches, cake, ice cream and coffee and after supper the noisemakers, paper hats etc. were distributed among the guests. At midnight the New Year was properly welcomed by all present joining in "Auld Lang Syne". Streamers and confetti were received with enthusiasm and made a gay and colorful scene. During the intervals in the dancing Mr. S. B. Wright, manager of Deloro Smelting and Refining Company gave a short address on behalf of the Social and Dramatic Society of Deloro on their splendid work throughout the year. Mr. Wright then asked Mr. D. E. Bell to come to the platform and on behalf of the Deloro Smelting and Refining Company presented him with a cheque in appreciation of his cooperation with the company as station agent for the Canadian National Railways. Mr. Bell, who has had this position for the past thirty-two years is leaving for Peterborough and will take up his duties there January 1st. Mr. Bell then called upon for a few words and briefly expressed his appreciation to the Deloro Company and his regrets at leaving his many friends here.

Dancing was then resumed and continued until the wee hours.

A former resident of Abethes who never heard of Premier Aberhart and his Social Credit plan has discovered in Marmora today. This knight of the land arrived during the village revealed the fact that transients do not often get the opportunity to become acquainted with the march of events. "Premier Aberhart's Social Credit". Never heard of it, the grey-haired transient told a local citizen. This man who looked far older than his actual forty-eight years, said he had left Alberta about a year ago. He appeared to have no definite plans for the future and jokingly "it might be a good idea to get back to Alberta soon".

Stirling and District

Stirling—The regular meeting of St. Paul's Young People's Society was held in the church parlors on Monday evening. Miss Mary Rollin, President of the organization was in charge of the devotional part of the meeting, which was opened with the singing of a hymn followed by the Lord's Prayer in unison. Mrs. Nora Wescott gave the secretary's report of the previous meeting and the scripture lesson for the evening the 19th. Prayer was also read in unison. The remaining portion of the meeting was under the direction of Miss Dorothy Eggleton 4th. Vice President, and leader of the Citizen Division. The speaker of the evening was Mr. Morgan Rowland of Toronto University who at the present time is holidaying at the home of his parents, Rev. and Mrs. E. W. Rowland. Mr. Rowland gave a very fine address on "Wealth" which was a timely topic with the dark clouds of conflict hanging over Europe. Mr. Rowland reviewed the chaos and tragedy of the World War which was the best example of the futility of war and the freshest in our memory. With the financial cost of the World War estimated at over 400 billion dollars, enough would be sufficient money to provide a house and land at a cost of four thousand dollars for every family in United States, Canada, Australia, Great Britain, Belgium, France, Belgium, Germany, Russia and others and to each city granted a million dollars for library and University work, and two hundred thousand dollars for teachers and nurses. This could be accomplished with the money spent on the Great War which is still and will continue for several generations to be a burden of debt. Twelve Million lives, the value of which could never be estimated by the constructive measures and brain-power taken. The only cure for this evil which has attended us down through the ages must come from the individual within each nation doing their utmost to remove from their hearts all signs of hatred, malice, and racial discrimination. Christ's Principle laid down two thousand years ago is the solution "If I be lifted up I will draw all men unto Me". If we take up the Christ-Principle, who has never been given a fair chance, our problems would automatically disappear.

This was a most interesting address and all present were given a better understanding of why we should foster all movements to bring Peace on Earth, Goodwill to Men.

Mr. G. L. Clute offered a splendid solo "Viennese Refrain" accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Rowland. Miss Marion Wescott conducted a very interesting "Cake Contest" in which the Pratt Division gained first honors. The contest was closed by repeating the Mispah Benediction.

MEDICAL PROGRESS

A modern miracle has taken place with the discovery of a method of taking blood from the bodies of the dead and preserving it to save other lives through transfusions, doctors claim.

Science calls this the greatest discovery of last year. Last year produced many other marks of progress in medicine and science, such as perfecting operations on the lymphatic system to relieve pain, lowering blood pressure and controlling heart action; discoveries about glands, development of vitamins, discovery of the active principle of ergot, a drug used in childbirth, discovery of new drugs including the use of snake venom to halt hemorrhage, and artificial heart, perfected by Col. Lindbergh.

Science failed to recognise a scheme to freeze monkeys and to keep life in a state of suspended animation.

The achievements of science grow more romantic as time goes on. The old Hippocrates and Galen would indeed be surprised could they but see the progress of discovery.

The doctor today has an expanding world before him as important for humanity as the idea of the expanding universe which is so intriguing to astronomers.

In the face of this progress there is a reactionary view—that science has not increased the ultimate age of man and that man grows, matures and dies at the same rate as his ancestors did. But it is admitted by all that modern medical science has made possible the saving of countless lives from early death, and in itself increases the number of the older generation and indeed gives most comers into this world a fair break or chance to live to a ripe old age. Decline in the rate of infant mortality and of mortality in childbirth, are great accomplishments in the realm of preventive medicine and medical discovery.

KIPLING

Rudyard Kipling has entered his seventieth year with a great past and a possible promise of literary production ahead. It is a long time since he first burst on the world with the flash of genius which made him one of the most striking of literary figures writing in English. It seems long since he wrote "Recessional" in 1897, the hymn which expresses a lesson which the world in arms must learn with its lines, "For heathen heart that puts her trust
In reeking tube and iron shard;
All valiant dust that builds on dust,
And guarding calls not Thee to guard,
For frantic boast and foolish word,
Thy mercy on Thy people, Lord."

There is no doubt that the old writer yet. Last summer at the time of the royal silver jubilee services, Kipling warned against the dangers of a still arming world. He spoke many truths which sank into the memory of those who heard him over the air.

May Kipling long live to give more of his good stories and his poems. But whether he can ever equal "Recessional" is to be doubted, for it is flawless in thought, expression and emotion.

MAYOR TICE

Citizens of Belleville are pleased that Mayor George O. Tice is able to be about again and to round out his four year tenure of the chief magistracy, which comes to a close on Monday next with the installation of Mayor-elect Harry Hill. Mayor Tice was unable to take part in the recent meetings of council and to attend nominations on account of his ten week illness.

As the mayor retires in a couple of days into private life, citizens will wish him every prosperity. He has served the city for ten years as alderman and mayor and leaves the office of mayor with the best wishes and the gratitude of all.

SPINACH SUBSTITUTE

How many obscure vegetables are there? Well, the Works Progress Administration of New York has dug up 350 substitutes for spinach, whose iron tyranny has been felt by adults and youngsters, rich and poor. Here are some of them—cardoon, seaweeds, yantia, Jerusalem artichoke, escarole, soy bean, taro, finnochio, fava bean and so on.

The secrets of these vegetables are to be exposed to the kitchens of New York City.

PROBLEMS OF BEHAVIOR

How well do you know yourself? Professors Borokin and Berger of Harvard University stated the other day that no matter how hard a person tried he could not predict the behavior for the next twenty-four hours. 106 individuals were used in the tests, said the educators.

They pointed out that the percentage of error is greater among the young than the old, men forecast more accurately than women, single men less accurately than married ones and persons in higher income and occupational groups less accurately than those in lesser brackets.

A NEW BEGINNING

We have bid good-bye to the year that's past,
The dear, dead days that have been so fleeting,
Through sunshine and shadow they hurried past
The wonder of dawn and dusk repeating.
There were days of darkness and days of dream
There were days of losing and days of winning
But the golden dawn of New Year's gleam
Gives us the chance of a fresh beginning.

We gaze on its leaves with heartfelt sighing
But we needs must think of those days no more
But turn to the days now before us lying
The days of the New Year a-gleaming bright
Their hue of light and life are flinging
Gladly we turn to the dawning light
To hail the joy of a fresh beginning.

—Helen B. Anderson.

NEW YORK MAGNATES WHO DIRECT AND PROFIT BY THE PRIZE-FIGHT RACKET are worrying these days with hope of a golden harvest, greatest than has been, if they can produce a "White Hope" who can measure up in slugging ability and ring tactics with Joe Louis, the coloured boy who looks to be on his way to a world championship. Each generation has developed one outstanding fighter since the days of Corbett, Fitzsimmons and Jeffries, Johnson, Dempsey, Tunney and Sharkey to have two fighters of champion calibre at the same time would be just too lovely for the fight promoters with million dollar gates in view. As yet there is no "white hope" in sight who looks capable of giving Joe Louis more than a workout.

SIR HENRY IRVING, a great actor but poor business man, suffered from lack of money in his declining years. He spent large sums of money in giving his public the finest stage spectacles possible and the very best acting talent. His beloved Lon don proved his undoing. Not content with the exhausting work of acting he must be his own producer as well and own or control a theatre. A brilliant success was at hand for he was the idol of the businessman and his last days were saddened by adversity. Sir John Martin-Harvey, a pupil of Sir Henry Irving, and a talented actor in his own right, also made the mistake of the actor-producer and suffered heavy financial losses as a result. With Sir Henry's experience before him and his own, Martin-Harvey not only kept clear but contrived to recoup his fortunes before he parts from his beloved stage—unless ambition to produce costly stage spectacles again grips him to his hurt.

FEDERAL INCOME TAX GIVES PLENTY PEOPLE THE JITTERS, and has been considered rather the last straw in taxable dismemberment of a person's income. Now comes word from Toronto that there will probably be a provincial tax devised at the next meeting of the legislature. Gosh, all hemlock, what with municipal taxes, business tax and contributions to keep up the churches, and various other things, it looks as if balancing the personal budget would soon get to be a lost art.

On his appointment, the new manager of a certain big bank was given much publicity, and photographs of him were reproduced in newspapers. All were not printed attractively.

A depositor wandered in, walked up to the manager, produced one of the photographic reproductions, and said, "Is this your picture?"

The manager assured him that it was. "Are you the manager of the bank?"

The'other admitted that he was.

A junior reporter, frequently reprimanded for relating too many details and warned to be brief, sent in the following:

LOOKING BACKWARD

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

JAN. 3RD, 1914

Col. J. Lyons Mayor of Ottawa, formerly of Belleville, has been appointed to the position of Deputy-Minister of Transports and Supply in recognition of the unremitting energy and efficient work which he has shown since the outbreak of war in looking after the multitarious duties of arranging for the transport and transport supplies of the Canadian troops.

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. McCoy of Drayton, Ohio, have left for home after visiting relatives here over the holidays.

The Belleville Collegiate Institute team and the Belleville Juniors clashed in a game of hockey here on the evening of Dec. 31st. The former team won, the score being 5 to 3. The following composed the Belleville team: Phillips, Hemlock, Herring, G. Arnold, L. Arnott, Green and Whalen. Whalen, Belleville's star left wing, put up a good game. Holway is a good check and stops many a dangerous play. Umpire, Lieut. B. Whitty.

HEALTH and PSYCHOLOGY

Why is it that so many women seem to decline in their late forties? Why does a woman, after many years of happy married life, slip into depression and melancholy? Why should another woman, formerly careful and neat in personal appearance, gradually become neglectful?

Why should still another find her former beauty and charm perhaps restricting and stifling, after her son and daughter have been sent to college? Why, indeed, do so many women go to seed?

Those examples are but cases taken from life to illustrate the point. In each of these, one notes that a decline takes place after the children mature But they are not exceptional cases. There are hundreds and thousands like them.

Why, indeed, should so many women go into a decline at some period when their boys and girls reach man's and woman's estate? Is there no explanation one has to go back and examine the nature of woman. Any woman will admit that the thrill she gets when cuddling a baby, (the specially enjoys the decidence of the little tot in her innocence, its need for her support. And every mother is sorry when the infancy of her beloved ones has passed. To her mind, with the passing of this stage of her child's life, there passes also the absolute helplessness of her offspring and her own omnipotence. All mothers feel that way.

With the arrival of a new baby, renewed interest, of course, comes to the rescue. But sooner or later, no matter how large the family may be, the years bring inevitable maturity to these babies. And the grown-ups break away from parental influence.

It is then that the average mother finds herself alone, heart-hungry, lonely. With the cutting of her mother craving cut off, she feels shut-in, pent-up, useless. The things her course has run, her duty ended. Life to her then appears as "ending void".

But women really need not decline when their children mature. A mother should realize what will surely happen according to the laws of nature and prepare for it.

Every mother should develop interests outside the home while her children still are young. These interests can later become a refuge in time of need.

With the increased and ever-expanding opportunities now open to women, many activities are available for these women who have experienced motherhood.

There are many kinds of charitable work in which she can engage herself, she can find satisfaction in work connected with school boards and child guidance, or even in politics.

DR. BISCH'S DAILY DIET HINT

Part of the school education of young girls should be cooking. Where the schooling in this branch is either inadequate or absent, it is the mother's duty to give her daughter adequate preparation in this most important art. Not only should a girl learn how to cook well but also should she learn the food values of foods, the science of food as a health factor, as well as in serving in an attractive manner.

Little Benny's Note Book

Today in school Miss Kiley was talking about the new year, saying, Now I wonder how many of you children will have new resolutions this year that will strengthen you caracter?

Why Wrigley Shooster waved his hand, saying, I made a resolution not to eat any more potatoes with my fingers. Miss Kiley asked me to request, and Miss Kitty said, I don't think you have much caracter to change that bad habit.

No mum, Leroy said, and Miss Kitty said, Then pray tell us what you imagine is the most strength en your caracter if you retrained from eating fish?

It will get me in the habit of not associating with people that I don't consider to be good enough for me, Leroy said, and Miss Kitty said, I don't think you've imagination at all, except for self strengthening. Who elts made a resolution? she said.

Fudi Simkins waving his hand and also making a motion that he had ny recess money for some useful purpose, I resolved to study my lessons day for a prezsel or some dinky thing like that and Miss Kitty said, I don't think you resolutions have you any particuler useful purpose in mind?

Yes mam, I'm going to buy a whole big plateful of ice cream with it every time I have a dime saved up, Fudi said, and Miss Kitty said, I don't think it even strengthens your stummick much less your caracter. By strengthening your caracter you will be better prepared for the battle of life in the big outside world so that you may become successful likeness men like your fathers. Now for instants will Judge Hopkins like with his big wholesale and retail hardware business. Now I do you explain the fact that your father commands the respect and obedience of his employees, Howerd? she said.

On account of his deep voice, Shorty Judge said, and Miss Kitty said, It is the deep voice I'm sure it's a re-reflection of depth of caracter. I dear such a class will go to ic arithmetic.

With we did nothing against it.

Bitterest Rivals in N. H. L. Maroons and Larruping Leafs Stage Wildest Game of Year

Four Major And Four Minor Contest Penalties in 3rd Period

MAROONS WIN 5-2

Morris Drew Even With Montreal by Downing Shupe

By A. E. FULFORD

Canada's two best hockey clubs, Montreal's fast Maroons and the larruping Leafs from Toronto bore somewhat stiffly hockey as they accepted all the honors that go with the season's wildest game of hockey. They'll have to trot out twenty guns to better the fistic exchanges that lined the ice here in Montreal.

Hitting a new high in free-for-all encounters, the bitterest rivals in the National Hockey League fought through a riotous period that saw four major and four minor penalties handed out.

While officials stood by helpless-ly to untangle the punching, wrest-ling mixup of the Maroons and Leafs, the fans thundered their approval with a major slaughter of everything that batted five minutes.

Only the goalies came through the fray, not with an injury that started it all, were anything from the brawl. Penalties totalling five minutes were imposed in that period and 36 in the game, Leafs drew 22 minutes and Maroons 36.

11 Fights in One

Eleven fights in one. Three in Scoreless 1st period, 11 fights on the box at one time. Lionel Conacher, widely proclaimed the greatest athlete called it the "biggest" fight he ever saw in a hockey game.

Maroons won the game 5-2. That score, the one at New York where Maroons defeated Rangers 4-3 and the fighting spirit shown in the Leaf-Maroons encounter were offering answers to anyone who still thinks major league hockey is going too defensive and plain bush.

The Montreal Almanacers were leading 4-1 when the trouble start-ed. Charlie Conacher knocked Trottier to the ice and although it looked accidental blood gushed from a head wound and Conacher was handed a major.

Vezina Flaherty and Siebs flew a few minutes later when Ted Horn-er, the league's leading backcheck and Hockey Smith, now runner-up, banged their heads together. Again on the way to the bench and indicated penalties were handed out to the combatants.

Lionel Conacher and Bob David-son clashed next and when a fight started on the bench between the five of them it was the signal for general mayhem. Even the combatants had been separated the officials had their hands full keeping Lionel Conacher and Davidson as well.

Flanigan's First Goal

Fighting honors went to no one but Maroons had a good edge on the evening's play. Trottier, Siebs Vezina and Ruby Northcott scored in the first period and Smith ad-ded another for Maroons in the se-cond. Pittsburgh Franchise Flanigan got Toronto's first goal and his first of the season.

While the teams were shorthand-ed in the third Northcott scored and Doss Boll added Toron-to's second. Bill Thoms got an assist on that one and drew his league leadership in scoring with 17.

Sweeney Schriner, who started the season well but has been off scoring lately, was the hero of the game at Madison Square Garde, scoring a goal and three assists. Fourteen thousand persons saw Rangers go into the second period with a 3-2 lead but a goal by Bill Dillon and Bun Cook in the open-ing session.

Chapman had scored for Americ in the first period and when Man-ville Boll drove around the worn in the second, Bill Cook put Lester Patrick's team ahead again. From then on it belonged to Americans.

Harry Oliver and Chapman tal-lied before the middle session was over and Joe Jerwa and Schriner added markers in the third session and the fans on their feet most of the time. The win enabled Americ to keep in a tie with Ma-roons, four points behind Toronto.

HOCKEY'S BIG SEVEN

(By The Canadian Press)

An assist scored against Montreal Maroons also Bill Thoms, Toronto Leaf centre, is the front in the Na-tional Hockey League scoring race today.

He now leads in total points with 17 and is tied with Bill Cook, New York Rang-ers. Bun Boll, his left wing, is tied with Paul Thompson of Chicago Black Hawks for fourth place with five scores.

Sweeney Schriner of New York Americans popped into the charmed circle with four points to be tied with New York Rangers last night. He, Thompson, Boll, Cecil Dillon, Rangers, and Charlie Con-acher of Toronto are tied a point behind Thoms.

Sweeney Schriner, Americans, scored a goal and three assists against Rangers.

STARS SCORE NEEDED WIN

By the Canadian Press

It's still Syracuse Stars and De-troit Olympics in the International Hockey League, although the Stars are far from comfortable in the heated eastern section race as Lon-don Tecumseths and Buffalo Bisons push along within a point or two of the pace.

The Stars, farm club of Toronto Maple Leafs and Olympics, tyrants out ground of Detroit Red Wings, both won games last night. Syra-cuse defeated Rochester Cardinals 4-0 and Detroit downed Pittsburgh Shamrocks 6-3 in an overtime battle.

It was the Stars, however, who most needed a victory. The win joined them a point behind Lon-don as Mickey Blake and Eddie Burke put on the fireworks at Rochester's expense. Each col-lected three out of four possible points and Burke, formerly a high scorer for New York Americans, bagged two goals.

Ready to smash a three-game losing streak, the Stars attracted only 1,500 fans to their home rink. Jack Howard got the first goal and Blake and Burke looked after the scoring.

Lineup for unfortunate Cards, who have won only two games in thirty starts, subject to considerable score.

A crowd of more than 4,000 saw Johnny Sherf, rookie from Univer-sity of Michigan, shoot the winning goal for Olympics over Pittsburgh on a double pass from Ron Hudson and Vip Hopper. The goal came within two minutes of the finish of overtime play.

Goals by Sparky Vail, Earl Roche and Rusty Hughes had matched Detroit tallies up to the overtime session. Detroit scorers were John-ny Sherf, Sherf and Phil Sie-gabelmer, who is on loan to the O's from Boston Cubs of the Can-adian-American league.

Percy Nicklin Chosen to Coach British Squad

LONDON, Jan. 3.—(CP)—Percy Nicklin, who learned about hockey at Port Arthur, Ont., and made his specialty with the Moncton Hawks, Canadian Senior Champions in 1933 and 1934, is preparing a British team for the Olympic games and Nicklin is the last person in all England to expect success. For one thing his team must face Port Arthur.

Coach of Richmond Hawks in the English National League, Nicklin has been selected to train for the Brit-ish Olympic team and ever since became active Olympic hopes have been rapidly dimmed. Nicklin's charge can't seem to get going.

It will be Port Arthur Seagulls, a bustling brigade from his home town, who wear Canadian colors next month at the Garmisch-Par-tenkirchen games in Ger ▶ / many. Nicklin said he isn't con-fident of giving the Canadians a battle, but he sorrowly needs to say anything.

Beaten in Test Matches

Nicklin's team has been beaten in a test series by various teams of se-nior, intermediate and junior class here. One of the scores was 9-4. Wembley Lions trounced the Richmond Hawks 8-3. It didn't been for the fine goal-tending of Jimmy Foster, former Winnipeg and Montreal star, the score would have been much higher.

Nicklin is believed, will play goal on the British team, although he has not yet been definitely an-nounced. He was born in this coun-try and therefore is eligible. Jock Kerr, Kensington, Canadian-born goalie, is another possibility and the two net men may be taken to Europe.

But the defence in front of Foster will contain real talent. It will be fea-tures. No Canadian-Breds are available for these posts and even Canadian team mates, will be com-paratively easy to score against. He is a native of Wembley, England.

Among those are Alec Archer, formerly of Winnipeg and Johnny Campbell, also from the Manitoba capital.

Canadians Too Good

Joe Beaton and Albert Lemay were outstanding in the test matches against the Britons. Beaton, from Charlottetown, and the fleet Lemay from Winnipeg were altogether too good for the Home players, easily slipping inside the defence for close up shots.

Don Hodges and Johnny Ache-son from Toronto, Lou Bale, from Ottawa, Jimmy Haggerty from Port Arthur and "Crash" Wilkinson from Ottawa were often Canadian, who turned in brilliant performances. The cousins attracted capacity crowds to Wembley Stadium.

Definite selection of the British team is expected to be made about Jan. 6.

TWEED WINS 2-0 OVER MARMORA

Marmora, Jan. 3 (Special)— A score of 2-0 was the result of the opening game in the Central Hast-ings Hockey League between Tweed and Marmora on Thursday even-ing. Ice was in fine shape, a sheet and snow hampered the play-ers very much hence the game was not so good as it might have been under favorable conditions. A fairly large crowd witnessed the tussle which had the earmarks of a rough house in parts of the fast play. Five penalties were handed out, Marmora had three and Tweed's two.

The first period was scoreless with Tweed having a slight edge in play most of the period, Mar-mora's goal being in danger many about as the Tweed net mind-er bat kept them all out. Both the forwards Maguire, Elsbury and Farmer in the one line, Shannon, Simmons and Johnson for Mar-mora all showed up well. The aller-ations displayed fine hockey as well.

The opening period was ordinary hockey with one penalty to Shannon for tripping. In the sec-ond period the Marmora boys were the aggressors and Thompson had two good scoring shots. In a mix up in front of the home goal Farmer for Tweed, Thompson dropped their sticks and used fists instead both being thumbed off. Shortly after Tweed were penalized two men and R. Leal, the latter getting a roughing and one also went to T. Shannon who interfered. After the play Hockey Mercer at the assist from Maguire opened the scoring.

In the final period, Marmora tried a combination of power play-ing all wing men in a last effor to even the scoring but in a mad scramble Maguire for Tweed scored for Tweed. The teams:

Tweed: Goal, Thompson; defence, H. Leal, Cumman; centre, Shahaw; wings, Mcraw and Maguire; aller-nates, Courtney, W. Leal, Elsbury and Arber.

Marmora: Goal, Callery; defence, B. Shannon, Burns; centre, T. Shannon; wings, Simmons, and Hewitt; alternates, Neal, Cashman, Smith and Johnston.

Referee: G. Gerald, Tweed.

HOCKEY SIDELIGHTS

By RAY COLLETT

Baseball was little Joe Primeau's game but hockey is his hobby. That's what they tell us, but its the puck-propelling art that has made him fame. All that he had a blue goose-saw slant and could find the cor-ners of the plate to a batsman's dis-comfort when he played with school teams on the Pacific coast. Primeau was born in Lindsay, Ont., but his parents moved to Victoria in Joe's youth.

Back in Toronto around 1930, he played wing for St. Michael's col-lege. One night the coach decided to take sick and Joe moved over to the pivot position. His daring rushes and clever passing brought him there.

When the famed Conacher-Prim-ean-Jackson line went pro, the mid-get centre was considered too fragile for N.H.L. competition. He carved a league for a time, and diminutive though he was, there was no doubt he couldn't be barred from the big league berth.

The 1931-32 N.H.L. campaign he led the league in assists with 32 falling four short of the record set in the following season. He modelled that a year later with 37. Noted fan is Primeau for his clean playing and he has won the Lady Byng trophy, now owned outright by Boucher.

Though Joe was once one of the frailest centres in the game, down about the Jollat stadtard, he has added a bit of weight and now goes 160 pounds. His playmaking ability is still recognized as one of the great reason that "Chuck" Con-acher and Harvey Jackson have re-corded their mighty scoring feats.

KNOTTY LEE TO ORGANIZE CLUBS

New Semi-Pro Loop Will Consist of Eleven Teams

Columbus, O., Jan. 3.—(CP)—Knotty Lee, former player, manager and club owner in the old Mich-igan-Ontario League, has been ap-pointed field representative to con-tinue with the organization of the Canadian-American Baseball League which is now being formed.

In announcing the appointment yesterday, Joe F. Carr of this city, promotional director for the Nation-al Association of Professional Base-ball Leagues, stated prospects for qualification of the New League were exceedingly bright and that he ex-pected the League to be a member of the Association for the 1933 cam-paign.

Ottawa, Smith's Falls, Perth, Car-leton Place, Brockville and Kingston in Canada, and Plattsburg, Nor-thampton, Malone, Massena and Watertown in the State of New York are the prospective members.

Lee will spend considerable time in the territory working out the preliminary details, and within a short time expects to have things in shape to call the final organization meeting.

The League will be of "C" or "D" classification, depending on the wishes of the franchise holders and type of organization.

The splendid comeback of baseball in Montreal, Toronto and Winnipeg has done much to boost organized baseball in Canada and tentative members of the Canadian-American loop are reported ready and eager for the game.

ALL LIGHTWEIGHT CARD AT GARDEN

May Find Good Opponent For Champion Tony Canzoneri

New York, Jan. 3 (AP)—Instituting a search for a possible succes-sor to Tony Canzoneri as lightweight champion for scenarios, who can give Tony a real scrap for the title, Madison Square Garden, promoted tonight an all lightweight card, headed by Frankie Klick of San Francisco and Lou Ambers of Her-kimer, N.Y.

Klick, already beaten by Canzo-neri four times, encounters the youthful Ambers in the 10 round feature bout. If either can win de-cisively, Canzoneri has promised to meet him in the spring.

Leonard Del Genio of New York faces Mexican Bobby Pacho, who once floored Canzoneri, in one 10 rounder and Eddie Zivic of Pitts-burgh meets Aldo Spoldi of Italy in another.

Murray Patrick Successor to "Big Train"

Murray "Mine" Patrick of Vic-toria, stalwart son of Lester Patrick of hockey fame, is a chip off the old fighting-pan. Mine is heavyweight boxing champion of Canada, and also the Dominion's best bet for the coming Olympics. At the light top he shows his sturdy shoulders and arm muscles, which have helped him to eight knockouts in eleven bouts and to a star place in ama-teur hockey. Then Below, this all-round athlete is seen telling his puck-chasing troubles to his father, as the latter sits in his Madison Square Garden office. Mine plays with New York Rovers, an amateur team over which Lester keeps a watchful eye.

By RAY COLLETT

Central Press Canadian Sports Writer

An all-round athlete at 36, with highways to fame in two profes-sional sports open before him, Mur-ray "Mine" Patrick from Victoria, B.C. shapes up as a logical successor to Lionel Conacher in the role of Canada's greatest athlete."

The blazing son of Lester Pat-rick, who for the last ten years has directed the hockey destinies of New York Rangers, is still an amateur. He was given the chance to step into money ranks this year with the Gotham Rissbirds, follow-ing his brother Lynn's footsteps, but Mine preferred for the time at least to keep his amateur card. In his first pro season, Lynn was a success with his father's squad and gray-haired Lester would have liked nothing better than to add another brother act to the N.H.L. with his sons as the principals. Murray started with a New York amateur club last season.

Ring Record Good

But boxing and hockey both beck-oned this fall and Mine, heavy-weight champion of Canada, chose to play with the New York's Rovers, fistic fanciers amateur hockey entry, and polish up his ring fitness in the spare hours. He will probably go to the Olympic games in Germany next year, carrying the Maple Leaf into the heavyweight boxing ring.

His fistic record is impressive as is anyone's as that of "Big Train" Conacher, who also once held the multi crown of the Dominion. In his 11 bouts, and battle career, Mine has missed the judge's nod only once. He was outpointed by Ted Kes-ling a light-heavyweight in his second ring engagement. Since then he's been whaling through all the available opponents with a terrific right hand carrying knockout pow-er to most of them. Eight K.O.'s in eleven bouts are credited to him. He put Tommy Burns on the floor for the Dominion crown, Osborne was Quebec champion, chief contender for the Canadian throne and the wearer of the Maple Leaf at the 1932 British Empire games.

In addition to his home country honors, Patrick has taken the Washington State title, an award coveted by the best amateur heavy-weights on the Pacific coast.

All-round Athlete

But boxing and hockey have not been the only interests of this ama-teur son of a great sporting family. At 18, he was one of Canada's best basketball players, top scorer on the 1923 Dominion champions, Victoria Blue Ribbons. He is a star bicycle rider of the Treaby Feden stamp. Victoria knows him as a crack track man, a rugby player with belt and brains to earn a place on any team and a better-than-average baseball player. In addition he does a bit of amateur wrestling, another sport that Lionel Conacher starred as in his palmier days.

Looking Up Ladder

Boxing, however, is Mine Pat-rick's first love. For the hops that he may some day win a place among the top flight ringmen of the world, he cast aside the chance of a professional hockey fame—for the year at least—though under the eagle eye of cagey Lester he coaches the Rovers, Mine will un-doubtedly learn all there is to know about the pack-chasing art. With the heavy-weight world dom-inated by dusky ring idols and pro-moters and managers casting around frantically for a new "white hope,"—Canada may yet have the chance to send a real batter into the fight picture in the person of the slugging British Columbian. His 200 pounds of ambition in that direc-tion, while Canada is hailing her newest all-star athlete.

Wardle has been a member of the choir for some time. Thirty-five guests were present. The bride and groom received many gifts of a varied nature. During the evening a program and dancing made up a very enjoyable evening. A dainty supper was served and the party came to an end about one o'clock. Arrangements for the wedding event were in charge of Mrs. Bradley, choir leader of the church.

Relief Investigator Held Prisoner in House

Hamilton, Ont., Jan. 3 (CP) Claiming George Walker of Hamilton refused to allow her to leave his home until she had seconded on his relief would be increased, Miss Nora Bradley, relief department investigator, charged Walker in court with assault. He was remanded to the Ontario Hospital for observation and the court reserved judgment.

Walker said he was "not going to be dictated to by a snip of a girl." Miss Quickley testified. Witness finally gave more relief than she would have in order to escape from the house.

RUM-MALLED—It's the open season, men—Leap year is at hand. No wonder she's such a busted loop in the eyes of all bachelors.

TURNS DOWN FAME—Virginia Walker (above), Boston beauty, went into hiding after being chosen by Cecil B. de Mille for a Hollywood role. She was found playing a small role under an assumed name in Boston. She refuses to enter the films until after completing her studies under a noted dramatic artist.

Weddings

McDONALD—PHILLIPS

Roslin, (Special)—On Christmas Day at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Phillips of Mill Street, Roslin, became the bride of Donald McDonald, of Glasgow, Scotland.

The service took place under a bridal arch of evergreens and wedding bells.

Among the out-of-town guests present were Mrs. Maloney, Ivan and Mrs. Lamrock of Flint, Michigan; Mrs. Smith, from Chicago; all relatives of the bride.

A wedding reception was afterwards held at which a number of guests were present.

Maintaining Health Without Medicine

How often we hear the complaint, "I am feeling ill today." "I have a terrible headache," "I did not sleep well last night," all of which are signals from the digestive system that is in poor condition—advance warning of more serious ills impending. Is it not something thus late something to stop these half-warnings and to see the cause in order to multiply the trouble.

In this field of drugless healing in which the cause is searched for, the science of Chiropractic has held the vast sphere for the last decade, often curing illness after repeated failure by others, and in many cases still ignorant of its blessing.

The seat of the controlling nerve centre of the body. If there is pressure upon these nerves as it does upon the spine the vital organ thereby controlled will function poorly, thus the body's condition runs down. The value of chiropractic finds its field in ailments which are poorly aligned and adjust them into their healthful position. Nature does the curing.

We will hasten to mention a chiropractor who has greatly advanced the popularity of the profession in Hastings County. We speak of Dr. A. Wyatt, Ph. C. of Belleville. Since graduating Mr. Wyatt has kept well abreast of the times through study and practical work. He has an excellent standing, great confidence and skill in treating patients testify, and is considered by those of his profession as an expert on spinal curves and adjustments. Mr. Wyatt is also skilled in detecting and treating the coagulation of toxalis, which is responsible for constipation, as he is no cutting, no hemorrhage at all. Mr. Wyatt has the latest electric equipment, which eliminates toxicoles all diseases and nerve pressure in their early stages.

The Ultra Short Wave is the latest and most successful treatment for Arthritis, Rheumatism, Neuritis, Lumbago, etc. Phone 900 for further information. 29-tf

Mark 50th Anniversary Of Wedding

Flinton, Wed. Dec. 25—Fifty-two relatives gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter B. Woodcock to extend to them their hearty wishes in honor of their Golden Wedding. They were also favored with the presence of their seven children, eleven grandchildren, three great grandchildren. Congratulations, singing and music were enjoyed by all. During the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Woodcock were called to the front room where their daughter, Gertrude, read the following address as they sat beneath a shower of lovely rocking chairs and many more lovely gifts.

Dear Father and Mother

'Twas fifty years ago today
A long, long time to you,
When you were wed but yet no doubt
The best day
Of a day to you.
You looked on life with your youthful eyes
And pledged your life anew
To work for each and each for you.

That dreams might all come true.
You worked for happiness and love
Which three friends would gladly meet
The living grasp of tiny hands
The pathy of little feet.
You gave to your childhood days
Of endless things to do
The trials, the cares, the joys of home
Brought happiness to you.
Then came the time one day to day
Your boys and girls have grown
Expanding with their life's work
In circles of their own.
Lift up your heads with joy and pride
With thankful hearts and true
That memories of your home
Is meeting here with you.
We prize your love, your kindly acts
Through all those years gone by
We can't repay those deeds of love
We can but humbly try.
These tokens we present we bring
To you our Dad and Mother
As tokens of our love sincere
In love of one another.
Long may you live and health enjoy
For many years to come
So we your friends and family
Find you still young.
Signed on behalf of daughters, sons and relatives

Mrs. Woodcock then thanked them for their kind words and useful gifts and wished they would all meet again in her home.

The girls then sang many suitable songs after which all joined in singing "For they are Jolly Good Fellows". They then adjourned to the dining room which was prettily decorated in red and gold where a dinner was served.

The rest of the evening was spent in dancing until the wee hours of the morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Burr and Ronald of Burr were tea hour guests of her parents Mr and Mrs. M. M. Werden.

Crofton Sunday School held their entertainment in the Hall on Monday evening with a fair attendance. A very nice programme was presented consisting of recitations, dialogues, solos and a pantomime which was interspersed. Rev. Lorne Burr was the capable chairman of the evening and was presented by the boys being given a token of appreciation for his untiring efforts as Superintendent of the Sunday School. The arrival of Santa Claus caused great excitement among the children who were all treated to nuts and candies and the beautifully decorated tree was unloaded. Owing to the very cold night the crowd was smaller than usual.

The new rink at Crofton is proving a great attraction to the young folk and children as well as some of the older ones who are getting limbered up to enjoy the sport.

PLAINFIELD

Plainfield—The annual meeting for the Plainfield United Church Sunday School was held in the church on Monday evening; with one exception all the officers were re-elected, the different reports of work done through the year. The Secretary's report given by Drury Denyes showed that school had been held on fifty Sundays with an average attendance of 56. The highest attendance was on Sept. 4th with 91 present. The third Sunday of each month is set aside as missionary Sunday and on this day the collection taken for the Children Missionary and Maintenance Fund and in 1935 amounted to $34.23, added to this is $2.85 the offering on the Rally Day making a total of $37.18 for the year. The Temperance Secretary, Mrs. Clarence Hall and the Missionary Secretary, Mrs. Arthur Hall, both did good work throughout the year in providing programs regularly. Mrs. Wilfrid Elliott, Cradle Roll Superintendent, reported nine babies on her list. The Treasurer Robert Rollins gave a very satisfactory report and stated that the finances were in better condition than a year ago. During the year 11 books were found necessary to draw other class making a total of seven.

The following officers were elected for 1936. Superintendent, Joseph Gow, Assistant Superintendent, Arthur Hall; Treasurer, Robert Rollins; Secretary, Drury Denyes, Assistant, Clarence Hall; Pianist, Miss Hamilton, Assistant, Phyllis Hall; Temperance Secretary, Mrs. Julian Morden; Missionary Secretary, Mrs. Arthur Hall; Cradle Roll Superintendent, Mrs. Wilfrid Elliott; Teachers, Bible Class, Arthur Hall and Mrs. Harry McCreary; Young Men, Mrs. J. The meeting re-organization of the Young People's work was also held in the church on Monday evening. The society consists of three Pathfinders and the program as outlined in these was followed. The meetings are held the first and third Tuesday of each month. The boys being called to each meeting. One offering each month is taken for missions and during 1935 the sum of five dollars was raised for this purpose.

The following officers were elected for 1936, President, Mrs. Harry Harrison; Secretary, Mrs. Stanley Hazzard, Treasurer, Mrs. Wilfrid Elliott; Pianists, Miss Elsie Hamilton and Miss Phyllis Hall. Group Leaders.—Christian Culture, Mrs. Sherman Parks, Associate, Miss Margaret Carlton; Missionary, Mrs. Julian Moore, Associate, Miss Phyllis Hall; Citizenship, Arthur Carlton, Associate, Miss Elsie Hamilton; Christian Stewardship, Mrs. Clarence Hall; Associate, Mrs. Horace Golden.

The devotional period each evening will be taken by the minister who will take up a constructive study on "The Sermon on the Mount".

YOUNG PEOPLE'S LEGION

The regular meeting of the Young People's Legion on Monday evening took the form of a New Year's party. The hall was prettily decorated in red and white and the opening hymn, "God Make My Life a Little Light," was Jordan effected by prayer. Miss Irene Young read the Scripture from Isaiah 26-3, Twenty-five were present.

The Major gave an interesting talk, speaking briefly of the year swiftly drawing to its close, its happiness and joys and its difficulties and sorrows. He expressed the desire that each member of the Legion would strive during the coming year to make the most of it by putting Christ first in all things. Mr. Sills, who was the guest of the evening, favoured with a handsaw solo with piano accompaniment by Miss Dorothy Mitchell.

An interesting event of the evening was the presentation of the prizes for the two highest numbers and for the Legion in the coming year. These were won by Major Jordan and Miss Phyllis Wards. Their respective mottoes were "Watchfulness" and "Guidance."

The present gave a monologue entitled "To the fellow who will take my place" Mr. Sills gave a delightful line-accordian solo.

Miss Young spoke for a few minutes on our motto, "Watchfulness" and Mr. Sills gave an interesting item on the art.

A vote of thanks was given Mr. Sills by the president on behalf of the Legion after which Mary McCoy offered prayer.

A half hour was spent in games and everyone enjoyed the sandwiches, cake and coffee which was served.

Miss Nellie Collins closed the evening's entertainment with prayer.

YEARS OF AGONY WITH BURNING INDIGESTION

If you had been in agony for years with acid and burning indigestion, then found a remedy which gave you immediate relief, would you not be grateful? This is exactly what Mr. S. J. says about Maclean Brand Stomach Powder. He said: "I do just the same as you whether you suffer from just occasional indigestion or from serious stomach pains and disorders.

Read Mr. S. J.'s own words—

"I was suffered for years of Hell for years with wind and burning indigestion. The doctor said that I was full of Maclean Brand Stomach Powder and the relief I have obtained is very great. May I thank you most heartily for these whole mouths of comfort and peace."

Get a bottle-to-day, but be sure to ask your druggist for the genuine Maclean Brand Stomach Powder with the signature "ALEX. C. MACLEAN." If it is not sold loose but only in bottles, in cartons, of Powder or Tablets—75c at

LINDBERGHS QUIT LIVERPOOL HOTEL

Destination of Famous Family is Likely Wales

Liverpool, Jan. 3.—(AP)— The Charles A. Lindbergh left Liverpool today for Cardiff, Wales, was said their representative, they will seek quiet and rest.

The manager of the Adelphi Hotel, where they had been staying, stated the famous couple and their little son, Jon, were en route to Wales. While with Anne Morrow, Mrs. Lindbergh's brother-in-law.

Those who saw the Lindberghs depart said Col. Lindy "full of life, bobbing around and apparently happy to be on the job in fresh air again."

Liverpool, Jan. 3.—(AP)—Even the waiter who served the Charles A. Lindberghs their meals in the Adelphi Hotel here failed to see them.

In the three days the Lindberghs and their son Jon, stayed in the hotel, the waiter never caught a glimpse of them, he said today.

He was ordered to take the tray on a table in the living room of the Lindbergh suite, while the family remained in another room.

Aubrey Morgan, whose former home in Wales many people was reported as apparently being prepared for Lindy, arrived here to see the famous couple.

Morgan, the widowed husband of Mrs. Lindbergh's sister Elizabeth, stood in the window with three-year-old Jon Lindbergh and pointed out sights on the street to the child.

LABOR—BALDWIN BREAK IS SEEN

MacDonald May be Party Premier to Handle Bill Upon

London, Jan. 3 (CP-Havas)—The News-Letter, organ of the National Labor Party, formed by former Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald in 1931 to support the National Government, today published a surprise attack on Prime Minister Baldwin.

In some quarters the article was heralded as a definite break between the Prime Minister and MacDonald who remains in Baldwin's Cabinet as Lord President of the Council.

The News-Letter was particularly biting in its reference to Premier Minister Baldwin's criticism in the House of Commons of post-war diplomatic methods, such as hasty and rapid visits by Cabinet Ministers to foreign capitals when they lack direct contact with their colleagues at home.

Paris Plan Censured

The article also attacked former Foreign Secretary Sir Samuel Hoare and the Paris Peace Plan he drafted in collaboration with Premier Laval of France, which the latter repudiated by the British Government.

The article declared that secrecy in Samuel Hoare with having gone beyond his instructions and the responsibility in accepting the Paris proposals when the Foreign Secretary abused this principle and justified its repudiation.

The Macdonald mouthpiece also contains a number of caustic references to the attitude of the Government during the foreign policy debate of December 19.

"If the issue had depended upon cheers instead of votes the Government would certainly not have carried the day," is one of the comments.

MONTREAL YOUTH HELD FOR CRIME

Joe Abramavitch Will Be Charged With Murder Today

Montreal, Jan. 3 (CP)—Joe Abramovitch, 23, and his alleged accomplice who shot himself to death as police closed in on him, were held criminally responsible by a coroner's jury today for the slaying of William Jacobs, 50, retired gunsmith. The Crown Prosecutor announced Abramovitch would be arraigned this afternoon on a charge of murder.

Both men were closing in on 17-year-old Frank Schafer when word flashed through a radio call that himself in a gasoline service station. It was Abramovitch found the youth who witnesses said was one of the men who shot the 56-year-old gunsmith.

By him were two guns and a cartridge-studded belt. He had been shot twice and died shortly after admittance to hospital.

"That Haynes affair," said the note, read at the inquest, "was all my doing. I fired the first shot. The shell is in my pocket. Joe was a young fool who got me cracked way to easy money. He hates me. I took my life because it is better to have a dead body than a convict in the family."

Municipalities Must Help Pay Insulin Costs

Toronto, Jan. 3 (CP)—Ontario municipalities will be required to contribute to the cost of free insulin supplied to indigent diabetic patients, Health Minister Hepburn announced today.

The province pays the entire cost of the free insulin supply. Last year the total cost reached more than $50,000. Early last year regulations were made more rigid in an effort to ensure only those unable to pay secured insulin free.

Details of the new arrangement have not yet been completed and it is not known what proportion of the cost the municipalities will bear.

SAMUEL INSULL IN COMB-BACK AT 70—Samuel Insull with open building in background—One-time monarch of utilities, billions, Samuel Insull, at 76 years of age, plans comeback—and time is the field of radio. Backed by friends, Insull reportedly has organized the Affiliated Broadcasting Co., a network to serve radio stations dotted in Wisconsin, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Minnesota and Iowa. The white-haired financier, who exiled himself to Greece only to be returned to the United States to be tried on charges that followed collapse of his financial pyramid, will use offices in the Chicago Opera building, shown in background above, which Insull built as a cost of $20,000,000.

Spinsters Shy from Leap Year Proposals

San Francisco, Jan. 3 (AP)—The Spinsters' Club gave Leap Year the raz raz today—not the glad hand.

"Let the men do the proposing. If any," was the consensus of the club, an informal social organization, limited to 100 members.

"I don't believe in Leap Year proposals," said one emphatic young woman. "And I don't demand the "advantage" of women's prerogative in 1936."

Only three members could not be reached at home by telephone, the usual reply being, "she is at the office, working."

They do today, however, despite any antipathy toward making the advances. Last season 33 new members were admitted to take the places of those who had married afterward. Very few of the girls who founded the club in 1929 remain members. They preferred to write "Mrs." in front of new names.

The club, of which Miss Evelyn Salisbury is president, doesn't attempt to get along without men.

It sponsors a couple of bachelors as escorts.

INDIA STOPS SILVER IMPORTS

First Step Taken to Return To Normal Conditions

London, Jan. 3—(AP)—The step taken by the Bombay bullion board in prohibiting members from importing silver from foreign countries was taken here to indicate a return to more normal conditions in the far east, and to be a definite step in re-establishment of forward exchange.

New York, Jan. 3—(AP)—Silver brokers in New York interpreted the Bombay prohibitory today on the importation of foreign silver as a means to preventing an increase in the position-over-lapping metal stocks and to stop arbitraging with London.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, Jan. 3—Toronto mining list had a few favorites in early trading today, particularly in the cheaper gold group while some of the base metals and golds that had been buoyant in the late part of December, were inclined to trade down. Lower London metal prices, except in the case of zinc which was higher, helped to discourage the bidding up of prices, for the copper issues. Some of the cheap stocks to forge ahead were Paymaster, up 5 cents, Cobalt, up 2 to 16, Ashley up 5 to 22 and Gunar up 3 to 82.

Ventures sold in quantity for a lot of about 7 cents and Sudbury Basin and Noranda rallied slightly lower.

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, Jan. 3—With the exception of scattered mining and aviation issues, stock market prices pushed ahead today, some to new tops for the year, in moderate dealings of fractions to 2 or more points predominated.

There was little apprehension apparent over the convening of Congress and President Roosevelt's annual message tonight was being awaited with interest.

Among the advancing equity favorites were Union Pacific, Santa Fe, American Smelting, Air Reduction, American Radiator, Case, International Harvester, Deere, Atlantic Refining, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Socony, General Motors, Chrysler, Radio, International Telephone, American Telephone and Telegraph, Westinghouse, Consolidated U.S. Smelting, Cerro de Pasco, Boeing, Curtiss-Wright "A" and Anaconda.

The late tone was firm. Transfers approximated 2,000,000 shares. The British and French general staff.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Jan. 3—Mildly stimulated by the firm to strong tone of the New York market, industrial list developed scattered strength in early trading today with gains talking chiefly in the oils, nickel, Ford A and Distillers Seagrams, which advanced fractions to a point but failed to hold and the liquor group suffering quite severe losses in the early afternoon.

British American A featured the oils, trading in heavy volume and holding at its Thursday closing price of 21. In the fifty issues price of 181¼ was boarded. Nickel held steady and other recent active issues including Massey Harris and Union Gas held their ground.

HORNER CHALLENGER SMITH

Montreal, Jan. 3 (CP)—Toronto and this city are to be represented tomorrow night when Montreal Maroons appear in the Queen City for a return engagement for a fistic battle with Toronto Hornets after the free-for-all last night, when Maroons won 5-2 from the Maple Leafs here.

Red Hunter challenged Hooley Smith to a fight before the game at Toronto and Smith accepted. It was this pair, that started the fireworks at the Forum and finished the game with their feud unsettled. The challenge was made and accepted as they sat on the penalty bench.

ARREST MAY SOLVE DEATH OF WOMAN

Police Say Man Will be Charged With Murder

Niagara Falls, N.Y., Jan. 3 (CP) — Chief of Detectives George M. Calkins said today the arrest of Rosario Gigliotti, 37, in Timmins, Ontario, solved a murder mystery and here eight years ago. He said the man would be tried on a first degree charge.

Gigliotti was indicted in 1928 for the slaying of Mrs. Carmella Cuti, all 35, shot to death in her home. Gigliotti had roomed at the Cuti home and had joined the woman and her husband in a property deal. A quarrel over this deal led to the killing, police said.

Gigliotti fled after the shooting and his trail was lost in Windsor, Ontario. Recently a "tip" as to his whereabouts was given local police in a letter.

By Anne Forester

Without warning, the car seemed suddenly engulfed in a veritable lake. It had plowed through a deep depression in the road. A sheet of water, lifted by front of the hood, flooded it, drenching the motor. The car slowed down and stopped.

X X X

Above the silver trees on the horizon the world seemed dark gray and red. The sunset showing crimson against the fading sky, the scarlet berries and clinging creeper, being set riotously flaming to the night of the dark trees . . . the glory that was the sunset by the roadside.

Jeffrey Therrold, spinning around nearly over the wet road, clapped on his brakes with a screaming jar and began to back slowly through the mud, the small figure of the helplessly above the radiator of the stalled flivver a few yards behind him. He cast away his cigarette and, without a word threw back the battered hood and looked inside. Then he straightened slowly up, replaced the tin cover on the flivver's motor and regarded Rose.

"Good evening," he said politely and added matter-of-factly: "Won't you let me give you a lift back to town? Your motor's out—for the present at least."

Stunned by his sudden presence, Rose was oddly conscious of the fact that she could not lower her eyes from that black gaze; could not draw him down. With an indistinct gesture, she clutched at the collar of her new sodden coat; then with a sudden jerk of her chin settled herself firmly on the running board. Then, quite unconsciously the road came the faint pellet of a motor-cycle and the bright gleam came into the girl's eyes; and at sight of it a small grim smile touched Jeffrey Therrold's mouth.

"It's reasonable to suppose," he said coolly and with a certain humour, "that you have a license to drive this—ah—this car?"

Rose, sitting stiffly on the dripping car step, stared up at him sullenly through the dusk. Beyond him—why—she simply had not thought of such a thing! Of course she should have had one . . . A glimpse flickered in her cheek at a sudden thought. Larry, she reflected would regard such a formality with magnificent unconcern!

"There happens to be a pretty strict enforcement campaign going on just now—very elective," the cool, decisive voice of Jeff Therrold went on. "Pleasure or Life Line Revill's dangerous back there on the road a bit. . . . Radn't you," his tone became meaningful, "better leave this car here and let me drive you home?" A faint frown touched his face.

Like Hewitt! Thought raced wildly through Rose's brain. Larry's car, being hailed before Larry's host! Herself being questioned. Oh, it was intolerable. It was to be avoided at all costs.... All her old instinctive distrust of people rose rushed over her in a wave.

Waveringly her gaze came up to meet the man's glance. Rain ran in small rivulets from the brim of his hat. Rain trickled clammily down her own back from the top of the flivver's ragged framework.

"Oh," she said subsequently, "you are giving wet!"

"It would not be such are," he said with patient grimness.

The muffled pleasant explosion of the motor-cycle seemed almost upon them. Impulsively, almost with a gesture of flight, Rose slipped to her feet—and silently followed Jeffrey Therrold in his car.

CHAPTER XI.

ROSE SEES A GHOST

For some fifteen minutes the man by her side had been talking in a casual voice on a variety of casual topics. For ten of those minutes Rose had sat tensely in her seat, whipping her whirling senses into line, striving to still the tumult within her. She grew rigid with the effort to appear natural; fighting an impulse she had not felt since her father self-conscious girlhood—a strange fluttering within her, a breathlessness which threatened to become noticeable.

"Idiot! stop it . . ." she admired herself fiercely. Why must this man always be the one who happens along when I'm most at a disadvantage?

The Sir Galland role, she told herself derisively, would be the one most adapted to Jeffery Therrold. Rescuer of the hapless and—Rose felt herself flushing hotly, ashamed, even as the thought took shape in her mind. After all, she ought to be glad that he had happened by. Not that she had any distinctions that it was for her sake he was taking the trouble. It was, without doubt, for the sake of the impeccable Therrold family. He had shown her that what her personal status was that other night.... Her face burned again at the memory of that scene on the porch a few weeks before. . . . Through her abstraction Rose became acutely conscious that he had asked her a question.

"I asked if you had any interest at all in the silk industry. I thought perhaps Harvey might have talked of it a little?"

His voice, mentioning Harvey, held such a note of longing that the girl glanced at him for the first time since entering the car.

His own eyes, meeting hers at the moment, hastened the rhythm of her pulse to a mad and leaping fashion. To cease it, she said hurriedly, with a bright, impersonal manner: "Oh, yes. . . . Harvy's started by some Chinese Empress who watched a silkworm again!"

Again that swift, probing glance from beside her, then the man's eyes again sought the road. But he had missed no detail of the figure by his side—the small, pert hat, ruinined, but still gallantly tilted. The upstanding collar of the belted coat. The small, strong hands which lay so passively now in her lap. She no longer wore that somewhat orange lipstick; the scornful banner she had hoisted on the day of her arrival. And the sullen line, he decided, had entirely disappeared from about her lovely mouth. . . .

"It's an interesting study," the voice of Jeffrey Therrold went calmly on. He was back again on the original topic. "The history of silk is short, as romantic as anything in the world today. It's the story of courts and kings and treachery and bloodshed. It moves down the ages in galleons and sailing-ships." He broke off, smiling ruefully. "I'm sorry—I sound like one of our advertising posters." He paused almost defiantly. "But this happens to be the one subject in which the world in which I am most interested—Hobbies can become rather a bore——"

"Oh, but it's not!" She spoke quickly, in a very small voice. "I'm interested, really—" And realized to her own surprise that it was so that she did not want him to stop.

Twilight came with a baby crescent moon coming up over the hill. The rain had stopped as abruptly as it had descended, lights springing up in the little houses along the road, dimly visible in the winter dusk. The powerful car, shut snugly against the cold air, ate up the miles noiselessly on its cushioned tires.

The man, talking on with a deliberate sort of lightness, seemed bent on relieving a situation which might easily have proved to be awkward to them both. It was still some distance into town; they could not, Rose thought, sit all there without speaking. And in spite of herself, she became aware of a tide of something tense and vital—something apart from her customary relationship with the personality of Jeffrey Therrold. She would always resent him, dislike him thoroughly, she told herself vindictively, firmly . . . for the past, for his highhanded, arrogant manner of his treatment of Harvey and herself.... But one could dislike someone, yet be interested in hearing that person talk.....

"I wonder—you won't mind if I drive you round to the Mill for a moment, will you? If you're not in a hurry.... I'd like to stop at the office for a bit. You see, there's a chap in from China tonight. One of our agents. I just want to see that he landed all right."

"Of course not—I've plenty of time——" Rose answered in a muted voice. Someone from China, her mind catalogued vaguely. Someone who had just crossed that ocean she had so lately crossed, left behind so recently that land of distressing, nightmare memories which even now left blurred smudges on the film of her mind. How long ago it seemed, that day she herself had arrived in Cathermood. How vague and disquieting the very sound of the word had become....

As though her thoughts evoked it, Jeffrey Therrold said with a more personal intonation than he had hitherto used—"I may go over to Shanghai myself next year. I spent two years there when I was a youngster. My father sent me on a trip 'round the world—" Carefully he guided the car over a hummock in the road. "I never," he finished thoughtfully, "got any farther than China."

"Yes, I know." Rose said in an absent voice. "Larry told me."

"Larry?"

His black brows drew swiftly together. "Oh—Morgan. Of course."

He had been so keenly aware of her listening presence beside him, of her vividness, of the surprising grey of the eyes which so steadfastly refused to meet his own, of the rain on the dusky nimbus of the hair which curled, about the brim of her small hat. He had been conscious of a mad impulse to put out his hand and brush back that elusive strand.....

Now the mention of that other man's name woke Rose, startled, to the present; to remembrance of his role of courteous aloofness. Exactly where, Jeffrey Therrold asked himself disgustedly, had he been heading? Charm touched his voice with more than ordinary superiority; with an uneasy sense that he was putting a curb on himself. When he spoke again he chose his words at random.

"It was my visit to China that was probably responsible for Harvey going to Shanghai when he left home," he commented—more from a desire to cover his own disturbance than from a choice of subject. "He was forever asking me questions about the place."

Had he been watching the girl, rather than the road ahead at the moment, he might have seen the instinctive stiffening in her attitude. For the first time Rose was regarding him openly, with hostile, surprised grey eyes. For no reason she could define herself, except that this man's neglectful dismissal of Larry's name had somehow struck the old antagonistic spark again within her. Rose felt a sudden furious desire to pierce through the complacent armor by her side. Old memories, old hurts and angry miseries surged up within her at Jeffrey Therrold's unfortunate reference to Harvey's sojourn in China. Honesty told the girl that he had meant no sting. But it came over her in that instant just; what the difference must have been between Jeffrey Therrold's China—and her own. Squalor and evil and back streets for Harvey. Pale pagodas and flowering bamboo and the gay panorama of well-to-do American touring the Orient for Harvey's brother!

TARZAN THE INVINCIBLE

(Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service)

Lifting the carcass of the antelope to his shoulder Ogil started back toward camp, exulting in the success that was returning with an ample quantity of strength-giving flesh. With plenty of food would, he was positive, give Zora and him renewed hope.

Two days' rest with plenty of food would, he was positive, give Zora

As he staggered at last to his goal, he looked up into the tree and called Zora by name. There was no reply. A sickening premonition of disaster crept over him. "Zora! Zora!" he cried; but only the silence of the jungle was his answer.

He found the pistol where the ape dropped it, and his worst fears were substantiated. She had been attacked by something and carried off. He examined the ground closely and discovered the imprints of a great man-like foot.

To-yat had also been attacked by something and carried off. He examined the ground closely and discovered the imprints of a great man-like foot.

A sudden madness seized Wayne Ogil: The cruelty of the jungle aroused within his breast a red rage. He wanted to kill the thing that had stolen Zora Drinov. He wanted to tear it with his hands and rend it with his teeth. He plunged headlong into the jungle.

Current Attractions at Local Theatres

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE CAPITOL

"Girl From Tenth Ave"

Bette Davis Has Second Hit, Well Supported by Ian Hunter and Alison Skipworth.

Bette Davis was the "Bordertown" girl who murdered her husband because she thought he had been unfaithful to her. Miss Davis was "Mildred" in "Of Human Bondage" and made the biggest hit of the former year in the role of the Cockney girl who did not hesitate to kill a soul.

Tonight she is "The Girl From Tenth Avenue", the First National picture which had its local premiere at the Capitol Theatre and will probably go down in screen history as one of the most peculiar stories ever to be filmed. Peculiar, perhaps, because of the amazing insight and power of characterization she brings to this picture is realized.

Bette has "no goody-goody" type in this picture. She is not the heartbroken victim of "Of Human Bondage", or the sensual female of "Bordertown." The Girl From 10th Avenue" she is a little shop girl of no particular morals who goes to a social party and hastily ties the chocolate scion of an aristocratic family. She has met him at the party, grows and sticks to her husband, and despite the fact that he has said his love for a married goldigger who had lifted him, she makes a mess of him.

The picture, while unlike either "Of Human Bondage" or "Bordertown," gives Miss Davis an opportunity for one of the dramatic portrayals for which she has become noted. It is the first film in which she stars alone and she makes the most of it.

Ian Hunter, who was brought from England to play a part in "A Midsummer Night's Dream", has the part of the husband, and plays it remarkably well. Colin Clive is the elderly husband of the goldigger, a role portrayed with real skill by Katherine Alexander. Both Hunter and Clive are finished actors and should be the kind of work the public expects from them.

Alison Skipworth, long a stage star, scores in a comedy role as a dowager ex-actress who teaches Bette Davis the tricks of the trade.

Alfred E. Green, one of First National's ace directors, has caught the spirit of the story which was taken from a famous and sensational stage production written by Hubert Henry Davies. Charles Kenyon wrote the screen adaptation.

Also on the same program—Gene Autry "The Singing Cowboy" in "The Gamblers' Choice," a musical western with comedy, mirth, and mystery.

SPECIAL MATINEE SATURDAY MORNING! Mothers! Let the efficient staff of the Capitol Theatre take care of your children. At our Saturday matinee, Special Added Attraction Shirley Temple, in "Pardon My Pups".

AT THE BELLE

"Bride Comes Home"

Also With Smart Comedy, Chaplin Cabaret—Mandolinary Classic

Claudette Colbert and Fred MacMurray, each happily cast for the first time in "The Gilded Lily" return to the Belle Tomorrow and Monday in another of Paramount's sprightly comedy screen romances, "The Bride Comes Home".

It is a crisp, invigorating picture of two young people here ordained in battle one another at the slightest provocation. Small attention is paid to elaborate settings, for the producers had a story to work with—a story that is full of entertainment from the first shot to the fade-out.

Miss Colbert is cast as the daughter of William Collier, Sr., a former man of wealth who has fallen on evil days. The two of them are down to a diet of beans as the story opens, and Miss Colbert decides it is time she went to work.

Home Millionaire

Her childhood sweetheart, Robert Young, has just inherited three million dollars and for a long time has been asking her to marry him. He is accustomed to the bottle, however, and his proclivity for getting into fights makes it necessary for the accompanying bim in his rambles. The bodyguard, a former prizefighter named Fred MacMurray, whose fight fist solves many an unpleasant problem for his youthful employer.

The young millionaire establishes a magazine and makes Miss Colbert its editor. Then Miss Colbert shows up, seeking a job. Young appoints her assistant to MacMurray and the two have no more than met before they are in a fight.

MacMurray professes to despise his luxurious assistant until Miss Colbert shows she's really working because she needs the money. Then they fall in love. They decide to get married. They scream epithets at each other by the hour and the simple wedding they had planned is passed up in favor of a beautiful clash of temperament.

Waste in Flight

Miss Colbert, after breaking off with MacMurray, finally consents to marry Young and they start for Crown Point, the "Gretna Green" outside Chicago. The high-spirited Miss Colbert tries valiantly to pick a fight with Young, but he is too easy going and won't even argue with her. She wants to fight.

Considerable, well, exciting things are yet to happen. The marrying squire played by Edgar Kennedy, who himself is endowed with a remarkable capacity for fighting, remarkable capacity for fighting, provides Miss Colbert with an opponent almost worthy of her pugnacious talents.

The combination of Miss Colbert, Fred MacMurray and Robert Young is a happy one and especially in 11th story. The entire cast, in fact, deserves credit for one of the sprightliest, most amusing screen romances in some time.

Theme Told, Fairy Kelly

Thelma Todd and Patsy Kelly are appearing in their latest bomb shell of joy "Twin Triplets" your old friend Popeye in his new laugh jamboree, and the Belle Lalgat News Pictures will precede the comedies. Special Added Attraction on Saturday matinee the further adventures of "The Mystery Detector" will be exhibited.

Children's Stage Hour

A new and entertaining stage diversion is promised to patrons attending the Belle Saturday afternoon, when "The Children's Stage Hour", will be presented. It is the aim of Manager Forham to advance juvenile talent in Belleville. All children within the parishes of the city are eligible to enter this contest, may still leave their entry at the Belle Theatre ticket office, or telephone 300.

"Collegiate" Pleasing

"Collegiate" is crammed with melody, fun, and a garden of delectable girlhood. "Bon-Bon Parade" the gold-plated Kenyon in beautiful Technicolor, "Ladies Love Hats" an uproarious comedy and a practical talk conclude the program to be presented at the Belle tonight for the last times.

Stirling and District

Stirling—The last meeting of the River Valley study group for the year 1929 took place at the home of the President Mrs. Walter Lindenfield, who opened the meeting with the singing of a Christmas hymn which was followed by prayer. The roll call was answered with a Christmas verse. Great interest was shown in the open discussion period dealing with the topic "The Spirit of Christmas". The Secretary-Treasurer, Miss Christena Langford, read the year's activity of the organization. At this point in the meeting the newly appointed officers for the year 1930 were installed in the following manner:

Honorary President—Mrs. E. W. Rowland.

President—Mrs. Walter Lindenfield.

1st Vice President— Mrs. John Sager.

2nd Vice President — Mrs. Roy Bush.

Secretary-Treasurer—Miss Gladys Rosebush.

Literature-Secretary—Mrs. Alex. Bush.

Strangers' Secretary—Mrs. Percy Usman.

Missionary Monthly Secretary — Mrs. Robert Bush.

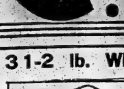
Temperance Secretary—Mrs. Roy Irvin.

Peace Secretary—Mrs. W. H. Hanna.

Pianist—Mrs. Norman Rosebush.

Auditor—Mrs. Usman.

With the close of the business part of the meeting the remaining portion of the program was directed by Mrs. Vandervoort, convener.



The Scripture lesson taken from the 1st chapter James was read by Miss Elsie Hanna. After the singing of another hymn Mrs. A. Bush gave a Christmas reading. Mrs. Vandervoort gave a fine address on the thought found in the first chapter of the study book "Women That Ministered". A duet by Misses Carol offered by a fine quartette was very much enjoyed. Mrs. Hanna then offered a very clever reading "The Legion of the Black Madonna". After the singing of the closing hymn, Mr. Roy Bush led in prayer.

The hostess served a dainty luncheon and a social period was enjoyed by all. The next meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. Norman Rosebush.

With the start of the second month in the Stirling Goodwill Campaign the young ladies seeking honors or special prizes, to be given to those possessing the largest number of votes, are out bright and early each morning and after every available vote. The prizes being offered are surely worth the effort for those who will finish in the money. Some of the local business men state that the idea is increasing sales for the month or was in the Christmas rush? The young ladies entered in the contest are greatly interested in any event. The Campaign Headquarters located their latest bulletin on the standing of the various contestants on the evening of Jan. 2nd with the following results— Miss Mae Johnston, Mrs. Pauline McCrory, Miss Olive Stewart, Mrs. Nathan Wann, maker, Miss Marion Tucker, Miss Phyllis Mitchell, Mrs. Kenneth Holmes, Miss Marion McGee, Miss Gladys Rosebush, Miss Gladys Cooke, Miss Leatha Hoover, Miss Edna McMaster, Miss Dorothy Usman, Miss H. Matheson. Mrs. Eileen McMullen.

WILD PARTY IS HELD IN CHURCH

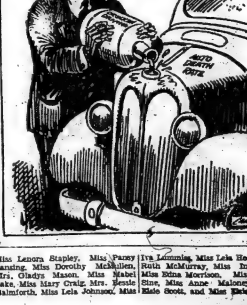
Pulpit, Bible and Collection Plates Smashed During Spree

Fairview, Ont., Jan. 3—(CP)—With a pulpit, bible and collection plates borrowed from the Baptist Church of this village about 30 miles southeast of Chatham, services will be held in the United Church on Sunday, when prayers may be said for the persons, who desecrated the church building with a wild New Year's Eve drinking party in it.

As scandalized villagers swelled the result of a Provincial Police investigation into the wild party, the United Church Board arranged to have the damage repaired.

W. G. Sirrel, chairman of the Board, entered the church yesterday to be greeted by a strong odor of stale beer. He looked about and saw the pulpit had been smashed, the collection plates broken and the bible torn to shreds. Beer evidently had been splashed all over the pews, carpets and walls. Police were notified and have started on the trail of the culprits.

SUICIDE'S NOTE CRIME SOLUTION



Murder of Gunsmith Believed Solved by Montreal Police

Montreal, Jan. 3.— (CP)— Frank Schafer, 17, who police claim confessed participation in the torture and murder of William O. Haynes Thursday, died in the hospital last night from two bullet wounds said to have been self-inflicted with revolvers stolen from Haynes' gunsmith shop.

With the death of Schafer and detention of Joseph Abramowitch, another 17-year-old youth, police said their case was completed. Abramowitch was arrested after a chase from the Haynes' gunsmith shop to a restaurant some blocks away.

While combing the city for the second suspect, detectives received a call from a northend gasoline station a youth had shot himself. The operatives found Schafer slumped on the floor, two revolvers and a note beside him. One bullet had been fired from each gun. Contents of the note were not revealed but police claimed "it leaves no loose ends to the murder".

Haynes, widely-known ballistic expert, died of two bullet wounds fired from two different guns. Witnesses said the shooting followed an argument over the price of cleaning a gun two youths handed Haynes over the counter of his City Hall Avenue shop.

Miss Lenora Stapley, Miss Fanny Lemming, Miss Lois Heath, Miss Ruth McMurray, Miss Inez Sigle, Miss Edna Morrison, Miss Betty Lanning, Miss Dorothy McMullen, Miss Gladys Mason, Miss Mabel Lake, Miss Mary Craig, Mrs. Basil Dalmforth, Miss Lela Johnson, Miss Elsie Scott, and Miss Elsie Hanna.

Police learned both men had other guns than the one they showed Haynes, and believed they had gone to hold Haynes up and rob his safe of cash register.

While the police were over the cost of having the gun cleaned, one of the youths whipped a revolver from his pocket and shot Haynes in the rear of his shop. "There they found Haynes' assistant, Rene Descomais, and Philippe Demeule, a customer. The gunmen trussed and gagged both men.

The bandits then gave some order to Haynes which was apparently refused for Demeule and Descomais heard one of them (red). "Okay then, let him have it." Two shots rang out. The bullets came from two revolvers it was learned later.

Police Constable Cardinal rushed to the shop on hearing the firing. He unbound Descomais and Demeule and with the latter chased the youth they caught a few blocks away and who gave the names of Abramowitch, the other gunman fled in the opposite direction and was still being sought when the call from the gasoline station came through.

Descomais said all that was known from the shop was two revolvers. Police said the bullets which killed Schafer were fired from the stolen guns.

New York, Jan. 3 (AP)— The executive story that appears most of the Roosevelt family is motivated somewhere considered today as learning the President will wear formal day attire while addressing a night session of Congress.

"It is the protocol we understand," said a close friend of Don.

ROOSEVELT ATTACK ON DICTATORS STIRS EUROPE

Roosevelt Castigates War Makers But Praises Friendship of Dominion

Says Some Nations Prefer Counsel of War to Peace and Good Will

ADVISES NEUTRALITY

Warns Those Who Spread Fear And Discord Among U. S. People

Washington, January 4 (CP)—President Roosevelt, in a message to congress of modern times, has "impatiently reverted to the old belief in the law of the jungle" before the end of 1935, British Guiana" was included in the group.

In a speech at Buenos Aires the president declared that "some nations have forgotten the ways of peace and good will."

He assured his hearers in declaring these nations have created a situation containing the elements of fear and lead to the necessity of general war. He said merely he recognized "those words which have been spoken in deliberation will not prove popular in any nation, but chooses to fit this show to the truth."

American Continents at Peace

Fear and discord among the people, he said, are the weapons of modern warfare. He warmly lauded "the spirit of neighborliness that exists today in the 21 American republics" and declared "the continents of America are at peace." If the world was forced to the ways of war, he said, of aggression, his advice to them was:

"Then the United States and the rest of the American continent will say with one voice: 'We shall not be assailed in order to engage the conduct, through bombing from the air, of your internal affairs and your internal life.'"

Mr. Roosevelt declared the nations of the latter part of his message in discussion of world affairs, he found to be "those which have in the past contributed greatly" compared "to vast proportions to peace and to the happiness and to the progress of the people of the United States."

The joint gathering of the Senate and House of Representatives, a majority of the members of every branch of the government, Canada and Europe via the air waves, heard him defend the Good Neighbor policy in Western Hemisphere affairs.

Business Prospects Good

Business prospects, he suggested, were good; that the country was approaching "a period of normal progress" with the prospect of reducing appropriations for relief; that on the whole there was no reason why taxes were advisable or necessary.

Mr. Roosevelt urged stinging sarcasm to denounce his economic enemies as "political tipsters" and "stock market tricksters for the liberties of the people," but that part of his address, including "unbalanced budget" as significance by the criticism of authoritative economic experts. This criticism prefaced his outline of a neutrality policy. Privately, however, he encourages the prosecution of "war" by permitting belligerents to obtain certain supplements from the United States.

He urged "adequate development of other essential war materials except normal exports to them, for use of peace."

"Adequate defense" and "peace"

BEATS PATROLLED BY PROXY, CLAIM

Ex-Constable Says Patrol Sergeant Often in Station House

Toronto, Jan. 4 (CP)—Examination of the testimony of former Constable William Watt that 18 policemen attached to Court Street station in 1932 formed a gang of strong-arm who for 10 years previously had looted downtown shops and warehouses with the connivance of before the Royal Commission sitting here. There will be no afternoon sitting.

Yesterday Watt added to his previous charges that former patrol sergeants of Court Street station duped 2 other senior officers by ordering constables to pull phone boxes from them and also that false entries were made in police record books.

The phone boxes were pulled by proxy, he said, while the patrol sergeant either was in the station or someplace not on his beat. In at least one case the officer supposed to be on the beat had just answered on the station phone, when Watt called in for him.

U.S. Coins are Not Legal Tender

Port of Spain, Trinidad, Jan. 4 (CP)—Gold and silver coins of the United States are not legal tender in the British West Indies, a proclamation of King George, dated Nov. 8, has been published in the Island Royal Gazette. Only certain American coins will cease to be legal tender after the end of 1936. British Guiana" was included in the group.

FISH CULTURE BOARD IS NAMED

Co-ordinated Effort to Expand Fresh Water Fisheries

Ottawa, Jan. 4—(CP)—Canada today stands embarked upon a co-ordinated effort to develop and expand her freshwater sport and commercial fish supplies. Primarily, the development of game fishing, worth millions of dollars to the Dominion's tourist trade, is the objective. But commercial fishing activities will keep step in the growth.

This co-ordinated effort is known as "The National Committee on Fish Culture." It will be set up: Representatives of all interests throughout the country concerned with fish culture, the body will have a personnel of 16.

The decision to establish a "national committee" was made last night at the national conference called by Hon. Ernest Lapointe, minister of fisheries and marine.

Mr. Lapointe, who outlined the matter part of his message in discussion of world affairs, he found to be "those which have in the past contributed greatly" compared "to vast proportions to peace and to the happiness and to the progress of the people of the United States."

Purpose of the committee will be John Dahl: (1) to act as a clearing house for information and suggestions between the various branches of fish culture; (2) to promote the co-ordination of the development of game fish and fish culture technique; (3) to make recommendations as to the conservation of fish in streams advisable to undertake; and (4) to make recommendations as to the need to science and technology of fish culture as may be deemed desirable.

Anglo-Saxon Solidarity Regarded as Warning to Germany

By GEORGE HAMBLETON

Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Jan. 4—(CP Cable)—"Roosevelt's plain talk to the dictators"—Such is the keynote of the scathing headlines the London press today features President Roosevelt's message to Congress.

Pessimistic appraisals of the League allies while differing in their interpretation agree its consequences will be far-reaching. Most pronounced is the bearing on the question of oil sanctions is particularly noted.

The Daily Herald, a pro-League advocate, heads its report of the speech with the "Roosevelt Warning." "Roosevelt will impose oil embargo."

Embargo as War End

"Once the United States decides upon action," declares the Herald in an editorial, "oil ceases to become a swift and certain means of stopping warlike activities. But commercial fishing activities will keep step in the growth.

Mr. Lapointe pointed out, known as "The National Committee on Fisheries" will be set up: Representatives of all interests throughout the country concerned with fish culture, the body will have a personnel of 16.

Flyer Climbs Four Miles to See Sun Rise Over Atlantic Ocean

Roosevelt Field, L. I., Jan. 4 — (the cloud mass was white but the Inland J. Wiseman, aviator, was probably the first person to see the sun rising over United States on the New Year's Day. To attain that distinction he went up above 12,000 feet in his plane to behold the golden orb rise from the ocean south of Long Island.

He took off from here about 6.30 a.m., an hour before sunrise and set a straight course for Florida and southward, climbing as a steep angle. He passed high over Fire Island and kept going for 4 hours.

"It was overcast and perfectly dark when I took off from here," he said. "The air got colder as we went up. We were into the bottom of the cloud-mass at 4,000 feet and it was black. The temperature was 10 degrees below zero. I was getting the temperature went below zero. My hands got numb, flying ahead and the leading edge of the wing.

"When we got above 13,000 feet the light began to show faintly in the murky mist and at 15,000 feet we suddenly broke through the top of the cloud-mass into sunlight.

"The sun was shining through towering pinnacles of cloud that extended upward above the mass. I wish I could give you a real idea of the beauty of the scene. Some of the top of mass was white but the bottom was very dark. The peaks of clouds all around were various shades of gray. Some of the clouds passed between me and the sun were brilliant and were outlined by the various auras of gold. Long torn ends of clouds were all around the sun. It was very beautiful.

"I held to a straight course out to sea and kept going. When we got above all the cloud peaks, the altimeter showed 22,000 feet above the ocean and the temperature was 17 degrees below zero. There were rosy clouds all around below us and the sun was already hurt.

"Then I turned and perfectly blue sky was above me and I could see all around below me. Some of them with golden edges, but I did not see any purple or green, or any of the colors I think. You see those at sunset but not at sunrise.

"Away off to the eastward I saw the sun's rays in sunlight on the ocean. At that height you have visibility of eighty or ninety miles on the ocean. I was in sunlight for ten or twenty miles out to sea. It is only taken about fifteen minutes to get up to that height, and I thought then I'd down on the ground it was still pretty dark and most people were asleep."

Williams said that he flew thirty or forty minutes beyond the 19,000 feet level, turned back toward Long Island, and landed at Roosevelt Field about an hour and a half after his take-off.

Ten Named in Primaries For Chamber Directorate

The annual Primary Election for Directors of the Chamber of Commerce came to a close at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. This is in reality a nominating election and, among the 25 candidates for next year's nominations, the following ten stood highest in the final count. The names are in alphabetical order:

H. W. Ackerman.
E. F. Bernstein.
Jamieson Bone.
J. B. Boyce.
F. S. Deacon.
C. T. Doke.
R. J. E. Graham.
R. V. Harris.
J. A. McIntosh.
M. Robertson.

There ten names will go out for balloting in a final election which will be completed on the afternoon of Friday, January 10. The five who stand highest in the final list will be declared elected as directors for a two-year term.

Messrs. W. G. Springer, W. H. Morton, Leo B. Riggs and H. E. Fairfield were elected directors a year ago and still have a year of their unexpired term to serve.

The Election Committee whose duty it was to count the ballots and summarize results in yesterday's election consisted of Messrs. Fred Smythe, Jamieson Bone and R. N. Martin.

Ambulance Machine-Gunned Days Before Actual Bombing Chief of Red Cross Asserts

TERRIBLE CARNAGE

Scores of Dead And Dying Lying About After The Raid

Addis Ababa, Jan. 4 (AP)—One of the Swedish Red Cross workers wounded during an Italian raid last week on the northern front has died, it was announced today.

The Swedish Red Cross representative, Dr. Hjerdin, flew to the front yesterday to investigate the incident, returned today and announced Lundquist's death. Two male nurses whose leg was torn away by a bomb, died in the hospital soon after the bombing.

Dr. Prince Sylvester, chief of the Swedish Red Cross unit in Ogaden province, was brought to Addis Ababa by plane.

Dr. Eric Smith, another of the wounded, also was taken to the hospital.

Dr. Sylander described the Fascist air raid as an "utterly deliberate act."

Machine-Gunned for Days

"For several days before the bombing Italian planes had machine-gunned all around the ambulance," he asserted.

"The morning of the bombing I was in the operating theatre when I noticed terrific concentration of machine gun bullets suddenly raining down on us.

"I had just time to see two lines of three planes each emptying the contents of their guns. Several previous statements to Crown Attorney H. D. Smith, K.C., and also the two present Christmas Eve when James Whitesell struck Mrs. Bowell, attacked as his home.

Called as a Crown witness at the trial of Mrs. Bowell on a charge of assaulting Whitesell, Miss Phena Smith, 14, testified that she had alleged assault drew from Mr. Bowell the words: "She certainly is loyal to her man."

It also was indicated Miss Phena Smith had said her father had fallen downstairs after Bowell allegedly struck him and broken her arm. The crown directed police to investigate the case and lay a charge against Bowell.

PRISON REVOLT AT VILLE MARIE SUBSIDES TODAY

Convicts Cease Disturbances After Arrival of Provincial Police

OFFER NO RESISTANCE

Ville Marie, Que., Jan. 4 (CP)—Revolt of the 12-male prisoners in Ville Marie's Temiscamingue District Jail was at an end today.

After two hours of intermittent shots and shouting persist among the prison food and a refusal to obey jail regulations, the unruly convicts capitulated last night after arrival of Provincial Police officers by airplane from Noranda, 60 miles away.

Word came from Quebec, the provincial capital, a few of the ringleaders may be transferred to another jail, probably at Bordeaux, Montreal. Ville Marie authorities were without official notice. They said no transfers had been inflicted on the prisoners.

ITALY WILL FIGHT FOES OF FASCISM

Warns International Enemies Her Plan to Make World Safe For Fascism

Rome, Jan. 4 (CP-Havas)—Italian Fascism will fight international foes of Fascism with the same vigor it once fought its enemies at home.

Blackshirt orators declared last night at the inauguration of a nation-wide campaign to "make the world safe for Italy" that the party will again fight as a revolutionary movement but this time against the "anti-Fascist international."

The occasion was the 10th anniversary of the Fascist Corporative proclamation in Rome Jan. 3, 1926, a decision made to deal with all questions of a revolutionary movement.

The principal orators proclaimed collaboration with the Fascist regime to surmount every obstacle opposed by "international Reds" to the Italian aspirations and the accomplishment of its "civilizing mission."

Suicide View Gains Ground in Todd Death

Los Angeles, Jan. 4 (AP)—Investigation of the death of Thelma Todd swung sharply to a theory of suicide today. District Attorney's deputies said information furnished by a central figure in the Coroner's Jury inquiry into the actress' carbon monoxide poisoning indicated efforts had been exerted to make the death appear accidental.

They declined to name the person, they said, to explain reasons the eccentric actress may have had for taking her own life.

Fortune Found in Home Where Aged Couple Starved

$30,000 in Bank Deposits But Woman Dies of Starvation, Man Near Death

LIVED IN SHACK

Police Find Sufficient Food But Couple Unable to Feed Themselves

New York, Jan. 4 (CP)— An aged recluse, trembling with palsy, lay near death today, too weak to summon help from a next-door shack of starvation in their barren, hilly farm country, while in a forgotten and plentiful food available.

The body of Mrs. Anna Cloutier, 70, found in a cold, dark room in an unheated room. A physician said death had occurred at least three days before.

Two persons, Mrs. Jay, 34, an adjoining room comatose from cold and hunger. He was taken to a hospital where physicians said he was doubtful he would live.

In kitchen cupboards was sufficient food, they said, to have fed them for several days. Beside a kitchen stove was ample fuel.

Police believed the pair had become so feeble they were unable to prepare the food for their themselves.

The shabby, three-storey house evidently had been unheated all winter and the rooms contained concealed unusual wealth for the modest neighborhood.

Behind three fourteen bankbooks, issued by New York and Canadian banks, were deposits totalling more than $30,000 and no withdrawals. Also were found bonds. Relatives were in his sister-in-law's name.

With them were about 50 pieces of jewelry, all old, and including pins, bracelets, gem-studded rings. Some were valued by heavy gold cases.

CHARLES GIBSON ALLEGED ASSAULT HEARING OPENED

Doctors Describe Nature of Injuries Suffered by Frances Wager

LONG IN HOSPITAL

Miss Wager Tells of Incidents in Apartment

Charles Gibson, 37, married and machinist, appeared before Magistrate H. J. Butler, K.C., in police court today for preliminary hearing on a charge "that he did on Aug. 31, 1935, unlawfully assault Frances Wager, with an attempt to have carnal knowledge". R. O. Armstrong, K.C., appears for Crown and Charles A. Payne, K.C., acted for the accused.

Dr. Douglas Leavens of Picton, stated he knew Miss Frances Wager, 19 years, and that he saw Miss Wager about 11.15 p.m. on the night in question at her home at 186 Victoria Avenue and that she was complaining of pain in the abdomen. She was bruised and scratched and her leg was sore—"I gave her a hypodermic and took her to the hospital." He stated it was "just tender". The extent of the bruises were minor.

Dr. Leavens, in reply to Mr. Payne, stated that he made her comfortable and placed the ankle in her but did not reduce fracture".

Dr. Leavens, in conclusion of his evidence:

"Hysteria, and bloodshed".

"What was her condition next morning?"

"She was still nervous and hysterical. She had a bad time. Her ankle was broken. The fracture was reduced by Dr. G. H. Stobie but it was necessary to split the cast and apply a new one. She was sick to her stomach which I believe was due to the shock."

"What was the condition of her throat?"

"Bruises on both sides".

"How long was Miss Wager in the hospital?"

"I could not say. I have not seen her since her discharge."

Under cross-examination by Mr. Payne, Dr. Leavens said "the bruis-

Optimism High That Ellsworth and Canadian Pilot Will be Found

BY SAM ROBERTSON

Canadian Press Staff Writer

New York, Jan. 4 (C.P.) — Forty-one days of silence have passed since the daring flight of Lincoln Ellsworth and Herbert Hollick-Kenyon sputtered and died as they flew over Antarctica's frozen wastes.

Yet optimism rides high today that the intrepid explorer and his Canadian pilot soon will be picked up by the search planes combing the frozen continent in their anxious failure. Search flights are about to be launched from opposite coasts if. Indeed, they are not already under way on one front.

The Wyatt Earp, Ellsworth's base ship, was known to have reached Charcot Island on the American side of the Ice-field early this week. Meantime the Discovery II, manned by the British and Australian government, was believed nearing the Ross Sea on the opposite side of the continent.

A Norwegian whaler, the H. J. Bull, is believed to be already edging her resolute nose through the ice of the Ross Sea, trying to reach Little America. That former base of Rear-Admiral Richard Byrd was the objective of Ellsworth and his Winnipeg aviator when they soared from Dundee Island November 23 in an attempt to make a scientifically uncharted breadth and determine if Graham Land was a peninsula.

They had provisions for five or eight weeks.

Picton and District

Picton—The last monthly meeting of the Home Economics Social Club for this year was held in the Legion Club Rooms, was most interesting, with Miss Ruth Jones and Mr. P. Mandeville in charge. The first meeting opened with the singing of two songs, from the song sheet, followed by "O Canada," and the Lord's Prayer in unison. After the reading of the minutes, and the report of the Treasurer, a letter was read from Mrs. Wynn Jones, thanking the Club for flowers sent during her illness. Mrs. Gordon Walmsley then moved a vote of thanks to Mr. and Mr. Geo. Cook for their generosity in allowing the club to occupy the pleasant quarters from which such a splendid sum was realized. Mrs. Lloyd Hicks seconded this motion and the corresponding secretary was instructed to convey the appreciation of the club in a note to Mr. and Mrs. Cook. Miss Mary Spencer then gave a much enjoyed piano solo.

The President Mrs. Ward, announced that the scientific of the club had met with the teachers on the previous Sunday, and that milk would be served to the children during the each morning in the public schools, beginning on January 13th in charge of Miss Hall. It was decided to hold the January meeting in the evening, the guest of honor and speaker and a social half hour.

Miss Vance gave a very witty and interesting description of her trip from Edmonton to Vancouver B. C. where she attended a Summer School, taking art and pottery work. The trip up the lakes from Sarnia to Port Arthur a short time in Regina, with the "Strikers" and many mounted police in the West, Banff and the Rockies were vividly sketched by the speaker. The work of the class in Vancouver, interesting excursions to see great ocean ships dock at the Port of Vancouver, the Chinese section of the city and to see the Arizona scene of Honeymoon Vancouver Island, were well described. A visit to a salmon cannery, and to a pulp section, on the way back to Seattle and Portland also proved interesting. Miss Vance's talk was more than her hearers appreciate a great deal of the information and many laughs.

Master Freddie Walden gave a vocal solo, accompanied by Mr. P. Walden, which was well received. Mr. VanOst spoke interestingly on the importance of regularity and punctuality in school attendance. Games are implicated in modelling children's lives, said the speaker, and are liable which will last a lifetime, leading a child to a systematic and better life. Weather temperatures, the attitude of parents, the environment of the home, and traditions influence attendance. Parents must act as counsellors, praising and showing the child, and creating an impulse that will bring spontaneous effort on the part of the child to attend school regularly and punctually.

Mrs. Burrd moved a vote of thanks to the speakers, which was seconded by Mrs. Knapman. The shield for attendance of mothers at the meetings went to Miss Alpha's room and the potted plant to Mrs. Yarwood's room. The National anthem brought the meeting to a close.

Mrs. Edith Heffernan, who has been so seriously ill, is slightly improved.

Mrs. Robert Jones is ill at the home of her sister-in-law Mrs. Geo. Cook.

Ontario Business College Notes

Recent arrivals at the O.B.C. include the following from distant points:—George Robinson, Ayer's Cliff, Que.; Richard Ayers, Leaside Mills, Que.; Mary Wallbridge, Armstrong, British Columbia; Gerard Landry, Natashquan, Que.; Murray Lennard, Charlottetown, P.E.I.; Cecil and Claude Cureton, St. Frederic, Que.

During the year 1935 students came to O.B.C. from British Columbia, Manitoba, Quebec, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Newfoundland, the United States and Bermuda, as well as from many places in Ontario.

No other business college in Canada draws students from so many distant places as this institution does.

Included in the 1935 attendance were forty-eight sons and daughters, brothers or sisters of O.B.C. graduates. This is a striking testimony to the high quality of the O.B.C. courses.

Business conditions improved in 1935 and a greater number went from the College to positions than in 1934.

Each year there is an increase in the percentage of university graduating teachers and holders of degrees from matriculation attending O.B.C.

The winter term started Thursday, Jan. 2nd, but students may enrol at any time.

LITTLE FOWL ON SATUR. MARKET

With offerings almost entirely confined to fowls and vegetables, the local market today saw a decided scarcity of fowl, with correspondingly higher prices being asked. Colorful in the abundant offerings, the outside market featured apples, potatoes and other late fall products, tables which cold weather of the preceding weeks prohibited offering.

Potatoes were chiefly in evidence selling at from $1.25 to $1.35 for the 75-pound bag. Apples were plentiful with prices of from $1.25 to $1.50 the bushel according to variety and quality. In the vegetable line prices were a little cheaper in most instances, with turnips, beets, carrots and the earner variety selling at five cents the peck. Onions and less hardy vegetables were held at from 15 to 60 cents the peck.

Cabbages this year are comparatively scarce, it was reported by one vendor and generally are dry and inclined to the hollowness owing to the dry weather of the fall and the growing season. Today this vegetable was being sold at five cents to 15 cents the head.

Butter was firmer today act offered in less quantity at 36 cents the pound. In a few cases reckless customers were paying from 55 cents for the two pound roll. Despite the warmer weather hens are not laying as well as expected, according to dealers. A pole of hens for pot-pies and the like is 'n was being asked. Chickens and ducks were offered in limited quantities at an average price of 25 cents per pound for the former at 27 cents being held at a price of from $2.25 to $3.

On the fish stalls a few trouts were offered, but in very limited quantities, at 15 cents the pound. So far this year there have been scarce for no explained reason, according to dealers, the catch not been enough to lay fishermen for their labor.

Dolls of All Ages Crowd Shov From Victorian to Rag One

"Sunshine Girls" of Tabernacle C. G. I. T. Hold Exhibition

DOLL'S HOUSE

Treasure dear to the small girl's heart were brought to Tabernacle United Church Sunday School rooms yesterday afternoon for the first Doll Show sponsored by the "Sunshine Girls's" Group of Tabernacle C.G.I.T. of which Miss Marjorie Taylor is leader. Over fifty dolls were placed upon exhibition with tender care by their proud owners. Every imaginable kind of doll was represented from the Victorian beauty one hundred years old, who reigned in solitary splendor in a special cabinet of her own, to the very humblest rag dolly.

Sailor dolls and a doll from Japan with gorgeous robes, Hawaiian visitors resplendent with the lovely baby dolls that any little girl would cherish. Prizes were given for different classes" of dolls, which Mrs. Leggot and Miss J. Tickell acting as judges. The prize winners were—Best dressed doll (clothes to be made by girl owner)—Mandy Parks, Alice Chaplin; Best dressed baby doll (clothes to be made by girl owner) Gertrude Parks; Best character doll, fancy dress—Marie Embury's Shirley Temple doll and Phyllis Barlow's Topsy; best boy doll, Irene Michaud; Gloria Norris; best doll in knitted outfit—Hazel Denike, Phyllis Barlow; Best and neatest collection of paper dolls—Jean Pratt, Gertrude Pratt; Best bedding in doll bed—Helen Weddern; Best doll's wardrobe (different outfits), Shirley Mott; Best home made doll,—Marion James, Shirley Mott; Specials—Maxine Parks; Most dolls made by girl—Marie James, Wilma Clarke; Best baby of all—Gertrude Ruby Pratt.

A doll hospital in charge of Helen Weddon in a nurse's uniform and a hundred patient doll Betsy Ret fern attracted much interest. In the neat, fascinating display of dolls was the collection of furnishings for a doll's house. Complete to the minute detail, this tiny furniture in the scale of an inch to a foot will grace a doll house to be furnished by Miss Naylor who has been collecting articles for this purpose since she was five years old. A beautifully hand carved furniture fashioned by her grandfather Mr. T. R. Richardson of Winnipeg, is included in the furnishings.

Occupying a special section of the display was a doll village in themen's Missionary Society. The W. C. centre of which is an exact reproduction of Buckingham Palace which has been sent all the way from England for the display.

During the afternoon and evening the members of the C.G.I.T. group gave an amusing little sketch entertainers including such familiar "The Toy Shop Comes to Life"; The Doll, Roly-Poly, Toy Soldier, Jack-in-the-Box, Dancing Doll, Celebrated Man, Baby Doll in A Christmas Stocking, Raggedy Ann, Mickey and Minnie Mouse, all introduced by Santa's secretary, The play was written and directed by Miss Naylor and brought to a close a very original entertainment.

SUPERINTENDENT FOR PAST DECADE RESIGNS OFFICE

James N. Hudgins... Honored by Holloway Street Sunday School

Retiring after ten years as superintendent of Holloway Street United Church Sunday School, Mr. James N. Hudgins, was honored by the Sunday School with address of regret and appreciation, signed by the various departments of the school and a token presented to the retiring officer. Rev. T. J. D. F. Knox read the address. The presentation was made by Mr. Elton McMurray. The address follows:—

Mr. James N. Hudgins:—

We your fellow-workers in the Sunday School of Holloway Street United Church, have decided this afternoon to raise the reins of control and call upon our chief executive to assist.

We regret, however, that you be quiet in your mind as no harm has been planned or intended.

When one is called or appointed to such a sphere where courage, self sacrifice and loyal devotion to duty are essentials to success, and the blessings this unfortunate world is lacking, it is but right that he should expect commendation or approval from those with whom he has laboured.

You, we believe were called of God as well as by the Sunday School, to employ your talents for the moral and spiritual welfare of both young and old for during your ten years of faithful service we believe you were not without the approval of your Master, but it may be that you are not aware of the much deserved has often failed to receive.

It was George Eliot, who said: "It is not enough that I am loved. What I want is that my love may grow. The realm of silence is large beyond the grave."

You always cherished high ideals for your school. You believed fully that it was the duty of every live institutions. That it had a lofty aim and a high purpose which you could give it was but feeble as compared with the greatness of its mission. Believing that Sunday School had a beautiful custom. They turned the face of new-born children's infant toward the stars, that it might early learn to look beyond this world to celestial realms. You were not but a well-wisher, but Christianity has received the faithful and has given us a clear realization, as the Master, pleased yearning, in its deep carefulness for the welfare of the little ones. You have always endeavoured through your school to lead the school to turn every face toward Him, who said, "Suffer the little children".

Your passion was for the conversion of all committed to your care. You have been true to look away from the pleasures and enchantments that soon fade and seek their treasures over there.

You endeavoured to make your school a lamp to reveal the good, to light the way and a guide to all as they travel on this short road to Home.

A very beautiful flower has been discovered on the plains or wolds of Texas. It is true that it is as strong as it is beautiful. It is called the compass flower because it always point to the north. If a traveller loses his way, or some one is uncertain as to the direction and is sure which turn to take, if he can but find one of these little compass flowers he may by looking at it find his bearings and ascertain the right way.

Now the Sunday School has for its aim the Lord Jesus. It turns to Him as the flower points north. As the flower guides the lone traveller on his way, by looking to Jesus the wanderer from the right path may be brought back. It was this purpose that inspired your every motive in your labours here.

Mr. Harrison while a private citizen of the United States, taught a Bible class in a little school on the banks of the Ohio. He became by popular vote his country's president and of course he had the interest of Washington to take up his work as president. In connection with his Bible Class must now be severed. However, his last Sunday at his old home found him in his place with his Bible Class and on his arrival at the White House, his gardener approached him with the question that it would be well to secure a watch dog to guard the fruit from thieving boys. Mr. Harrison's quick reply was "I've got a good Sunday School teacher's boys have all the dogs I have always been your plan to govern by the power of love, instead of by the law of force. "The love of Christ constraineth me and will constrain, others too".

Dear Mr. Hudgins, we pause here that we may present to you this token of the esteem in which you are held as a man, as a Christian and as a Sunday School superintendent.

The token is small and unworthy when its commercial value is considered, but we trust it will convey the spontaneous expression of loyal hearts and true.

Signed on behalf of the Sunday School Board and the School in general.

R. E. Newman, pastor;
A. M. Leavens, Senior Dept.
Queenie Livesay, Intermediate
Louise Moore, Primary,
Charlie R. Brown, Secretary.

January To Be Mild Says Weather Prophet

Local residents can look forward to a mild January, if the present weather and the present January thaw is to continue, according to the unofficial weather prophets, one of who committed briefly with his meteorological crystal ball this morning.

"If you have ever noticed the first three days of every month generally rule the weather for the thirty-day period. We've had warmer weather since the beginning of the year and I'g be almost ready to bet that it is going to continue warm for the remainder of the year. With the exception of the first few days of cold weather, which can be expected. But we've had about all the real winter we are going to get for some time", added the oracle.

HOLD ITALIAN ON EIGHT YEAR OLD MURDER CHARGE

Thursday, Can., Jan. 4.—(CP)—Rosario Gigliotti, held here awaiting extradition to Niagara Falls, N.Y., on a murder charge dating back to 1928, sitting in a jail cell yesterday, said he wished he had gone back to Italy and enlisted with Mussolini's army to fight the Ethiopians.

Indicted eight years ago for the alleged shooting to death of Mrs. Carmella Cardill, shot to death in her home, Gigliotti yesterday recalled his happy boyhood in Italy and seven years of peaceful existence in Thursday at the Hollinger Mine. His wife, Pat Hazzard and Jack Hughes, said he had lost only days work during the period and that he was hilarious.

Neighbors of the 37-year-old miner are preparing a petition to the Department of Justice in Ottawa and to United States authorities seeking the clemency, W. O. Langston, president of the Associated Boards of Trade of Northern Ontario, retained as attorney, said extradition proceedings would be contested.

Since coming here, Gigliotti has established himself as a man of substance among the Italian colony. He owns one store block here and several houses.

Imperial Red Of Union Jack To Lose Redness

LONDON, Jan. 4.—(AP)—A first class sensation burst upon Britain yesterday with the discovery that Imperial Red of the Union Jack is to lose its ancient redness.

The change was ordered by a government order substituting other dyes for those previously used to color the red bunting. In an attempt to save money.

The Privy Council refused to accept the resulting tinge as red, saying it was a mere dirty brown or rusty color. The council insisted on the traditional red, white and blue, pride of Britain's heart, which has become rust, white and blue.

Substitution of a synthetic dye for the hitherto used cochineal, hitherto used was decided upon by an inter-government technical committee ordinating committee originally set up at the instance of the War Department.

Vigorous protests were expected to be voiced by a harassed parliament over this "debasing" of the emblem.

ITALY'S NEW YEAR

Italy has a job on its hands as it begins the new year, a self-imposed task it did not have to work upon a year ago.

Months have passed since the invincible legions started forward against what looks at times as an invincible foe, who has his own way of fighting with old style arms and striking every aid which his revered country can give.

If these Ethiopians would only fight in a civilized way as the powerful nations fight, it would make it much easier for Il Duce, who after all has to win quickly. Instead of that they fight in their own way and do nothing to help the Italians, and so Imperil Mussolini at home. There is talk of "frightfulness" to be used as a war weapon against the Ethiopians.

Italy looks now with sneer eyes upon the scenes in East Africa. It is costing gold wedding rings, and all the wealth and physical as well as spiritual resources of the Italians to carry on against the drain in cash. Progress is so slow, and may be lost and it costs a fortune to end a black warrior's life. To some it seems as if Italian wealth will not stand up against the drain because there are far too many Ethiopians to be killed to cause a sufficient weakening of the enemy. Will Italy's money last?

Over all hangs the threatening sword of the League's condemnation. She has called Italy a bad boy of the world and that does not help him.

Hardly a happy New Year outlook in that country!

BEWARE OF POISONS

Health, the quarterly publication of the Canadian Social Hygiene Council, contains in the last issue an article by John R. Ross, of great importance to parents on the subject "Common Poisoning in Children."

The toll of child life through eating of discovered poisons, is heavy and there are other forms of poisoning which bring a bad harvest in ill-health.

The article contains a summary of cases of poisoning admitted to the Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto, in the past fifteen years. There were 36 cases of strychnine poisoning of children in this period and six proved fatal, all but one of these cases being those of children under five years of age. The tablets they had swallowed in the absence of parents were aloin, belladonna, strychnine and cascara sagrada, it is said. The writer points out that as soon as a child can walk and climb on chairs, he or she may obtain a bottle of the tablets from a shelf and finding the chocolate coating pleasing may swallow a large number of them, sometimes as many as eighty or ninety. So the child may obtain many times a fatal dose. These tablets are often left carelessly about as only laxative tablets but they are a menace to a child when eaten in quantity.

The report for the whole of Canada shows that in the years 1931-1933 there were 62 deaths of children under five years of age from this drug.

Sometimes poisoning results from swallowing bichloride of mercury, acetanilide, luminol, and other types of tablets, or sometimes lye or washing soda is swallowed. While the toxic effect is not marked at first, severe burns result which may cause restriction of the food passage. Again older children often absorb through the skin analine dyes. This is sometimes caused by a child having his boots dyed and wearing the shoes before the shoes were thoroughly dried. This is not very serious but is not often only temporary. Illuminating gas poisoning shows reduced numbers of accidents, owing no doubt to better housing.

Ordinary harmless dusting powder, used for babies, may cause poisoning. Sometimes a baby may grasp a tin of the powder while lying on its back and upset the contents in its face. If the powder is inhaled a fatal pneumonia may result.

Lead poisoning is believed to cause more fatalities among children than any other type of poisoning. Sometimes cots are painted and repainted with paint containing lead until they have a very thick coating. This soft layer is easily nibbled off. Small pieces of the paint are swallowed and the lead gradually accumulates in the body. This type of poisoning takes three or four months to develop. If the lead ingestion is not stopped the poisoning may prove fatal but if detected in time may be easily cured. Verandah railings, kitchen chairs, window sills, painted toys may all contain lead.

Paints containing lead should not be used where children can nibble off the paint. Particularly during the teething season is the child to be watched. Lead-free paints are easily procurable. Through-out Ontario makers of toys and children's furniture are using the lead-free paints almost exclusively. The real danger comes from the repainting in the home.

These facts indicate how much risk lingers in a box of tablets which if taken singly would not harm an adult, but in quantity are almost certain to cause fatality to a child. The question of paints is one to which perhaps not sufficient attention is paid by parents.

PICTURES ON THE PANE

When from out the frosen North
Winter brings his fighters forth—
Wind and frost and snow and cold—
All the warriors, brave and bold,
Come the fairies once again
Painting pictures on the pane.

Here they paint a mountain high,
Trees a-reaching to the sky,
Farms and flowers and birds and bee,
Towers and turrets too we see.
Childhood joys to see again
Fairy pictures on the pane.

Outside let the Storm King roar,
We will fear his power no more,
For within we have the view
Of summer scenes in lands a-new,
And we live our youth again
When frost fairies paint the pane.

Grace Moore on her return to Hollywood from her European holiday decided to give herself a "Welcome Home" party and engaged a new colored maid as additional help. Labena looked dumb but willing, and seemed to manage very well until Grace noticed her solemnly marching round the room, offering the guests a tray of empty glasses. "Labena," said Grace, "what are the empty glasses for?" Labena, quite unruffled, replied, "Oh, ma'am, them's for them what ain't thirsty."

There is an entertaining glimpse of stable life in a story about Ladas, the night before he won the Derby. "Detectives prowled around, one sat outside the horse's box, and by him sat the head lad, Felix Leach. The detective nodded, drowsed, he fell saleep. On cat-like tread in the course of his rounds came the Durdans' night watchman, a small clay pipe thrust into the corner of his mouth. The head lad winked as the guardian of the night turned his lantern on him and with jerking thumb indicated the dormant guardian of the law. Silently, the watchman removed his pipe and thrust the sleeping detective's nose into the glowing bowl, and he who had fallen asleep at his post never said a word.

Mrs. Robinson, on the eve of a dinner party, warned her butler on no account to offer wine to Mrs. Young, one of the guests.

The dinner passed off successfully, but afterwards, when the ladies were in the drawing-room, Mrs. Young remarked to her hostess: "I don't want to be personal, but I should like to know why I was so pointedly ignored when the wine was being handed round tonight?"

"Oh," said the hostess, "I told the butler about that. I know you have joined the Temperance League."

"But", said the guest, "it wasn't the Temperance League I joined, it was the Morality League."

"So stupid of me, dear," was the reply, "but I knew you had given up something."

An English party spending a holiday in Switzerland decided to ascend a very small peak in the neighbourhood of their hotel. Though the climb was no more than an arduous walk a guide was engaged, and when the party assembled it was observed that one of them carried a totally unnecessary rope.

The guide, nodding gravely towards the rope, enquired politely: "M'sieu is going to skeep—yes?"

Two men were drawing up articles of partnership before their lawyer. The lawyer went through the articles before the final signing, and suddenly said: "But there is no mention of fire or bankruptcy; these must go in!"

"Quite right," said the partners speaking at once. "But them in; but the profits are to be divided equally in both cases."

Anchorage, Alaska, Jan. 4.—(CP)—Alaskans chuckled when Pilm Dilcester Norman Dawn, screening a far north drama, offered $250 for a live wolverine. It seemed easy money.

Jack Pavlan trapped one on the Lucky Shot Road but a kindhearted prospector clubbed the animal to death to end its suffering. Two trappers used a washboiler to catch another but it got away. One of the trappers shot at the wolverine to cripple it, but killed it—then invited his partner to kick him all the way to Anchorage and back.

An Alaska railroad employee, named Moorhead, won the prize three months after it was offered. But he and a companion had to fight the wolverine two hours before caging it in a 55 gallon barrel.

Drunkenness Shows Increase in England

LONDON, Jan. 4.—(CP Cable)—More people were convicted for drunkenness in England and Wales during 1934 than in the previous year, according to final figures compiled by the Home Office.

The total increased from 36,386 in 1933 to 39,748, a rise of 3,463 or more than nine per cent. compared with an increase of more than 20 per cent the previous year.

Convicted were 33,227 men and 6,521 women. Among the men 581 convictions resulted from drinking methylated spirits, and there were 116 cases of the same kind among the women.

ZOOLOGISTS PAY CALL AT HOME OF RAT ARISTOCRATS

Group of World's Standard Rodents are Observed at Institute Farm

ARE GERM FREE

All Visitors Are Sterilized Before Entering Building

TORONTO, Jan. 4.—Forty of the scientists attending the meeting of the American Society of Zoologists at Princeton, N.J., made a pilgrimage to the Insulin Laboratories of the Winter Institute here to see the most pampered and aristocratic rats in the world. They are only a few specimens because the Winter rats are seldom permitted to receive visitors. They might become contaminated.

The group, however, did inspect the first breeding colony of cosmos ever to be established in captivity, paid their respects to 2,000 salamanders who were enjoying unrivaled amphibian ease in their indoor pools and were led on a sightseeing tour in the 150 acre reservation containing one of the world's strangest farms.

When the zoologists arrived from Princeton by bus they were met by Dr. Milton J. Greenman, director of the Winter Institute and overseer of the rat and opossum cuisine, and by the directors and his assistants conducted the guests about the farm. They described the work of the institution which harbors such strange specimens as rats and rabbits. They led them through five of the farm's six buildings. The sixth building closed to visitors.

Queen's Standard Rats

The 198-acre home of these rats was presented to the institute by Sir Edmund Walker, a son of the late Hon. Hartley Dewart and a relative of Sir John Thompson, Canadian cities. It is really quite a white man's city, quite a tongue which the rats speak broken English. The rainy season is now beginning and the rats have a nice time in the mud. It is nice and green. It is more dried out now than it was at the time of the Queen and other places further down the country. The palm trees are now beginning to look stately. We had docked and could go ashore after the ship had been cleared. We had to go through Customs in the afternoon. There was such a hurry that they told us we did not all get through and had to go through the Customs again. We had no difficulty in going through, they trusted us and we had nothing to declare dutiable and had charged us duty on those things. We did not have to pay any duty at all. We feel that this was a marvellous answer to prayer, that there was such a welcome and such a hearty welcome all along on the boat.

We boarded the train for up the country before the noon hour. There were three Canadian girls on the train coming up. There were four in our party but one mixed very nicely with the American girls. We were very warm after getting our things ready in the heat of the day and then set off during the night. That is one thing just now that we are thankful for, that we are getting up in the cool of the morning and quite cool about two to four in the morning and then it is cool from about ten thirty a. m. until about four in the p. m. We have had a cool night the night that the Africans never slept. The night that we were there we slept much and then at every station where we stopped we had the cool night. We decided that the people of Africa enjoyed plenty of cool nights. It seems to be hard to understand what they were saying. I may say that the English is being rather carbon is aggravated by the fact that it is also

TUBBS—BRUMMELL

One of the season's loveliest weddings took place on December the twenty-eighth, when Miss Beulah Ruth Brummel, second oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Brummel of Massassaga, was united in marriage to Mr. John Albert Tubbs, only son of Mr. and Mrs. James Tubbs, Picton. Rev. J. D. Campbell performed the ceremony beneath a beautiful arch of ivies and white.

The bride, who was given away by her father, entered the room to the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March, played by the groom's sister. She was dressed in pure white velvet and lamé crepe in princess style with long train and veil and carried a bouquet of white chrysanthemums. The bridesmaid, Miss Marjorie Tubbs, sister of the groom, was dressed in pet pervinkle blue sheer crepe and carried a bouquet of chrysanthemums and forget-me-nots. The groom was also attended by Mr. Marshall M. Brummel, brother of the bride.

The groom's gift to the bride was a platinum wrist watch set with white gold; to the bridesmaid, a cross and bracelet, and to the best man a pair of, white gold initialled cuff links. Many beautiful presents and speech contest testified to the popularity of the young couple, who will reside on the groom's farm, near Picton. On their return they will reside at the groom's home, near Picton.

LEAVENS—BOX

The marriage was solemnized quietly, New Year's afternoon at St. George's Cathedral, Kingston, of Edith Elizabeth Roberts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Hugh Box, of Adolphustown, and Dr. Charles Hudson Leavens, of Picton. The ceremony was performed by Rev. C. E. Dixon, cousin of the groom. Mrs. Margaret Dixon and Miss Ruth Peck were attendants. Dr. and Mrs. Leavens have taken up residence at Picton.

BRIDGE STREET W. M. S.

The first meeting of the New Year of Bridge Street W.M.S. was held yesterday in the ladies' parlor with about 45 in attendance. Mrs. Semple opened the meeting and gave a short New Year's message, urging each member to consecrate her life anew to Christ to be better able to serve Him in the days to come. The yearly reports of the secretary and treasurer were given, Miss D. Symons, secretary, reported ten monthly meetings with an average attendance of 74. The first of the meetings of the year were devoted to forming mission bands, and the last five to home missions. There had been four outstanding speakers during the year, Mrs. Hagerman, Mrs. Lavelle, Kingston; Mrs. Haggerty, Mrs. Henry Wilson and Mrs. Taylor of Belleville. Miss I. Brown, the treasurer reported $103 raised during the year, and the Ladies' Aid Circle.

A pleasing event of the program was the making of Mrs. A. W. Dickens a life member, by a contribution of $25. Interesting prayer for sick members were observed.

The installation of the new officers was ably conducted by Mrs. S. Gay of Foxboro who afterwards gave a thoughtful and heart-search-ing address on consecrating our lives in their entirety" for Christ during 1936. Mrs. Gregory sang very sweetly, "My Task" Mrs. E. Baker played the piano and Mrs. Semple closed with the Benediction.

In the case of ladies intending to be presented for the first time, it is requested that application be made to the office to the aide-de-camp in waiting at Government House before February 1. After that date no further applications will be interested.

HEALTH and PSYCHOLOGY

By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D.

Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

Copyright, 1935, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

When a person has an attack of indigestion it does not necessarily, that the real seat of the trouble is in the stomach, or even in the intestines. Indeed, considerable confusion exists as regards indigestion—technically speaking—as the symptom of food — although the symptom of indigestion is probably present in frequency only to the symptom of headache.

It must be borne in mind that the stomach is after all, merely a mixer in which various foods are mixed and churned and that the stomach plays only a preliminary role in the final digestion of the food.

The intestines are more important, because as are also the secretions of the liver (bile) and of the pancreas (pancreatic juice)—these are the gastric juices so far as absorption and general nutrition of body are concerned.

For even if the stomach does not do its work properly for a time, no serious damage is done to health, and, incidentally, the stomach is placed well up under the ribs on the left side and it should not be confused with the abdomen, in which the intestines lie..

The stomach-ache gets trouble there can be no question. Too much acid (hyperchlorhydria) or too little acid (hypochlorhydria) is not uncommon. Pain in the stomach may be present after eating or before eating. One may have pain, may be heartburn or sour eructations. The point of tenderness, however, is the fact that stomach disturbes may not mean stomach disease.

Almost half the people who complain of indigestion are victims of disease of lymphoid tissue and other organs which are not even near the stomach, so far as anatomical location goes.

For instance, heart disease may give stomach symptoms. So may the kidneys and the gall bladder. Even if or even any other infection or the mouth, such as decayed teeth, inflammation of the tonsils may cause indigestion. Eyestrain has been known to upset the stomach.

Among disorders which cause indigestion, yet where the stomach and intestinal tract are really normal, are the nervous ones, diseases peculiar to women, gall bladder disorders, and a diseased appendix. And perhaps topping the list as a remote cause for stomach upsets are those of a mentioned nervous affections.

The stomach and, of course, the intestines are intimately connected with the nervous system. Any disturbance in the nervous system due to the fact that worry can cause stomach or abdominal distress. Excitement during a meal is also a factor.

If any chronic functional nerve trouble, a highly sensitized wreck unstable nervous makeup, a person is full of fears, or worries, they have no actual basis—all such nerve manifestations are very common causes for indigestion.

Think first of your mind and how it affects your body before blaming the stomach. Next think of the way you are eating. Then consult a doctor of the kind and preparation of the food.

If your stomach does not seem to be acting after you have removed obvious faults bother let your doctor carry on the examination, examination so that he may locate the real cause of the disorder.

DR. BISCH'S DAILY DIET HINT

Two pieces of St. to 8 oz. each of egg would do well if they stressed in their diet the foods that were good for them when they were young. Such foods are milk, fresh fruits and well as stewed ones, leafy vegetables and cereals. Less food should be eaten than, say, at the age of forty or fifty-five. Moderation should the middle-aged be careful not to leave the table feeling stuffed."

HARRY B. SMITH DIES, LIBRETTIST FOR 50 YEARS

Dean of U.S. Song-Writers Composed Lyrics for 300 Musical Comedies

'ROBIN HOOD' FIRST HIT

Herbert, DeKoven, Sousa, Among His Collaborators

Atlantic City, Jan. 4—Harry B. Smith, librettist of comic operas and musical comedies for more than fifty years, died of a heart attack at the Marlborough-Blenheim Hotel, where he was convalescing from illness. He was seventy-five years old.

At his bedside when he died were Mrs. Irene Bentley Smith, his wife, and Spencer Bentley, her brother, who had brought him here Friday when his recovery seemed certain. Mr. Smith was taken to New York tonight.

Dean of U. S. Song-Writers

Harry Bache Smith had been recognized for more than a score of years as the dean of American song-writers. Although he continued to write comic opera lyrics for the stage until the last few months, his greatest success was scored at the turn of the century. His death followed by only a few months the deaths of two men whose work and fame were closely linked to his in the history of the American popular stage. Victor Herbert composer, and Reginald De Koven, John Philip Sousa, Frans Lehar, Irving Berlin, Rudolf Friml and Sigmund Romberg, continued to bring him large royalties from their last curtail-ed list of former amazing output.

He was born in Buffalo, N. Y., on April 28, 1860, the son of Joseph Isah and Elizabeth Beche Smith. He received his boyhood in Chicago. He had begun to write literature for the dramatic society of the West Side Young Men's Christian Union he educated and for the Chicago Church Choral Opera Company when he began to work for "The Chicago Daily News." For that paper he wrote for a column of criticism of musical criticism when Eugene Field, George Ade and Peter Finley Dunne were on its staff.

His First Hit "The Begum"

His first comic operetta, "Rosita, or Cupid and Cupidity" was written in 1882. He followed it with similar librettos, like "Amaryllis, or Mandolin and Love," "Lalla Rookh," when he scored his first hit, "The Begum," written with Reginald De Koven, which told the story of a clerk in a wholesale dry goods concern in Chicago.

It was Colonel John A. McCaull, manager of the Bostonians, who gave Mr. Smith his first chance to write operetta in the United States, who was followed by "Robin Hood" in 1890, and the partnership and friendship was established Smith as the leading librettist of the popular stage.

"Robin Hood" was played almost continuously in New York or on tour for more than a decade, and frequently revived in later years. In 1912, Smith estimated that "Robin Hood" had brought him $250,000, and the popularity of some of its songs such as "Oh, Promise Me" and "Brown October Ale," kept him in the higher brackets of the royalty list at the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, for many years. The latter song was sung on a radio program yesterday by listeners unaware that its composer had just died.

Bird Sanctuary Fund Has Been Established

An agreement has been reached between Mr. Miner and the Canadian General Trusts whereby an organization known as the Jack Miner Migratory Bird Foundation has come into being, and a fund established, the interest of which will be used to maintain the sanctuary in perpetuity, it shall have died.

Under the agreement, voluntary donations and subscriptions will be received from Canadian citizens by the Toronto General Trusts, and from United States citizens by the Union Guardian Trust Company, for the fund. Donations have already been received in the United States, and it is hoped that Canadians will follow this example although a major portion of the fund is expected to be received in the form of bequests in wills.

Even as he spoke, four measures either were in the congressional hopper or are under preparation to implement the neutrality law expiring Feb. 29.

There were "grounds for pessimism," the President found in those nations which "today must bear the definite primary responsibility for jeopardizing world peace." In ringing words, he added:

"It might be true that the masses of the people in those nations would change the policies of their governments if they could be allowed a full freedom and full access to the processes of Democratic government. But the unhappy fact is that they do not have that access; locking it they follow blindly and helplessly the will of them... who seek autocratic power.

Take It Roosevelt

Revert to Old Skiff

"Nations seeking expansion, seeking the rectification of injustices springing from former wars, or seeking outlets for trade, for population or even for their own peaceful contributions to the progress of civilization fail to demonstrate that patience necessary to attain reasonable and lasting settlements by peaceful negotiation or by an appeal to the finer instincts of world justice.

"They have, therefore, impatiently reverted to the old, the pre-World War law of the world, or to the fantastic imaginings of the mind of one man alone, are ch-sen to fulfill a mission and that all the others among the 126,000,000 people in those lands must and shall learn from and be helped in that way.

"I recognize that these words which I have chosen with deliberation will be used in the attempt to explain that choose to fit this shoe to fit their feet.

"Such sentiments, however, will find sympathy and understanding in those lands where the people themselves are honestly desirous of peace but are unable to express themselves on one side or the other in the kaleidoscopic bookeeping for political purposes of the Fascist and Adalic relations today. For the peace-loving nations, the future are many of them, find that their very identity depends on their moving and moving against the chess board of international politics . . . "

In spite of the "grave danger facing nations", a correspondent of the New York Herald Tribune telegraphed his paper many Americans saw sympathetic reference here to the Italo-Ethiopian war. France and the members of the League of Nations.

Although some Republicans joined democratics in praising the remarks on world affairs, there were some criticism. Senator Hastings (R-Del.), said they were "unnecessary, inconsistent and highly dangerous." On the other hand, Senator Dale (R.-Vt.), asserted "I am in accord with what he said and commanding the peace of the world".

Mixed Feelings

Likewise the echoes of the President's address were mixed. Democratic critics to try and wipe out the whole new deal, had hardly died away when the lauded foreign praise and denunciation was heard in this country.

Democratic supporters hailed it in ringing terms as a wonderful, courageous and aggressive plea for peacemaking and revealing the opposition's fears.

The Republican leadership hamstrung by the Borah-Johnson-Hiram-To Republican chairman Henry F. Fletcher the speech was "a challenge to the world to abandon its subservient and gagged congress the whole new socialistic features of the new deal."

The President did not name the Italo-Ethiopian war, but in denouncing the livery of great national conquest" he referred to the "grave danger special interests." But some of his supporters immediately said his tar-get was such critics as the American Liberty League, the National Association of Manufacturers and the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

He recommended to congress that two advance; that we do not re-ar-m.

His mention of budget balancing received applause from both the Republican side; roars of approval from the Democrats.

One feature of the speech led some quarters to expect the new deal may possibly seek new methods of preventing its legislation from being tied up in lower federal courts, by the President that:

"The carrying out of the laws of the land as enacted by the congress requires protection until final adjudication by the highest tribunal of the land. The Constitution gives us right and can find the means to protect its own prerogatives."

"The Bride Comes Home"

Claudette Colbert, Fred MacMurray Co-Starred in Film as Scrappy Lovers

The story of a modern girl with a super-charged temper who meets and loves a man who prefers fighting to eating is at the Belle now playing until Monday, in "The Bride Comes Home" with Claudette Colbert and Fred MacMurray in the featured roles.

It is a thoroughly amusing story, brilliantly presented, and possesses a definite appeal for all married couples. The spectacle of a young woman and a young man who disagree on everything from spinach to toothpicks, but manage in their impetuous way to work out their knotty problems, would be difficult to present without being entertaining.

Yet "The Bride Comes Home" is more than that. The theme has not have been better cast. Lovely Miss Colbert is superb as the young girl whose father has lost all his money and decides to go to work, while MacMurray is just the hard-boiled, two-fisted newspaper man who turns columnist editor and finds Miss Colbert working in his assistant.

Though they battle from the moment of their meeting, the magnetic force of love compels them to be constantly together, and they accidentally get into jail. Hunting a model to serve as an alibi he finds the beautiful young girl in question, and when he falls in love with her, a thrilling swashbuckling series of escapades, and other troubles provide a complication that runs from hilarious to tragic in a vivid dramatic climax.

Powell plays a Continental lover-in-duty with deft skill and staggering personality. Miss Rainer rises to dramatic heights, and shows her versatility by whimsical humor and romantic highlights as well. Frank Morgan, as the suspicious - doctor husband, provides a well-balanced performance, and by a subtle fun-making, and Virginia Bruce is beautiful and interesting as the philandering wife.

Others Do Fine Work

Mady Christians provides drama, as the jealous sweetheart who shoots Powell in a fit of rage, and Helen Ainsworth, as the absent-minded nurse. Thelma Todd and Edgar Kennedy are appearing on the same program in their latest comedy, "Twin Triplets", and Belle Laird, World Movie Fashions, and a funny Popeye Cartoon complete the entertainment program of screen entertainment.

Jean Blondell, Next

"Miss Pacific Fleet" comes to port Tuesday at the Belle Theatre with that famous quartette of film comedians, Jean Blondell, Glenda Farrell, Hugh Herbert and Allen Jenkins heading the cast. The picture is based on the rollicking comedy by Frederick Hazlitt Brennan which ran for a year on the stage. It is seriously funny but to carry a humor and love triangle between Miss Blondell, Jenkins and Warren Hall, the latter two back from the romantic role in the production.

"Frisco Kid", Warner Bros' thrilling tale of old San Francisco is announced as the second feature attraction on the program beginning with an all star cast headed by James Cagney, Margaret Lindsay, Ricardo Cortez and Lili Damita.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Escapade"

Lilting Tale of Vienna With William Powell at His Very Best

Philandering or a debonair artist in Vienna, complications over past love affairs and a romance over the portrait of a married woman that gets into print are among the details that provide a story of whimsical humor and gripping drama, combined with delightful romance, in "Escapade", Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's engaging new production now playing at the Capitol Theatre.

William Powell provides a clever performance as the chief figure in the cocktail of mirth and romance, which seems to intensify a striking new personality in Luise Rainer, who appears to advantage from whatever makes her screen debut as his leading lady. Robert E. Leonard's direction has caught the skilful and spectacular musical interludes introduced by Rodgers and Hart, Viennese composers of Jan Kiepura's hits.

Child Born in Trooping 1870 Certificate Sought

Halifax, Jan. 4—(CP)—Halifax postal officials were a bit puzzled today by the application of a baby, Drown of St. Petersburg, Florida, resident here for a birth certificate. The birth certificate of a child born on the steamship Canges in 1876.

The Canges was enroute from London to Halifax at the time. Postal officials found the baby over to the Halifax shipping office later, but it was believed today it would be necessary to write to military officials in England to secure the desired information.

The Canges, a troopship well known at Halifax in the 70's and 80's, is at present being used as a depot ship in England.

Augmented by the addition of seven eastern Canada stars, Port Arthur Bearcats, selected to uphold the hockey prestige of Canada at the winter Olympics in Garmisch-Partenkirchen, Germany, are getting some exhibition games. In addition to the players in this group Ralph St. Germain, centre or left-wing from Montreal Royals, will make the trip. The lakehead crew, runners-up for the Allan Cup last season, were strengthened with pickhousers from Montreal Royals and Halifax Wolverines, their chief competitors last year. The pucksters shown are as follows: TOP Row, LEFT to RIGHT, W. Stewart, trainer; O. Saxberg, left wing; Vince Ferguson (Halifax), centre; Dave Neville (Montreal), right wing; H. Milton, defence; W. Thompson, right wing. Chummie Lawlor (Halifax), left wing Albert Pudas, coach; M. Cochrane, manager. BOTTOM ROW, LEFT to RIGHT, Ernie Mosher (Halifax), centre; A. Sinclair, centre; S "Daddy" Buhar (Halifax), goal; Jackie Nash, goal; Norm Friday, left wing, and A. Deacon, right wing. This team carries only two defencemen, but Coach Pudas expects to use a strong offence to offset the lack of rear-guards.

Project Workers Easy For Canning Boys, The Score Being 14-2

JOE GOULD BUSY

Airport Team Shutout Carrying Place by 2-0

Trenton, Jan. 4 (Special)—Two fast-moving Trenton and District Hockey League games were played in the Arena game last night. Though the score of the first game between the Whittall Cans and the Project 36 was very much one-sided with the Whittalls winning 14 to 2, it proved how certainly put up a wonderful fight. The first period opened with the Whittalls line of Kidd, Miller and Smith putting on the pressure, but only the latter succeeded in beating Goalie Gould of the Project strengthened their position and added another tally through the period, Miller and Smith broke away and with the smoothness of combination that characterizes their play, Miller drifted in on Scott to sink a beauty. Gillespie scored after the five minutes later in a scramble in front of the Project net. Lahore slammed in the last counter of the period. The period ended with both teams trying hard.

Almost after the bell rang to start the second period Smith of the Whittalls scored on a pass from Miller. Play, slick-handled his way through the Project defence to score in the third goal. This got the Project boys' dander up and Fetherstonhaugh, Gillespie and Gould all went out to do business then and did not stop until they had netted five goals in as many minutes. Kidd went in on Scott, took his shot which rebounded to Miller who put the puck home for the fourth goal. The fifth was a pretty combination play, Perry on a pass from Miller. The sixth and seventh were scored by Cain, Dadswell and Lahore of the Whittalls Kid Line, the first by Cain on a pass from Lahore and second Lahore on a pass from Cain. The Project showed still at end of the evening as scored by Rossiter who unaided went through the entire Whittall team to slip it by Grey. The third period ended, Whittalls 7; Project 1.

In the final Whittall boy rained the rubber on the Project goalie and seven goals were scored on the Whittall forwards, with the line of Cain Dadswell, and LaMontagne getting four, while Kidd and Miller tallied three. First, Miller pass from Kidd; fourth, Cain pass from Kidd; fourth, Cain in a scramble; third, Smith on a pass from Kidd; fourth, Cain in a scramble; fifth, Cain on a pass from Dadswell scramble and seventh, Smith scramble. Lineups:

Whittalls (14); Project 2: Line-up: Whittalls—Goal, Grey; wings, Mitchell and J. Kerr; centre, Kidd; sole, Miller; defence, Fetherstonhaugh and Dadswell. Project 36—Goal, Scott; defence, Tuels and Rossiter; centre, Gillespie; wings, Lahore and Graham; centre, Seams; subs, Goodwin and Dunlop.

The second game between the R.C.A.F. and Carrying Place was fast and furious from start to finish with neither team sparing the man. In the first period both teams skated up and down the ice at a terrific pace but seemed to be feeling each other out. During the period spectacular rushes were made by the lines of Powers, Moore and Wingate of the R.C.A.F. and Johnson, Davis and Vanderroort of Carrying Place. The period closed with both teams fighting hard.

In the second period the Airport boys began to find it on and before they were stopped scored two goals. The first came when Powers and Moore were crowded around the Carrying Place net. Beck grabbed the puck out of the scramble and banged it homeward. From then on Carrying Place were on their toes and Joe Gould in the R.C.A.F. net was certainly kept busy. But he could not be forever and near the end of the period Powers of the R.C.A.F. broke away, stick-handled his way through the Carrying Place team to score their second and third last goal of the evening. The period ended with R.C.A.F. 2; Carrying Place 0. The net-minding of Joe Gould in the last period was phenomenal for the Carrying Place team and time and again nobody but nobody him but could not squeeze it by.

However the rest of the team deserve much credit for the way they held their heads throughout the rain of rubber. The period ended with the Carrying Place team all swarmed around the R.C.A.F. net. Final score: R.C.A.F. 3; Carrying Place 0

Line-up: R.C.A.F.—Goal, Gould; defence, Beck and Pafford; wings, Powers and Wingate; centre, Moore; subs, Manders, K. Laing, McKell and Wilson. Carrying Place, Goal, Goldsby; defence, Yorke and Visser; wings, Davis and Vanderroort; centre, Johnson; subs, Anderson, Rohan, Hutchinson, Staples, Burtt and Dolan. Referee: 1st game, Ross Burtt, 2nd game, Ben Bowan.

OLYMPIC TEAM MOVING EAST

Defeat Fort William 5-1 to Break Even in Exhibition Games

Port Arthur, Ont., Jan. 4 (CP)—All square in four exhibition games played so far, Canada's Olympic hockey team was ready to board a train eastbound today for further wars before sailing January 17 for Germany and the International series.

The augmented Port Arthur Bear Cats, hitting their stride and rapid pace, defeated Port William Hurricanes 5-1 here last night to make it two victories and two defeats.

Bill Thorneloe with two and Gus Stuberg of Port Arthur, Vince Pecore of Halifax and Dave Bertile of Montreal did the Olympic scoring. Gordon Houston counted the lone Port William goal.

R. J. Gibney, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, will arrive here from his home in La Prairie, Man., home today to join the Olympic team and travel eastward with them.

EXPECT LIVELY TILT IN TORONTO

Maroons And Leafs Will Meet to Renew Hostilities

(By the Canadian Press)

If Montreal Maroons and Toronto Leafs don't stage a revival in Thursday night's game at the Leaf Gardens in Toronto, they will be in bad company. Only 2,000 persons, the smallest crowd of the season, turned out to watch the Montreal Canadiens and New York Rangers battle to a scoreless draw in the Forum here last night.

The young men at Montreal and Toronto will be out to duplicate last night's battle between the bitter rivals. The Leafs and Maroons battled tooth and nail, hitting various cuts and bruises certain to make Thursday night's clash a real feud for Maroon blood tonight.

Then there is the additional incentive that the winner will be between Hooley Smith, veteran Maroon centre, and Red Horner, Leaf defenceman. On the penalty bench in Montreal they agreed on their differences before tonight's battle.

That will probably be forgotten by tonight or later afternoon will be something to say about the staging of the scrap. But the fans think they will see a battle from the first to the last before the game, and are expected to pour into the Gardens in large numbers.

The contest highlights a week-end program of National League games. The Maroons move on to Toronto for a game with the Leafs on Saturday night, then Hawks Saturday night, sharing with Montreal Canadiens, who are playing two games in two nights.

The Leafs play in Montreal against Bruins tonight and on Saturday night Detroit Red Wings meet New York Americans, who defeated Rangers 3-2 in their only league game contest right back at Lester Patrick's men in Madison Square Garden tomorrow night.

LONDON TECS BACK IN LEAD

Lever Scores Winning Goal And Then Shipped to Rochester

(By the Canadian Press)

Not like a supporting actor at all, George Lever travelled down the International League river today. The trip was from the camp of London Tecumsehs, eastern section leaders, to the camp of Rochester Cardinals, who have won two games out of the first season. It was a sharp drop, all right.

But only last night Lever was a hero in London. It was he who fired the Tecs into first place, without a single overtime game for Pittsburgh Shamrocks with an extra-period play. The score was 4-3. A crowd of 2,000 in London went mad with joy when Lou Glender centre rifled the puck into the Pittsburgh cage.

Then they told George he was through. They told him to like freezing—from after the game. Arrangements for his transfer to Rochester had been completed before game-time and there wasn't anything to about it. Lever and the bride of a few days pulled out today for the camp of the tail-enders.

Lou also staged a brilliant uphill fight to win third place and slip into first place ahead of Syracuse Stars. They threw off the wrong foot of a 3-1 score with seven minutes left to play in the third period. Newsome Lindsay reduced the margin on Eric Pettinger's pass and Lou Glender sank the tying goal on Walter Brannesman's pass.

That set the stage for overtime and Lever turned the trick at the 3:15 mark. Brannesman laid him a pass and Lever raced in to score with a high shot to the corner of the net. Without Lever, London will have Hal Pickett and Foley Callahan from the Rochester Club for the rest of the season. Rochester got defenceman Ellis Pringle as "eal as Lever in the deal.

Drive Carried Chicago From Third Place to a Pennant

By FORD FRICK
President, the National Baseball

(Written for the Associated Press)

New York, Jan. 4 (AP)—Perpetual motion is building up with each passing month to make baseball's 21-game winning streak of Chicago Cubs stand out stronger, taller and brighter against the skyline of the 1935 sports calendar.

We are beginning to realize now we are unfolding a page of baseball history in the making. Twenty-one straight victories! From third place to the pennant! The Cubs' record of the National League's 1935 championship truly belongs in baseball's gallery of immortal exploits.

It wasn't the longest winning streak in baseball history. The New York Giants of 1916 won 26 in a row, the all-time major league record. Theirs was a September drive, too, but without a pennant to shoot at.

There's a very bright spot in our national pastime, indeed. Baseball. The Reds won no pennant but the thrill to first campaign launched by Powel Crosley, Jr., and Larry MacPhail makes remarkable strides.

Brooklyn gave us lots of thrills, too, back there in the spring, and that opening drive of Casey Stengel's men stands as one of our season's bright spots. Pittsburgh provided the chief pitching sensation in the person of Cy Blanton who wound up the season at the top of the list in the earned run rankings. A most remarkable achievement for a freshman.

One of the best achievements of the year came right at the close with the reorganization of the Boston Braves. Thanks to Bob Quinn's taking the helm there, the outlook for National League baseball in Boston is very promising.

I think baseball together with the country as a whole, will enjoy even more than 1935.

MARKLE LEADING ACTIVE PLAYERS

Real Scramble in International For Scoring Honors

Windsor, Ont., Jan. 4 (CP)—With Gordon "Cook" Pettinger now performing in National League ranks, the battle for team-scoring honors in the International Hockey League is developing into a hectic free-for-all.

Pettinger, who graduated from the Detroit Olympics to join Red Wings this week, still holds a comfortable six-point lead by virtue of his nine goals and 17 assists for a total of 26 in four scrambling games behind him in a bunch are a dozen other players with only five points separating them.

Jack Markle, one-time Owen Sound junior, who won the scoring championship last season, sets the pace among the active players, with ten goals and ten assists for 20 points. Two points behind is Wilf Hudson of the tail-end Pittsburgh Shamrocks, while tied for fourth place with 17 points each are Eddie Burke, Syracuse; Vic Ripley and Frank Doiny, both of Cleveland.

One of the more notable feats of recent weeks was the rise of Nick Wasnie, former Canadian star, who jumped into a tie for seventh place. Wasnie started his spurt just after he had been sold by Rochester to Pittsburgh.

The leaders:

	G.	A.	P.
Pettinger, Detroit	9	17	26
Markle, Syracuse	10	10	20
Hudson, Pittsburgh	12	7	19
Burke, Syracuse	12	5	17

LOU AMBERS HAS WIN OVER KLICK

Outpoints Veteran Lightweight in Ten Rounds at N. Y.

New York, Jan. 4 (AP)—Lou Ambers of Herkimer, N.Y., was back again today, dogging the trail of Tony Canzoneri, lightweight king.

Ambers, whose jaw was broken in a fight with Pedro Ziric of Pittsburgh, six months ago, stepped out of the Madison Square Garden ring last night with an unanimous decision over veteran and ring-wise Frankie Klick of California.

Ambers, who weighed 134½ to 133¾ for his opponent, handed Klick his first defeat in seven Garden starts.

The 6,306 customers who paid $18,203 to see the fight at times stamped their feet for action as Ambers won eight of the 10 rounds. He took some pretty stiff punches on his repaired chin in the sixth and seventh rounds, however, and showed there was nothing brittle about it.

TORONTO DUKES LOSE 1-0 TILT

Oakville Villains First Team To Defeat Dukes This Season

(By the Canadian Press)

The Villains of Oakville, not to be counted out of the Senior Ontario Hockey Association race until the last spiral has been frozen, chuckled their satisfaction today back in fourth place in the eastern section.

Oakville became the first team to defeat Toronto's powerful Dukes this season when they scored a 1-0 decision before a crowd of 1,000 in Toronto last night. The game was one of the most thrilling of the O.H.A. campaign.

Jack Markle, Dukes' captain, was serving a penalty at the time and the Oakville players were defending the Toronto goal.

For the rest of the distance, the teams fought along straight offensive lines with the rival goaltenders, Ken Farrell of Toronto, and Harvey Teno of Oakville, turning in brilliant performances.

In the other scheduled group game, Harvey Newton, Chatham goalie, put up such a dazzling stand in the nets for Hamilton Tigers that the Bengals blanked Port Colborne Sailors 9-0. Teno was unbeaten.

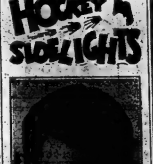
The victory moved Tigers close to the leading Dukes at the head of the table in third place, a single point ahead of Oakville.

Cliff Chadwick starred in the victory, scoring four spectacular goals, three of them in the third period of sob dashes. Twice he skated through the whole Port Colborne defence. Sylvanus Apps and George Mackie bagged a pair of goals and the other went to Eric Ure.

GOLD DISCOVERY MADE IN ARCTIC

Anchorage, Alaska, Jan. 4.—Veteran Alaskan prospectors voiced belief that reports of a new gold and silver discovery in the Endicott Mountains 100 miles beyond the Arctic Circle, might mean a real "strike."

C. Stanley Herbert, a mining engineer, said he had "struck it rich" on the northern slope. Herbert said he had also found signs of oil.



U. G. Crocker, pioneer prospector, said he himself had staked along the Koyukuk River, flowing from the southern side of the range, in 1900, and found rich deposits. He recalled that men using hand rockers "took out $16 a day and a gold daily when gold was $16 an ounce."

CENTRE LEAGUE TO OPEN TUESDAY

Homer "Red" Townsend to Head New Team at Foxboro

Stirling, January 4.—(Special)—After several successful meetings held by the league officials of the Centre Hockey League, definite steps were taken to straighten out the difference of opinion and the present standing in the way of progress at a special meeting held at West Huntingdon Thursday evening, which lasted for about two hours. The desire of the President, Mr. Joseph Wilson, to arrive at a conclusion, that was satisfactory to all the teams, was only partly achieved, when three teams agreed on the action to be taken concerning the questionable player. Zions team, however refused to settle his name from their list and withdrew from the league. The difficulty concerned Homer "Red" Townsend and his part in an unfortunate affair, which took place in the play-off games last season, when a player on the opposing team was injured. After lengthy discussion on the matter, Mr. Townsend, who was present at the meeting, stated that while perhaps his dismissal was not entirely justified it seemed to be the only solution to the problem that was holding up the formation of the league. He also urged his teammates to carry on without him. They, however, refused, and Mr. Townsend took it upon himself to enter a team to fill the vacancy created by Zion's withdrawal. It was a fine display of good sportsmanship and the gathering gave him a hand, as he stated that the league must be carried on for the benefit of the younger players within it. The new team will be called the Foxboro team and Mr. Townsend will be the leading factor in their efforts to life the championship. Before the meeting was adjourned a copy of the schedule was given for approval and a meeting to deal with business of a less important nature was called to take place in Stirling on Saturday evening.

Schedule of the Centre Hockey League:

Jan. 7—Foxboro at West Huntingdon; Glen Ross at Foxboro;
Jan. 10—Bethel at West Huntingdon; Glen Ross at Foxboro;
Jan. 14—Bethel at Foxboro; Glen Ross at West Huntingdon;
Jan. 17—West Huntingdon at Foxboro; Bethel at Glen Ross;
Jan. 21—Foxboro at Glen Ross; West Huntingdon at Bethel;
Jan. 24—West Huntingdon at Glen Ross; Foxboro at Bethel;
Jan. 28—Glen Ross at Bethel; Foxboro at West Huntingdon;
Jan. 31—Bethel at West Huntingdon; Glen Ross at Foxboro;
Feb. 4—West Huntingdon at Glen Ross; Foxboro at Bethel.

By Anne Forester

She made a convulsive movement of one hand, and spoke in a shoky voice, like a child's.

"I rather think," she said meaningly, "that the Three of which you told Harvey was decidedly different from the China he actually knew!"

The man did not answer; but through all of her being she could sense his withdrawal. It was as though the planes of his face had receded, beneath some hand which had smudged its clear outlines. Instantly she regretted the impulse which had brought forth her words; impulsively she was about to reach across a centre table in search of his own, when the man with an exclamation of disgust, leaned forward to peer at something in the gloom ahead. The car slowed down—and ended in stubbly against a "Please Detour" sign and with jerked, expressionless face as inked frowning gaze spent the next five minutes cursing it in a powerful, distinctive path through a plowed field which threatened disaster at every foot of the way.

No chance to talk now; the opportunity had passed. Moodily, Rose sat quietly in her seat—miserably she eyed that grim, unapproachable profile beside her. Fool! Why must she say things like that? Why, when he was trying in the kindest of half-way at least must she let her absurd, resentful impulse to smear her hatred's sake her untrue to the generous, honest self within her—and show she paused, showing him her worst side; of being so small that he could not even see in the perfidy of truce with a fair response?

She felt her eyes burning in the light of the street-lamps that bordered the entrance to the Thorold Mills. They were all the gates now. He was aiding to the curb—opening the door on his side of the car.

"I won't be but a moment. I'll be glad to drive you the rest of the way home.... If you won't mind waiting here?" His dark face was flushed and the eyes she did not meet bent as Jeffrey Therrold swung off through the field into the dark—the Mill yard beyond, she wondered why, having succeeded in hurting him, she should feel such a forlorn sense of depression and shame.... Voices there behind the big gate. Jeffrey's and the voice of the gateman. He was coming back. Another figure walking beside him.

"I thought sure I'd missed you, old chap! He indeed, it's no trouble at all—just hop in if you don't mind the rumble seat, and let me drive you to your hotel!"

The man for whom Jeffrey had been waiting climbed the gate partingly. Perhaps she should get out and walk the rest of the way? But it had stopped raining now and the dim night shimmered in the warm and lovely gloom. She hated on the car-door, she hesitated a moment, staring fatuly disturbed at the approaching figures of the two men: Jeffrey Therrold and the man from Shanghai.

Then she was looking up—gazing weirdly, incredulously into the face of Captain August Deering. The man whose name Harvey had uttered to that effect was the man to whom she had paid Jeffrey Therrold's money for the honor of the house of Therrold.

CHAPTER 25.

AN OLD FEAR RETURNS

The summer was almost over. Windows open along the line were catching the last of the afternoon sunlight. The sound of a distant cornet from the Armory.... radio broadcasting the local football games. The sound of Willie Crosby's bicycle-bell, trilling through the back lanes as he covered the evening paper to the accompaniment of his own shrill whistle.... the scent of little Eddie Atkinson's garden in the Ends Walks in the twilight....

For come one summer on clothes along the Drive, blankets and rugs being brought down from attics and sheds, autumn and the long summer over and done.

Larry, coming into the cottage about seven o'clock one evening, dropped exhausted into the porch swing; his clothes hung limp in a discouraged heap from one limp hand.

"Holy Tarnation!" he said with a long, heartfelt groan. "Am I tired! I feel as though my entire body is strung on wires—I positively creak in every corded joint!"

Rose grumbled and restless, felt that never had she seen so pale a face, heard so plaintive a tired voice, the nearness of his big brown shoulders. She felt them relaxed, comfortably familiar and dear.... even while she sensed, for the first time in days, that something was up—doubtfully on his mind.

Like Larry, a majority which surprised even himself, had been elected Justice of the Peace for Fall Acres. Gatherwood, Larry remarked was like that. Reasonably unbiased in his political opinions; but unanimously willing to support the man who was willing to carry out the job in hand. Peace, with Luke Rewin in the saddle, was a negligible factor.... but Rewin would most certainly be voted out and in his most bitter fashion.

With Luke away, busily campaigning for future political laurels, the management of the Maple Hall fallen on Larry's shoulders. There was a new assurance, an exuberance about him—a certain good-tempered enthusiasm these days. Larry was having the time of his life.

Even Lottie noticed it. Amid the preoccupations of having to restock the Mill's store with merchandise suited to the coming winter and the worries of settling upon her own personal sartorial color scheme.

"I don't aim to buy many clothes, Mr. Therrold," she said earnestly. "Come Spring you can't tell what will have happened between Mr. Marts and me.... But I do need to clever up my outfit with a real good hat, don't you think? And I've about decided on green for the Russian blouse."

The "Russian blouse," a combination of over-blouse and full pantaloons, had been designed by Lottie herself, partly as a concession to the rigors of the coming zero weather, partly as a sort of delicate tribute to the departed Sahara, which she had worn with such relish all summer. The pajamas, once apologetically donned, had undermined Lottie's inhibitions in an alarming fashion.

"I know, of course, that it's the national costume of some nation," Larry had remarked thoughtfully, on first viewing the innovation. "But—somehow—I can't just decide—which—it is.... Now, mind, I'm just registering my personal impression. It's my duty as a newspaper man to do this national cash-register stuff—"

Rose, with the limp little body of Kitten in her lap, rocked slowly to side him, smiling faintly at Lottie's expression of almost infantile distress. What was it, the girl never herself impatiently, not for the first time this week, what was it that was troubling her in this vague, restless fashion.... making her go about with this sense of impending disaster? It had dated, she admitted honestly, from the moment when her gaze had gazed again into the veiled eyes of Austin Deering—those unfathomable eyes with a secret something forever lurking in their high depths. Yet the whole thing was ridiculous—fantastic in the extreme. What could Austin Deering, or anyone else, do to harm her friend?

Rose Allen, the forlorn, desperate little dancer in a Shanghai café, might have feared for her job, for very livelihood.... if such a man chose to annoy her with attentions as once Austin Deering had done. But Rose Therrold, clerk in Lottie Welch's shoddy little store, need fear no one—so far as her bread and butter were concerned. The smile flickered again at the thought of Lottie's masterful handling of any such contingency....

Yet the sense of menacing was once perplexed—fostered by the fantastic tales which continued to grow and circulate about the person of Captain Austin Deering. His Chinese servant, his monogrammed shirts, the navy-bell he was reputed to wear beneath his smartly cut clothes....Gatherwood rang with the news.

"And no matter how thin you slice it," Lottie had summed the matter up with succinct sarcasm, "it still remains bologna!"

Which was Lottie's way of disposing of what she could not quite understand and therefore resented. Rose, listening to her sputtering retort, wished with all her unhappy soul that she could do likewise.

On the Saturday previous, Rose had conquered her shyness and had gone to call on Miss Abby. She had found the old lady confined to her bed with a by-gone cold, but Miss Abby had insisted on seeing her. Her imperious, commanding, old voice had floated down the stairs, telling Margret to have Mrs. Therrold come up.

The visit had been, of necessity, brief. But Miss Abby had been genuinely interested in the new dress in the formula—and had renewed her offer to buy the pre-winter hat at once. She would get in touch with her dealer in the city.... Rose was to return at the end of the week, bringing the box with her. In the meantime, Margret was to wrap up the doll which Miss Abby had bought for Kitten....

Following the girl, Rose startled back of the maid down the wide stairs, Rose felt as though a physical sense of floating through space. For first time in days her heart sang within her—sang with a joyful,

Relief and Other Matters Covered in Mayor's Address

Before a crowded council chamber, with standing room being taken by those prominent in the business life of the city, augmented by a large number of women, Mayor Harry Hill and the council for 1936 took office today. It was one of the largest attended inaugural meetings held in some years and the newly installed Mayor received the congratulations of his friends.

After City Clerk Holmes had read the results of the municipal elections held in December and notified all the Mayor and members of the council had taken the oath of office, subscribed the proclamation of business, Aldermen Harold Armstrong and Leigh Lewis newly elected members to the Aldermanic Board were given the honor of escorting the Mayor to the chair and placing about his neck the chain of office. Rev. Dr. James Beagle of Bridge Street United Church read a portion of the Scriptures and Rev. Robert Haslam of Trinity Street United Church, where Mayor Harry Hill is a member and in prayer. Following this the Mayor read his inaugural address and on motion of Aldermen Thompson seconded by Alderman Thompson moved a vote of thanks for the splendid address, which motion was put by the City Clerk and carried unanimously.

Session Welcome . . .

The council then went into the committee of the whole for the transaction of business with Alderman Ben Bale in the chair. After the chairmen for the various committees were appointed, the council rose and reported after which several by-laws were introduced. These were the customary by-laws dealt at the inaugural meeting, making appointments to the various boards of the city, extending time for the collection of the tax rolls, setting the salaries for the year, the assessment of 1936, provision for the collecting of taxes, and the borrowing of $493,460.00 from the Bank of Montreal for current expenditures. There being no other business the council adjourned, the majority of those present going to the Quinte Hotel, where a complimentary banquet was given by the Mayor.

Address by Ex-Mayor Tice

Mayor Hill paid a fine tribute to Ex-Mayor Tice, O.B.E., for his distinguished service to the city. His long civic experience in the administration through what has undoubtedly been the most difficult and trying period in the history of the city, and the success he has achieved merits the lasting gratitude of every citizen."

The city's net debt, Mayor Hill said, is $3,341,000, the total debenture debt of $3,580,000 being reduced by the accrued total of the sinking funds of $239,000. He referred to the fact that of the $650,000 annually levied by the city only 18 percent or $120,000 is municipal taxes. The problem of keeping the taxes

300 Extra 'G Men' Needed to Fight Lawless Elements States Roosevelt

To Seek Evidence to Send Gangleader to Jail For Evasion of Tax

NEED IS GREAT

Washington, Jan. 6.—(AP)—President Roosevelt asked today for 300 more clean-cut young men to train as cops for district attorneys and more prison guards to tighten the protection the United States applies against the lawless.

His 1936 budget recommendations to congress proposed strengthening four major detective agencies with 113 new "G-men", 85 new postoffice inspectors, 60 new secret service operatives and 36 new treasury bureau agents.

The more than 300 "G men" who would be in the field under the plan would launch a redoubled drive on bank robbers, under a new law extending their investigations to robberies of all banks insured by the federal insurance corporation.

They would participate widely in newly-opened fields of federal investigation—interstate transportation of stolen automobiles, "racketeering," "white slave" trading, and the interstate transportation of stolen automobiles.

The proposed staff of 500 post office inspectors would investigate small frauds to an extent now impossible because they would be difficult time for investigations of the postal service, seeing ways of speeding the mails and insuring safe delivery.

The 300 "G-men" of the Internal Revenue Bureau would seek evidence to send gang leaders in jail for income tax evasion as they did Al Capone. Most of the new secret operatives men would chase postoffice fellows.

DAIRYMEN'S MEET IS CANCELLED

Lack of Government Grant Causes Decision to Drop Meeting

Peterborough, Ont., Jan. 6.—(CP)—For the first time in 18 years the annual meeting of the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association has been cancelled because the government demands on the provincial treasury.

Minister of Agriculture Manzer Pollock said the government's grant to the association by 50 percent last year and he was unable to appropriate any money for the convention scheduled for this week.

Some of the members were in favor of holding the annual meeting without government assistance but a decision to discontinue the meeting was adopted.

HUNGERFORD MAN FOUND DEAD IN CELLAR OF HOME

SEEN EARLY SATURDAY

A post mortem was performed on the body of Francis Cassibo, 40, of Hungerford, found dead in the cellar of his home on the tenth concession of that township late Saturday afternoon, by Dr. Ellis Ponton, who to divulge their findings until the inquest is held. The inquest will be conducted by Dr. George H. Stokes and W. E. Kennedy, K.C., in an effort to determine the cause of death and approximately how long he had been dead before being found.

Although there was in the home in which he lived with Mrs. Helen Carson, mother of Cassibo's wife, Miss Olive Carson, a sister of Cassibo's wife and three younger children of tender years, no suspicion of foul play had been heard nor anything, that would arouse their suspicions. One of the children on occasion to go to the cellar on Saturday afternoon, found the body of young man lying in a pool of blood with a gunshot wound in his leg. Nearby was a shot gun and three empty shells but it has been established that only one shot was fired into the leg.

Seen Early Saturday

Cassibo was last seen at the home of R. C. Conin about four thirty on Saturday morning. With his wife he attended a dance in the Hungerford Hall about one thirty left the dance to proceed to his home. It has been learned that Mrs. Helen Carson stopped at several neighbors on the way home to tell that her son-in-law had left the dance. Later arrived at the Conin residence, Mrs. Carson decided to spend the night and Mr. Cassibo proceeded as was supposed towards his home and he was not seen alive again.

A short time ago Cassibo was charged before a Justice of the Peace Lloyd of Northbrook at Tweed for a breach of the Lord's Day Act and had a still for the manufacture of illicit liquor. He was fined $100 and costs or in default one of months in the county jail. Cassibo was unable to pay his fine and requested of the court, that he be allowed to put his business affairs in order before he commenced serving his term. That term has never been served.

Police Investigate

As soon as the information was received by Provincial Police headquarters in this city, Sergeant Harry E. Thompson, who is acting Inspector during the absence of Inspector Gardner from the city, proceeded to the scene of the fatality. Dr. Ellis Ponton, coroner, conducted on the assumption, that the man had committed suicide by shooting but the fact, that only one wound was found in the leg and that there simply shells lying near the body led the police to believe there might have been foul play. The investigation is proceeding and every clue that is being traced to its conclusion. His movements from the time he left the Conin residence until his body was found dead in the cellar will be investigated. The women of the household are questioned by Sergeant Thompson as to any disturbance, that they may have heard.

The victim of the fatality is well known in that community, having lived there practically all his life. He was not known to have any enemies and for the time being his death is being investigated from the standpoint of suicide. Inquest will be held on Tuesday from his home in Hungerford Township.

According to the story told the police by his wife, the couple attended a dance on Saturday night, leaving the hall at 1.30 a.m. She said that at that time her husband was intoxicated on the reaching the home of a neighbour, where they had been visiting and pany him further. That was, according to her testimony, the last time she saw him alive. Mrs. Cassibo told that the husband had a quarrelsome nature, particularly during periods of drinking, and that she had anticipated abuse on their arrival home after the dance. While she admitted fright at his actions, she said she knew nothing of the circumstances of the tragedy.

Francis Cassibo was born at Otter Creek, in Hungerford Township, where he had lived all his life with the exception of a short period spent in the Village of Tweed. A son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Cassibo, he was 23 years of age. Surviving are one sister, Mrs. (Frank Murray of Niagara Falls, Ont., and two brothers, Fred of Otter Creek, Stafford of Queensboro, Joseph of Brockville, Patrick of Cobourg, and Oakley of Brockville. There are six children, Cecil, Pauline, June, Lawrence and Ronald.

Says U.S. Wealth Built on Conquest, And Extermination of Races

Mussolini Believed to Have Inspired Blistering Editorial Which Assails U. S. Gang Rule And Hints at Intervention

ROME, Jan. 6.—(AP)—Fascists today saw the hand of Premier Mussolini behind a blistering editorial criticism of President Roosevelt's neutrality policy, written by the noted editor, Virginio Gayda, in the Giornale D'Italia.

Gayda's comments was mentioned but many said Gayda never would have dared to have published such statements without governmental approval.

1.—United States wealth was "absolutely based on conquest, during which they exterminated all colored and native races."

2. Roosevelt Democracy "nevertheless has not known how to dampen the rage of gangsterism and finally Lindbergh, America's National hero, has been obliged to seek safety for his child in voluntary exile across the ocean."

Gayda's attempt at American intervention in European and League affairs establishes a precedent for intervention by Europe or other continents in American affairs.

A.A.A. Program Killed By U.S. Supreme Court

Sweeping Decision Upsets Agricultural Adjustment Act

FARM PRICES

(By James W. Doulzal)

Washington, Jan. 6.—(AP)—In a sweeping decision, the Supreme court today ruled the entire AAA program was unconstitutional.

In an opinion written by Justice Roberts, the original "Adjustment Act (acted on the "all forces of States Rights" and beyond Federal power under the "General Welfare" clause.

If the Farm Aid Legislation were valid, he said, it would be possible for congress "to regulate industry in its most meticulous forms".

Specialization Rife

Speculation how the Presidential campaign would be affected stirred instantly when the news reached the Capitol. Agriculture is the basic farm from the in dness of the moment examination of the 1936-37 new deal budget is expected over the possibilities.

Republican determination on farm plank alternatives long had been awaiting the Supreme Court decision.

What the new deal would do was awaited eagerly.

Secretary Wallace reserved comment.

Councils of War Called

It was indicated there would not be any reply immediately from the administration. Councils of war were called.

President Roosevelt learned of the turn but also had nothing to say.

Roberts said the farm plan was "not in essence voluntary".

"It had a compulsory purpose," he declared.

The decision was 6 to 3.

Justices Stone, Brandeis and Cardozo dissented.

Obligations

Presumably, the government will seek to find a way to pay approximately $500,000,000 due on contracts still unpaid.

Federal lawyers have indicated belief these can be considered binding governmental obligations.

Roberts said the AAA amendments enacted last August over the difference as Congress could not vitally something it did not have the power to do originally.

"Congress might redistribute the excise burden if it finds if this Act were upheld," he said seriously.

"The United States government could destroy itself."

Dissenting Opinion

As soon as he finished Justice Stone read the dissenting opinion.

"The present stress of widely held views as to the wisdom of legislation is not a difference of opinion of the wisdom of the Agricultural Adjustment Act makes it important, in the interest of clear thinking and sound results," he said, "to emphasize at the outset certain fundamental limitations on the controlling influence in determining the validity of the Act.

"The power of courts to declare a statute unconstitutional is subject to two guiding principles of decision which ought never to be absence from judicial consciousness.

"One is that courts are concerned only with the power to enact statutes not with their wisdom.

"The other is that while unconstitutional exercise of power by the executive and legislative branches of the government is subject to judicial restraint, the only check upon our exercise of power is our own sense of self-restraint.

Appeal to Ballot

"For the removal of unwise laws from the statute books appeal lies not to the courts but to the ballot and to the processes of democratic government."

2. The constitutional power of Congress to levy an excise tax upon the processing of agricultural products is not disputed.

The announced goal of the A.A.A. had been to give farmers "parity" prices for their products.

Parity prices were considered those which would enable the farmer to obtain the same amount of manufactured goods they could have bought in the pre-war years for crops brought in on the average between 1909 and 1914.

Parity prices also were described as the "fair exchange value."

Farm Prices 30 Per Cent. Parity

A recent A.A.A. compilation showed the average prices of farmers for their products was averaging 86 per cent. parity, or within 14 per cent. parity of the same date in 1935.

The A.A.A. attempted, it was said, to make benefit payments which, added to the farm values for crops would give the farmers a parity price income for their labors.

Only today President Roosevelt informed Congress he was "encouraged" by the "encouraging" status to that of regular government activity. For his budget he asked appropriation of $440,000,000 to carry it through the fiscal year beginning July 1.

Since May, 1933, over $1,127,000,000 has been paid farmers for crop adjustments. The corn-hog program alone, he estimates, amounting to $378,000,000.

Meal packers, wheat millers and cotton manufacturers paid in about two-thirds of the processing taxes. The last figures showed levies collected were $218,900,000, wheat, $243,139,394, and wheat, $247,226,746.

RABBITS, PHEASANTS ARE SEEN IN CITY

Brantford, Ont., Jan. 6.—(CP)—After midnight and at dawn it is not unusual here at this time of the year to see pheasants and rabbits on city streets in town, three and flocks. This morning three rotentails were disporting on lawn of Brantford's stock of pheasants was routed from a backyard.

FINANCES OF U.S. BEST IN 7 YEARS PRESIDENT SAYS

$ Billions Needed to Run All Branches of Government

EARNING POWER UP

Steadily Decreasing Deficits to Turn Into Rising Surplus'

(By Francis M. Stephenson, Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Jan. 6.—(AP)—A Treasury deficit exceeding $1,500,000,000—without counting unestimated new relief costs—was forecast to Congress by President Roosevelt today for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

Unprecedentedly, he withheld a complete budget estimate on how much the United States Government would spend in the fiscal year beginning July 1. For the present he listed $6,752,000,000 but said additions of the work-relief money would be forthcoming.

He gave notice that next year's deficit—and the public debt—would mount accordingly.

Figures High Deficit

Just now, Mr. Roosevelt foresaw a deficit at the end of the 1936-37 period of $21,351,638,737. This would be an all time high.

The message was a hint of readiness to meet demands from the opposition for an immediate balanced budget.

"To run all the regular activities of the Government," Mr. Roosevelt said in the message read from the rostrum to Senate and House members, "it will need a total of $5,960,000,000."

This figure put forward as a new standard for the Government's permanent operating costs as distinguished from "emergency" outlays, exceeded comparative "regular" costs of recent years by around $2,000,000,000.

In a new expression of policy, Mr. Roosevelt moved Federal Public Works, the Civilian Conservation Corps and Agricultural Adjustment Payments from the category of "emergency" to "regular" activities. Thereby he justified the change, he said.

Even the new high level of "regular" expenditures, it was said, would leave a $4,000,000 surplus of revenue during the period as a result of "increased earning power and productivity of the nation from the new farm and the new taxes imposed."

In defense of New Deal financial policies, Mr. Roosevelt added:

"The national income is important at its highest. The average business men of the nation stand ready to do their share.

"It is to be hoped that the motive is not attacked when only from the desire for political or financial power on the part of the critic to retain the steady progress we are making.

"There is general knowledge that steadily decreasing deficits will turn in time into steadily increasing surpluses. And this is the deficit of today which is making possible the enormous expenditures for purposes the course that we have mapped."

The figures had been explained by him Saturday to more than 100 members of his office. His "policy get school for reporters," popping with questions and answers, lasted more than two hours.

United States Will Raise All-Time Record Peace Budget

BILLION REQUIRED

Work Will be Continued on 94 Naval Vessels Building

Washington, Jan. 6.—(AP)—A National Defence budget of nearly $1,000,000,000 — largest peacetime sum ever asked for strictly military and naval purposes —went to the United States Congress today from President Roosevelt.

He estimated $527,791,986 would be required in the 1936-37 fiscal year for both the army and navy. A $183,000,000 increase over estimated 1936 expenditures would be devoted largely to the acquisition of new fighting ships, aircraft and personnel in the year starting July 1.

Taking notice of the bill's progress at the London Naval Conference toward a new limitations agreement, he asked Congress to provide $567,873,400 for the navy, much of which would be used to build the five to full treaty strength by 1942.

For the army, provision was asked for purchase of 507 new airplanes, more tanks, armoured and combat cars, an increase in the number of West Point Cadets and in the National Guard.

In connection with naval outlays, a White House analysis said, carryover and emergency funds would make $621,900,000 available for new spending compared with $603,500,000 in 1936.

"These estimates," it said, "represent the minimum amount considered necessary to maintain the navy as an efficient military unit."

Counting unexpended balances, the $621,900,000 would be available for 1937 to provide for continuing work on the 94 naval vessels now under construction and for beginning work on 32 more ships and six submarines to be laid down at the beginning of the 1937 fiscal year compared with $253,000,000 for 1936.

WOMAN ARRESTED WHEELING CHILD TOWARDS RIVER

Insane Woman Laughs Eerily When Questioned on Drowning

GIGGLES AT POLICE

Gussie Friedman, 45, Held in New York—Has Spent 20 Years in Asylums

New York, Jan. 6.—(AP)—Police and psychiatrists attempted to wring today from the startling utterances of an insane woman the story of the disappearance of six months old Jacob Horowitz, whom they feared had been drowned.

Gussie Friedman, 45, who has spent 20 years in asylums, was held for questioning after she was apprehended pushing a child toward the icy East river.

Police sought to learn if she kidnapped the son of Mr. and Mrs. Max Horowitz from in front of his home and left there yesterday and dumped him with his carriage in the river. She laughed eerily at all questions and replied only "nine o'clock."

Four hundred searchers, recruited from the neighborhood where the baby's parents live, searched vacant cellars and flats for the infant. Police launches joined the hunt on the river.

Louis Schnier gave the information which resulted in Mrs. Friedman's detention. While he was watching his son out for an airing, he said he saw a leering woman with a "sunk-in" face peering into the stolen baby's new clothes.

When Mrs. Horowitz came to look for the baby a few minutes later, the woman was gone.

Four high school boys, aiding in the search, sighted Miss Friedman half an hour later wheeling Doris Mailin, 3, in her carriage toward the river. They seized the child.

The woman laughed, backed up against a garage and was taken into custody by police.

Detectives said Miss Friedman was carrying a card identifying her as a former patient of the Creedmore hospital for the insane three months ago.

Seclusion is Found in Wales; Lindberghs May Go to Spain

Llandaff, Wales, Jan. 6 (AP) —A squad of half a dozen police protected the Welsh retreat of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and his family today, assuring them the seclusion they craved since the kidnap-slaying of their first child in the British Isles. They rented today in the home of J. Llewellyn Morgan, father of Aubrey Nie Morgan, brother-in-law of Mrs. Lindbergh.

Three detectives guarded the grounds of the Morgan home in this suburb of Cardiff, on the southern coast of Wales; two uniformed officers patrolled the streets on bicycles and another watched over the district from a police car.

Madrid dispatches said rumors the Lindbergh family seek another temporary haven in Spain were strengthened by reported negotiations on their behalf to purchase a small estate on Spain's Mediterranean "Costa Brava."

Twelve Hogs Burned In Fire at Tweed

Fire destroyed the out buildings and pig pen containing twelve pigs, the property of Constable Tufts, five miles south of Tweed on the Belleville-Tweed road Sunday evening. The family was not home at the time and when the alarm was given the Tweed Fire Department and Constable Hayes came quickly to the scene. Their efforts succeeded in saving the barn and the house from being in the right direction to avoid spreading the flames. No insurance was carried on the buildings lost in the fire.

Crippled War Veteran Travels 40,000 Miles On Foot Since War

Jean de Vaudreuil, 48-year-old Belgian adventurer, well known to Belleville residents, who left his native land in 1920 "to see the world" is now wending the final stages of his long hike. The hardy adventurer passed through Belleville this winter and is now far to the west.

Claiming to have tramped through every country in the world except Mexico, in an interview with the Daily Ontario Intelligencer the Belgian declared that he was on his way to the southern border then After he has seen Mexico he will write a book of his travels, he added.

Although handicapped by the loss of his left leg and by an open wound sagging in France during the Great War he declared that he had covered nearly 40,000 miles on foot since he started his journey. He travels from 15 to 18 miles each day in spite of his artificial leg. During his travels he has filled 44 note books with accounts of his travels and has one of the most complete autograph books.

HEADACHE SAVES FAMILY OF FIVE

Mrs. Degroat Spreads Alarm to Save House-hold

Toronto, Jan. 6.—(CP)—Five persons here today owed their lives to a headache. For bad throbbing and aching of his long hike. The harsh adventurer passed through Belleville this winter and is now far to the west. Charles M. Degroat awakened and spread the alarm that saved her husband, her two children and a neighbor from certain death by asphyxiation from furnace fumes.

Mr. Degroat and the two children, Helen, 13, and Melvin, 16, were unconscious when Mrs. Degroat with the aid of S. P. Dalton, a roomer, pulled them from their beds and dragged them to an open window. The women then managed to stagger to a telephone and ask the operator for help.

An inhalator had to be used on Mr. Degroat and the two children.

Court Will be Asked to Decide If Estate of H.W. Vermilyea Will Share in Mother's Will

Inventory Showed Assets of $47,524 to be Divided in Four Equal Shares

DIED INTESTATE

Toronto, Jan. 6.—Notice of motion has been filed at Osgoode Hall that an application will be made on June 16 on behalf of the executors of the will of the late Catherine Aurelia Vermilyea of Belleville, mmgeored by her son, Harold Worden Vermilyea, on October 8, 1934, for an order that the official guardian represent Catherine Aurelia Vermilyea, 18, and Nathaniel Vermilyea, 15, children of Harold Worden Vermilyea, and Clarice Vermilyea, formerly the wife of H. W. Vermilyea, Jr.

The court will be asked to decide: (a) If the estate of Harold Worden Vermilyea is entitled to any share or interest under the will of Catherine Aurelia Vermilyea.

(b) If the estate of H. W. Vermilyea is entitled to any share or interest in the estate, to whom and in what proportion is it payable.

To Whom Dees It Go?

(c) In the event that H. W. Vermilyea is not entitled to any share or interest, then to what party or parties does the beneficial interest in the estate of Catherine Aurelia Vermilyea vest, and in what proportion is the interest in the residue, which, by her will, was directed to be paid to H. W. Vermilyea.

An executor, in an affidavit, sets out that he and H. W. Vermilyea were named as executors of the estate of Catherine Aurelia Vermilyea. He declares the inventory at probate showed assets of $47,524.

In Will by Son

The affidavit says that, so far as is known, no application for probate of the will of Catherine Aurelia Vermilyea, or any application for administration of the estate has been made in Ontario.

So far as the executor is aware, H. W. Vermilyea is domiciled and now resids in Ontario, California.

Charles Ernest Payne, K.C., of Belleville, who was retained by "H. W. Vermilyea in connection with the estate of Catherine Aurelia Vermilyea advised him, prior to his execution on May 1, 1934, that he had made no will. Mr. Payne believes he died intestate.

ELECTRIC ORGAN ABOUT READY FOR EXHIBITION

Mr. Morse Robb Has Been Working on Invention Since 1921

Working steadily toward its perfection since 1921 in the city here Trenton, Morse Robb, well known local resident, will present his new style "wave organ" for public exhibition in Toronto within the next couple of months. The new type organ, which is at present found only in churches, theatres and mansions of the wealthy will soon be available for the average home, in the hope of the youthful inventor.

Mr. Robb previously constructed an experimental organ which created the interest and encouragement of Mr. Ernest Manning and Dr. Harry Robb. In the final model Mr. Robb has incorporated many new features. The instrument which depends upon electrical impulses for its tone production is without the customary bulky pipes and is but a small fraction of the conventional piano. The idea of the instrument was first conceived by Mr. Robb and he has spent all the perfection of power amplification for expert performance. Mr. Robb at present has a force of seven men at work on the machines at his home on the Trent Road.

DARTMOUTH EASY FOR McGILL TEAM

Score is 12-2 Against Team Not Defeated This Season

RYE, N.Y., Jan. 6.— (CP) — Brimful of confidence born of a 12-2 shellacking they gave the Dartmouth Indians, McGill University hockey team moved into New Haven today to meet Yale Bulldogs tonight in the second game of their United States invasion.

The Canadian Redmen shirked their usual goal hog role in the first, one-sided period. They added four more in the second before the befuddled Indian could snare home two in their own cause.

Campbell Dickinson snapped the Indians with greater gusto than his teammates, rattling in five goals. Clayton Crosby and Tom More got two apiece, while Roland Lamb, John Ugle and John Ellis scored the others. Cruichfield and Pidcock each has four assists.

Police Believe Animals Out All Night Without Covering

"TWO MEN HELD"

A small sedan greeted Magistrate R. J. Deacon, K.C., today in police court, David Sharkey and Joseph Sharkey, both of Tweed, charged with the theft of a team of horses valued at $300.00 from Alphonse Deseve, Madoc, discovered by Constable Hayes, who tracked them. The horses had been allowed to shift out all night in the cold and rain without covering. The Constable stated today David Sharkey was alleged to have in his possession at the time of his arrest some illicit liquor or "moonshine" and it was stated by the officer, that he would be charged with a breach of the Excise Act, when he appeared on Fri day before Magistrate Lloyd Northbrook, at Tweed.

Liquor Control Case

Matthew Corby convicted of a breach of the Liquor Control Act and it being his second offence within six months was fined $50.00 and costs or thirty days in default. The same man was charged with a breach of the Canada Shipping Act for having mash for the manufacture of illicit liquor and pleading guilty was fined $100 and costs or three months in default. The two months and concurrent an additional month. The amount was paid in full pay and will serve four months "on the hill."

Theft Not Admitted

Richard Knicker, Bonarlaw, elected summary trial on charges of theft to the theft of seven turkeys from Earl Barry on Christmas Eve and on November 9th last and also the theft of 23 hens from the coop of Allen Thompson on the same date. Knicker pleaded "not guilty" to a charge of breaking, entering and theft into the Marmora in June or July but when it was explained by S. C. Donahue, Crown Attorney, that he was in for "lookout" was the same as actually taking part in the breakin, the accused changed his plea to "guilty" on the request of Mr. Donahue and was remanded till January 16th for sentence.

Trevern Marlow of Tilsonburg also elected summary trial and pleaded guilty to theft of $5.00 in Rawdon Township, his being a partner of Knocker in the depredations and was also remanded for one week for sentence. A lengthy record was read. It is to be noted that Marlow has been convicted in Simcoe of theft of fowl and sentenced to six months in jail on April 4th, 1935, and also was convicted of theft and sentenced to three months in jail on June 6th after the fire was discovered.

Fred Hamilton, Madoc, was fined $50.00 and $5.60 costs, when he pleaded guilty to intoxication. It was his second offence.

FOUR BODIES ARE FOUND IN RUINS

Van Dusen Hotel in Westfield Mass. Prey to Flames

Westfield, Mass. Jan. 6 (AP) — Firemen recovered four bodies and searched for five others today in the smouldering ruins of the Van Deusen Hotel, transformed three weeks ago from an old residence. The three-storey, brick - veneer structure, opened last month by Carroll Van Deusen for permanent guests, burned like matchwood last night.

The bodies of Henry Van Deusen, 57, one of the proprietors; Geo. Alexander, 72, Henry's grandfather; Miss Nathalie H. Jones, hotel manager, and Mrs. Minnie C. James, a widow, were taken from the blazing building about midnight, an hour after the fire was discovered.

Fire Chief Thomas F. Mahoney said the missing were: Miss M. Grace Pickett, Miss Bessie J. Mahler, Mrs. Elizabeth Dunbar, Dolly Bernardino and a room-mate of Bernardino whose name was not known.

Resident of Island Is Attacked by Owl

Houghton, Mich., Jan. 6.—(CP)— The coast guard cutter Crawford has reached Isle Royale in Lake Superior with medical aid for an injured resident of the island, attacked by an owl.

It plowed through icy seas from Duluth, Minn., to within a mile of the island on Saturday before being notified by radio an owl had attacked Arthur Nourkonen, 32, possibly destroying his left eye. Nourkonen was carried over the ice to the cutter. Then it was expected to take the injured man to the nearest hospital.

The owl, apparently enraged by hunger, inflicted numerous head injuries on Nourkonen. The bird was described as having a 53-inch wingspread.

BASIC INSURANCE RATE REDUCTION

Registration Held

The number of relief was indicated by the statement that 1971 persons were receiving relief during March 1771 one year ago. The mayor expressed the view that there is little dishonesty in receiving of aid, "but to gvoid the very appearance of evil I am going to recommend a new registration of all those upon relief and shall insist upon a thorough-going publicity as to the merits of each individual application."

Ballentine held out as an easy place of refuge for those who are too lazy to work and who show little or no whatever in trying to secure jobs for themselves, or those who work through the summer months at remunerative wages and spend their earnings in extravagant fashion, then look to the city to keep them through the winter, or for other reasons such as motor-cars for pleasure and enjoy the luxuries of life at the public expense.

No Weak Sentimentality

"The towns, villages and country settlements show far greater practical interest in relief, which is right than the cities are displaying. The smaller centres of population do not propose to suffer or go hungry. But, at the same time, they are not going to be weak sentimentally and do not grant relief on a scale that will be unfair to those not try to keep up with those who would fat rather starve than work."

Mayor Bill promised study of the problem of those who will not be in receipt of relief at the belief that easier and more lavish provision is made for those receiving public benefactions.

Gas Works Situation

The mayor also promised close study of the gas plant situation. He favored the aggressive policy for acquirement of new industries and suggested that the board study how the esplanade project would be carried out. Steps would be taken to secure a reduction in basic insurance rates now suggested.

Belleville council this year marks its centennial year, he said.

Alibi of Chiropodist Stands Police Probe

Chicago, Jan. 6.—(AP)—Arthur S. Thompson, a chiropodist, who admitted to chief of Detectives John Lyle, Miss Ruth Gunnebelle, Dillinger's weeks ago with Dr. Silber C. Peacock, brutally and Friday night while answering a "mercy call", offered an alibi which the police said today had been thoroughly checked correct.

The chiropodist told the authorities he accused Dr. Peacock of paying attention to his estranged wife and of quarreling with him about a girl.

The suspect offered an alibi to prove he was in the apartment building where he lived at the time of the killing. He was held for further examination.

HUNT FOR FISHING TUG

Chicago, Jan. 6 (AP)—The coast guard cutter Bush headed into Lake Michigan in search for the 60-foot Hibbing tug Walter Joy, missing with five men aboard.

The tug went out for perch at nine-l.m. Saturday and when it failed to return fear was felt it had been laid in ice fields. She was commanded by Capt. Jens Andersen.

Those who were absent on Sunday were Douglas Lockey; Mur ray Locke; Donald Locke.

Tweed and District

The inhibi meeting of the W.M.S. of the United Church was devoted to receiving reports of the secretaries of the various departments for the preceding year. The opening exercises were conducted by the president, Mrs. C. Barnett. The following reports were given:—

Missionary—Mrs. W. J. McCutcheon.

Group No. 7—Miss Mary Logan.

Corresponding Secretary — Mrs. W. H. Hicks.

Financial Secretary—Mrs. J. W. Reynolds.

Missionary Monthly Secretary — Mrs. W. J. Grier, which showed an increase of thirteen subscribers.

Temperance Secretary — Mrs. W. H. Sayers.

Temperance Secretary — Mrs. J. W. McGowan.

Peace Secretary—Mrs. Kleinsteuber.

Literature Secretary—Mrs. A. W. McGuire.

A discussion was held regarding the method of dealing with the Study Book for the new year. The matter was left in the hands of the executive.

Solo "Only Believe"—Mrs. H. Grier.

Letters of appreciation were received from Mrs. W. H. Richardson and Mrs. S. G. Way. Mrs. W. S. Gordon expressed to the 1935 officers the thanks of the W.M.S. for their splendid services.

Miss Marion Cook, a former member of the congregation present to her friend, the late Rev. C. Coon, was pastor of the United Church and now a missionary in China, had a fascinating escape from a recent earthquake which affected a large area and destroyed hundreds of lives. The following despatch was received from Changtu:

"Safe and well. Escaping earthquake record. Thanking you for awards for regular attendance at Sunday morning services were:

Returning to Changtu after her station at Changking in West China, the home of Peterboro, in mission service with the United Church, she happened to escape the area laid waste by the recent earthquake by a matter of a few days. She is concluding her second term of mission service in China and has been living there for the past twelve years. She is superintendent of a boarding school for girls at Changking. Changking about 250 miles from the centre of the earthquake which took hundreds of lives. Miss Coon will visit her mother, Mrs. Emily Coon, at Aylmer also, Peterborough, when she returns to Canada on furlough this Easter.

"THE BRIDE"

Text of Mayor Harry Hill's Address on Inauguration

Belleville, Ont., Monday, January 6, 1936.

Fellow Citizens, Ladies and Gentlemen:

Allow me first of all to express my deep sense of gratitude to the citizens of Belleville who have by their ballots placed me in the most highest official honor within their power to bestow.

That honor, as you know, came to me as the result of an exceedingly strenuous campaign in which three well known, popular and worthy citizens were my opponents for the position. I therefore appreciate all the more deeply the outstanding expression of confidence.

Appreciation of Ex-Mayor Tice

Had this time I desire to pay tribute to my immediate predecessor in office, Mr. George O. Tice, who for a period of six years as alderman and for a four-year term as mayor, gave distinguished service to the city. He presided over the civic administration through what has been admittedly one of the most difficult and trying periods in our history and in the course he achieved worth the leading gratitude of every citizen. You will all unite with me in the sincere hope that he may have an early and complete restoration to health and be able to look forward to many years of useful effort.

Next Presidents

I take pleasure as the official head of your civic administration, not as one who is unacquainted with municipal affairs or who has no knowledge of conditions in this city, but as one who has for many years established himself in business here twenty-one years ago, to announce that I have entered upon my duties in the deliberation of the city council as a business proposition. During all those years I have endeavored to discharge my duties as an alderman, as a responsible property-owner and as a public citizen. What success I had, I will be even more zealous and devoted to the public weal in the present executive ability, that must now be mine.

Concern Over Tax-Rate

Looking ahead to what is evidently before us, I am sure that we can plainly see certain facts and conditions that must be faced by every thoughtful citizen with the greatest concern. It requires no profound study of our affairs to realize that we cannot go on adding to our debt, increasing our tax-rate and spending far more than our revenue justifies without meeting financial disaster. These problems must be wisely and courageously faced. We will most certainly find ourselves in the same position as a number of other Ontario municipalities where there has been compulsory supervision of the civic affairs without complete default and repudiation.

Burden Too Heavy

The paramount problem, therefore, that must be solved by Council of 1936 is how to devise ways and means to make our revenues meet our expenditures, to begin to reduce our bonded debt and to establish such policies that will alleviate our staggering burden of taxation. The excessive tax imposed has already loaded many people beyond their power to pay and real estate values have pretty well vanished. The present policy of previous councils and school boards must now be met by the most rigid economy and retrenchment, wherever such measures are practicable and possible.

I do not intend to quote many figures, for figures frequently confuse rather than elucidate. I shall merely mention a few totals in our financial affairs that the gravity of our position may be more clearly understood.

Net Debenture Debt

The total of our debenture debt as at January 1st, 1936, is $1,120,000. Against this may be placed the sinking fund of the sinking fund, at the same date, of $683,200.00 leaving our net debt, $436,800.00.

The estimated gross revenue required by our city last year from all sources was $1,360,000.00. Of this total, $134,100.00 was handed over to the Public Board to meet this requisition. Of the remainder, $418,000.00 was for the payment of matured debentures, interest account and other fixed charges, thus leaving only $100,000.00 or 11½ per cent of controllable expenditure by the City Council.

In that comparatively small balance the City Council has its only opportunity to reduce expenditure as far as it is possible and reasonable to do so. We will attack the problem and hope to establish about results amply worth while. We our selves for the task of trying to save for the fact that last year St. Agnes Manor was sold for a fair sum and that amount applied to the general revenue. That extraordinary source of income will be missing this year.

One of the principal sources of expenditure has been the Department of Public Works. In 1934 this Department spent a total of $34,-777.79. But in 1935, due to the increase of economy and efficiency introduced by Ald. Safe, the total expenditure for Public Works was only $18,317.66, a reduction for the year of $6,500.00 or 39 per cent.

Relief Handled Better

By far the most disturbing and difficult problem that confronted the Council was Public Relief. We have looked hopefully forward each year to some solution of the general conditions that would eventually relieve the municipality of this heavy burden. But the condition still faces us as a serious one.

In 1934, we spent a total of $168,-920.00 in relief direct and indirect. In 1935 the total was $150,000.00. The total was $136,900.00. Of this latter amount the Federal and provincial governments contributed 3-5 less administration leaving the net cost to the City $54,760.00, provided by Belleville taxpayers. At Jan. 1, 1936, there were 1,775 persons in receipt of relief. At Jan. 1, 1935, there were 1,871 persons in receipt of relief. At Jan. 1, 1936, there were 1,571. It now looks as if we would have to meet this condition for several years to come but let us hope that it will be a diminishing burden.

Meritorious Cases

It is unthinkable that we should allow those who, through no fault of their own, have been reduced to penury and want, to suffer for lack of the necessaries of life. During the winter, economic conditions and depressed business activities brought hardship and misery to many. Many have been cases of hunger rather than to make any appeal for charity or public assistance. Such cases appeal not only our sympathy, but sufficient to meet their urgent needs. To this end no effort will fail.

But there is another class, and one of considerable proportions, that employs the machinery of public relief to its own advantage. Court records show that there has been a deliberate and cold-blooded fraud upon the part of those who have sought relief.

In my own opinion there has been but little of dishonesty in the case of those in receipt of relief. In order to avoid the very appearance of evil, I will ask for the appointment of new registration of all those upon relief and the issuing of new tickets after carrying on extravagant living and habits since 1931. Only by keep them through the winter, or that other class who are simply looking for pleasure and enjoy the luxuries of life at t ehpublic expense.

Some villages and other county settlements show far greater practical wisdom in dealing with relief than the cities are displaying. The atmosphere of comfort generally does not allow anybody to suffer or go hungry. But, at the same time, they are not unduly relieved or unscrupulously and do not grant relief in a way that is little short of luxury. They do not try to keep an eye on those who would far rather stay on relief than work.

How Towns Manage Relief

The Napanee Beaver has recently published a report of the Department of Social Welfare administered by the town council. The report shows that in the last month of November there were only 46 families in receipt of relief. The relief and the total cost for the whole month of November to support those on relief was only $138. Napanee, be it observed, has more than a quarter of Belleville's population.

In the Village of Stirling there is at present only one family in receipt of relief. Several other incorporated villages and townships have no recipients of relief whatever.

Newspapers Aid Relief Under Fire

It is a fact capable of easy demonstration that numerous localities have moved into Belleville because of the belief that easier and more lucrative living prevailed here for those receiving public assistance.

It is my purpose and determination that this whole problem be thoroughly investigated and to take such measures as will discourages immorality at the earliest possible date from attempting to raid on the public treasury.

I do believe, however, that some provision should be made for the unemployed single men, in the winter season, so that they can obtain board and lodging cost at a boarding house or some such place, and not be compelled to resort to panhandling or soliciting food from door to door. At times the police officials are quite as likely to be out of employment as are those who are unemployed.

Public works, undertaken on the principle of relief, should be such as have permanent value. The drilling of wells, the laying of sewers and the huge expenditure, exceeding $100,000, on Zwick's Island, have no possible permanently value. A way of public necessity or lasting utilitarian value.

Esplanade Project

As the years go by, we have come to realize what a mistake was made by the council of 1891, when, by a majority of one vote, the Council refused to take up the thoroughly practical and possible permanently value Esplanade proposal. A splendid opportunity to serve the public welfare was there and then lost or indefinitely postponed. The Esplanade would have completely solved our railway problem. Instead of which we would have created a scene of beauty in the heart of the city. Instead we would have brought about a building program that would have lasted for a whole generation. It would have reduced the fire risk and enhanced property values. Because of donations of real estate all of the railway, industrial and passenger by the federal and provincial governments, the cost to the city would have been practically nothing with the benefits to be received. I hope that within reasonable time this highly beneficial project will be revived.

Parking Problem

The mention of the Esplanade brings to mind the still unsolved parking problem. It is my opinion that the solution is high time we looked this question square in the face. I am in favor of measures to alleviate a situation that is extremely unsatisfactory. I am in favor of a time-limit for parking in the business area. I also suggest the closure of the eastern parking yards along the river-bank where they are not unduly served by and scarcely parked. Appropriate signs at the entrance to the Bridge and location of the yards would indicate many people to use these convenient spaces rather than to seek parking accommodation in distant streets.

The development of a comprehensive plan to improve the unsightly waterfront along the north shore of the Bay of Quinte merits careful consideration.

There is also the playground on the north side of Bridge Street, and near the easterly limit of the city, where much good could be done as small expense by way of levelling, draining and otherwise improving the convenient but little used park and recreation ground for children.

Gas Plant Issue

I fear we will be compelled to give early and serious consideration to our gas-plant, now held and administered by the Ontario Hydro Gas Company. As our citizens are aware from time to time property was sold by the city July 1, 1931, for $325,000, to the company just mentioned. Upon this principal sum a cash payment was made of $94,422 and a mortgage given for $230,577. Subsequent payments have reduced the mortgage to $215,586. The company now owes the city $10,814 in the form of unpaid taxes on its transmission line of 25,000 volts, the whole situation in reference to the gas plant will of necessity be given earnest consideration by this year's council.

The Council will make every endeavor to persuade the undertaking to refund the base-rate for fire insurance in Belleville. The purchase of a satisfactory pumper and the introduction of many other improvements in efficiency throughout the system warrant more generous treatment in the matter of rates than has been received from the insurance authorities.

Industrial Campaign

It will be our policy in 1936, as it has been in the past, to carry on a vigorous and aggressive policy for the acquisition of new manufacturing industries. The remarkable results achieved in the past few years in attracting here the Canadian branches of a number of the largest American industrial corporations has been an outstanding factor in maintaining our population and giving support to large numbers of employees and their families. These corporations bring money here, not only from all parts of Canada, but from the entire British Empire and many foreign countries as well. Notwithstanding that we have sustained, because of the removal of so many families connected with the railways and because of changes in industrial conditions, our population has not only been maintained but has steadily increased. Statistics are looked upon as life-blood of any modern city. We shall do well to maintain and, if possible, add to the enviable record already established by aggressively seeking further industrial and manufacturing expansion.

Centenary of First Council

It is worthy to note that the year 1936 will be the centenary of the first municipal Council in the office of Belleville's first municipal Council. Belleville was incorporated as a police village on March the 9th, 1836, by an Act passed by the legislature of Upper Canada. But, owing to a defect in the description of the boundaries, the practical effect was not elected until this omission was corrected by a subsequent Act passed on April 20th, 1836. Belleville will therefore, consequently celebrate years of continuous municipal existence this present year, 1936.

The first officials were: George Benjamin, Jr., Clerk; Henry Ayvil, treasurer; D. B. Sole, treasury and surveyor; Hiram Pulford, assessor; Henry Ayvil and Hiram Pulford, constables.

Citizen's Co-operation Sought

I have strong faith in the wisdom and practical common sense of the electorate and I hope you have elected to cooperate with me in our work this coming year. It will be my aim to conduct the council meetings with dignity and decorum and each debate, long arguments over trivialities, asking for grandstand approval and personal hunting will be energetically discouraged.

Visitors in the council chamber, during the progress of meetings, will be most welcome, but I shall with helpful suggestions and criticism that is constructive in character, but they will be requested to still.

Success is a collective achievement. If the council of 1936 is to succeed, it will only be as the result of the work of your mayor that such a result will come about. The mayor is merely the executive officer. Decisions must be made by the entire council. Every individual member of the council has his own duties to perform and his individual course to pursue. If we have harmony and an earnest endeavor to serve the best interests of city, regardless of what such a course may mean to personal opinion, we may then look for a year of real accomplishment. But back of the council we need the loyal support of the great body of citizenship, if we are to have a council and a united citizenship, we may then move forward toward to the best solution of our immediate and future problems and the establishment here of a greater and a finer city.

Thanking you,

Standing as we now do at the beginning of a new year, we can express the hope that the coming twelve months may bring about happier conditions for all our citizens and may this year also witness a removal of these extraordinary difficulties which have, for the past five years, tended to the utmost the spirits of men.

Hoping that I may prove worthy of the trust reposed in me by my fellow citizens, I have the honor to subscribe myself,

Harry Hill,
Mayor and Chief Magistrate.

First Council Organized In Belleville 100 Years Ago

Belleville, January 2, 1936.

To the Editor,
Ontario-Intelligencer;
Dear Sir:—

Municipal Government

One hundred years ago, namely in 1836, the first municipal council of Belleville was elected, and a municipal council has been continuously in Belleville for one hundred years.

While Belleville was incorporated as a Police Village in 1834, the records show that that year, owing to a defect in the description of the boundaries, a subsequent Act was passed on the 20th of April 1836, making the second incorporation, by the legislature of Upper Canada.

The first village clerk was the late George Benjamin. The other officials were:

President; Billa Flint, Jr.
Councillors; Asa Yeomans, Zenas Dafoe, William Conger.
Treasurer; Zenas Dafoe.
Assessor; D. B. Sole.
Collector; Hiram Pulford.
Surveyor; D. B Sole.
Constables; Henry Ayvil, Hiram Pulford.

The last named statute authorized the issue of debentures for 1,000 gold for the purpose of building a market house, and purchasing one or more fire engine or fire engines.

Strange to say at that time contained the following places of business: Two taverns, two tailors, two butchers and grocery shops, 3 breweries, 2 potash factories, 2 saw mills, 1 flour mills, 7 blacksmith shops, 2 wheelwrights, 2 tanneries, 2 apothecaries and druggists, 9 taverns, 3 butcheries, 4 saw mills, 1 pail factory, 1 cabinet shop, 2 harness makers, Mechanics.

The boundaries of the Village as given in the statute are as follows; COMMENCING at the 5 mile between lots numbers 5 and 6 in the first concession of Thurlow; thence in a right angle line will run on the northerly side of Wonderful's Bridge, thence at right degrees west to the limit between the said lots numbers 5 and 6; thence south 16 degrees east to the Bay of Quinte, thence westerly following the winding of the Bay to the limit between lots numbers 5 and 4 aforesaid; thence north 16 degrees west to the place of beginning, together with all and singular the Bay, Baldwin's wharf and the harbours.

From this it would appear that the village extended from about Bridge Street on the west to about Charles Street on the east. I have not been able to get the boundaries of Wonnacott's Ward referred to in the description. Perhaps some of your readers may be able to give information as to its location. Apparently it was bounded across the Moira River, and would indicate the northerly limits of the city. Also some early resident of Belleville or the county give information as to the location of the bridge.

"The island described as "opposite Mr. Baldwin's wharf" was no doubt the land now forming part of Queen Victoria Park.

GIBSON HEARING IS ADJOURNED

Remainder of Evidence on Alleged Assault Taken Tuesday

Unable to conclude the preliminary hearing of Charles Gibson, charged with criminal assault, the offence upon Miss Frances Wager, a nurse, which opened in the police court before Magistrate Ponton, K.C., who is appearing for the accused. The witness recorded as near as possible the alleged assault but Mr. Payne made her repeat the statements of herself and Gibson during the alleged struggle several times. She was subjected to him in examination as to the exact words told by Miss Wager to be heard in the hallway of the apartment and also to her statement to Detective Constable Sergeant Hall, Crown Attorney Bayly, admissible. He suggested that nothing was found in the disarrayed clothes of the accused to any of the nurses the night of the alleged assault. He also was questioned to the story in the morning at the police station. Dr. Fred Bell, previous witnesses heard on Saturday follows and in cross examination Miss Wager stated:

Met in apartment

"While you were in the hall did anyone appear?"

"Not to my knowledge".

Mr. Payne in cross examination asked Miss Wager whether she had been in company or presence of the accused prior to the alleged assault.

"Not more than one or two occasions".

"Where were these meetings?"

"In Mr. Belnap's apartment".

"On these occasions was liquor consumed?"

"Yes".

"Were you with Gibson or in his presence when liquor was consumed on Aug. 29th?"

"Yes, I think I was in Miss Belnap's apartment about five o'clock in the afternoon. I was not drinking".

"Did Miss Belnap suggested that I take a hot drink and that you should drink it?"

"How did you take the drink in the dark compartment after supper?"

"I drank it with water".

"I am told that the remainder of the whisky upstairs was divided into five equal parts."

"I was asked to drink but passed it on to someone in the room" Miss Wager replied.

"When did you first speak of the alleged assault?"

"To Mrs. Thompson and Dr. Lawrence."

"Where did you tell Jarvis?"

"All that happened and for him to see Dr. Bell."

"Did you tell Miss Bray"?

"Yes".

Mr. Payne made the witness tell several times just what had occurred in the hallway and the story to those who came to her aid.

Mrs. Thomas Threat

"Did he have his hands on your throat all the time"?

"Yes, I think so."

"Do you know how you got on bed"?

"I don't know".

Mrs. Threat was told of the condition of Miss Wager, when she saw her in the hall after the assault. Mrs. Threat's testimony followed.

"What caused you to form that opinion"?

"Her face was blue".

"Did you observe any bruises"?

"Yes, on her throat".

"Did you see her at the hospital"?

"Yes, for two or three nights".

"Did you see her on August 30"?

"Yes, after her face was blue."

Miss Bertha Belnap, nurse of 188 Victoria Avenue, stated she was in the apartment of Miss Belnap, on the night of Aug. 29 when she went to work at the hospital. She stated Miss Wager was in her apartment in the afternoon and that liquor was produced. Glasses of liquor and all had a drink excepting myself.

Seen in hospital

"Did you see Miss Wager again that night"?

"Yes, when she was admitted to hospital".

"Did you see her condition"?

"Her face was slightly sufused and there were scratches on her throat".

"How did she look"?

"She looked slightly mussed up".

"What was her condition"?

"Very hysterical".

"How long did you look after her"?

"That night and next day."

"Did you have any conversation with her"?

"Yes I did."

Mr. Payne asked "was her face flushed"?

"I had a darker tone than other parts".

"When did Miss Wager tell you that Gibson's clothes were disarranged"?

"The morning after her admittance".

"Did you have an interview with Bay"?

"Yes."

"Were you present"?

"Yes, part of the time".

"Was Gibson's necktie torn and clothes"?

"Not that I heard".

Call for Help

Miss Marjory Bray, nurse, stated she was in her apartment and that she answered Miss Wager's call for help and found her on the floor. She stated Miss Wager was hysterical, her face was blue and complaining of a broken leg.

"What did she say"?

She stated that an attempt had been made to assault her, that she had been struggling for some time and that Gibson had broken her leg. She was quite hysterical and kept repeating these sayings.

Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson stated she was home on the night in question and when shutting off the radio, about ten-thirty "I heard someone scream and say 'I have broken my leg'".

"What did you find"?

I went into Miss Wager's apartment and she was lying on the bed She kept repeating "They will get him and I wonder if Joe will be mad".

"Was there an Gibson?"

"I don't know".

DOCTORS LOOK ON CANCER STAFF

Study Problem of Manufacture And Use of Ensol

Kingston, Ont., Jan. 4.—(CP)—Dr. F. Scott Mackenzie, University of Vancouver have joined the laboratory staff of the Dominion Radium Foundation here and will devote themselves to the problem of manufacture and the most effective use of ensol for the treatment of cancer.

DANGER SEEN ON NEUTRALITY

French Papers Criticize 'Isolation' Shown by United States

Paris, Jan. 5—(CP-Havas)—Sharp criticism of President Roosevelt's declaration for absolute neutrality as likely to provoke rather than prevent war characterized newspaper comment today on the President's message to Congress.

Comment emphasized the fact the President, instead of suggesting collaboration with the League of Nations, seemed to favor a policy of "isolation" from European affairs.

Washington, Jan. 6—(AP)—President Roosevelt's neutrality plan drew cheers today from Congressional lawmakers and removed many of the obstacles in the way of writing a new and permanent law to safeguard United States peace.

The Administration program, providing embargo on arms for United States policies toward warring nations, would be the final enactment of Congress had expected. Some who were ready to fight for what they wanted, however, found it conceded in the Legislation introduced.

London, Jan. 6—(AP)—The United States neutrality course attracted close European attention today with a general belief growing it the Roosevelt administration would curb exports of oil as a war material, the League of Nations would follow suit.

Interest in Washington's declaration of neutrality and in the President's internationally-broadcast message to the joint session of Congress last night and his request for new neutrality measures, was increased further by news of a rapidly returning European crisis.

ST. ANDREW'S HELPERS

With John Wilts, the new president in the chair, the St. Andrew's Church Young People's Society of the Roslin Presbyterian Church, held its first meeting for 1936 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Foote on Friday evening. Twenty people attended the meeting.

SOME LOCAL PROBLEMS

Time has again brought into being a new council with the installation of Mayor Harry Hill and his aldermen who will manage the affairs of the city for the coming twelvemonth. Slowly, steadily as fate the origins of Belleville recede farther and farther into the past. First things date back over one hundred and fifty years and this year brings for the municipality the occasion of the centennial of the first village council. Members of that council little thought of what was ahead of the place they were called upon to direct as the original village. Today after one century, the city stands in a position which may lead it to undreamed of developments. Just as the councillors of 1836 could not foresee what was ahead, neither can the council of today except in as far as it lies within the scope of the council. Vast changes in general conditions may be factors which will change the importance of the city.

Municipalities stand at the parting of the ways like nations, and when the die is cast their destiny is decided. World history changed its course forever when Julius Caesar started from Gaul, crossed the Rubicon and started towards Rome. Events may have brought about in the 1931 which have changed its course and no doubt events will change its course as different men come upon the municipal stage to direct its destinies.

Mayor Hill touched upon the esplanade project with the promise of investigation of the situation which was at least halted by action of the council in 1931 and expressed hopes that in the near future the project might be revived. Waterfront improvement was seen as an essential.

In addition to these farther-off issues there are the tasks immediately at hand, relief, taxation, the gas plant situation, reduction in basic insurance rates and industrial development, which require closest persistent action and attention on the part of the local legislators.

Some of these are limitation of expenditure so as to keep the burdensome tax rate within bounds, purging of the relief lists of any unworthy recipient of benefits, investigation into the question of newcomers who may come to Belleville and on the expiration of the minimum time go on relief lists, the discouraging of prospective relief recipients from coming into Belleville from the outside, close study of the gas plant situation, the seeking of new industries to help bear the burden of the city's taxes and to sell employment so to make the tax burden lighter.

Mayor Hill in his address clearly points out to the citizens that the spending authority of the city council is very limited, not exceeding one hundred thousand dollars out of a revenue of six hundred and fifty thousand, eighty-four per cent of all revenue going into fixed charges. This is proof enough of the energy which will be required of council to keep down unnecessary outlays, and to discourage those who would spend extra.

Relief is as the mayor points out a problem which will for some years face the municipality. It has become a national issue but at the present time it is the local municipalities have to bear a heavy load.

Public works to be undertaken should be permanent, because in them, there is a portion of the outlay which does not go into labor. Relief jobs generally prove expensive as many workers are not physically trained in these jobs so as to give the best possible returns to the municipality.

Mayor Hill enters upon the year which shows the revival under way but there are still these heavy municipal problems. He has been a successful business man, has had years of council training and gives promise of being a first class municipal executive.

TWELFTH DAY

Today is Twelfth Day, one which was observed in ancient times. Festivities of Twelfth Day and Night in mediaeval and Tudor England rivalled the Christmas celebration. Today there is little observance except in as far as the churches observe the day as Epiphany. Wise men according to the Gospels were led by a star.

Today some men puzzle over the miracle of the star which guided men to the manger cradle and all the while the myriads of stars still sing the glorious symphony of the greatness of the Creator and the spirit or power behind the manifestations of nature. In ancient days the stars were studied much more closely than today for the stars meant much in the lives of the people, the sky being studied for signs of weather in connection with the crops. But while the mass of the people do not study the stars as did the old shepherds and magi, science is exploring the skyey realm with a persistence which is yielding many secrets. Some of the most choice references to the force of nature are to be found in the old books of Job and the Psalms. Today while many give the conjunction of the stars credit for influence in their lives, science gives no place to astrology. But life does not require to work that way. We know well enough that all life depends upon the continuance of the processes of nature, in the wheeling of the systems which fill space. We know that the rains must fall and the sun must shine for seedtime and harvest, that there must be a fallow season.

Even today men who meditate look upon the stars. They may not read into them all the imagination of the ancients did, but they bring to them the latest in scientific revelations and are nearer truth because man knows a great body of physical truths.

This day the church preserves in connection with the manifestation of Christ to the Gentile world. And it was a star which led the wise men to the Bethlehem stall. Today the stars still possess the power of attracting mankind to truth.

IN THE OLD HOUSE

In the old house where we dwelt
No care had come, no grief we knew,
No memory of the past we felt,
No doubt assailed us when we knelt;
It's not so in the new.

In the old house where we grew
From childhood up, the days were dreams,
The Summers had unwonted gleams,
The sun a warmer radiance threw
Upon the stair. Alas! it seems
All different in the new!

Our Mother still could sing the strain
In earlier days we listened to;
The white threads in her hair were few,
She seldom sighed or suffered pain,
Oh, for the old house back again!
It is not so in the new.

—Arthur William O'Shaughnessy.

UP IN ALBERTA LOT OF THE POPULATION ARE ANXIOUSLY WAITING for the Abelhart government to implement its promise of $25 a month credit bonus for bona fide residents, and in the United States a great many people believe that the Townsend plan of a government bonus to all citizens, male and female over sixty, of $200 will come true. Apropos of the Townsend plan a Wall Street statistian has figured out the following estimate of how it would work if put into force:

Population of the United States	124,000,000
Less number eligible Townsend Pensions	50,000,000
Leaves	74,000,000
Less number prohibited from working by Child Labor Act, plus those now working for Government	60,000,000
Leaves	14,000,000
Less number unemployed	13,999,998

OUT IN HOLLYWOOD FILM FOLKS ARE HAVING A LOT OF FUN OVER CLARK GABLE'S experiment in owning a race horse. He named the horse "Beverly Hills" and started him the opening day at Santa Anita. The horse finished eighth in a field of ten, but that was better than Clark did for he never reached the track himself. He started with good intentions, stopped at a friend's house en route and apparently forgot all about owning a horse or there being a race. Whatever they were doing or talking about, it apparently got so interesting that the actor stayed right there. It is said that Gable's jockey refused to pose with the horse and its actor owner. The jockey said that it was bad luck to pose with a film actor, that every time a jockey does so he loses. However, he lost anyway so what price superstition.

THE BEST PICTURE OF THE YEAR, according to the New York Film Critics, was "The Informer", and the best male performance of the year was Charles Laughton in "Mutiny on the Bounty" and "Ruggles of Red Gap". (That was before Captain Jack Benny produced his version of Mutiny on the High Seas). Greta Garbo was given the call for the best feminine performance in "Anna Karenina", Katherine Hepburn was well up in the voting with "Alice Adams". The critics are awaiting with interest the release of Charlie Chaplin's picture "Modern Times", the first in several years and the theatre circuits are so sure that it will be a big box office winner that they made some very high bids for the privilege of first production.

A very old fat lady was trying to get off a bus, but couldn't do so because of the crowd trying to push themselves on. Eventually she got stuck with one foot on the step and one on the ground in an endeavor to descend sideways.

At that moment the conductor, a small thin man, poked his head round the old lady and pleaded in a pathetic voice to the crowd: "Let 'er all off first, please."

The cold weather which has prevailed since Friday is causing some apprehension about the safety of the Dam. Large quantities of anchor ice have been carried down to the mouth of the river and lodged there with the result that the river is rising and if the weather does not moderate soon many cellars along the west side of Front street will be flooded. All the boat houses along the east side of the harbor are flooded and Mullins' wood yard is partially under water. Lester's coal yard on the west side of the river is partly under water.

Twenty degrees below zero with a high wind, snow and drifts blowing, proved to be worse this morning than thirty below with a good covering of snow on the ground.

BOMBING OF SWEDISH RED CROSS CREATES INTERNATIONAL INCIDENT—A serious international incident has been caused by the reported bombing by Italian airmen of a Swedish Red Cross unit near Dolo, Ethiopia. Late reports state that, while none of the unit were killed, 30 Ethiopians perished. In the bombing, it is also reported that the leader, Dr. F Fride Hylander, was severely wounded. The Swedish government has lodged protest, while the Italians are insisting that it was accidental. Anti-Italian demonstrations are also carried out in Stockholm. It is believed that the incident will cause Geneva to start more stringent economic sanctions against Italy. The ABOVE group picture shows the Swedish Red Cross unit just before it left for Ethiopia, with Anders Jahre, Stockholm, pictured in the group (CARET), unit first

YOUTH KILLED WHILE SKIING

Drawn Behind Car, Collides With Other Youth Fracturing Skull

Sudbury, Ont., Jan. 6 (CP)—Walter Wilson, 14, was killed instantly when he collided with another youth while skiing behind a motor car here on Saturday afternoon.

Wilson, 36, was in a hospital seriously injured and another group near the end, "result of a ski-joring accident on Lake Ramsay, near here.

Mervyn Elliott, 24, with a rope attached to Walter Wilson's right-hand glove, was towing the latter over the ice-covered lake late yesterday when the speed of the motor car-piloted skiing, swung him to one side and he collided with Gordon Wilson. Their heads evidently met with heavy impact. Elliott died in a few minutes later without regaining consciousness. Gordon Wilson, with his skull fractured, was fighting against death.

Police said they found three persons who witnessed the accident and claim Walter Wilson was travelling at a "high speed" when Elliott began swing wide.

VOTING IN MANY MUNICIPALITIES

Local Option Ballots Are Distributed in Four Places

(By The Canadian Press)

Scores of municipalities in Ontario held polls today for 1936. Voters cast their ballots for mayor, reeve, deputy reeve and councillors although in many cases there were contests only for councils.

An almost unprecedented number of acclamations resulted from nominations held two days before New Year's, but even at that contests were carried forward today in numerous municipalities, mostly villages and townships.

Added to the above were local option ballots in Newmarket, Erin and Wyoming, which are "dry" at present, and in Mara Township, which is "wet."

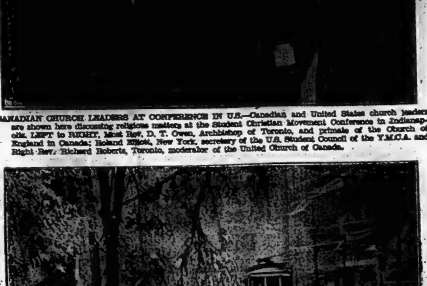
CONVICTS DELAY PRISON RETURN

Some Alabama Holiday Vacationists Have Not Yet Returned



Montgomery, Ala., Jan. 6—(AP)—First check on 580 Alabama convicts who took Christmas "vacations" last midnight indicated many remained in the custody of their trust but Governor Bibb Graves said he wasn't worried.

Kilby penitentiary reported only 101 of 194 paroled to back. During the eight years the Yoke holiday system has been used only six of 2,000 convicts have failed to return. Those prisoners are allowed to go home on their promise to come back.

Governor Graves expressed belief reports from the States four other prisons and eleven prison camps together with later figures from Kilby would show all back by today.

SO THIS IS THE SUNNY SOUTH CANADIANS LONG FOR! Though we in Canada think of Georgia as the "sunny south", it is not always so if that is any comfort to us. The picture shows Atlanta caught in the chill grip of the wintry storm that blasted the Atlantic coast from New England to the Carolinas. Out of the north came a rain that fell in sub-freezing atmosphere, and was congealed into an icy glaze that felled trees and snapped communication wires. The city that through most of the year enjoys warm sun and soft zephyrs presented for a few hours the "unsalted" panoramas which are the familiar winter settings of the north.

ONE REASON WHY ITALIAN PROGRESS IS SLOW IN ETHIOPIA—This picture explains one of the reason why the forward progress of Italian troops in Ethiopia is so slow. Huge boulders are often found on the primitive roads and passage for the large Italian trucks is oft-times impossible. Here the soldiers lend a hand.

1ST FRENCH AIR CONTRAPTION HAS NO WINGS—Without wings and with propellers doing double duty, this new gyroplane presents an unusual sight indeed. The propellers not only act in windmill fashion to get the craft in the air—then they also propel it. The plane is equipped with a Hispano motor and was piloted by Maurice Claisse in extensive tests.

WATT SEARCHES POLICE LOG BOOK

Finds No Entry Showing O'Shea on Duty With Watt

Toronto, Jan. 6.—(CP)— Cross-examination of former Constable W. J. Watt continued today before a Royal Commission inquiring into an alleged theft ring among Toronto policemen. Frank Regan, K.C., counsel for Constable Michael O'Shea, resumed questioning of the ex-policeman on his testimony 36 constables systematically looted downtown business places.

Mr. Regan asked Watt if he had not visited a shoe store with O'Shea Watt said on one occasion between November 1932, and February 1933, that O'Shea was in the store. While he was driving O'Shea, then a sergeant. He drove O'Shea into a lane by the shoe store and they went in. The door was unlocked.

"Show me in the police records a time here where it is entered that O'Shea was an acting sergeant on duty with you in that period," said Mr. Regan.

Mr. Regan said there was no such entry in the records. Watt agreed but said he might have been mistaken about the time. "I do remember it was a cold weather," he insisted. "There was snow, in the lane."

Mr. Regan asked if Watt ever received money contributions from Constable Samuel Singer.

"No, not to my knowledge," Watt replied.

Mr. Regan then asked if Watt ever suspected Detective Lawson Hamilton, or Detective Sergeant Fred T. Rullo.

"No, I never did."

BOMBS DROPPED IN MAKALE AREA

Ten Persons Killed by Italian Aviators on North Front

(By Albert W. Wilson)

(Copyright, 1936, by the Associated Press)

Addis Ababa, Jan. 6.—(AP)—An Ethiopian Government communique, issued today, announced a fleet of Italian planes bombarded heavily the region of Makale, in the Amba Aradam front, killing ten persons and wounding fifteen.

Ethiopian officials announced plans to seize all private Italian property throughout the Empire in retaliation for alleged Italian violations of the "laws of war."

Privately-owned Italian property in Ethiopia was estimated not to exceed $100,000 in value.

FERGUSONS LEAVE FOR SOUTH AFRICA

Mrs. Ferguson Needs Complete Change as Health Not Assuring

Toronto, Jan. 6—(CP)—The G. Howard Fergusons, home less than a month after spending Christmas here in London, will leave tonight for South Africa on a voyage designed to aid Mrs. Ferguson's health. They expect to be away two or three months.

Little more than a month ago Mrs. Ferguson underwent surgery at Great Britain was relieved of his London post by Vincent Massey. The Fergusons came home to spend Christmas on their Kensington Road estate and also Toronto. But the strain proved too much.

Christmas Eve the former Ontario Premier got out the old red car and went for a motor drive. Mrs. Ferguson caught cold, that night and was ill a week. It developed into a high Commissioner, who coaxed Christmas dinner of Yuletide steak smothered in Onions.

"The doctors say I must take her a complete change and rest or there will be a breakdown," Mr. Ferguson said last night. The couple will sail from New York and possibly visit India as well as South Africa.

If Cancer in Early Stages Had Pain No One Would Die of It, Claimed

TORONTO, Jan. 6. —(CP)— If cancer in its earliest stages had the pain of a pounding headache, no one would die of cancer, claims Dr. Burton Simpson, president of the Canadian Society for the control of Cancer and Professor of Preventive Medicine at the University of Buffalo.

He most insidious aspect, said Dr. Simpson, was that it caused no pain, no discomfort, until it is so far advanced often nothing can be done today in medicine. The doctor was addressing the Royal Canadian Institute on some aspects of cancer Saturday night.

While cancer itself is not hereditary, there is a tendency which may be inherited. It is believed certain cells susceptible to the chronic irritation are inherited.

Dr. Simpson declared that cancer, in its early stages, definitely is curable.

In an interview, after his address the Buffalo specialist said the American Society for the control of cancer had not yet investigated the "emol" treatment for cancer evolved at Kingston, Ont., by Dr. Dendy Connell.

While Dr. Simpson said the society had not been invited to consider the intravenous injection treatment, Dr. Connell in a statement from Kingston said the society was welcome to carry out tests which our researches at countless others have done without any hesitation and as it would be presumed, such a society should do."

BLIZZARD CUTS DOWN THE VOTE

Electors in Assiniboia Face Task of Electing Candidate

Estevan, Sask., Jan. 6 (CP)—King Winter stepped into the Assiniboia by-election campaign today with the threat of cutting down the vote as electors face the task of deciding who shall be their next representative in parliament.

With a blizzard whipping across the land electors started for the polls today to vote for either Hon. J. G. Gardiner, Liberal, or William Irvine, Co-operative Commonwealth Federation. Polls opened at 8 a.m. (10 A.M. E.S.T.) and close at 6 p.m. (8 p.m. E.S.T.)

The by-election was necessitated owing to the resignation of Robert McKenzie, Liberal, to pave the way for Mr. Gardiner, former Saskatchewan Premier, to take a seat in parliament following his appointment as Minister of Agriculture. Mr. Irvine, his only opponent, formerly was United Farmer member of parliament for Wetaskiwin.

With the wheat policies of the Mackenzie King government the main issue in the campaign, speakers have been covering the constituency in the far east head of the Province, since the day after Christmas.

Current Attractions at Local Theatres

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE ELLIS

"Miss Pacific Fleet"

Joan Blondell and Glenda Farrell Coming to Elgin Film; James Cagney Is Bad Man

Joan Blondell and Glenda Farrell, blonde menaces of the screen, again teamed as gay gold diggers, will come to the Bella Theatre today, in the new Warner Bros., picture "Miss Pacific Fleet".

Playing with them are those two inimitable comedians, Hugh Herbert and Allen Jenkins, with Warren Hull, the handsome juvenile, in the romantic role. The picture is a gayland rollicking comedy which also carries a glamorous romance.

The fun started in an amusement park at a naval base on the Pacific coast, where Joan and Glenda, two stranded chorus beauties, are running a cane rack. The first comes in, and Allen Jenkins, in the title role of the champion prize fighter of the fleet, puts down class out of business by his skill in ringing canes.

Hugh Herbert, in the role of a shifty promoter, suggests a beauty contest. Jenkins agrees to fight the local pug in order to win the 5,000 votes offered as a prize, to give to Joan.

Hugh Herbert, in the role of a shifty promoter, suggests a beauty contest. Jenkins agrees to fight the local pug in order to win the 5,000 votes offered as a prize, to give to Joan.

Herbert can't help taking a sly peek or two at the pretty girls, and his wife, is also played by Minna Gombell, nearly wrecks him.

Jenkins wins the fight after a terrific battle, and the necessary votes for a gum wilted girl when he finds that Joan has skipped off with his chum instead of attending the fight. The part of the chum is played by Victor Jory, a new screen star who sings in a film for the first time.

Hilarious situations follow each other in quick succession winding up in a mad-cap attack on the camp. There is a kidnapping, a mobic hour and soon, and Mr. Alwyn Hore-Ruthven and son and Mr. Ross Alley were guests at Mr. A. Alley's on New Years.

Tweed and District

Tweed—The annual meeting of Tweed Public Library Board was held at the Library Room on Thursday afternoon. The minutes of the last meeting were adopted on motion.

The treasurer announced a balance on hand of $70.00 with outstanding accounts totalling approximately $40.00. Considerable discussion took place regarding means of raising revenue necessary to maintain the library as a going concern, by raising sufficient money to meet its obligations and to purchase new books. A grant of one hundred dollars from the village and fifty dollars from the county made it possible to continue operations.

Several years ago the annual membership fee was reduced to one dollar and fifty cents. This step was taken of necessity and a considerable increase in revenue resulted. During the last year or two the number of subscribers has decreased to a considerable extent with consequent falling-off in receipts. It was therefore decided to reduce the membership fee to one dollar per annum or ten cents a month, minimum three months, beginning January 1st, 1936 .It is hoped that this will bring about a large increase in membership.

The following magazines are subscribed for by the Library:— Saturday Evening Post, Chatelaine, Maclean's, Canadian, Reader's Digest (new) Reader's Digest (new); McCall's (new). During the past two weeks approximately forty books have been added to the library including many of the newest and most interesting of the year as well as a number of volumes that should appeal to the younger readers.

The following constitutes the Board for 1936:—

Chairman—T. E. Moffat, B.A.

Treasurer—W. E. Spackman.

Secretary—S. H. Connor.

Board—Mrs. A. C. Locke, Mrs. Thomas Bowerman, Mrs. Moffat, B.A., Miss C. McMeiklejohn, Mrs. M. Rayburn, W. S. Gordon, I. D. Ketcheson, S. R. Currie, Mr. McGuire, B.A., I.P.S., H. W. Crowe.

Librarian—D. H. Morrison.

Canvassers—T. E. Moffat, A. W. McGuire, S. R. Currie.

George Gordon Marsh passed away at his late home, Sulphide, on Saturday morning, January 4th, the age of seventy-five years. The deceased had resided all his life in the district. He is survived by Mrs. Marsh, having been born in Hungerford township, a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Marsh. He was twice married and is survived by his second wife and one son, Gordon of Tweed. Three brothers, Marx Marsh, Thurlow, Bowerman, Michigan, and William of Cleveland, also survive. The deceased was an agreeable and sociable man which is still followed by his son.

The funeral was held on New Year's Day, from his late residence to Bethel Cemetery, with Rev. M. O. Price having charge of the service. The pallbearers were Mr. Millard Young, Charles Akey, Percy Main, Jas. Laffman, John LeBarge, and Mike Cassidy.

A large number of skaters was on hand at the rink on New Year's Day and enjoyed the excellent skating. Tweed-Sulphide Band was in attendance.

Miss Myrtle Foster B.A., a member of Frankford Continuation School Staff has been granted leave-of- absence for two months owing to ill health.

Tweed Schools reopened on Monday, January 6th.

What price SPACE MR. ADVERTISER?

It is not only more economical . . . which is a matter of easy computation . . . it is not only more flexible, it is not only more timely and rapid, but also it is the advertiser's unfailing point of contact with the mass market and every spot market of the Dominion of Canada.

The Daily Newspaper possesses a power by means of which an advertiser, who knows how to use it, can reach and move to action all or any part of the Canadian consuming public.

In this North American continent there was spent during 1934 in the columns of the daily newspapers more than $500,000,000. The strongest of all supplementary media was used to the extent of $114,000,000. Why?

Because for prompt action on sales plans . . . for quick consumer influence at minimum cost . . . for willing co-operation from the retail trade, the daily newspaper is today, as it always has been, the outstanding and most economical basic advertising medium.

By the Bay of Quinte shore.
Day we turn to the dust, dear one, and sleep
One thousand years of rest;
Is at rest with no thought—just a still, still sleep.
To guide us eternity through.
When the span of our sleeping is through, dear one,
May we walk on by the Bay,
As we met and walked in the span of life.
And still be friends on that day.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied by Biggar and Crawford by Financial Service.

Paymaster Prostitutes at Record

Output of Paymaster in December of 4,000,000 feet as compared with 861,000 in November. It is interesting to note that the last brick poured of is worth $28,450 which is the largest brick yet poured.

Output for 30 the mill treated 360 tons of ore with millheads of $7.75 this comparing with millheads of $7.44 at the beginning of the month.

Retention of stocks for the first few months of 1936 is generally advised, pending clarification of the longer term business outlook. At the present, there is ground for optimism which should be refined as marketwise in no uncertain manner. A number of industries that have not yet participated in the upswing are beginning to come into their own.

Standard Statistics states that maintainance of longer term commitments is recommended although the market should be given a further period to prove the soundness of its current position before broad extension of holdings can be advised.

Dominion Bridge was stronger yesterday. The annual statement for the year ending October 31st will be made public in the very near future and should show a moderate improvement over the previous twelve months' results when a deficit of 3 cents a share was reported on the $13,295,400 shares outstanding. This company should participate in the expected recovery in the building industry which is still considerably under normal.

The Recovery of 1935

Considered in the light of past experience, the recovery of 1935 has repeated financial history. Every previous major depression reached its worst stage a few years after the peak. Recovery was always slow, always during a year or two, timid and cautious. Even citizens almost actually able to buy or invest were still under the influence of the 'psychology of fear'. It was not the direct sufferers of the state of mind which chilled initiative immediately after the panic of 1929; which then induced a good part of the community to buy because it could not believe that 'the reaction must be healthy.

The 'optimists' guessed wrong then, as did the 'pessimists' last Spring. What was actually behind the recovery of 1935 was, first, the fact that a forced replacement had definitely run its course; second, discovery that a need of replacement supplies and repairing plant had become urgent after the long postponement of 1929-33, and third, a definite evidence that confidence in the future was returning.

Subject to minor adjustments but upon production of Sullivan Consolidated Mines Limited in 1935 will amount to $470,200. Gold production in December was $45,100. It seems probable that Sullivan will close the year with a cash balance in the bank, a very creditable achievement indeed in view of the company's broad exploratory development campaign carried out last year.

The year 1936 is a very important one for Sullivan. The No. 3 shaft now down to 185 feet is being sunk to an objective of 500 feet where lateral development are expected to result in a considerable increase in ore reserves which should warrant a change in tonnage to 300 tons a day. What is known as the 'ladder section' is reached by a 2,000-foot, crosscut on the second level will receive further attention this year; possibilities there are wide-open with indications of a large body of medium grade ore.

Sullivan starts the new year facing very bright prospects.

Developments which occur as the new year unfolds will doubtless bring about readjustments in the investment position of the various groups of stocks, and investment policy will have to be reshaped accordingly. But based on present indications, most of the industries of 1935 promise to make satisfactory showing in the coming ahead, while others—which have been confidentially neglected—should make a surprisingly large percentage increase in 1936. Among those which now appear to be in a favorable position for the coming year are the building materials, heating and other supplies of heavy equipment, automobiles, newsprint, distillers and mines.

Three industries seem still to have considerable distance to go before they reclaim normal earning power and a good portion of that distance should be covered during 1936. Any further rapid rebuilding here for a considerable further period of time would be a distinctly bullish movement;—when it comes—will doubtless be toward higher levels. Those industries are that—based on prices are at or near their ceiling, as are, apparently, the capital appreciation exists in the field of fixed income investment issues.

TURNER VALLEY

The British American Oil Company has made a considerable investment of money this year in geophysical work on its holdings in the Turner Valley. On the other hand, Imperial Oil Limited have spent no money in the same field and their subsidiary the Royalite Oil have taken no serious small concerns at depression levels. It is only natural to expect that Royalite will participate in the boom based on the acquisitions as time goes on. This makes good reading from the shareholders standpoint.

Livestock Review

Toronto Jan. 6—Small pre-holiday runs of livestock raised prices on the local market. The Toronto market this week, but reaction set in after Saturday's run on Tuesday and part of the gains were wiped out.

Cattle advanced 25 to 50 cents Monday, with choice heifers fetching 25 by the close. Hogs registered a 45 cent gain at the week-end, but like all the advance Thursday, Calves and lambs jumped 50 cents Monday and although prices were still high at the close, easiness was apparent. Sheep held strong throughout the session.

Weighty steers sold early at $6.75 to $7.00 for choice, with a few prime heifers at $7.25. Common kinds went downward to $4.75. Choice butchers sold up to $6.50 and $6.60, but receded, with closing tops at $5.75 to $6.00. A few common butcher cows sold at $3.00. Western heifers sold at $5.35 to $5.50.

Butchers cows closed from $3.-.3 to $4.25 for choice, with plain lower and $3 to $3.75. Canners and cutters sold mostly at $2.25 to $2.50. Bulls and breeders brought $3.75 to $5.25 for choice, with plain kinds down to $4 to $4.50. A few lots of stockers

Montreal Maroons Score Win And Tie over Weekend, Move Within 1 Game Behind Leafs

Draw With Leafs in Dull Game And Defeat Hawks

RED WINGS ON TOP

Defeat Canadiens 5-3 With Marty Barry in Leading Role

(By A. E. Fulford, Canadian Press Staff Writer).

Lying ill in Ottawa, Tommy Gorman probably lighted up his stogie room with a choice specimen of that famous Gorman smile today when he heard how his Montreal Maroons behaved over the week end.

Traveling the suicide schedule of two games in successive nights, playing without Gorman's guidance and, for one game without their star defencemen, the world champions came out of it all with a win and a tie, more than a team at full strength usually expects.

The victory came last night at Chicago, when they spotted Black Hawks two goals and then came from behind to clip in the third frame, 3-2, on Lorne Chabot.

Saturday night they tied 1-1 with Toronto Leafs in a game that produced none of the fireworks of their Thursday meeting. It was so tasteless in overtime the Toronto crowd of more than 13,000 stamped their feet and clapped in unison for action.

Lionel Conacher suffered a foot injury and Alex Shields a bruised left arm in the Toronto game and could not play against Chicago. Shields directed the team with the help of Bill Mosienko, who got three points that tie and win gave them brought Maroons within a game of Leafs, National League-Canadian division leaders.

Canadiens' Fortunate

Maroons' fellow - Montreals - Canadiens were less fortunate in the two games they played. Habitants lost Sunday 4-1 in a speedy game at Montreal Saturday night but bowed to Red Wings 4-3 at Detroit last night.

The win gave Jack Adams' team leadership of the American section. New York Rangers, with whom they have been tied, played 60 minutes of scoreless hockey with Americans at New York last night and dropped behind Montreal and Detroiters.

Fourteen thousand persons saw Hawks get away to a good start at Chicago and then after Leafs second time defeat. Doc Romnes put them in front by converting Paul Thompson's pass late in the first period and when Munsh March scored in the thin minute of the middle session they looked to be in.

But there was enough left of that period for Bob Gracie to give Maroons a lift when he scored a pay the way for Northcott's win, ning goal by lobbing the rebound.

Dull Hockey at Toronto

Maroons' and Leafs played dull hockey at Toronto. The home team outshot their rivals 31 to 20 on the night but effective fore and backchecking held the Championship ers in check most of the time.

Both the goals were scored within 37 seconds of the third period. While Cus Marlow was serving a penalty, Chabot's pass bounced off from a scramble around the Maroon net and a few seconds later Marker jumped from the penalty box to join the second shot. Jimmy Ward in a breakaway, that had only Red Horner and George Hainsworth to beat.

Tiny Thompson was at his best in the Hawks' nets at Chicago although Canadiens carried the play to the Chicagoans most of the time they were unable to improve on the 2-1 lead Red McColl got for the help of Sylvio Mantha and Paul Troyan former Ottawa amateur. It the first game.

Clubs Interweave

A penalty to Johnny Gagnon paved the way for the Bruin goal early in the third. Chanticleer Manager Dit Clapper shot from a melee before Wilf Cude should not have been allowed, claiming interference but the officials awarded Bruins the counter.

Marty Barry, the Quebec boy, who played most of his hockey with Bruins but was traded this season to Detroit, scored three goals and an assist against Montreal last night.

He scrunted early in the 1st period to offset an earlier marker by Lorne Goldsworthy and then helped Herb Lewis put Red Wings ahead to the second period.

Canadiens' three counters to the winds in the third and Detroit increased their lead with three counters, Gordon Pettinger getting one and Barry the rest. Sorrie Desilets got Canadiens' second counter in the final session.

HOCKEY SCORES

National League

xMaple Leafs 1; Maroons' 1.
xCanadiens 1; Boston 1.
xChicago 2; Montreal 3.
xDetroit 8; Canadiens 3.
xBruins 2; Americans 0.

HOCKEY & SIDELIGHTS

By RAY COLLETT

You know of course, that Murray Murdock was scorekeeper of the Kingston game—that he is called the Iron Man of Hockey—that he's been with Ranger's since they were organized back in 1926—that he was given a diamond ring when he played his 400th game in New York —that he hasn't missed a game since—that his home is in Blue Mountain, Ont. But did you know that his mates consider Murdock just about the fastest skater among them? Or that the depression which crushed business a few years back, is the main reason Murdock is still in hockey?

Yes, Murdoch hasn't missed a Ranger game, schedule, exhibition or play-off since he joined the Tommy Smythe signed him (for Rangers) after he impressed with a performance for University of Manitoba Juniors. He was born in Lucknow, Ont., weighs 178 pounds and shoots lefthanded.

Stopping big men, he points out, is comparatively easy because they are not so nimble. It's the little fellows who are elusive.

He went to New York in the hope of going into business. The crash came and Murdoch stayed in hockey. He's worth a lot to a brokerage house in the summer.

His added 25 pounds one season, and kept 18 of it. It kept him from getting fired, he says.

Treasurer may be can beat them on skates—and Manager Patrick depend on him unquestionably, for back-checking and "covering up."

On two occasions, 1929-30 and 1932-33, he scored three goals in playoff games, adding four assists to the latter total. That season he had scored only five goals all season. Now you know why he is rated the Rhenish Brownen's ace relief man.

Bill Thoms

HOCKEY'S BIG SEVEN

(By The Canadian Press)

Charlie Conacher of Toronto Leafs and Paul Thompson of Chicago were back in the lead among National Hockey League scorers today, tied with Bill Thoms of Toronto who had the top spot all to himself for a few days.

Conacher and Thompson each scored a point in week-end games to bring their totals to 17 points, while Bill was held scoreless. Marty Barry's four goals and an assist against Montreal Canadiens failed to bring him into the National League scoring lead, though. They gave him 14 points but it took 15 or better to get in.

Kingston Entry Win by 8-6 But Game Was Interesting

TOMPKINS STARRED

Scored Five of Six Goals For His Team And Hard to Stop

Condition played an important role in the first game of the junior "C" group, when Belleville Cedars were thrown for a 8-6 loss by the Kingston kids on Saturday night at the Jock Harty arena in Kingston. Despite the loss, the local team looked exceptionally strong and will be hard to take with a few more practices under their belts. Youngsters, who hails from Deseronto, and who played for Napanee last year was the individual star of the contest and easily the best man on the ice. He rammed home five goals and looked one of the best prospects that has played in this city in years.

Tompkins, mentor of the juniors, was unable to, so his best team as the boys were unable to practice only for a short time before the first game, while Kingston Red Wings had been performing in the City League and also had workouts several times a week. Their condition was much better and were only able to beat the locals at the tail end of the second period. At one time Belleville entered the last period 4-2 and appeared headed for victory but they rallied under the pressure. Young Moody playing for Kingston registered a nasty cut on the face just before the first period was concluded, when he fell over Cliff Stone's hockey blue shirt. But did you know that his mates consider Murdock just about the fastest skater among them? Or that the depression which crushed business a few years back, is the main reason Murdock is still in hockey?

Yes, Murdoch hasn't missed a Ranger game, schedule, exhibition or play-off since he joined the Tommy Smythe signed him (for Rangers) after he impressed with a performance for University of Manitoba Juniors. He was born in Lucknow, Ont., weighs 178 pounds and shoots lefthanded.

Stopping big men, he points out, is comparatively easy because they are not so nimble. It's the little fellows who are elusive.

He went to New York in the hope of going into business. The crash came and Murdoch stayed in hockey. He's worth a lot to a brokerage house in the summer.

His added 25 pounds one season, and kept 18 of it. It kept him from getting fired, he says.

Treasurer may be can beat them on skates—and Manager Patrick depend on him unquestionably, for back-checking and "covering up."

On two occasions, 1929-30 and 1932-33, he scored three goals in playoff games, adding four assists to the latter total. That season he had scored only five goals all season. Now you know why he is rated the Rhenish Brownen's ace relief man.

Bill Thoms

HOCKEY'S BIG SEVEN

(By The Canadian Press)

Charlie Conacher of Toronto Leafs and Paul Thompson of Chicago were back in the lead among National Hockey League scorers today, tied with Bill Thoms of Toronto who had the top spot all to himself for a few days.

Conacher and Thompson each scored a point in week-end games to bring their totals to 17 points, while Bill was held scoreless. Marty Barry's four goals and an assist against Montreal Canadiens failed to bring him into the National League scoring lead, though. They gave him 14 points but it took 15 or better to get in.

Olympic Squad Facing Handicap

The entire United States Olympic team is shown here massed on Madison Square Garden ice, before a crowd of 4,000 persons, taking their Olympic oath as they prepare to sail for the games in Garmisch-Partenkirchen. The team includes skiers, shiers, bob-sledders and the athletes to go to Europe, is the manner and time of their going and the arrangements made for their pre-series training. After he had been selected for the squad, Frank Stack of Kirkland Lake was quoted as pointing out the lack of time for training given coaches to teams sent to Europe, and he was not without support.

By RAY COLLETT
Central Press Canadian Sports Writer

Toronto, Jan. 6.—Does Canada stay her Olympic athletes, sent to the world games to uphold the prestige of this Dominion, a fair chance for success by competing with athletes from other lands.

The question perhaps, may be fairly asked, with the winter games at Garmisch-Partenkirchen, about to open the eleventh Olympiad, presented by Germany and Canada faced with probably the stiffest competition in her Olympic history.

Canada will send to the games figure-skating, speed-skating, skiing and hockey teams, all of which will meet strong opposition, not only from the European and the Old World countries, but from Canada's natural rival, in North America the United States. It is generally conceded that in the hockey events, especial pride of Canadians, America will supply the strongest team she has ever had. The Dominion was barely able to nose out Uncle Sam's pack-chasers in the 1932 at Lake Placid. The United States has also entered in the two skating divisions, and in skiing their entry in each case being numerically superior to that of Canada. Additionally Uncle Sam will send a strong bob-sled squad to the icy hazardous luna, an event which Canada does not enter.

T. S. Gets the Jump

Apart entirely from selection of Olympic stalwarts, Canada's task is made more difficult by the fact that the games in Europe, are scheduled for the early part of February, when the Canadian season is at its height.

American Team on Way

After a farewell performance at Madison Square Garden on Dec. 20 climaxing a meet in which 4,000 speed skating team was only then selected, America's contestants prepared immediately to leave for overseas. This group included contenders in all the events scheduled for the winter games. They will be in Europe—probably Oslo, Norway —and ready for training very early in January.

Canada on the other hand appears to lag. Port Arthur Bearcats, who beat Ontario's Garden pride in that keeping have several exhibition games planned while their rivals are skimming on the ocean. The ability contingent was the first to leave Canada, but the skaters again will apparently be delayed.

Air, Food Important

Importance of athletes travelling early in the vicinity of big sporting meets, is perhaps over-emphasized, but we think not, Garmisch-Partenkirchen is approximately 2,000 feet above sea level and that altitude is going to bother Canadian skaters and skiers. Members of the 1928 Canadian team who competed at St. Moritz, Switzerland, in somewhat higher altitudes, are unanimous in that. The team will need every available day to become acclimatized.

The food and water problem facing every visiting team, is another drawback. Strange air, strange food and water, strange surroundings and strange styles in staging events plus the poor condition that always follows a sea voyage, has beaten more than one good athlete. They are handicaps that only careful training and study right on the spot can overcome. That training and study needs time.

Money Well Spent

Financing the trip is not easy less so in Canada than in the States as Father Time and Mother Fortune has a bearing on the time used to gather teams and nurse them along their Olympic careers. But can Canada afford to send a group, a team or even a single athlete into competition against the cream of the world crop, for anything less than perfect conditions?

The sporting prestige of Canada is at stake against the world in the balance, and already accepting the expense of offering competition in the Olympics. It would seem like money well spent to assure that there the best possible chance of success.

Ed O'Sullivan Stamps Self as Olympic Prospect

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—(AP)—A New York lad with the name of Edward O'Sullivan today had decisively stamped himself as a contender for Uncle Sam's Olympic team.

Saturday night he astonished a capacity house at the Knights of Columbus game in 106th Infantry armory in Brooklyn when he blasted home ahead of Eulace Peacock of Temple in two successive dashes, tying the world record in one.

O'Sullivan beat Peacock in the 60 yard dash by a foot in seven second and before the crowd had recovered from that shock he came back to again defeat the Temple flash over the 100 metres distance, tying the world record of 10.4, a thing up by Bob McAllister in 1927.

Hornbostel failed to muster another spurt and Cunningham went on to win in 1.12.2 exceptionally good time on the unbanked floor with spiked shoes barred.

Kearns is Back On Main Stem

(By Eddie Brietz)
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Jan. 6.—(AP)—Jack Kearns, who piloted Jack Dempsey into the world's heavyweight championship, is back on Broadway. This trip he's managing a young heavyweight prospect named Hank Smith.

Hank has won 36 of his 37 fights, by knockouts . . . Doc says he's a long ways off, but has what it takes . . . the kid gets hit—crack chance every night against Red Burman who, strangely enough, is handled by Dempsey.

That stuff about Kearns and Dempsey not speaking is spread by bunk . . . The two are as friendly as when they were splitting Dempsey's earnings 50-50, they're still on good terms. . . . Kearns ate his first New York dinner in Dempsey's Eighth Avenue spot . . . the former pals will be in opposite corners Friday night.

. . . Kearns is flat broke, but he is as jaunty as ever. . . . Dempsey made him a fortune but every dime was slipped away . . . Doc always was known as a good spender, but most of his roll went in bad real estate investments . . . However, he's sure Hank Bath will be heavyweight champion of the world some day . . . and then he figures he'll get it all back.

American Loop Loses Friend In F. J. Navin

(By Will Harridge)

(President, The American League)

Chicago, Jan. 8.—(AP) — We American Leaguers well can be proud of our players during 1935 for they not only won the All-Star game but the third time All-Stars were triumphant in the World Series when Detroit Tigers vanquished the Chicago Cubs in six games.

There were numerous incidents, which made the American League season of 1935 one to be remembered.

Roger Cramer of Philadelphia, made six hits in six times at bat, which is the American League batsman to do so twice.

Ted Lyons of Chicago became the first pitcher ever to make two two-base hits in an inning.

Buddy Meyer of Washington won the batting championship from Joe DiMaggio of Cleveland on the very last day of the season.

To temper our joy over the victory of Detroit, in the World Series, there was the tremendous loss to the American League occasioned by the death of Frank J. Navin, president and half-owner of the Tigers and vice-president of the League. With his passing, Walter O. Briggs becomes sole manufacturer, became sole owner of the Detroit Club, while Colonel Jacob Ruppert owner of New York Yankees, became Vice President of the League.

A few trades or deals already have been made. Boston has bought Rudy Hulswitt from Washington, and John Marcum, Philadelphia's best pitcher, Detroit has bought outfielder Al Simmons. Boston also consummated a deal with Washington, where it exchanged Outfielders Johnson and Reynolds for Outfielder Maunin. New York traded Pitcher Allen for Pitchers Pearson and Sundra. Other trades are, no doubt, in orchestration, which may change entirely the complexion of the 1936 race.

SYRACUSE STARS SCORE TWO WINS

Defeat Rochester And Detroit Olympics Over The Weekend

(By The Canadian Press)

International League hockey hopes that the shooting Syracuse stars were about to dive to earth received a new lease on life today down from first place in the Eastern section standing, having batted out a pair of week-end victories.

They had a comparatively easy time Saturday night, blanking Rochester Cardinals 2-0. Last night they came back to score a great 3-2 decision over Detroit Olympics. Western Group leaders, before 4,000 howling Syracuse fans. The victories put Syracuse three points ahead of London Tecumsehs.

The Detroit-Syracuse headliner produced fireworks from the start. The crowd booed and through the first period as Olympics played defensive hockey, then added insult to injury by ramming in a pair of goals on Jackie Keating. Don Deacon got the first and Frank Roulston the second.

There was no stopping the stars after that. They tied the count in the second period on goals by Jim Fowler and Rucker Irvine and Jack Markle, starry right winger, backhanded in the winning tally early in the third period on Eddie Hayes's pass.

This was complete week-end disaster for the Olympics because they accepted a 2-1 defeat by Buffalo Bisons Saturday night. They had a lead since in the Queen City's first Serie, Deacon potting an early goal, but the Bisons rallied to win on goals by George Patterson and Cliff Barton.

The other scheduled game, Cleveland Falcons downed Windsor Bulldogs 4-1 Saturday night at Cleveland. The Falcons had three goals before Windsor got one and never were in danger of losing.

HARVARD WINS OVER TORONTO

U. S. Team as Surprised as 5,000 Fans, Who Attended

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.— (CP)— Smarting under a 6-4 defeat handed them in Boston by Harvard, the University of Toronto Hockey team will take to the ice here today to tackle the Princeton Tiger in Madison Square Garden tonight.

The John Harvards were about as surprised as the 5,000 fans in the audience as the men of Varsity tumbled to their first defeat in the five games they have been invading the United States.

The Cambridge Crimson went into a 4-0 lead before the Toronto team could find the net, Captain Fred Mosely getting one of his evening's four goals and G. Robertson added one before Ralph Bigley, followed by Wilbur Valiquette, were able to score for Varsity.

Harvard led 6-3 at the end of the second period and they nullified Varsity's one goal spurt in the final session by two of their own.

OLYMPIC TEAM PLAY 3 GAMES

Will Perform in Kingston on Saturday Against Queens

Toronto, Jan. 6—(CP)—Canada's Olympic Hockey team with the best blood of Port Arthur Bearcats behind it, Toronto Leafs and Montreal Royals coursing through its veins, reached here this morning for a pre-Olympic campaign of the can The team sails for Germany Jan. 11.

Coach Albert Pudas will send his brigade through a gruelling this week, starting tomorrow night at Maple Leaf Gardens where Toronto Dukes will provide the opposition. The Dukes are leading the eastern section of the senior Ontario Hockey association.

Thursday night the Olympic team will play Queens in a contest with Tigers, running second to the Dukes in the O.H.A. race, and Saturday night the team will perform in Kingston.

The team was sought to work in Halifax and Montreal stars with Winnipeg Hockey Association, but Canadian team has managed to break even in four games in its exhibition tour and the coach was confident, he said on arrival, that the Olympians were gradually achieving top form.

Besten only once this season, Bob Boucher and Dukes are expected to give the lakehead team a real struggle. The O.H.A. leaders have few weaknesses with Andy Goldsworthy in goal and a defence threesome made up of Pud Kitchen, Russ Bowman and Jack Church.

One forward line includes Shorty Robinson, Garnet Large and Bert Duncanson, a member of Canada's 1932 Olympic team. Winnipeg Frank O'Brien, Ken Grivel and Tiny Gallagher make up the other front line.

By Anne Forester

Something pathetic and rather hopeless about the place in the dim murk of an early winter's afternoon. Something depressing now that the sun no longer shone on the bright-hued calicoes and flowered, flimsy hats, those carrying the mounds of flamed wrappers, the thin, untimely and unseasonable sweaters which completed the winter stock, fell the depression weighing on herself. Had she but would be doubly glad when this trip of Loftie's was over and life could resume its dance was back in the store.

Larry was out of town on an extended trip and would be in early in the day to say goodbye. Bertha Harris, proprietress of Little Rose's next baby, born but the morning before, would be likely to drop in for a chat and a cup of tea. A long, lonely evening loomed ahead for Rose, and, on impulse, after supper, she decided that this was as good a time as any to dress the windows of the store. Loftie had some red paper somewhere—perhaps if she brightened those windows up with a spot of color . . .

Kitsie, excited at the unwonted adventure of being put to bed on the low, bookcase in Loftie's little back room, dropped off at last into the complete, dreamless sleep of childhood. Lighting the swinging lamp that illumined the shabby premises, Rose set to work with scissors and paste, carefully ruffling the crepe paper into strips. Scarlet, heavy wool socks, unromantic, but of wrested union suits, in the crab, depicting shafts of brown and grey. For ladies and for gents. This job, now, finished, the doorbell over-head window pane . . .

"Yours, in shame and glory!" said a familiar voice from the doorway. The tall figure of Larry Morgan came slowly down the aisle.

"Oh, you've upset my pot of paste," she said.

And there was April back again!"

He was very drunk—and, the girl saw at the first glance, very conscious of the fact that he was so.

"Will some kind risen' in the audience kindly introduce me," he said, as Rose continued to look wordlessly at his face. "Friend of radio—Larry Morgan! Of the series of Gaiberd's Cafe, of the news 'ats fit to print. Exactly." He swayed his head in a courteous, nervous bronhaisance, adding sweetly, "One never knows, does one, Rose?"

"But, Larry, you've come to—to—" Rose, taking him seriously by the arm. "I thought you were out on that engagement you thought Lobb Hewitt sent you—"

His face at this that she had said the wrong thing. His mood changed and darkened at the unfortunate suggestion of the name. He scowled.

"Mr. Lobb?" he repeated politely. "Ah, yes, Mr. Lobb. Well, if he's dead, it's all right with me. But he isn't. That's the worst of it, Rose, he isn't."

He stumbled against the rockers of Loftie's easy chair. "Excuse my French A's," he finished with mock courtesy. He subsided heavily into the depths of the chair. And smiled at his engaging smile.

"Semi me out on a story 'bout a man who went into his tenth in the goldfish bowl. Now you know yourself that's ridiculous, Rose. He couldn't. He-one could, could they? Pu-liberally be persuaded to her; a glint in his blue eyes.

"Larry—" Rose's sincere grey eyes regarded him severely. "What happened? You were all right this afternoon—"

"Oh, that was just the stage I went through to get where I am now," he explained lightly. "You-jus' thought I was a-right. That was your mistake."

He lapsed into a meditative silence, broken suddenly by his voice. "Probably get the sack for this, all right!" he said, more to himself, "But what of it— I ask you, what—of—it? A man tries . . . and then one day he feels sort of Turkish, and s'all over. Seemingly he doesn't. For a time, from the shelf above his head, holding it under the faucet of the drinking water that hung for making tea.

"I shall be brave, if they give me. No bandage. No store for me. I'll take my medicine and maybe get a good shampoo. And a lemon rinse, and then sleep . . . sleep . . ." He reached behind him for the chair, his voice trailing away. "Tired" . . . and softly, "Larry's tired, Rose."

Before the girl could reach him his unsteady hand, groping against the edge of the counter. With the deliberate movements of the very drunk, he pushed her gently aside, and picked up the glass. Instantly a little red stain, startling gaudy in his pale, testified to the inaccuracy of his groping hand. He had cut his finger, quite badly, to begin the flow of blood.

"Larry, dear, please! Come back here and let me tie it up—How this is silly, Larry. You're behaving very badly—" Firmly Rose led the wavering steps to the small room in the rear where her baby lay sleeping on the couch. Stale smoke, whisky and the overpowering odor of long dead dinners filled the odorous cubicle; but the girl noticed nothing, felt nothing, save the pity that tugged at her heart for this man. Accustomed as she had grown to his startling changes of mood—one moment riding the crest of the wave, the next moment under the rug!" as Bertha Harris had put it —Rose was never quite accustomed to seeing him as intoxicated as he thought. Not even on this unfortunate party at the Gilsh. Then he had been pleasantly, agreeably drunk, smilingly tolerant of a tiddly world. Now he was morose, stubbornly bent on defeating her efforts to send him home. Larry had been like that, too, at the end. Sick terror clutched at her heart, but she fought it down. Why, this was Larry, to be cared for, protected from himself. He couldn't. Rose realized, send him out on the street like this. It would mean losing his job, if Luke Hewitt heard—he might be his boss—

As though invoked by the thought, a fatal, scraping sound came from outside the back window of the room. A grating sound, like a footfall on the gravel. Rigid in her chair, Rose sat for a moment; then, impulsively she flew to the window and jerked down the shade. If someone outside saw a light there, at this hour, surely someone came and investigated.

Larry was sitting where she left him, propped stiffly in the old leather chair by the table. His voice, graduating to a grotto dolefulness, droned monotonously on.

What was she to do, Rose asked herself miserably. Anxiously she regarded the baby in the bed. She could not rouse the child now to go home. Larry might prove unmanageable. Hilda would be terrified.

"D'matter with you, anyway, Rose?" inquired the persistent voice from the chair. "You're all filled with bonhomie and je ne sais quoi —e' everything—I pronounced that right, didn't I? And you look glum. Brace up, girl!" He leaned confidingly closer. "Don't you know that life is afraid—afraid of the brave, girl? Ill Rose . . . ought to be ban care of, that's what . . . Good!"

The big shoulders sagged, his face twisting oddly. "What is it, Rose, life?" he said at last. "A little dust ill by a spark—Spark goes out."

"Larry, dear—will you listen—" Rose tried pleading. You listen—" he spoke with a sort of detached existence. His brief spurt of truculence had faded. "Listen while I tell you that Ha' better to have loved and lost—Much better, so they say. But it isn't! I'm one of them, Rose—can't love and hate, such things as—as make men. Tired. There won't be any sweet, fugitive mem'ries for ol' Larry. Just hell, Rose-girl, for hell!"

His rough, brown head went suddenly down into hey lap. But not before she had seen the hopeless desperation in the blue eyes; caught the strained, anguished ache in his hoarse voice that betrayed the secret of Larry Morgan. Not before the startling, heartbreaking knowledge came to her that it was she whom Larry loved; she whom he had meant by his words just now. She had simply never thought of the possibility in connection with Larry. Why Larry was a confirmed bachelor—Larry—

"Love, and the things love did to one were never for her sake. She was dead, that Rose—she had married Harvey Therrold. That foolish, credulous, believing girl, who had been so easily swayed and beguiled. Only this cold, analytical woman was left. She did not love Larry; did not love anyone. She thought she wanted Larry's friendship, dear, perfect, understanding companionship.

All the mother in her yearned over him lying there as she had yearned over the young Harvey in the first days of their marriage. It was her kinship with his suffering. She had suffered so much here herself; her woman's eternal answer to a man's need of her.

He lay still after awhile; she took his tired head into her arms and softly rocked back and forth until his breathing grew more quiet. There was something painfully defenceless about that big frame now; something helpless about the clinging fingers clasping her own.

Dawn came into the sky outside—and still she sat there. A cold, grayish light that seeped gradually into the room through a curtain of thin, falling rain. The man stirred.

"Could you—kiss me goo'night Rose?" he said. "Jus' once—"

She stooped and kissed him gently on the cheek; then rose and drew the old worsted afghan over him and settled him more firmly in the chair.

He was already asleep.

Chapter 27

Miss Abby Fakes a Hand

Larry had gone. Rose looked with faint repugnance at the little heap of stale cigarette ashes, match ends and flecks filling the fern dish that Lottie so prized.

She had been so shaken, so utterly remorseful, that she had forborne any comment, other than a soothing query as to Luke' what worried query as to Luke' Hewitt's reaction, should he discover that his wishes in the matter of an assignment had been ignored.

"He'd raise Hell, all right," Larry had agreed unsmilingly. "Rules is rules, Rose, and he knows under it—if he found out! But I'll talk him around. I've done it before." He grinned shamelessly. "Irrepressible even in his weary self-disgust. "As my say in Arabia, 'the hand that thou cannot bite, kiss and put on head.'" He had the grace to flush under the girl's intent gaze. "It's you I feel badly about, Rose," he added miserably contrite. "I'm just no good, that's all . . . You should have turned me out . . ."

But he knew and the girl knew that he thought nothing of the sort. How much he remembered of the actual events of the evening before, how much he recalled of his own words, she had only to conjecture. For the moment she felt that she did not want to know . . .

Looking the door of the little store behind her, Rose led the wide-eyed chattering Kitten toward the cottage and had left so calmly the night before. She must buy bread for breakfast—Shroder's might be opened by now . . . and Kitten had no cereal at home. It She hurried. It was so early, she would meet no one who would wonder at her presence . . .

TARZAN THE INVINCIBLE

(Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service)

La laid a hand upon the head of Jad-bal-ja and spoke to him in the language of the first man—the language of the great apes that was common to her people, as it was to Tarzan. Ha,lelian, leading his men in pursuit of La, rounded a turn in the trail and stopped aghast.

He saw a great lion facing him, a lion that bared its fangs in an angry snarl. Beside the lion, one hand tangled in its thick mane, stood the white woman. The woman spoke a single word to the lion. "Kill!" said La in the language of the great apes.

So accustomed was the high priestess of the Flaming God to command that it did not occur to her that paralyzed with fright as Jad-bal-ja reared upon his hind feet and seized him, his jaws crunching. Jadbal-ja gave the body a vicious shake and dropped it; then he turned and looked inquiringly at La. . . .

They turned and fled, all but Ha,lelian, who stood as though petrified with fright as Jad-bal-ja reared upon his hind feet and seized him, his jaws crunching. Jad-bal-ja gave the body a vicious shake and dropped it; then he turned and looked inquiringly at La. . . .

BRAVAS DEATH ON LONE ARCTIC TREK—Mary Joyce, saying she didn't know when she would get to Fairbanks, left Taku, Alaska, on December 26 with a team of five dogs on a midwinter 170 over a 780-mile route to Fairbanks with a sack of mail. She's making the trip, she said, to see "if a girl could do it."

HUMBLE PILGRIMS VISIT SHRINE AT BETHLEHEM—The sun streams through the windows of the Church of the Nativity in Bethlehem as a priest of the Greek Orthodox church cleans the beautiful chased brass lamps that shine beside the birthplace of Christ. The lamps belong to three denominations of Christians, each of which tends its own lamps at a different time. The Church of the Nativity is the oldest in the world, a grotto having been built there in 326 A.D. by the Empress Helena, wife of Constantine, the first Christian emperor. It is on the site of the manger, where Christ was born. In CIRCLE is shown a pilgrim and her daughter who, after travelling hundreds of miles, kiss the "altars" on entering the Church of the Nativity.

HON. C. D. HOWE

DEATH BEGINS AT 40!—In connection with the new drive undertaken in the United States, Canada, too, is launching a strong campaign to curb motor accidents and their toll of lives and the health and property of citizens. Hon. C. D. Howe, federal minister of transportation, has issued a special plea for safe driving during 1936. Co-operating with him are ministers of highways in the various provinces. The ABOVE illustration, prepared by Kaufman-Fabry, Chicago, graphically depicts the folly of fast and reckless driving. They have headed the composite picture, "Death Swings at 40." Many similar posters are being prepared all throughout the United States in effort to cut down the terrible death toll exacted by motor vehicles carelessly handled. Hon. C. D. Howe declares that responsibility rests largely with the individual, and that if "care, caution and courtesy" are observed, there need not be the necessity for strong action to curb thoughtless drivers. One of the new slogans being utilized in the new campaign refers to those who drink. It is: "If you must drink, don't drive; if you must drive, don't drink." Alcohol plays a major part in the appalling list of accidents in this continent. Paste this in your hat and remember that every time you drive over 40 miles an hour, death is riding with you, laughing ... laughing ... laughing ....

ROMANCE BROKEN—Another of Hollywood's so-called "perfect romances" was shattered when Barbara Stanwyck slipped quietly into Los Angeles domestic relations court and sued her husband, Frank Fay, for divorce. She charged her husband was sullen, and morose. She will have custody of her son, Dion Anthony, aged three. Miss Stanwyck is shown above as she appeared in court.

ADOPTS DAUGHTER WHILE HUBBY EXPLORES—Lonely while her explorer-husband passed Christmas in the polar regions, Lady Hubert Wilkins has announced adoption of a six-year-old girl, whom she has re-christened Suzanne, after herself. Sir Hubert was told of the adoption New Years Day when Lady Wilkins broke the news to him over the short-wave radio. Lady Wilkins and Suzanne are shown together. She plans to adopt five more, she says.

NEW DECREE PERMITS CHRISTMAS OBSERVANCE IN RUSSIA—Even as recently as last year such "bourgeois" ideas as Christmas trees and Santa Clauses were denounced and strictly forbidden by the powers that be. Strangely, the Soviet has let up on its fight against Christmas, and this year the Christmas tree has been shown again in all its tinselled glory, Santa Claus, too, is making his comeback. The town of Zagorsk in Russia's "toy town." Workers are shown (above) putting the finishing touches on an entire bevy of Kris Kringles which look strangely like Russia's holy men. The Soviet has detached all religious significance from the holiday, however.

SHOPLIFTIN' MODEL—When 32,000 lonely lapsits went into a huddle and pieced together a composite picture of "The Perfect Girl," Dorothy Lewellyn was the first to raise a proud voice to [illegible] confess landed a young lady who fitted those figures almost to the proverbial "T". She is Alice Straughan (above), photographer's model. Alice is 5 feet 7, weighs 120 pounds, has 15 neck, 32 bust, 26 waist, 35 hips, 19 1-2 thigh, 13 1-2 calf and 8 ankle. Miss Perfection of the beauty savants is 5 feet 8 inches, weighs [illegible] has 13 neck, 36 bust, 26 waist, 36 hips, 20 1-2 thigh, 13 calf and 8 ankle.

Little Benny's Note Book

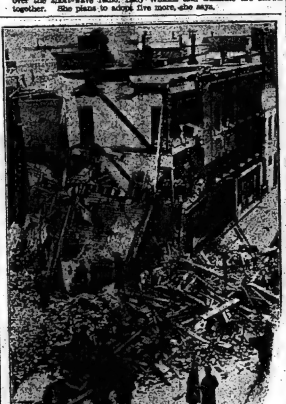
Saturday morning we fellows was around in the back street and what did we see leening against a fence but a old bed spring, and we put it down strate to jump up and down on it, being so sprinky it couldent of been much stronger even when it was new, making us feel like fleas or kangaroos or something, and Puds Simkins said, Say this is grate, imagine anybody not having any more sense than to want to throw a thing like this away.

I got a ideer, lets start a club called Flying Trapeze Artists, and nobody's aloud in it except us fellows that found this spring, I said.

Everybody admitting it was a swell ideer and getting all excited, and Shorty Fudge said, Aw heck look what's coming, this is the end of the club.

Meaning the cats wagon to collect sabes and other things including bed springs, and Skinny Martin said, Hay, I tell you what, lets each grab a corner of it and carry it around the block and by the time we get back again the coast will be cleer.

Which it was, ony by that time we was too exhawsted to jump on account of the spring being pritty heavy for something with so many holes in it and proberly proving it was a expensive quality, and Puds Simskins said, Well where are we going to hide it so they wont take it the next time they come around? I'd put it in my back yard only my mother is superstitious about bed springs left in the back street. How about you, Shorty? he said.

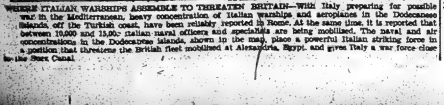


I don't know, my mother is out, Shorty said.

Being a ideal time to put it in, Shorty looking doubtful and me and Puds and Skinny encouraging him by telling him he could tell his mother we was responsible.

THREE BURNED TO DEATH

Battle Creek, Mich., Jan 4—(AP)—Three persons returned to death early today when fire destroyed their home here. The victims were Clare L. Culver, 31, his wife, Bertha, 19, and their two months old daughter, Loretta Vivian.



Fire Chief W. F. Weeks said the fire apparently started from an overheated stove.

BUFFALO TENEMENT SHATTERED BY EXPLOSION—The splintered wreckage in the foreground is all that was left of a four-storey tenement in Buffalo, N.Y., housing at least 11 persons in the city's Italian quarter, after a gas explosion had torn the building to pieces on New Year's Day. The blast killed a woman and severely injured seven other persons, besides blowing away the end of the three-storey building next door.

FAMOUS BANKERS TO FACE U.S. MUNITIONS INQUIRY—When the United States Senate munitions committee, headed by Senator Gerald P. Nye of North Dakota, resumes its investigation into the world war profits of munitions makers and their tie-ups with financiers and foreign interests, J. Pierpont Morgan and his banking partners are expected to appear as witnesses before the committee. Morgan made an appearance before the Senate banking committee at the outset of the Roosevelt administration, among the Morgan banking partners expected to be called by the committee are Thomas W. Lamont and George Whitney, pictured with Morgan and Nye.

WHERE ITALIAN WARSHIPS ASSEMBLE TO THREATEN BRITAIN—With Italy preparing for possible war in the Mediterranean, heavy concentration of Italian warships and aeroplanes in the Dodecanese Islands, off the Turkish coast, have been reliably reported by Rome. At the same time, it is reported that between 10,000 and 15,000 Italian naval officers and specialists are being mobilized. The naval and air concentrations in the Dodecanese Islands, shown in the map, place a powerful Italian striking force in a position that threatens the British fleet mobilized at Alexandria, Egypt, and gives Italy a war force close to the Suez Canal.

Charred Body of Husband Found in Ruins of Home

'MANHUNT ORGANIZED

Mother And Small Son Discovered in Pool of Blood

Pacific Junction, N.B., Jan. 7.—(CP)—Mystery suggesting murder clouded three deaths and probably a fourth as police sought an unknown person, who left tracks in the snow near the burned home of Philip Lake, 30.

Lake's charred body was found yesterday in the ruins of his home in this small settlement, 13 miles from Moncton. The body of his wife, Bertha, was discovered in a pool of blood in the kitchen and smoking ruins and nearby was the body of their son, Jackie, 30-months.

Search continued for the remains of another child but it was feared the six-months-old girl had been cremated in fire, which leveled the little shack, where the family had been "squatting" in the woods three-quarters of a mile from the Canadian National Railway Line. Another child, a six-year-old daughter, was said to be living in Saint John, where the family resided until two years ago.

Dr. R. J. Caldwell, coroner, arranged for an inquest to be held at Moncton tomorrow and further examination of the three bodies will be made there today.

Two Partially Clad

A neighbour found the mother and child, only partially clad in night clothing. A deep gash in the mother's throat was the last cause for suspicion of foul play. The Coroner said it was most likely the flames caused death than the burns on her body. The child's body bore no marks of injury. Burned beyond recognition, Lake's body was found in the ruins. The police held the key to the means of identification.

Authorities were also discuss the possibility footprints following the trail through the snow to a path leading from her home might indicate she was followed. Other marks in the snow indicated the child had kicked several times.

The search was organized by police, but a search of the district failed to find any clues. While the murder theory was held by some of the investigators the suggestion that Lake's wound might have been received accidentally and that he committed suicide returning to rescue the youngest child.

GARDINER WINS EASY ELECTION

Opponent, William Irvine, Defeated by 2 to 1 Margin

Arcola, Sask., Jan. 7.—(CP)— Hon. J. G. Gardiner, Provincial Minister of Agriculture, emerged from the storm-swept Assiniboia federal constituency today the victor over Col. William Irvine, Co-operative Commonwealth Federation.

Scoring a two-to-one win in yesterday's by-election, Mr. Gardiner earned a seat in parliament which he had lacked since his resignation as Premier of Saskatchewan to become Minister of Agriculture in the Federal Liberal administration of Prime Minister Macghide King.

As another trophy of the campaign, Mr. Gardiner received confirmation of appointment of a new Canadian Pacific Railway branch line to Murray in succession to the old branch, under the Duff-Stewart Act, redcoration of the "selling policy" of the board was claimed also. Wheat was the major issue of the campaign, debates.

Final result of the polling is not yet available. With only three of 121 polls still missing, the vote was: Gardiner, 7,395; Irvine, 3,842.

From Ottawa, Prime Minister King sent a message of congratulation to Mr. Gardiner.

Citizens Honor At Complimentary Dinner Prior to Leaving the City

Retiring Bank Manager Presented With Solid Gold Watch And Chain

UNITED TRIBUTE

Gamut of Honor Unfolds Gripping Story of His Banking Experience

Mr. George A. C. Weir, who has retired from active banking after ten years as local manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, will leave with Mrs. Weir shortly in quest of health, was tendered a farewell banquet by one hundred of his citizens of Belleville at Hotel Quinte on Monday evening. The gamut of honor unfolded in the life of the city in the decade of his residence was revealed in the gripping narrative character of the gathering which drew from every phase of its social, financial, industrial, social, sporting and educational, in which the guest of honor has been active. Tributes to the guest were paid in song and address, and towards the close of the evening the presentation of a watch and chain was made to Mr. Weir on behalf of the company by Mr. F. H. Wills.

Major Noteworthy Present

The occasion was honored with the presence of Major S. C. Mewburn, ex-officio of Montreal, General Manager of the Bank of Montreal, of Robert Tannahill, a former manager of the local branch for many years, of Col. W. M. Porter, D.S.O., solicitor of the Belleville branch, of Major Harry Hill, of W. B. Lewis, Toronto, superintendent of the local branch of the Bank of Montreal, Mr. Beauchamp Harris, Mr. Fayne and others, President J. R. Boyce of the Chamber of Commerce was chairman and toastmaster.

During the dinner songs were sung by the company.

Tribute to Guest

President J. R. Boyce of the Chamber of Commerce declared that this occasion had a touch of sadness in that "we are parting with a good wife are shortly to leave the city for their future home in the west for their complete and rapid restoration of health." Mr. Boyce referred to the long and faithful service rendered the Bank of Montreal by Mr. Weir, and paid tribute to our naturally experienced varied emotions on such an occasion, after ten years' intimate relations with the people of Belleville he is about to sever connection with the city. The confidence he enjoys he has thoroughly earned. From such a position of close contact and hearing he was startled Aug. 18, 1930, when he received a telegram announcing an appendectomy.

Drs. Tuton K. Tillman and Samuel G. Boyd of San Francisco performed the operation and after the best of the girl's mother after tests Major Mila Rewitt to be "feebleminded."

Mother Abused Her

The suit, filed by Attorney Rudolph A. Hilgard Mrs. Hilgard was neglected and abused her daughter and "squandered thousands of dollars belonging to Ann" by spending in the world's haughtiest casinos.

The child, the girl now is getting two-thirds of the income from the trust fund set up by her father Peter Cooper Hewitt, inventor, who died in 1921, and a still demanding estate valued at $2,000,000 which would be filed in New Jersey.

Timid and nervous, the brown-eyed girl said she was kept "look ing" when she was little and her mother repeatedly called her "an imbecile."

Unhappy Childhood

"I was always unhappy," she said. "My mother was angry all night and gave me the third degree all day.

"I never had any boy friends. I never had any friends."

The child's investment will, two-thirds of the income from the trust fund, will be the girl's portion until her remarriage, the portions then being reversed and the mother receiving one-third. However, if the daughter became a mother, her child would receive the income. If the girl died childless, the shares would go to her mother.

Nine years ago Hewitt's brothers and sisters tried unsuccessfully to have him declared illegitimate and barred from her inheritance.

Critical Turn in Events is Seen by Observers in London

By Lloyd Lehrbas Associated Press Writer)

London Jan. 7 (AP)—Delegates to the International Naval Conference returned to their tasks facing a critical turn toward the security of fleet limitations or the danger of a naval building race.

Hopes for agreement to replace the expiring Washington and London Naval Limitations Treaties were expected to be settled in the next three weeks.

The immediate business before the delegates of the United States, Great Britain, Japan, France and Italy was the British compromise plan under which it was understood each power would announce its naval program for succeeding years, based on defence needs.

ACCUSES MOTHER OF MUTILATION

Heiress to Millions Claims Sti-kilization Operation Performed by Mother's Orders

San Francisco, Jan. 7 (AP) — The bitter story of Ann Cooper Hewitt, petite young heiress, who accuses her mother of depriving her of motherhood at a play toward gaining her fortune, was told today in her own words.

"I had no doubt when I was little and I'll have no children when I'm old," she said. "That's my story. That's all there is to it."

The 21-year-old girl with two thirds of the income from a $10,000,000 trust fund, filed a $500,000 damage suit against her mother, Mrs. Marion Hewitt McCarter, and two surgeons, charging she was sterilized Aug. 18, 1930, when she was a child was undergoing an appendectomy.

Dr. Tuton K. Tillman and Samuel G. Boyd of San Francisco performed the operation and after the best of the girl's mother after tests Major Mila Rewitt to be "feebleminded."

VICTORY TERMED DECISIVE ANSWER

Hon. J. C. Gardiner Wins By-election in Assiniboia

Estevan, Sask., Jan. 7.—(CP)—Hon. J. G. Gardiner, Federal Minister of Agriculture, today claimed his victory over William Irvine, Co-operative Commonwealth Federation candidate in the Assiniboia by-election as a decisive answer to those who claim that the New Deal administration's wheat marketing policy.

In a statement issued after his election had been conceded last night, Mr. Gardiner said:

"I am pleased to learn that while the election was being contested on that issue the new board sold sufficient wheat to bring the total sales to 60,000,000 bushels since they took charge. I think the same mandate could have been obtained in most constituencies in Saskatchewan. The result put an end to the debating of the wheat policy which has been indulged in by persons most of whom have not known either growing or marketing wheat."

CHARLES GIBSON SENT FOR TRIAL BY MAGISTRATE

Only Two Witnesses Heard at Adjourned Session of Hearing

LETTERS SENT

In One Accused Alleged to Have Told of Events in Question

Charles Gibson was committed for trial at the next court of competent criminal jurisdiction, by Magistrate J. J. Butler, K.C., in police court today on a charge "that he did attempt to commit a serious offence against Miss Irene Gibson." Charles A. Payne, K.C., who acted for the accused, did not argue that a Prima Facie case had been established. E. H. Donnan, K.C., Crown Attorney for the County, submitted the case for the Crown. The hearing was started on Saturday but it was necessary to adjourn the hearing until today because of the length of evidence.

Only two witnesses were heard at the Tuesday session Morgan Jarvis and Carl Ray, the testimony of the latter being brief and concurrent. It was shown that a letter had been received by Ray from Gibson, while he was incarcerated in the county jail. The letter torn up in which Gibson described the events that had taken place on a party at the accused on the night of the alleged assault. Ray said that he was sorry for what had transpired and was willing to make the matter right.

Heard a Noise

Morgan Jarvis was the first witness called at the preliminary hearing of Charles Gibson when it was resumed before Magistrate E. J. Butler in police court today. The witness stated he was a resident of Thomas Ave. On the afternoon of the night in question he stated he was not working and at 3.30 went to the Boy Scouts' apartment to deliver a purse that had been found by a Boy Scout.

"Did you hear any noise?" asked Mr. Payne in cross-examination.

"Yes, I heard a noise. I thought it was children playing. I again heard a noise and somebody calling for help. I went downstairs and saw a girl lying on the floor and she had yel ped for help. I heard something about 'Hoot' Gibson. I saw a man go out the front door and followed and a flower pot was thrown at me. I ran and knocked off the verandah and I chased him and then came running around the house threw the accused a running.

"Did you see Gibson?"

"No."

"What did you do?"

"I picked Miss Wager up and put her on the couch and tried to make her comfortable until the doctor arrived."

There on Business

"You were there on a matter of business?" asked Mr. Payne in cross-examination.

"Yes, I went back a purse."

"You gained the impression that turned out to be a purse?"

"It looked like a purse."

Germany Drove U. S. Into War, Financier Tells Probe

Germany Pleaded Poverty

Washington, Jan. 7.—(AP)—J. P. Morgan told a senate investigating committee today German acts, not international finance, pushed the United States into the Great War.

Backed by his senior partners, the famous banker faced questioning by senators intent on creating sentiment for legislation to curb financial dealings with warring nations.

Morgan said American financial transactions did not lead this country into the war any more than a printing statement.

No Individual Cause

"When the United States of America came into the war," Morgan said, "it was not from into it by any individual or individuals or any cause. It came in because Germany had made it impossible for the United States to refrain any longer. Germany drove the United States into the war by a series of insults and injuries resulting in the loss of many American lives, any one of which justified the action. I regard a cause of war had the United States not been so desirous of maintaining peace."

Help to Allies

"We agreed that we should do all that was lawfully. In our power to help the Allies win the war as soon as possible," Morgan contended.

That thought was the fundamental idea underlying everything that we did from the beginning of the struggle till the Armistice in November 1918."

Dealing Fairly With Country is Beatty's Opinion

Hamilton, Ont., Jan. 7.—(CP)— Hinting railways sometimes were driven into political pressure, Sir Edward Beatty, President of the Canadian Pacific Railway, declared last night, "the railways are dealing fairly with the country."

Speaking at the banquet of the advertising Club, the Canadian Railroads' Committee and the Canadian Club, Sir Edward said the Board of Railway Commissioners "has been created to prevent railways charging freight rates except in accordance with the Act and responsibility for fixing the rates lay with the commission.

In a Democratic Country, he said, Public Utilities must be scrutinized by the authority, inasmuch as they had the privilege of compulsorily appropriating services.

Freight rates, he continued, are fixed by the Board and "what the tariff will bear, but this is "no indictment of the railways." However railways could not, "any more than business leaders", railways could not, any more than business leaders", railways could not, any more than business leaders", railways could not, any more than business leaders", railways could not, any only in certain limits and not to exceed them or give one shipper an advantage to the exclusion of others.

"We might have been able to do better if we had been always quite fairly," he said. "We sometimes have been driven into political interference and we have suffered acutely from highway and waterway competition.

"With a few marked exceptions the history of transportation is a sound one and the railways are dealing fairly with the country."

Crown Attorney Visits Penitentiary

Toronto, Jan. 7 (CP)— Crown Attorney Norman Lindal K. Newton admitted his visit to Kingston at the request of Mrs. Ethel Parish, wife of John S. Labatt kidnapping case. Other than that he gave no comment. But it is understood while at the penitentiary he interviewed Harold McArthur and David Meisner, serving terms in connection with the snatch of August, 1934 of the wealthy London brewer. Counsel for the trial said Mr. Lindsay was not guilty.

The intermediate hockey game between Belleville and Peterboro scheduled for tonight at the local Arena has been called off according to information received from Ed Thomas, manager of the local team. The game will be played later in the season.

ICE IN BAY GIVEN GRADE "A" RATING

The city's natural ice supply for this season has been given a clean bill of health by the Canada Department of Health. Samples of the ice taken from the Bay of Quinte by the local Board of Health were sent to Toronto, as required annually, where they were tested and given a "Grade A" rating. Up to the present time the quantity of ice that has been harvested by hand from the bay, no machinery has yet been placed on the ice.

LIMITED SERVICE FOR THAWING MACHINE

"We've been lucky so far this year," commented Manager H. T. Austin of the Belleville Waterworks Department. "So far our calls for thawing frozen services have been limited to a mere dozen or so. Other years we would have had hundreds of calls for the use of the thawing machine. This year the snow and ideal, mild, cold weather has helped us greatly."

Deadline For Markers Set For January 15

Despite the fact that car owners have been warned that the deadline for the operation of motor cars with 1935 markers has been set for January 15, at the rush is being experienced locally for the new markers. At the present time, an average of from fifty to sixty new licenses are being issued each day. "We'll probably have a last day minute rush for the new plates and half of the issue will be sold to get them without considerable delay," commented license issuer, S. Verniveau.

EXPECT ADDITION TO BE READY IN 2 WEEKS

Reports of officials in charge of the work this week indicate that the final date for completion of the new addition to the local Dominion Entomological Laboratory is set for about two months from the present date. At the present time the roof is for work and the assembly of the various highly specialized effects of the new laboratory is being carried on.

STREETS SANDED TWICE DUE TO SNOWFALL

Almost a whole day's labor was lost by workers of the department of public works yesterday by a sleety snowfall, which marred the results of their sanding throughout the city during the earlier part of the day. Following the snowfall temperatures and cinders were applied at certain dangerous intersections and hills. Employees of the department labored until midnight distributing the material.

NO NOTICEABLE STIR IN PRODUCE MARKET

Local produce men today reported no noticeable stir in produce buying circles as the result of the new restrictorily trade treaty between Canada and the United States which gives this country a preferential quota on fowl shipments and dairy products. A slight rise in price on fowl, however, is expected later in the season, when shipments become heavier, it was predicted by salesman.

Experienced Lumbermen Wanted in Bush

Obituary

MISS LORETTO SHIELDS

Many friends of Miss Loretto Shields in this city were shocked and deeply grieved this morning to learn of her sudden death, which occurred early this morning at the residence of her sister Mrs. Charles Burkitt, 34 Hillcrest Avenue with whom she made her home.

Miss Shields had been employed for a number of years as clerk in the confectionery department at E. P. Taylors and was widely known and liked by her courtesy and prompt service. It is understood that it was on the night that she was taken ill and medical aid was summoned immediately. The attack proved to be a heart seizure and failing to respond to medical aid she succumbed at about 2.30 o'clock.

The late Miss Shields was born at Maynooth, Ont., her parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. John Shields. She came to reside in Belleville a number of years ago and was educated in the local schools. Possessing a pleasing, friendly manner and by her kindly disposition she made friends she possessed. She was a devout member of St. Michael's Church and the Sodality of the Children of Mary in connection with the church. By many friends she will be sincerely missed.

Surviving to mourn her sudden passing are her sister Mrs. Charles Burkitt, Mrs. M. Cannon, Mrs. William Hinchey, Montreal, Florida, all of Belleville; Mrs. B. Caffrey, Deloro; Mrs. John Flinnegan, Marmora; Mrs. Joseph Cahill, Peterborough; Mrs. Patrick Shields, Pembroke, Ont., and Mr. John Shields, Maynooth, Ont.

MARION A. RUSHNELL

Marion Audrey Rushnell, seven years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Rushnell, 43A North Front Street, died at the Isolation Hospital, Moira Street West, on Monday, January 6th, as the result of pneumonia, after a brief illness.

This is the second death in the family within a few days. On Saturday last George, aged two years, died from the same cause and was buried on Monday. The only two other young children of the family survive. The funeral from the Hospital with pneumonia following on Wednesday.

LATE MRS. J. H. F. YOUNG

Monday afternoon many friends were present at the funeral of Mrs. J. H. F. Young which took place from the family residence, 85 Queen Street.

The Rev. Dr. James Semple, pastor of Bridge Street United Church assisted by the Rev. Dr. E. N. Baker officiated in impressive service in the home.

Interment was made in Belleville cemetery.

The bearers were Messrs. H. J. Clarke, J. W. Young, Dr. Thurston, Chas. N. Sulman, L. J. Walmsley and Reid Anderson.

ANTONIO C. ACERRA

The late Mr. Acerra was born in Italy. For some years he resided at Montreal and for the past 18 years he had made his home in Belleville, being employed by the Canadian National Railways. He was a member of St. Michael's Church and was well respected by all who knew him.

Surviving are his widow, whose maiden name was Anna D'Aurizio, one daughter, Mrs. Antonio Manna, Toronto; one son, Michael Acerra, Toronto.

LATE MRS. JOHN K. HUFFMAN (Thurlow)

The funeral of Mrs. John Ernest Huffman, who passed away after a lengthy illness on Saturday, January 4th, took place from her late residence in the 5th. concession of Thurlow, Monday afternoon to St. Andrew's Church at Ghent where an impressive service was conducted at 2.30 o'clock by the Rev. W. Merrick of Carrollton, assisted by the Rev. W. H. Clarke of Shannonville.

Many friends were present at the service.

The bearers were Messrs. Wilfred Clare, Gerald Swan, Ernest Leavens, Wilfred Hadley, Everett York and Fred York.

Interment was made in the Huffman Surplice Ground.

In the death of Mrs. Huffman does feeling of regret in the district be brought to many friends. She was a woman of most estimable character and took an active interest in the work of the United Church and Ladies' Aid. In the Sunday school of which she was a valued teacher and the Women's Missionary Society and the Ladies' Aid she will be greatly missed by her co-workers.

The late Mrs. Huffman, who was in her 59th. year, was born in Thurlow township, her maiden name being Miss Hollie May Clare, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William St. Orilla, now of Belleville. For the past twenty-three years she had made her home at Gilead in the 5th. concession of Thurlow.

LATE JOHN F. BEAN

The funeral of John Ferris Bean took place from the family residence, 36 Moira Street West, on Tuesday morning to St. Michael's Church where Requiem Mass was celebrated by the Rev. J. J. Collins, assisted by Rev. Father Hinchey of Trenton.

Many friends of Mr. J. J. Collins, assisted by Rev. Father Hinchey of Trenton.

Many friends were present at the service.

Interment was made in St. James' Cemetery, the committal service being conducted by the Rev. J. J. Collins.

Citizens Honor G.A.C. Weir At Complimentary Dinner Prior to Leaving the City

must first give us friends. Mr. Weir has always had the ear and the power of the boat. "The system is a good one. The company is not run entirely or regret at parting. It certainly would be marred if it were not also one of festivity in bidding the voyage to Mr. Weir and Mrs. Weir.

Plays The Game

"In the air and a half years I have known him, there was no occasion when our guest did not play the game clean and well. That did not always mean that he was loyal to the bank. So it is a great privilege to be privileged to propose the toast to the great institution of the Bank of Montreal—one of the great financial institutions. Nations, No list of twenty great financial institutions in the world would leave out the Bank of Montreal. This institution has seen more than one hundred years of life in Canada, having first received its charter in 1817. Napoleon was still living on the Isle of St. Helena and the echoes of the wars had not yet died away. The Bank of Montreal is now in a small community, for Montreal has taken not the important city it is today.

Vision and Foresight

"There was a great vision in those people who founded the Bank of Montreal. Its subsequent history established this institution was fitly named. The Bank of Montreal did much to establish Confederation." Mr. Illsley spoke of the part played by the Bank in the building of the C. P. Railway and commenting on the great financial stress of the time will come when we shall be glad to have the both railways, the latter being largely owned by the progressively owned. Today one is so accustomed to

"This institution in all its length of years might well be considered a model. Its record is one showing some of the signs of senility but as a result of which it has a competitive institution or a sister institution as I prefer to say, I can say I love no other institution as much and I know of no institution more virile in its principles, in its choice of appointments, and in its fairness and aggressiveness. Its benefits not to Canada alone but to the world but it has served Canada abroad."

Practice of Banking

The proposer spoke of the strength of the Bank of Montreal with its 500 branches located strategically in Canada and abroad. He spoke of the fine record which the banker at low cost. Collecting the pennies and the dollars from the people is not a simple operation. The greatest difficulty today is to get rid of the money. There is no funds accumulated in the banks in the form of deposits as a result of excesses and so today with saving of the people we are looking for an outlet for the money. Money is sacred, he said, to pay one hundred cents on the dollar. He had never a banking institution which got back 2.3 it loaned to the public. Mr. Illsley spoke of the bank on adequate credit.

Mr. Illsley spoke to trade and the development of the country. The Bank of Montreal had its side of the ledger showing a great deal of virile activity, introducing Canadian products abroad and seeing that the money was forthcoming.

"Mr. Weir, the guest of honour, has seen fit to associate with this institution in the development of this community," Mr. Illsey said in closing.

Major Norsworthy Replies

Major S. C. Norsworthy of Montreal, assistant general manager of the Bank of Montreal was next on replying to the pledge expressed to Mr. Weir. He spoke of the splendid tribute to a sister institution. "I can understand the high place on which this meeting has been conducted when I know of the friendship of two such leaders as Mr. Illsey and Mr. Weir," remarked Mr. Norsworthy. "You don't see competition in the heights of the great financiers but in the valleys of the cities. Competition reaches its extreme in the smaller centres where there are only two banks.

"I feel sincere my appreciation of the invitation to be with you tonight and I should like to add my brief tribute to the worth of Mr. Weir as a banker. His personal qualities are well known to you and your presence here tonight is proof of this. He began his career with the Bank of British North America. His was manager at Winnipeg at the time of the merger with the Bank of Montreal. Mr. Weir went to Spokane branch of the Bank of Montreal, and became manager at Belleville ten years ago. He is in the position to the entire satisfaction of the bank and evidently to the satisfaction of the community. I think his case is proof that one can be a good banker and a good citizen. The good will of the community in which he lives.

"I am pleased to that Mr. Weir's successor should be Mr. Lewers. Mr. Lewers and I have known each other for many years. I can tell you he is a real good fellow. I want to tell you he is thoroughly trained as a banker." (Laughter)

Local History Retold

Col. W. N. Ponton, K.C., solicitor of the Belleville branch of the Bank of Montreal for many years, brought in support of the toast a wealth of local history and light on the story of the Belleville branch and its managers. "The bank, he said, had kept pace with the community. It has served in the national and also in the international sphere. Col. Ponton recalled Quentin MacNider, manager; Mr. Dean, Robert Hutchison, who served for 36 years; Mr. Crombie; Mr. Parker, the Shakespearean actor and Mr. Bell quoting the bard on any and all occasions; Robert Tannahill, who was one of those who built up the great table last; Mr. Schofield, who died early, and Mr. Weir, the retired local manager and guest of honour.

Col. Ponton noted the association of this district with Frederick Williams-Taylor, former President and General Manager of the Bank of Montreal, whose service to Canadians serving at the front will always be remembered.

Of the guest Col. Ponton said: "Mr. Weir's grandfather was a lawyer in Edinburgh. He said that banks can make a name for men and good many men. The C.P.R. owed its very existence to the Bank of Montreal.

An interesting relic to the form of the Bank of Montreal was shown by Col. Ponton as proof that before Mr. Weir's day there was a branch in Belleville, to be exact in 1844. Other relics were cited.

Service to Community

Reference was made to the community activities of Mr. Weir by a resident member of the Bank of Montreal since the latter came to Belleville, in that taken a deep interest in Canadian affairs. The Bank of Montreal has been doing business in Canada for years and is very important help and counsel from the Bank of Montreal. I prefer that he had prolonged his stay here for another year as we have his wife and family all here and rest we know that he will be back to Belleville to live finally.

Watch is Presented

To Mr. P. H. Wills fell the pleasure and honour of making the presentation of a watch and chain to Mr. Weir. Mr. Wills gave a few reminiscences of his first meeting with his subject and how he found him a sincere, loyal and useful friend. He spoke highly of the man who plays square with the banks in Canada can have no criticism of him.

The gathering drank the toast heartily and with enthusiasm and Mr. Weir acknowledged that he felt that he was at a loss for words. After expression of thanks for the gift and for the spirit of the friends who had gathered to do honour to his honour he launched into a story of his boyhood days. "When my father was a manager of the Bank of British North America in Gananoque and he was born in the bankers quarters over the London branch. My father died when I was but two years of age leaving his widow and three children. My mother fecilingly referred to his mother who through her own energy and thrift kept the wolf from the door of her less family. "I went to pay this debt to her," he said, "and the message of fifteen he started into banking in the city of his birth and remember that public men paid for their pleasures with real money (laughter).

First Day in the Bank

His first day in the B. N. A. bank at London was a real test day for him as he began his career under the tuition of a manager who occupied the London post for 43 years. After service in London, Mr. Weir opened a branch at Weston and then was appointed manager at Hamilton. Then he came as he was in a prairie town as manager and assistant manager with the bank good for five years. His boss on Spokane branch told he had a loan as high as $375,000 at a time in this prosperous little settlement, but Mr. Weir did not hesitate to refuse to grant it to the open prairie days when the banks were often ahead of other bankers. He had to cook a dinner for three times the usual fee to drive him on to Fernie five below zero with a high wind. He approached the city and the driver had Mr. Weir take off his gloves and he required him to drive to keep out the wind and cold. When they arrived both driver and Mr. Weir had to be taken out of the conveyance. Mr. Weir secured a small building and chalked on the window or door the words "Bank of Montreal".

Then he was manager at Saskatoon, and later at Winnipeg at the Main Street branch from which the Bank of Montreal in 1913, then went to Spokane, then head office

MR. ALEC GORDON IS GUEST SPEAKER

Y's Men Hear Interesting Account of British West Indies

An unusually interesting meeting of the local Y's Men's Club was held last night at the Quinte Tea Room as guest speaker, Mr. Gordon gave a most instructive travel talk on the British West Indies illustrated with moving picture taken by himself and with a booklet the last summer.

Highlights of the various islands of the British West Indies including the intensely white light noticeable in Bermuda and the coral formation and the whitewash so freely used—the lack of sanitation in the streets of Kingston, Jamaica—the famous Pitch Lake on Trinidad, and the rail at Demerara. Guiana where the land is below sea level at high tide.

The speaker's talk was interspersed with anecdotes of the happenings on the islands during his visit and the pictures vividly illustrated the many interesting features.

Thanks of the club were expressed by Lorne McDougall, and during the meeting one's Brenton read a poem of Peterborough, a gold medallist of Queen's University, delighted the audience with vocal solos.

Reports of various committees show the club to be in very healthy condition, with much activity including a comprehensive Boys Work Program, athletics, a play and various social features. Several new members to be inducted shortly

MAYOR H. HILL TENDERS BANQUET TO MANY FRIENDS

Function Held at Queen's Hotel After Installation Ceremony

ADDRESS GIVEN

Ald. Cliff Baragar Moves Vote of Thanks to The Host

A complimentary banquet tendered by Mayor Harry Hill after his installation Monday at the Queen's Hotel was a complete success. Seated around the festive board were all the civic officials, their wives and other prominent men in the business and social life of the city. The newly installed Mayor acted as chairman. A most sumptuous banquet was spread by Mrs. Ella Ryan, proprietor of the Queen's Hotel and the thanks of the assembled guests were expressed by the chairman. At the conclusion, Alderman Baragar on behalf of those present, moved a vote of thanks to the chairman for his splendid courtesy and all drank a toast, this 1926 council would have a successful year, and that the citizens would have health and happiness in his new office. The first lady of the city Mrs. Harry Hill occupied a prominent seat at the banquet board.

Community singing was led by Ex-Mayor M. P. Duff, while Lew B. Higgs presided at the piano, Mrs. (Dr.) G. H. Stobbe delightfully rendered Harold Mowatt's solo and also contributed a summer in his splendid baritone voice. The addressed were of necessity of short duration as all those present were of Harry Hill in the council and wished for him and his council success in the coming year. Ald. Baragar T. Y. Wills, as chairman of Executive expressed the hope, that the same friendly relations would exist as had formerly and that work of a constructive nature would be carried on by the council.

Aide Toastmaster

Col. W. N. Ponton K.C., stated, that he had served all the parties in municipal age and might be excused but he was glad to add his testimony to the worth of the newly installed and he thought the banquet a diplomatic way to start the year and he hoped, that the council was starting on a happy year.

Col. Ponton told of the pressing need of an addition to Queen Mary school, which no doubt would add to the many economical problems now facing the council. "The need is great and the Board of Education is not trying to foist an expenditure on the city but rather are trying to meet a condition that exists" said the speaker. On account of the revenue derived from the tourist traffic, Col. Ponton was of the opinion that Fetch's Island project should be completed. "It is a natural park and a wonderful source of revenue and let us put our hands to the plow and complete the project," he stated.

George O. Tice, Mayor of the city was before the banquet took place made his first public appearance since his lengthy illness and was greeted with applause when he rose to speak. "I have no regrets in being out of the harness and thank the newly installed Mayor from the bottom of my heart for his wonderful kindness to me and his help in carrying out the official duties during my illness," said the Ex-Mayor. "As you know the Mayor of the municipality is blamed for everything but the weather but I have tried to conduct the business of the city during the last four years to the best of my ability with respect to the wishes of the citizens. The last four years have been strenuous ones but I was graced with having a splendid set of officials and publicly I wish to thank them for their co-operation." The speaker also paid his respects to the various boards and commissions in the city and in closing thanked the citizens for their kindness to him during his last illness and the sympathy expressed by them two years ago on the death of his wife.

A Real Address

W. G. Mikel K.C. made one of the shortest addresses at the luncheon by simply saying "thank you." Ex-Mayor George A. Reid took credit for bringing the present Mayor to Belleville and was of the opinion it had been a good move for Harry Hill had been a good citizen and would no doubt capably fill the office of Mayor to the satisfaction of all. Mr. Reid told the audience that the debenture debt on the Hydro had been paid and that probably a nice surplus would be swamped to the city at the end of the year. Ex-Mayor M. P. Duff, chairman of the Hydro Commission, spoke briefly thanking all for the splendid banquet and the air of co-operation that was prevalent. J. R. Boyce, President of the Chamber of Commerce expressed his pleasure at seeing the ex-Mayor out again after his illness and that the citizens should live thanks. that Harry Hill is at the head of the council.

Rotarians Hear Interesting Address On Spiritualism by Rev. Walker

SEEK EXPLANATION

"Spirits" was the subject of a very interesting talk before the Belleville Rotary Club Monday by Rev. W. J. Walker, pastor of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, who described his experiences as a student of psychic phenomena in and out of the university, also other data of a general nature pertaining to what is generally called spiritualism. While not subscribing to the belief that the manifestations of so-called "spiritualism" had any connection with the spirit world, he spoke of a number of prominent people and scientists who had made claims along similar psychic phenomena, some of whom believed in spirits and some who did not go that far on the proof submitted. Sir William Crooks, noted scientist and inventor of the Crookes tube was a close student of the subject and was associated with a woman medium who claimed to have a control named "Katie" through whom messages from the spirit world were purported to have been received. Professor Hare was also associated with Darwin in the authorship of "The Origin of Species," Sir Oliver Lodge and others were deeply interested in the subject.

Spirit Messages

So-called "spirit messages" asserted the speaker struck English in a number of cases, and manifestations at seances have been interesting and mysterious.

University professors who have studied the subject state that spirits write the spirit part as rubbish and the antics of subnormal minds.

Indian mystics have produced many mystifying manifestations such as the "rope trick" where a rope is supposed to be thrown in the air and remains there apparently unsupported, while a boy climbs it and disappears. They also do the "orange tree trick" in which a seed is placed in the ground, then quickly a shrub appears and branches and finally fruit which is passed around the group present for eating. This is put down as mass hypnotism, in which the whole group is hypnotized, as photographs have repeatedly been taken of the scene without revealing anything unusual.

African Rainmaker

A witch doctor in Africa was threatened by the tribe with death if he did not produce rain in the midst of a very dry season. A native medical doctor who was present tells of the apparent success of the witch doctor for a cloud came up in fifteen minutes and within the hour there was a deluge of rain. The Britisher returned to the bungalow and told his companions of his experience. They decided to investigate, returned to the scene and could find no trace of moisture nor indication that there had been any rain for a month or more. Another case of mob hypnotism.

A Test Seance

Rev. Mr. Walker described a test seance arranged by a number of students at which he was present. It was held in a house strange to the medium, and many manifestations occurred—of a music box which rose in the air from a table was moved apparently without hands and started playing. Ceasing to play when the command to "stop" was made, and resuming when the word "start" was uttered. Various articles floated through the air and voices came from trumpets. All this time the medium was sitting in a chair in the midst of a group of students while two students stood on each side of her chair.

Returning to the university a professor was told of the seance. He laughed and said that he had attended a similar seance and saw or heard nothing out of the ordinary although others there stated that they had observed all the usual manifestations described. In view of this the speaker said he attended another test seance and took a pin with him with which he pricked himself from time to time to make sure he was not hypnotized. He also kept himself from concentrating on the medium. Manifestations occurred, however, as in the preceding seance.

Spiritualistic Churches

As an instance of the growth of spiritualism, the speaker noted that there were twenty-two spiritualistic churches regularly advertised in Toronto, and possibly a number not advertised. Other cities also had spiritualistic churches with regular services.

Magicians Houdini and Thurston, the former especially duplicated many of the so-called spiritualistic manifestations, making no claim to spiritualistic aid.

Spirit Messages Trash

The messages supposed to be brought from the spirit world at seances he said, were of the most inane and trash and unworthy of occupants of another world. To this the answer is given that believers find the great mass of spiritualists are people who have confidence and in the other world they retain the same individuality and mannerisms they had on earth.

"On the other hand it is reported that a group of students at Paris in Greek and Latin and split it up into groups, one portion being sent to a number of mediums in various parts of the world. A complete message was put together from those received from one medium who could not have had any knowledge of the classic Greek and Latin in which the puzzle was coupled, or in any event had nothing but one or a number of puzzles to start from.

It would not do to dismiss the subject with a contemptuous "there's nothing to it," but is not necessary to subscribe to believe that spirit manifestations—that scientists are studying and the study of psychic phenomena is growing by leaps and bounds, said the speaker, but just what is behind it all, the subconscious mind or otherwise it is, remains to be discovered. The study may solve many world problems which are baffling and difficult in the world today.

Rev. Mr. Walker described many instances of a very interesting and mystifying character, and held the close attention of his audience throughout.

Archie Cameron introduced the speaker to the club, while O. H. Scott expressed the appreciation of members for a very fine address.

Rotary Campaign Report

Harold Sanders, general chairman of the recent Rotary campaign for cripples children, which centred in a Rotary edition of The Ontario Intelligencer, reported a total revenue including cash donations of $1,026.65. This included the sum of $30 received from the Belleville Municipal Band from the proceeds of the band's recent open air concert in Bridge Street United Church.

Several communications were read expressing gratitude for Rotary assistance in cases of a serious needing medical specialist attention.

Visitors included Bill McTavish of Toronto; Gib Aziz, Trenton; P. O'Rourke, Trenton; J. Wilson, Stirling.

Fred Deeson occupied the chair.

Thomas Mitchell and Mikel Reilly were appointed scrutineers, while K. J. Butler here Monday charged with unlawfully impersonating the C.P. Railway property, John Pennington C.P. Railway policeman, alleged that they were trying to get on a Smith's Falls passenger train and When asked to get off refused to the conductor, and stated that in the confusion that followed many of the locks on the cars had been broken so that is why the trainmen are so strict with trade tents. The Magistrate gave each man a fine of $20 and costs and said "that they should be cooled off by that time."

John Millen of Montreal was found guilty of speeding and fined $5 and costs.

Hockey

Bumpy ice and rolling pucks added many thrills to the two Trenton and District Hockey League games played here in the arena last night. The first game was between the R.C.A.F. and Brighton and had the large crowd on their toes from start to finish. The first period opened with both teams digging in for all they were worth. Time and again R.C.A.F. forwards and Brighton forwards would break away only to have the puck dribble over their sticks at the defence. About half way through the period the boys started laying it on" and both goalies were given some difficult shots to handle. The lines of Bowers, Wingate and Moore of the R.C.A.F. and Lambert, Uzonki and Waddlington of Brighton showed to good advantage throughout the period. The period ended with Reid of the R.C.A.F. who was the badman of the evening in the penalty box for three body checking.

The second period opened with Jack Alcorn boys playing one man short and with this advantage Uzonki, Lambert and Waddington made it hot for Gould in the Port net. With the changing of lines came more action and after they had been playing for about two minutes Uzonki scored on a pretty rush. In on Gould to bang the first and only goal of the evening during the R.C.A.F ret minder. Greer received a cut over the eye when struck by the puck and after being attended to by Dr. Millen was given a seat on the bench. Greer received the stitches that Beck who had been roughing it all night had gotten Alexander of Brighton sore at him so Mr. Alexander took a poke at him. It however, did not last long as players and fans had departed them. Alexander received a penalty. The period ended with Brighton playing a man short and the R.C.A.F. men all around the Brighton net.

Alexander Hurt

The third period opened with the line Powers, Wingate and Moore taking full advantage of Brighton who were one man short but when their opportunity to score came Lady luck seemed to betray them. After Alexander came back on the ice, Brighton again opened up with Uzonki offering Alexander plenty up the puck at his own blue line, stickhandled his way through the Airport forwards but was brought to a very short halt by Beck. Alexander fell to the ice and being badly hurt was carried off. It was learned later that he had received a bad cut in his forehead. But the losing of a man did not stop the Brighton boys and from then on every man seemed to play better with the line of Smith, Greer and Chapman extraordinarily good. The game ended with Brighton forwards all down inside the R.C.A.F. defence. Final score Brighton 1, R.C.A.F. 0.

Lineups:

Brighton: Goal McKinnon, defence Shannon and Alexander, wings, Uzonki and Waddington, centre Lambert. Alternates Greer, Wright, Price, Smith and Chapman.

R.C.A.F.: Goal Gould, defence, Beck and Reid, wings Powers and Wingate, centre Moore. Alternates McKee, Lawson, Wilder, Harrison and Manners.

Papermen Win 9 to 0

The second game between the Hinde and Dauche and Benedict Rubber Co. was a one sided affair with the papermen winning 9 to 0. In the opening period the line of Mills, Hoode and Lott of the papermen, who were the standouts of the winning started their bombardment on Blondin in the Silver Lake net. Mills was the star of Dauche's first goal came, when Mattis picked up the puck, passed to centre in front of the Benedict net to Hoode who tapped it in. Score 1-0.

The second scorer came when Bowen of the papermen shot from centre ice. Blondin made a stiff effort for the Silvermen were down by numbers. Ladelle and Bowen seemed to lack that certain something, when in the last of the period Mills, with a scramble in front of the Benedict and Frosted net, beat Blondin for Dauche's first goal came, when Mattis picked up the puck, passed to centre in front of the Benedict net to tang it homeward.

The second scorer came when Bowen of the papermen shot from centre ice. Blondin made a stiff effort for the Silvermen were down by numbers. In the second period and had it been the first game for the Benedicts might have made a better showing. About ten minutes after the start Bowen again shot the puck from the Benedict blue line, to score the third goal of the game. The rest of the period the Benedicts held both goals saved up and down the ice and seemed to lose the puck. Dauche's goal was in danger position. At the end of the period it could easily be seen, that the paper men's combination plays of the Hinde and Dauche line was too fast for the Silver men out. Period ended Hinde and Dauche 4, Benedict 0.

Seven Six Goals

In the third period the paper men scored five goals and their speed and headwork pleased the fans. Mills in the first game for when Mattis grabbed the puck at Benedict's net raced in on Blondin to score. The second was also scored by Mattis on a long drive from Barr. Benedict did everything to prevent the onslaught but nothing could hold the Mattis, Hoode, Barr line down. Barr scored the sixth goal from centre. Jimmie Ladelle Jr. later Lott who played sixty minutes of hockey went through the Benedict defence to Blondin for the seventh counter. From then on it was just a case of how many goals could get the Benedict goaler been good to see more might have run in the teens. The eighth goal came after Lott and Schenizel were down the ice and Lott took a pass from Mattis picked up the loose puck and rushed it into the net. Mills scored the ninth from a face off in the Benedict blue line. In the last few minutes of play Benedict started to press but were held down by Sterling. The game ended Hinde and Dauche 9, Benedict 0.

Lineups:

Hinde and Dauche: Goal Sterling, defence O'Malley and Bowen, wings Hoode and Lott, centre, Mattis. Alternates Parrish, Schenizel, McCloud and Barr.

Benedict Frosted: Goal Blondin, defence Peale and Cottrel, wings Ladelle and Wells, centre Blakely. Alternates Benam, Harvey, Beale, Johnson and Bowden. Referee: Jimmie Miller, 2nd. game Norman Johnson.

Mrs. Anne Barley

The death occurred yesterday afternoon of Mrs. Anne Barley, wife of John Barney, Bay Street. The late Mrs. Barley was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Foote, and has resided in this locality for the past twenty-five years, and prior to coming here resided in Hastor. The deceased was in her sixty-third year. She was an active member of Grace Methodist Church. She leaves to mourn her loss besides her husband, two brothers, Wilfred Cordner of Trenton, one daughter, Mrs. R. Empey of Rochester, N.Y., and two sisters Mrs. Hamilton and Mrs. Leverrie, both of Trenton. The funeral will take place at nine o'clock tomorrow morning from the church of St. Peter in Chains. Solemn requiem mass will be sung by the Rev. Father O'Neill. Interment will be made in St. James' cemetery in Belleville.

A LIFE LESSON

A story comes through of a farm helper who sixty years ago came to this district and took a job on a farm. He died this week one of the largest landowners in Lennox and Addington County.

His early life did not give the promise of what was in store for him. He had come from Ireland where ownership of land is undoubtedly an ideal, just as it is with the Englishman who likes to own his home.

The story of his death did not tell how he succeeded step by step but it is easy enough to see that fidelity and close attention to his duty were the foundation of this land fortune. He did not win this land by chance, nor by dodging work, nor by idling, but by endeavor, guided by a high ideal.

He had the right ideal—ownership of land, according to British institutions. Communism would dispute this and deny the right of ownership of property, but this man came of the healthy race which knows what an inspiration in life it is to have and to hold land which one may call home. The acquirement of more farms in Canada was but a step farther with him.

The knowledge that he has done this may help others to improve their condition. It should be an inspiration.

BLUNTNESS IN DIPLOMACY

Many who read the nice things which diplomats said about one anothers' countries a couple of years ago, were suspicious of all this gallantry. Though protesting peaceful aims, there was always the objection nicely worded with all the word sting if possible taken from it.

But now diplomats or inspired newspapers say things which would have almost led to a war a few years ago. One Italian newspaper believed to express the Duce's bidding yesterday, calls the United States a nation which had built up its wealth on war and conquest and charged that black and native races were exterminated. Surely blunt words.

This bluntness is more akin to the real motive than the nicely-coated sugar pills of speeches of diplomats. It shows anger. Britain has also been accused by Italians of a warlike mien, none too distant some of it, as excuse for conquest, this time, by the Italians.

Probably plain words will get farther than the smiling features of a diplomat disguising the feelings of his nation. Such calling of names does not strengthen the cause of the irate person or nation but as long as the other nation does not take serious offence, there is not much harm done. It does not hurt American nor British feelings to have such things said.

FOR THE FAME OF LAWRENCE

To the memory of Lawrence of Arabia a memorial is to be erected in St. Paul's Cathedral and will take the form of a bronze head, modelled from life. Noted men are behind the scheme to memorialise the great figure who rose when occasion called in the Near East at the most momentous time in modern history, Lord Allenby, Winston Churchill, Bernard Shaw, Augustus John, Lionel Curtis and others. All contributions go to the honorary secretary of the Memorial Committee, Lt. Col. R. Buxton, Martin's Bank, Limited, 68 Lombard Street, London, E.C. 2. Gifts of sixpence and upward will bring from the honorary secretary an "engagement" on the back of a photograph showing the memorial to be installed in the cathedral.

Lawrence's book, "Pillars of Wisdom" has enjoyed a great sale, now being somewhat larger than the book "With Lawrence in Arabia" which was also widely read.

It is well to remember the gallantry of this man, and to try to appreciate his place in the history of the Great War and of Arabia. His life cannot but be an inspiration to generations and generations of men and boys yet to come on the scene. Meanwhile a world stands amazed at the accomplishments of this scholar, who turned into one of the greatest figures of all history.

Times have changed. Many remember how Christabel Pankhurst led militant women who were trying to obtain the ballot. But the world of British politics passed her decades ago and those things for which she struggled along with her mother and other militant women. Today the Englishman must rub his eyes and gaze upon one who has been made a Dame Commander of the Order of the British Empire.

Since Christabel struggled for the ballot, many movements have come to sway the minds of the people. The radical woman of the past is now little in the limelight.

LOOKING BACKWARD

I used to write long years ago.
Just why I did I do not know,
No recompense accrued to me,—
At least so far as I can see.
I may have learned a thing or two,
As would-be writers sometimes do,
But, O my soul! the time I spent
On manuscripts not worth a cent.

My rooms are tombs the which contain
Those hapless children of my brain;
Those whitened bones which years ago
Were more than bones, I'll have you know;
Those hundred manuscripts returned
By publishers who never learned
The harm they did in keeping me
From helping out posterity!

NEW YORK CITY WELCOMED THE NEW YEAR WITH A BARRAGE OF REVELRY and extravagance which was not unattended with casualties. From accidents and various causes a death toll of nearly one hundred and fifty is recorded, while several murders were added to the crime records. It is estimated that about five million dollars were spent making "whoopee", the annual craziness which marks the entry of the New Year in the big cities, and the big hotels and liquor dealers made a harvest. To most of the revelers the net result was a headache of more or less severity.

20 YEARS AGO

Jan. 7th, 1916.

A new flag has been secured for the staff upon the city hall and was flying to the breeze this afternoon.

On the first day of January 1916 about fifty relatives representing Belleville, Galt, Otter, Harrision, Ottawa and Toronto, gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Snell, Toronto, for the purpose of taking part in their golden wedding anniversary. Mr. Snell was born in Belleville and resided here for some years.

In the township of Montesgle and Hungerford the vote for local Option was 166 and against it 118. The measure was thus defeated on the three fifths clause, less than five votes.

Mrs. H. W. French and daughter of Calgary are visiting Mrs. French's sister, Mrs. Perry, North Alexander Street.

Mr. T. C. McConnell of Springbrook is spending a few days in the city.

St. Agnes School will reopen on Jan. 10th. The new school rooms are now ready and are open for inspection.

In a hockey match last evening the Bankers defeated the T. M. C. A. the score being 6 to 3. The following composed the team:—Bankers:—Williamson, W. Hamilton, Smith, B. Allen, W. Allen, R. Hamilton and White. T. M. C. A.—Dolan, Acton, Connolly, Brennan, Weller, Lane and Markley. Sandy Burrows was an impartial referee. He sent a few on each side to the fence, the chief offence being tripping.

Mrs. J. D. Ford organist at Emmanuel Church entertained the members of the choir at her residence, Murney Street, last evening. The affair was much enjoyed.

Jan. 7th, 1896.

In the municipal elections yesterday Mayor J. R. Walmsley was returned for a third term over ex. Ald. A. Robinson by a majority of 366 votes. Last year Mayor Walmsley defeated Ald. Harry Powell by 147 votes. The following were returned as aldermen: E. H. Laroche, N. B. Falkner, Jas. Mackie, Silas Lennox, W. A. Ringerford, D. Collins, L. W. Yeomans, J. A. Donoboim, J. A. Campion, A. Wallace, J. F. Wills, John Doyle, D. J. Ivey, C. O. A. Harin, E. Miller, T. Harris, I. O. Frost, T. Lennox, W. J. Magrath, W. H. Panter, W. Lattimer. After the meeting in the city hall Mayor Walmsley was accompanied to his home by friend and were hospitably entertained by him.

As we predicted yesterday the snow which began to fall early this morning has had the effect of filling up the river and causing it to rise about 2 feet above yesterday's level. Several yards and cellars along the west side of Front Street are flooded and merchants are removing their goods to upper flats.

Jan. 7th, 1886.

The city was thrown into a state of intense excitement yesterday afternoon by the report that Bridge Street Methodist Church was in flames. The alarm was sounded at 4.15 o'clock and the, brigade responded promptly and despite the most strenuous exertions of the firemen the building was consumed within two hours. The fire originated in the cellar of the Church and is supposed to have started from the furnace in the north east corner of the building. A fire in the furnace was started about one o'clock in the afternoon by the caretaker to heat the building for the service of the Evangelical Alliance which was to be held in the evening. Prof. Canfield, recently engaged as Musical Director, sought to take advantage of the warm building and give the Sunday School scholars their first musical exercises. Shortly after the service Miss Nellie Jones, who was sitting near the pastor's vestry, detected smoke. The door was opened and the room was found to be full of smoke. The clock sealing to the cellar was opened next and a dense volume of smoke rushed out nearly stifling the persons present. The doors were closed to prevent draft fanning the fire and the alarm given. Mr. John Retallack, who was near the Defoe House when the alarm was sounded, went into the church yard and saw the flames through a window to the ceiling in the centre of the building. Thousands of spectators were present and the streets were lined with people. The roof was soon ablaze and fell in sections. The flames climbed to the belfry and eventually the large bell fell with a great crash carrying with it several floors until it came to the floor of the vestibule and was held there until the floor burned through when it fell to the basement. The four walls only remain standing. In the crowd that gathered were several ladies who were greatly stricken and disturbed as though their own homes were being consumed. Sympathy for the congregation is widespread and universal. Tomorrow we shall give more details.

WOMAN ELECTED AS FIRST MAYOR

Mrs. Barbara Hanley is The Province's First Woman Mayor

(By the Canadian Press)

The final wave of ballot-casting for 1936 municipal offices yesterday rolled over more than 100 villages, townships, towns and cities of Ontario.

After it was all over the following details stood out:

Mrs. Barbara Hanley, former school teacher, mother of a daughter 21-years- old, is mayor-elect of Robinwood, a town in Northern Ontario. She is the first province's first woman mayor.

The feminine influence was in evidence too at Crystal Beach, near Port Erie, where Mrs. Crash Dermont and Mrs. Grace Teal were elected to occupy two of the four seats in Council. It was a distinctive Crystal Beach ever had done such a thing.

The village of Portsmouth, near Kingston, apparently decided it just couldn't get along without Reeve John Fisher and made him Reeve for his 31st time.

At Orillia, Alderman J. J. Wilson, 73 years old, a candidate for re-election, walked to church yesterday to attend and suffered a heart attack and died. Signs were posted notifying voters of his death.

Close Vote at Oshawa

Elections were held in four cities. Oshawa chose John Stacey, an Alderman in 1935 and a campaigner for many years, as its mayor. His Margin over Alderman Allin Annis was slender, 61 votes. Another Alderman, Norman G. Michener, rose to the mayoral chair in Windsor. At Port William Mayor R. B. Fox was re-elected. Mayor Cook no conisel for the mayoralty in the Port Arthur election, for Mayor Cook received an acclamation.

Four plebiscites on the question of sale of beer and wine were taken. The vets held the Village of Erin, just west of Toronto, and the Township of Mara, in the Orillia district. In both these localities the drys had moved to wipe out beverage rooms. At Newmarket, about 40 miles north of Toronto, the wets tried to vote in beer and wine sale and failed. The dry forces resisted an effort by the wets to introduce the parlors into Newbury village, near London.

ADVERTISE IN ONTARIO INTELLIGENCER

About forty years ago the Eastman Kodak Co. originated their famous slogan "You Press the Button — We do the Rest" to show how easy it was to take a Kodak picture. To them we gratefully acknowledge the inspiration for this advertisement.

Marmora and District

MARMORA—The annual circular letter issued by the Entertainment Committee in the employment of the Deloro Smelting and Refining Co. Ltd. is as follows:—

"The festive season is here once more and it should be one of real enjoyment, but, alas, one can't help but feel that in these times the chilly remarks of Good Will Toward Men by advertising Santa's is another low record for the past year. We have just had a "gold old fashioned Christmas" without a long list of old fashioned accidents to depress us.

Deloro's complete Safety records year after year, the splendid and splendid co-operation on the part of all employees, Co. executive as a whole also shows thanks and our best wishes for a Safe, Happy and Prosperous New Year.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Kerr of Marmora celebrated the eighteenth anniversary of their wedding in their home on the Havelock road on Friday evening. The wedding took place on January 3rd, 1918, in the Peterborough with Rev. Mr. White of St. John's Anglican Church officiating. Those present enjoyed supper for a number of years. Mr. Kerr and Mrs. P. Gordon having the highest score. Music for dancing was also supplied by Mrs. Jones' 8 Jumper, S. Kent, W. Hart and O. J. Leonard. Mr. and Mrs. Kerr were completely taken by surprise when presented with a beautiful floor lamp. All wish "For they Are Jolly Good Fellows" and then delicious refreshments were enjoyed.

Miss Donna Shelworthy of Belleville visited Marmora over the week end.

Mr. William Anderson and Misses Jessie and Margaret of Campbellford were pleasant guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Gould.

Miss Jessie Ray of Warsaw visited Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Gould on Thursday.

MARMORA — The regular bi weekly meeting of Marmora Branch No. 337 Canadian Legion was held in the O. D. H. on Tuesday evening, January 3rd. A splendid attendance was witnessed, one initiation or two new members, Alcide Whitfield and Arthur King, bringing the present membership to 47. With our new President W. Mumby in the chair initial steps were taken for a membership drive.

There was a very interesting business period. The business period was followed by an interesting and impressive address on "The Pilgrimage to France" by Michael McFarland. Mr. McFarland was one of the Marmora boy to enlist in the Great War, being attached to the 2nd Canadian Battalion on August 9th, 1916. He served until losing his eyesight in the battle of Vimy in the war. He has been residing in Sussex County, Maryland, for some time from where he joined the Pilgrimage to France.

He told his audience that the principal reason for his holidays in the pilgrimage was to ascertain for himself what the old graves of his children. He remarked that what the soldiers saw before only in part of the scene of war, but that now they now see on-line. The journey from Calend the point of embarkation to Ypres, a distance of twenty-one miles, took three hours by train.

In his address Mr. McFarland told about the evening's ceremony at Menin Gate on which there are 54,000 names of soldiers with unknown graves including that of his own brother, Alex McFarland. He also mentioned the memorial at Thiepval where there are 19,000 inscriptions with unidentified graves. Included in his closing statement was the splendid work the Legion has done in the past and congratulated them on their activities. At the close of the meeting, refreshments and a social hour were enjoyed.

On Friday evening, January 3rd, a social party and dance was held in the Separate School. A splendid crowd was present and during the tables of euchre were played. The ladies' prize was won by Mrs. C. Cook, the consolation by Mrs. Ed. Flynn and the door prize by Mrs. J. Jackson of Minden. Refreshments were served and dancing followed until a late hour, the music being supplied by Miss Dorothy Hall and Charlie Campion. The convenors were Mrs. J. Finnigan, Mrs. T. Warren, Mrs. D. Graham and Miss Mary Hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Foster motored to Deloro for the past week-end to visit their son, J. Rear fellow-residents of the Deloro Ball Tournament held by the players of their College, Wednesday evening, A large number were present to offer their congratulations. On their behalf a suitable address was read by Mr. Jas. Rear, Manager of the Deloro Smelting and Refining Company and a purse of money was presented to the honored couple. Both round and square dancing was enjoyed by the guests present and Mrs. Foster demonstrated her ability as a step dancer by giving a few dances on request. The Marmora Band was in attendance.

Mr. and Mrs. Foster were married in Trenton on January 23rd, 1886, by the late Canon F. W. Armstrong then rector of St. George's Parish, Trenton.

Mrs. Foster is a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Foster of Kingston, and with her brother, Mrs. Foster was Josephine Bedore, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Louis Bedore, Trenton. Mr. and Mrs. Foster have nine children.

A unique event took place in Marmora on January 3rd when an aged resident celebrated her birthday on the same day as her son-in-law and her grand-daughter. Mrs. S. Ashley of Marmora was born on January 3rd, 1836, in Rawdon Township, in Sarah Morra, daughter of late Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Darah. While quite young her parents moved to Malden which district she received her schooling at Dick Wolf's School. Mrs. Moffat is also a Rawdon girl and was married to Samuel Ashley at the early fifty-six years ago. Her husband is ten years her junior being seventy-six years of age. There are three sons, John of Marmora Township, Arthur of Peterborough and Thomas of Marmora Township and two daughters, Mrs. Jas. Jones and Mrs. Gordon Bell of Marmora, Township. Mrs. Moffat also has twenty-four grandchildren and twenty-one great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Moffat has been noted for her activity, as a cook and like the other pioneer mothers is adept at knitting. She and Mrs. Vanduzer of the old residents of the village and has often been heard to remark, "We had better times when we were children than they do now."

Many members of her family were present at the triple birthday party at her home on Friday. The guests included Mrs. Thomas Jones, son-in-law whose 62nd birthday occurred that day, and her grand-daughter Ruth, of the teen-age also celebrated her birthday.

At the Thursday morning the funeral took place of the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leighan Harrison, who was found dead in bed on Monday morning. The Coroner Dr. Ellsworth was called and after investigating the case determined that the baby was accidentally smothered when sleeping with its mother. The baby was not quite eight weeks' old. The funeral left the home at the time of the accident. Interment was made in Marmora Protestant Cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Woodhouse have taken up residence in the house of Mrs. J. J. O'Neill, Bridge street, recently vacated by the Misses Hughes.

Dr. Mack's Daily Diet Hint

Cheesemargarine is less expensive than butter and often serves as an excellent substitute. It looks like butter and has a similar consistency. It is made up of a mixture of vegetal fats, to which milk or butter is added. This mixture is then cooked and salted in the same manner as butter.

BIBLE - READING BURGLAR IN COURT

Read Scriptures While Walking Along The Street

LONDON, Ont., Jan. 6.—(CP)—Bible-reading burglar appeared in city court today. He pleaded guilty to breaking into four London homes and stealing cash and merchandise. He was remanded to jail until Saturday for sentence.

Ashton L. Radle, 30, pinned to the floor by George Gillespie, well-known London Rugby player, while he was found hiding in the clothes closet of Mr. Gillespie's home, December 29th, appeared before Magistrate Menzies.

In asking for a remand for sentence Acting Crown Attorney Lerner told the Court Radle's case was one of the most peculiar on record.

The accused, after committing his first job Wednesday night, which he stole household goods, valued at about $100, wanted to take the articles back but was afraid he would be caught so he turned around his commission to commit other offences.

The ex-con's story was somewhat confused, Mr. Lerner.

"When officers entered his room they found his pockets filled with the stolen articles which told where and when they broke a burglary, Radle also kept a diary. He also carried a Bible in his pocket and he is known to have read from the Scriptures along the street, taken the Bible out of his pocket, read a verse or two of Scripture, then replace it in his pocket and proceed along his way."

While he sat in the police station today the Bible was in his right coal pocket.

Little Benny's Note Book

We was eating breakfast, and ma says, "Benny, you haven't eaten a bite till I consulted her myself, but what woman who reads your hands and your tea leaves at the Bohemia Tea Room is really cynical, sarcastic, really, she's cynical. The thing she told me out of my pastry, He's afraid no other explanation," ma said.—

You're not going to ask me to read this, are you, actually told you that you're going to order liver and onions for dinner tonite? pop said, and ma said, Now Mr. Bowerman, don't start. The oftener you have liver and onions the oftener you want it. It seems to effect your system like a drug on the market, pop speaking of food, the sykick told me I was a grate eater, pop. Now how could she known that if she was a normal woman? ma said.

Are you sure there wasn't a piece of yesterday's lettuce hanging from your face? pop said, and ma said, Dont be redickulous. And she also told me that I'd had a very serious illness between the ages of 12 and 15 but that it didn't require me to have an operation. Now isn't that a perfect. ill. life portrail of me, pop? Is there anything she saw me up for lost except the doctors? ma said.

Psychiatrist is a mild way, but I don't believe in them any more, unless I have absolutely got to, pop said. Now for internals if she'd mentioned a concrete thing like liver and onions and pinned it down definitely to my ribs, he said, and ma said, O hush up. Even if it was true she can't mention everything, but that isn't saying she didn't know about it, because she did, so there, ma said.

By golies then I'm convinced now, I positively am the miraculous, pop said. You dont seriously mean to say you actually did and do believe to have liver and onions for lunch? he said, and ma said, Thats what I mean. I mean to say and I hope you wont be such a proverbial sticking Thomas after this.

I'm a changed man, pop said. And he folded up his paper look-ing as if he felt better instead of worse, and ma just sat there looking as if she didn't quite know how she felt.

Weddings

WOODSIDE—MURRAY

A marriage of interest across Canada was solemnized quietly on the morning of December 27 when Helen P., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Murray of Caledonia, Ont., became the bride of Mr. C. Wilfrid Woodside, B.Sc., of Toronto. The ceremony was performed at the residence of the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Woodside, Rosedale Road, by the brother-in-law of the immediate family were present. The bride's sister, Miss Muriel Sashkeen, looked on moulded graceful lines to floor length and having a jacket with long sleeves. Flowers chosen by the bride, who carried a sheaf of calla lilies. She was attended by Miss Helen Woodside, garbed in a pale yellow satin dress broadcasted in a floral pattern and trimmed with a capelet. Mr. Donald R. Woodside was groomsman, and the Rev. Dr. C. W. Kerby officiated at the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Woodside left later for the western states, where they will spend a week skiing, later continuing to the Coast, where the bridegroom will conclude his lecture engagement under the auspices of the Canadian Club. They will make their home in Toronto. Mr. Woodside was formerly a member of the University of Toronto faculty.

MADOC

Madoc, Jan. 7—The Women's Missionary Society of the Bridge Street United Church held its January meeting in the church parlors on Friday. Mrs. Herb Talley, had charge of the meeting which was opened with a short word prayer by the leader. Miss A. Wood read the Scripture lesson from Isaiah, chapter 12. The Devotional Leaflet was taken by Mrs. Hiram Hoffman. Mrs. W.M.S. president, Mrs. C. B. Hamm conducted a short business period. The Roll Call was answered with "Good resolutions for the New Year." Prayer was offered by Mrs. Given by Mrs. A. Corrigal.

The very pleasing feature of the program was the presentation of a Society Membership to Mrs. Malcolm Bristol by a friends. The Temperance report was given by Mrs. Bristol and a duet by Mrs. Hiram Hepburn was outlined by Mrs. Hearn.

Letters of thanks were read from Mrs J. Rutherford, Mrs. C. B. Hamm and Mrs. Henderson. A vote of thanks was extended Mrs. T. E. Sherrard in thanking her for trying the programs for the year.

The social hour was under the supervision of Mrs. Will Broad who gave a fine resume of the selected chapter from the Study Book of the New Africa. Hymn 253 was then sung and the meeting closed with a benediction by Mrs. H. Bailey.

Bruno May Appear Before Appeal Court

TRENTON, N.J., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Members of the New Jersey Court of Pardons today awaited the decision of Governor Hoffman on the plea that it is to meet to consider the clemency plea of Bruno Richard Hauptmann.

The court is to convene Saturday. The scope of session is to be selected by the Governor. From his choice the members will get an indication on whether the executioner's slayer of the Lindbergh baby is to be heard personally.

If the court meets at the State Prison, where Hauptmann occupies a death house cell, it will mean, Persons Court members believe, that Hauptmann will be asked to appear before it.

But if the merry plea is heard at the State House it is unlikely the prisoner would be heard.

Being Polite Must Have Reward

Don't Ignore Efforts of Child is Trying Best to be Pleasant

By LIZA GRENELLE

ALL DAY Ralph went about saying: "If you please"; "Yes, sir"; "Certainly, Father, I'll be glad to"; and "Can I help you, Mother?" and no one noticed at all.

But if Ralph was the least bit rude, everyone noticed immediately. Father and mother would say so very pointedly. And from father: "Where are your manners, young man?" They'd say it no matter who was there, too.

Everybody scolded, thought Ralph if he were rude. If he were selfish with his playmates, mother and father never failed to bring his faults to his attention. But when he was polite, helpful and considerate, then no one even mentioned it.

Is it any wonder that Ralph felt bitter and discouraged? He'd tried just to be what his father and mother wanted him to be, and he'd succeeded at least part of the time. But neither of them had noticed.

Unfortunately, Ralph's experience is very common one. Mother never fails to notice and reprove children who are rude, noisy and knocking things over, or Janie when she shows off and interrupts. But if Jimmie is quiet and Janie doesn't interrupt herself, mother breathes a sigh with relief, and settles back to enjoy her visit or her book.

Not an Accident

Mother forgets, or perhaps doesn't realize, that in all "probability Jimmie's and Janie's sudden good behavior was not accidental, but acquired without an heroic effort on their part. It is not due to any certain children, at certain ages, to be mischievous. It is not natural for any age to remember not to interrupt.

To be good, especially quiet, is a task requiring the use of the most difficult of all powers of control in children—that of self-control. And then, not only do you get nothing for it, but it isn't even noticed!

Even mother herself goes into blissful spells if father has praised her fashioned on moulded graceful lines to floor length and having a jacket with long sleeves. Flowers chosen by the bride, who carried a sheaf of calla lilies. She was attended by Miss Helen Woodside, garbed in a pale yellow satin dress broadcasted in a floral pattern and trimmed with a capelet. Mr. Donald R. Woodside was groomsman, and the Rev. Dr. C. W. Fashion Flashes

(Copyright, 1935, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

NEVER ENOUGH frocks for the girl who goes to parties, it seems. A frock that should give good service is of heavy moire in pale blue, with the skirt cut in flare and with tiny self-covered buttons. Stiff shoulder wings are lined with dark blue velvet.

RESTFUL YET EXCITING is its beauty is a gown of black velvet, tailored like a man's robe. It has flap pockets at bust and hips, and is buttoned from the neck down with self buttons. The skirt has a deep hem. Tucked in the left hankie in one pocket and a heavy knotted red scarf that is tucked in.

A PRETTY PICTURE is made by a black velvet dress on fitted lines with tiny sleeves that cover the knee the line flares out into fullness of black ostrich feathers. A black velvet scarf has a pompom of black feather.

ALWAYS A LITTLE DRAMA is in white with splashes of red. And so white chiffon frock has huge panels in back made of red chiffon, these gathered in at the waist by a rhinestone and ruby ornament. Coat, free to form a train. The bodice is outlined with a garland of red and white chiffon flowers.

LOCKED OUT of the fashion picture for several seasons, net posed over satin is back again. A new evening model is of dark brown net posed over shiny dark brown slipper satin. The skirt is very full, the bodice simplet.

NICE AND SOFT are the new velvet evening gowns. Any flower or leaf motifs made from the tiniest petals set almost on shaved velvet. These are done in all sorts of rich colors as well as in black. Sometimes they have tiny diamond centers.

Follow This Plan for Better
CONTROL of COLDS

For Fewer Colds . . .
Vicks Va-tro-nol helps
Prevent many Colds

At the first warning nasal irritation, sniffle or sneeze, use Vicks Va-tro-nol—just a few drops up each nostril. Va-tro-nol is especially designed for the nose and upper throat—where most colds start. It stimulates Nature's own functions—in the nose—to help prevent colds, and to throw off local colds in their early stages. Used in time, Va-tro-nol helps avoid many colds.

For Shorter Colds . . .
Vicks VapoRub helps
End a Cold Sooner

If a cold has developed, rub Vicks VapoRub on throat and chest at bedtime. VapoRub acts direct—two ways at once: (1) By stimulation through the skin like a poultice or plaster; (2) By inhalation of its medicated vapors direct to inflamed air-passages. Through the night, these combined vapor-poultice action loosens phlegm, soothes irritation, helps break congestion.

EDUCATED WOMEN NOT ONLY MARRY, BUT STAY MARRIED

(Copyright, 1935, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Statistics, those tell-tale straws which show how the wind blows, disprove the saying that well-educated girls do not marry. I with their own two eyes saw the figures of women college students' marriages—now and stayed married.

Those who have rushed to the divorce courts are more often girls who have closed their books in the grade schools. This leads to the conclusion that if you have the industrious, unfussy determination to stick it out in the classroom, you may be prepared to face matrimony as a life job rather than a temporary adventure.

The sort of risk that young people describe as willing-to-try-anything-once is too often nothing more than a "dare," the windup of a gay party—and young people who never got beyond grade school lead the list.

Those who have had the discipline of college, or who cares enough about schooling to patch up the gaps at night school, is more likely to know her own mind than a youngster of 16 or 17 whose approach to marriage is apt to be romantic.

Often these very young girls have not had their play-time out, and they rush into matrimony under the influence of a temporary fascination, only to meet it head-on and wind up in the divorce court.

On the other hand, a college girl has seen a good deal of what is called "puppy love" around the campus and at Proms. She knows what a "crush" is, and, if she perhaps has had several herself. She does not take them will o' the wisp affairs too seriously.

A proposal is not the matter of thrills and gush to her that 'Sweet Sixteen imagines it to be.

A week or two after there was published a group of a dozen "happily married couples" Naturally it led off with Mr. Lindbergh, as his wife's marriage is conspicuous. With a few exceptions, the remainder consisted has been with him across unchartered oceans and continents. Together they have faced an unspeakably tragedy, with a fortitude more than human.

And yet, if Smith College is to be trusted, Anne Morrow did not decide to marry the young eagle after she took some time to think it over.

Again, college women are more practical where the financial side of marriage is concerned. A girl who may have helped to put herself through those four academic years is apt to be a better economizer than the girl who has been a child of 17, who flutters away from the parental nest with little thought of the bread and cheese — but only the kisses-and-moonlight side of romance.

These are some of the reasons why statistics show that the girl of only grade-school education is divorced oftener than the high school graduate and the high-school graduate oftener than the college woman.

Apparently, the more you know, the less you squabble.

Good Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

SALAD KNIVES

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Should you offer an invitation to one person while talking to several?

2. Should the hostess herself invite any woman brought to a party by a man?

3. Should a woman offer her hand when being introduced to another woman?

4. Should a knife be used when eating salad?

5. Is it good taste to say, "In our residence we do thus and so?"

6. Is it correct for you to seal a letter in the presence of its subject?

7. Should a woman living in a hotel room receive men guests in the public parlors?

8. At a house party at a camp, should everyone dress for dinner?

9. Should you fold your napkin if you are to remain as guest for another meal?

R.

1. This is an excellent question, and I am so glad that you asked it. It is the height of poor manners for us to give an invitation to one person in a group and disregard the other people in the group. It is inconsiderate and tactless. If you are going the invitation, and awkward for everyone in the group, including the person being invited. So by all means be sure to give an invitation to the entire group.

2. Yes, if the hostess asks any guest to bring another guest to a party that she is to give, she should "second" that invitation to the guest who is being unidirectly invited. That is, she should ask the guest whom she has invited, to give the name and address of the guest-to-be-invited-by-that-guest, and then she telephones her invitation or writes a note welcoming the guest to her party.

3. Usually, when two women are being introduced to each other, they do not shake hands. But they may if they wish, and if the host or a special interest in the introduction. In the instance of the latter, women have heard much of each other through the man mutual friend who is making the introduction, they very often do shake hands.

4. It is entirely correct to use a salad knife as well as a fork, and when we eat a salad. In practically all silver patterns now, both knife and plate salad knives have been incorporated into the list of silver patterns that "match." And increasingly hostesses are buying salad knives as well as salad forks, and increasingly guests are using them. And we need them for consequential salads, such as hearts of lettuce, stalks of endive and romaine, and quarters of tomatoes.

5. To say, for instance, "In our residence we always have dinner at 7," is pretentious. The best way of saying this is the simple way, "At our house we have dinner at seven."

6. Let's say that someone is handing you a letter that he has written and that you are to deliver to someone else. The person who has written the letter may ask that you unseal, and you may, if you wish, seal it in the writer's presence. But the writer of the letter should not seal the letter in your presence.

7. Yes.

8. At a house party at a camp, formal evening clothes, or evening clothes that even approach formality, are usually not worn. The guests "change" for dinner, if they wear the simplest of afternoon clothes.

9. Yes.

Hair Cut is Important to The Coiffure

Beauty Expert Presents Ideas of an Ideal Hair Trimmer

Cecilia Parker

She knows the importance of a hair cut to the coiffure

By HELEN FOLLETT

IF A GIRL walks miles for a hair cut, determined to have the fashion of the season, she knows his business and who trims her crown in fine style, don't think she's a silly. A good hair cut is about the most important detail of the coiffure, especially these days when there are innovations and many little personal touches to be had.

Ask a comb trimmer to thin and taper your tresses and he'll give you too much work for your money. Over-zealous, he is. Anyhow, not so much thinning is being done nowadays. Fewer snips will if required are to be right. How it is done depends upon how the hair is to be worn.

A common error in cutting is the cutting of straight hair when the shape line while the rest of the brain which is neglected in the excitement over. Win with the darlings would protest against it. Grow a few inches longer, perhaps, for a year and have them included in the hard-to-grow. That's just a little notion of ours, offered for what's it's worth.

SHANNONVILLE W.M.S.

The monthly meeting of the W.M.S. of the United Church of Shannonville met at the home of Mrs. Harry Reid and Mrs. Jamey Reid, with twenty-three ladies present. Mrs. Sam Elliott, vice-president, was in the chair. The Mission Group Leader, took charge of the devotional period and Mrs. Elliott presided at the piano. The meeting opened by singing a hymn and all repeating the Lord's Prayer. The devotional leaflet was read by Mrs. Harry Reid, Mrs. Jamey Reid, Mrs. Hollet led in prayer for help and guidance as we enter on the work of the year. Mrs. Reid was then called by the secretary, members responding by giving a New Year's thought. Mrs. H. Murphy called the names on the different groups and where the members of each group were to be held.

A member of the travelling basket was asked for at the next meeting. Mrs. C. Reid and Mrs. F. Hollet expressed gratitude for the card sent when they were ill.

Mrs. Hutchison, Mrs. Hollet and Mrs. Knight were appointed to audit the treasurer's book. A committee was chosen to look after the Red Cross Christmas supper. Mrs. Dowdzor, Group Leader, expressed the appreciation of the services of Mrs. Elliott, Mrs. Reid and Mrs. Jamey Reid, and asked her to continue as it was the wish of all the ladies. Mrs. Hinchey will entertain the group in March.

Mrs. Robertson and Mrs. Orval Stratford each read an interesting chapter from the Study Book, "Monthly on Africa. Mrs. W. S. Hollet took charge of the closing of the Study Book which was also on Africa. Mrs. Hollet read the twenty-two verses of "Blest Be the Tie that Binds" and the Mizpah Benediction. Hostess served tea. Next meeting at 2:30 p.m. and for flower fund 90 cents.

FRONT ROAD LADIES' AID

The annual business meeting of Front Road Ladies' Aid was held at the home of Mrs. Sam Geddes on Thursday afternoon, Jan. 3rd, with a splendid attendance, nearly 100 percent of the membership being present. Mrs. Hugh Geddes, one of the visitors.

After calling to order the president, Mrs. T. J. Brown announced the singing of hymn 349, "Jesus, I am Resting, Resting" followed by the Lord's prayer in unison. Miss Helen Brown read the minutes of the meeting of Dec. 10: 1-11. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved and the last of the bills were handed in. Treasurer, Mrs. Jas. Geddes. Secretary Treasurer then read the financial report for the year. Receipts, $1,000.00 and $2.85 raised over $140.00 while disbursements amounted to about $600.00 leaving a balance on hand of over $50.00. Mrs. Hugh Williams and Mrs. Hugh Geddes were then appointed to audit the books and the president called for nominations for the election of officers for 1936.

With such a successful year to their credit any protest by the re-tiring officers at accepting office for the coming year was most emphatically overruled by the members and the following officers were all re-elected: President, Mrs. T. J. Brown; 1st vice-president, Mrs. F. Purdy, 2nd. Vice President, Mrs. C. R. Lawrence. Sec. Treasurer, Mrs. A. Bell.

A committee for visiting the sick of the community was then appointed, Mrs. F. Purdy and Mrs. S. Anderson for the east part of the locality and Mrs. S. Geddes and Miss Doris Reid for the east.

A number of plans were discussed for raising funds in the future and it was decided to try another coin contest for next year, all to be handled in by the July meeting. Misses Madeline Bell and Helen Brown again agreed to gather in the coins of 1932 date being chosen.

It was also suggested that the Aid bring back the Literary School executive at its forthcoming annual meeting the advisability of holding the Sunday School concert in March or July. The suggestion met with the approval of the members and will be acted upon.

Mrs. H. Prentice offered her home for a pot luck supper in the near future and proposals were made for a date to be given at a later date by local talent.

Mrs. Hugh Geddes then presented the Aid with a Canadian hymnal hymn book with words and music at the meetings, for which a vote of thanks was extended to her for her generosity and kindness.

As the hour was then getting late it was decided to postpone the prepared program until the December meeting. The officers of the coin contest recently closed were banqueting with supper at 6:30 o'clock, the payment of membership fees for 1936 was then received and the Roll Call for next month's Roll Call is to be a Scripture verse beginning the word "Joy." The meeting closed by all repeating the Mizpah Benediction.

After singing grace twenty-four sat down to the table, and there was as usual, were all that could be desired by the hostesses, Misses Geddes for the resetting of the tables.

After all had done justice to the feast Mrs. Hugh Geddes moved a vote of thanks to the contest losers for the splendid supper and Mrs. Sam S. Anderson also moved a vote of thanks to the hostesses for opening her home and general hospitality. Mrs. Geddes made a very suitable response. The remainder of the afternoon was brought to a close.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Escapade"

William Powell, Luise Rainer, Virginia Bruce and Reginald Denny Delight In Captivating Romance

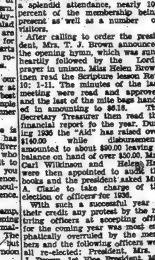
Romance, drama, gayety and music mingle in a unique blend of entertainment in "Escapade," Metro-Mayer's gay Continental drama now playing at the Capitol Theatre. The unusual story, through original and unique twists, maintains deep interest in which every possible element of entertainment from grand opera to whimsical comedy is logically and naturally introduced.

With William Powell heading the cast as a whimsical artist whose past feats as a Lothario land him in trouble, the picture introduces many new personalities and new ideas. Luise Rainer, brilliant Viennese stage star, makes her debut on the American screen as this leading girl.

Carmen's Voice Recorded

Through modern sound recording magic, the voice of Enrico Caruso, amplified from his records, lends realism to a faithful reproduction in the operatic scenes. Lilting music by Walter Jurmann and Bronislaw Kaper, Hollywood composers of the Chopin's hits, is used through the picture which, though not a musical has interesting musical interludes.

The story deals with an artist who, through a flirtation, paints a picture of a married woman which accidentally gets into print. Seeking a model for an alibi to distract the suspicious husband, he finds the companion of a countess who serves his purpose. But he falls in love and a jealous former sweetheart, together with the rest of the tangle, lands him in custody but finally, in the dramatic high spots, much comedy, romance and gayety is the story.



Powell as the debonair artist, plays his role engagingly and with appropriate facial acrobatics. Miss Rainer, a brilliant new personality, with unusual charm, assists the former sweetheart. She plays scenes ranging from grotesque to pathos with the utmost dramatic skill. Reginald Denny, as the famous composer, Frank Morgan handles the role of the temperamental opera diva with skill and clever comedy, and Virginia Bruce is delightfully flirtatious as the jealous wife.

Drama is contributed by Madge Bellamy as the Italian countess heart, who is grippingly realistic in the shooting sequence and Donald Meek and Henry Travers provide whimsical laughter as the absent-minded musician and the gardener with the toothache. Mathilda Comont is also laughable as Mathilde the maid. Delightful music includes a new song hit, "You're All I Need," sung to a new lyric version of Chopin's prelude. Laura Hope Crews plays the gay old Countess.

Robert C. Leonard adds another triumph to his long list as director of the new picture, his skilful handling of its effervescent action adding greatly to its charm.

Amateur Finals Tomorrow Night

Glenda Farrell, Allen Jenkins and Jean Muir and featured with Hugh Herbert in "Miss Pacific Fleet," one of the Warner Bros. 1936 screen.

Laughs and Thrills Abound in Hollywood's Biggest Double Show, Starting Today

"Miss Pacific Fleet" comes to port today at the Sola Theatre with that famous quartette of film comedians, Joan Blondell, Glenda Farrell, Hugh Herbert and Allen Jenkins heading the cast that includes hundreds of gobs and marines.

The picture is based on the rollicking comedy by Frederick Hazlitt Brennan and is said to be chuck full of hilariously funny but to carry a humorous love triangle between Miss Blondell, Jenkins and Warren Hull, the radio star who has the romantic role in the production.

Miss Blondell and Miss Farrell are teamed as a couple of wise-cracking chorus girls who run a contraception at an amusement park on the Pacific Coast. They are put out of business and the case changing skill of Jenkins,

Hugh Herbert promotes a beauty contest, which includes a prize fight with 5,000 votes awarded the winner. Jenkins is the fight friend. This is staged between Jenkins, who has fallen in love with the charge Miss Blondell, and one of the local pugs.

Laughs tumble over each other in a series of hilarious situations by a melodramatic, although laughable climax, in which there is a kidnapping, a motor boat chase for the abducted girl and a free for all mêlée involving not only the radio but their sweeties.

Warren Hull, musical comedy and radio star, sings a song specially written for the production by M. K. Jerome and Herb Magidson.

Prince Kid" Thrilling

The picture is raised as the biggest of James Cagney's fire big hits of 1935, which is directed by Michael Landay, Ricardo Cortes and Jean Parker are featured, this forty people in the principal roles.

James Cagney has the most powerful role of his screen career, as the dominating character who is a driving force and a magnet to the underworld, but eventually the love of a beautiful and talented woman of the upperworld.

Edwin C. Hill, the rambling reporter, ably describes the many-colored-life-and-death events in the giant World News reel to be exhibited on the same program.

Performances start daily at 2:30, 7:15, the last complete show starting at 8:30 p.m. "Miss Pacific Fleet", starts at 3:46, 7:25 and 9:26 and "Prince Kid" starts at 1:47 and 5:40 and 9:30 p.m. Polka! Here's a show that should not be missed!

MRS. WATT SAYS HUSBAND TOLD HER

Wife is Allowed by Court to Refer Generally to Gang Disclosures

Toronto, Jan. 6.—(CP)—Impersonal hearsay was brought out in evidence at the Royal Commission investigating Toronto police affairs resumed today was that former Constable W. J. Watt told his wife of disclosures to be given in 1933 similar to his present allegations of bribery by certain gambling interests.

Mrs. Watt testified today her husband told her of disclosures he gave when he went to Ontario Reformatory to serve a term for receiving goods stolen property from fellow-Constable. The present commission inquiry was instigated by Watt's charges 22 policemen formed a "gang" looting downtown business establishments.

Judge J. C. Coughlin and Judge Duncan C. Ross, the commissioners, decided not to permit Mrs. Watt to tell exactly what she heard from her husband but witness was allowed to read disclosures were along the lines of her husband's allegations of "gang" activities.

Envelopes as Exhibits

Mrs. Watt identified envelopes filed as exhibits. She said they came to her containing money, sometimes $2 and sometimes $10, while her husband was in reformatory. Some cases by mail and some were pushed through the letter slot in her front door.

At one time she carried a letter from her husband at reformatory to Toronto lawyer, Mr. Hayes, and to deliver it to Constable John Ball. The letter told Ball, she said, that he was not living up to his "word". Her son returned with $15 he said Ball had given him.

Judge James Parker, former member of Toronto Transportation Commission, gave evidence he visited Constable Robert Edmunds in penitentiary and the latter told him he knew that Schultz and Martin were not with him when he broke into a store.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied by Biggar and Crawford to Ross Darby.

Stone May-Sing-Me Prediction is see Tony Darby.

Silent Stream in the shares of Smoke Gold Mines predicted on the belief in quarter dollar rise in affairs of the company that an announcement will be forthcoming shortly on the financing plans to increase milling capacity.

Current production at Sucoe is at a rate of 410 tons a day with output in December reaching a record figure of slightly over $50,000. It is expected that the capacity of the mill will be enlarged by 200 tons daily.

On a basis of 600 tons a day, Sucoe should annually mill more than $300,000 if millheads are to remain at $12 a ton. This is the figure after charges should equal 2 1-2 cents a share each month, or 30 cents or better, annually. There is no doubt that increase production would be followed by a like increase in the dividend rate to at least 6 cents per quarter.

Field advices report the discovery of an important new ore body carrying high grade values on which exploration has recently been concentrated.

Wayside Milling Over One Hundred Per Day

The new mill at the Wayside Consolidated Mines Ltd., property in Bridge River has been in production since December 1 and at present is operating at the rate of 102 tons a day, shareholders of the company were informed at the annual meeting of the company in Vancouver.

Recovery is reported as satisfactory and the management plans to erect one or two additional ore bins; holders in about three or four months time outlining full milling plans.

A wealth of information is contained in the Hiram Walker prospectus on the $8,000,000 debenture issue recently offered. The pamphlet consists of a 48 page booklet and a great deal of data that is interesting and otherwise. It is a most meticulous study and should be carefully perused by all those holding any of the securities.

In connection with the fire that occurred last July at the Peoria plant of Hiram Walker, the company has filed for the large loss sustained for an amount of upwards of $2,000,000 against thirteen American insurance companies and two English companies.

An option has been granted by Hiram Walker and Distilleries Inc. (formerly Hiram Walker and Sons Inc.) to Hall, a director and vice-president to purchase 5,000 common shares of Hiram Walker-Gooderham and Worts Limited Stock-holding until November 14, 1938, at the price of $54.94 per share. This option was granted in consideration of services performed by Hall for the subsidiary, Hiram Walker and Sons, Inc.

The group of stocks most favored by the economic trend is rubber, the demand emanating both from investment and speculative quarters. Rubber has had a poor industry in 1935 will start on the long-awaited road to normalcy and that the entire situation will adjust itself so that the companies will be able to show some profits on the tremendous amount of capital invested.

Softness in Distillers-Seagrams is fairly discounting the coming ruling on the part of those holders who believe that the issue is the conversion of high-quality liquor in the United States will counteract the benefits derived from the cut in tariff. On an earnings-basis-ratio, however, Distillers-Seagrams, Walker, National Distillers and Schenley appear attractive.

Disappointment has been created in the investment world by the news of the failure of the Directors of Ford of Canada to declare a dividend today. Although the 1936 outlook for the automobile industry is bright, the fourth quarter showing of the parent was responsible for the reason that the company price reduction will cut into profits.

Hiram Walker

The offering of $8,000,000 of debentures by Hiram Walker last week, on a yield basis of 3.40 per cent, was considered most attractive from the issuer's point of view. Bonds were rapidly taken up. One of the features of the issue is the conversion privilege into common stock and Financial Service has received numerous enquiries to explain the exact conversion rights.

The debentures may be converted at any time within the 10-year period that they may be outstanding into maximum 160,000 shares of Walker-Gooderham and Worts, Ltd. on the following basis:

At $40 per share for common stock so long as more than $6,000,000 principal amount of debentures remain outstanding; at $45 per share for common stock so long as more than $4,000,000 principal amount of debentures remain outstanding; at $55 per share so long as more than $2,000,000 principal amount of debentures remain outstanding and thereafter at $60 per share.

LIVESTOCK

Calves were steady at $4.36 to $4.50 for grassers with as high as $10.50 for good quality veals.

Bacon hogs were steady at $8.85 to $8.75, fed and watered, with the top figure paid for hundredweight. Sows were from $7 to $7.25.

Produce Prices on Montreal Market

Montreal, Jan. 7.—Fresh eggs were cheaper on the local market yesterday, Lower grades, out of storage, were unchanged. The butter market was inclined to be slightly easier. Cheese, potatoes and poultry were unchanged. Trading was generally light, being restricted by the part holiday. Average prices posted at the Board of Trade as 439 cases of eggs, 7 boxes of butter, and 1 box of cheese.

Livestock

Toronto, Jan. 7 (CP)—Cattle trade was slow on the Toronto Livestock Market today with trading in calves, sheep and lambs steady and hogs unsettled.

There was a holdover of 1,000 head of cattle from yesterday.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Livestock Branch were: cattle, 270; calves, 160; hogs, 550; sheep and lambs 40.

With cattle trade slow, only a few butcher cows and fed calves sold. Cows were steady at $2.75 to $4.25 and a few choice fed calves brought $7.50 to $8.25, with medi-ums down to $5.50.

The calf division was firm at $10.50 to $11.00 for choice vealers and with common down to $6.00. Heavy calves brought $4.00 to $.25.

There were no hog prices established in the early morning sale.

The few lambs offered sold steady at from $7.00 to $9.00. Sheep were also steady at from $1.50 to $4.50, according to quality.

BOND

Toronto, Jan. 7 (CP)—Bacon hog prices took a price jump today and not one cent was reported from eight market points. Barrie, Stratford and Kitchener prices showed a 25-cent gain and Brantford and Peterborough were up 10 cents. London, Chatham and Hull remained unchanged. Prices:

London, $7.75; Chatham, $7.40; Barrie, $7.75; Stratford, $8.00; Peterborough, $7.75; Stratford, $7.95; Hull, $7.85; Kitchener, $7.85.

"Kicked Off" Olympic Team Because of Money Demands Halifax Players Start Home

Asked C. A. H. A. to Provide For Families While Away

INVITE FOUR OTHERS

C. A. H. A. Promised Expenses and Nothing Else is Statement

By ELMER DULMAGE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Toronto, Jan. 7.—(CP)—The last time of Maritime strength in Canada's Olympic hockey team vanished today as four Halifax Wolverine stars left; for home on an early train, literally "kicked off" the team for demanding remuneration from the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

The four—Sylvester (Daddy) Burbar, Vinny Ferguson, Ernie Mosher and Chummy Lawlor—were told by the C.A.H.A. early this morning that, because they had asked for money with which to keep their families while they played hockey in the Olympics, they had been dropped from the Canadian team.

President E. A. Gilroy of the C. A. H. A. and other selectors met today to replace the Halifax players. It was known they intended inviting four others to join the original Port Arthur Bearcats, which forms the Olympic team's foundation. Their vacancies are to be named some time today.

Wouldn't Meet Demands

The four likely to be invited, it was understood, are Dinty Moore, goaltender of Port Colborne Sailors; Bobby McCranor, defenceman of Fort William; Hugh Farquharson, centre of Montreal Victorias, and Jimmy Haggarty, forward who played with the Bearcats last season. Haggarty is playing in England this winter.

"I hope," exclaimed President Gilroy, "that this action will show the C.A.H.A. has no desire but to be fair to every player on the team. Obviously we could not undertake to meet the demands, financial as they are, of these players."

Mr. Gilroy spoke after having conferred for several hours during the night with representatives of the C.A.H.A. and the Canadian Olympic Committee, including P. J. McGiveen, chairman of the Olympic Committee; Decl Duncan of Ottawa, C.A.H.A. vice-president; Fred Marples, C.A.H.A. secretary and W. A. Hewitt, sports editor.

It was a momentous session, because not in the history of Canadian hockey had an Olympic team been disturbed once it was selected. Financial considerations alone had entered the Olympic picture in a personal way. Not since 1924 had athlete ever had been invited to leave a team for any reason.

Helped With Cup

Bubar, veteran goalkeeper; Ferguson, defenceman and Lawlor and Mosher, forwards, helped Halifax win the Allan Cup last spring, defeating Port Arthur's western champions in the final at Halifax. When the Halifax team broke up and was unable to go as a team to the Canadian championships, it was the C.A.H.A. invited the Bearcats.

But the four Wolverines were added to the Port Arthur team. So were Herman Murray, Ralph St. Germain and Jack Walker, while Norrel Royals, runner-up to Halifax in the eastern playdowns, was chosen.

Last month the Halifax and Montreal stars joined the seven selected Bearcats in Port Arthur and started training under Coach Albert Pudas. And it was then, that the question of Canada's provisions for the wives and families of Bubar, Ferguson, Lawlor and Mosher arose. All are married.

President Gilroy denied definitely that he had conferred with anyone, To queries from Halifax concerning any such arrangements, he had not replied, he said early this morning. The players were promised expenses for the trip and nothing more.

"Where those boys got the idea that an organization affiliated with the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada would enter such an agreement is beyond me," he said. "I spoke to them individually and in a group on the train coming down here from Port Arthur.

Wanted Freedom Made

"Two of them said definitely they would not go to the Olympic games unless provision was made for their families. So that was that. They stuck to their demands to the last. At least one of the others now wants to go with the team regardless of whether he gets any money. But he won't do."

Mosher, Captain of the champion Wolverines last season, angrily asserted he had received a "dirty deal." Bubar said it was unfair to describe the Halifax players as "holdouts". Ferguson and Lawlor said nothing.

"I've been playing hockey in the Maritimes for 18 years," said Bubar, whose hair is graying. "This was my chance after all these years. And now they've booted us out."

"I'm going to fight," asserted Mosher. "I was invited to play on the Olympic team and I still want to play on it. All I want are my expenses. I told Mr. Gilroy that tonight. And I know something, too.

"When I get home you will hear something. Certain arrangements were made, and now somebody is backing down. Don't be surprised if we show up before the team ever sails for Europe. We've got proof."

Although Mr. Gilroy did not say so and C.A.H.A. officials would not discuss the point, it was understood the players asked for $150 a month during the three-month period they would have been absent from home.

RECORD BREAKERS

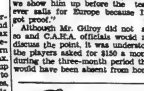
OLYMPIC TEAM TO USE 10 PLAYERS

Four Invited to Join Will Not Play in Toronto Tonight

Toronto, Jan. 7 (CP)— When Percy Arthur Bearcats, Canada's Olympic hockey team, hook up here tonight with Toronto Dukes in an exhibition game, the Olympic team will use only ten players, it was announced today by President E. A. Gilroy of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

Sometime today four players will be invited to replace the Halifax players who were given their release on their home after the C.A.H.A. refused to consider meeting demands for keeping their families during the team's trip to Germany. But the four won't be here in time for tonight's game.

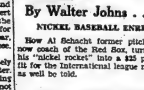


Jackie Nash will be in goal with only Herman Murray and Ray Milton to work on the defence in front of him. The forwards will be Norman Friday, Phil Thompson, Gus Seaborn, Alex Sinclair, Arnold Deacon Ralph St. Germain and Jack Walker.

The Olympic team is billed to play Hamilton Tigers in Hamilton Thursday night; Brockville Maple-dodmas in Brockville Friday night and Queen's University in Kingston Saturday night. Games will also be played in Montreal, Moncton and Halifax before the team sails from Halifax on January 17.

TWO WINS IN BAG

New Haven, Conn., Jan. 7 (CP)—Yale University scored in their hockey invasion of the United States, the rollicking Redmen of McGill football fame, defeated today to making it a clean sweep for the pre-Easter ice season Boston tomorrow night.



The Blue Canucks edged out a 2-1 triumph here last night over a Yale team that furnished a surprising strong battle. Sunday, the Redmen humbled Dartmouth 12-3.

NICKEL BASEBALL ENRICH ES INTERNATIONAL LEAGUE

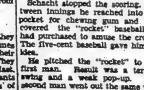
How Al Schacht former pitcher, now coach of the Red Sox, turned the "nickel rocket" into a $25 prefill for the International league may as well be told.

Schacht skipped the scoring. Between innings he reached into his pocket for chewing gum and discovered the "rocket" baseball he had purchased to amuse the crowd. The five-cent baseball gave him an idea.

He pitched the "rocket" to the first man. Result was a terrific swing and a weak pop-up. The second man went out the same way. But now the ball came back to Schacht rgy-shaped. Nevertheless, he threw it to the third batter, Rube Parnham. Another wallop and a pop-up.

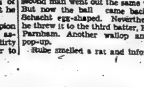
Rube smelled a rat and informed Umpire Bill McGowan to that effect. Schacht, caught red-handed, confessed that he had substituted the "rocket" when he pitched to to Rube but and nothing about the other two easy outs.

"Call it an unfair play," said Schacht. "And I'll pitch to Rube again."



He did—and struck the fuming player out.

Rube, taunted by Schacht's Here, blind man, you can feel it if you can't see it, picked up the "rocket" and hurled it over the grandstand. Parnham was fined $25, a standard league fine for such an offence.



Reading was trailing Baltimore 11 to 1, when the Reading pitcher, Roy Pardonier, decide he had had enough. Schacht was called to the mound by Managere Chief Bender.

11 GAMES IN 15 DAYS FOR LEAFS

Start on Hard Grind After Playing Canadiens on Saturday

By The Canadian Press
Leadership of the Canadian Hockey League's American division will hang in the balance tonight, when Detroit Red Wings clash with New York Rangers in Madison Square Garden. The contest is half the night's all-American program, Chicago meeting Bruins at Boston in the only other game.

Detroit lead Rangers by a point, won by trimming Canadiens Sunday, while Rangers were playing a scoreless tie with Americans. The New York contest also will be the hockey game in their season series. Each has won one and tied one of the three games they have played.

Black Hawks have beaten Boston twice but only by 1-0 and 3-1 scores and the better form Frank Patrick's team has shown of late promises an improved performance tonight. Black Hawks have lost two straight home games.

Canadian teams will rest tonight, Montreal Maroons and Canadiens until Thursday and Toronto Leafs until Saturday. Both the Montreal outfits have strenuous schedules before them. They clash in an intercity game Tuesday and Maroons meet Americans in Montreal Thursday and then move on to Detroit for a Sunday game before returning home for a contest next Tuesday with Rangers.

Leafs rest until Saturday and then start on a road trip that will see them play 11 games in 15 days.

STRUCK BY TRAIN

Cobourg, Ont., Jan. 7.—(CP)—Patrick Cassidy, 70, Cobourg, died in a local hospital December 23 from injuries received when he apparently was struck by a train Dec. 15, a coroner's jury reported here yesterday.

McGinn, the evidence showed was apparently struck by a Canadian National Railways train when a protruding part of a car struck him as he walked along the tracks.

HOCKEY SIDELIGHTS

By RAY COLLETT

It's quite possible due to environment that "Pesky" O'Neill, Boston Bruins' aggressive little forward, may make as a profession and figures to pad the O'Neill fortunes with hockey money for the next few years. He was born at Semans, Sask., and only a few mile away lives Eddie Shore. The link-up is obvious.

James Beaton O'Neill he was named by his Irish-Canadian father and his Scotch-American mother but about that time the rollicking Irish song, "Peggy O'Neill" was going the rounds. Alec Ihere was a chocolate bar, named by some enterprising manufacturer the Peggy O'Neill bar. That started things for Jimmie's school chums and he became "Peggy". The family accepted the change and he is Peggy at home now too.

Starting on the frozen ponds and waterholes around home, he graduated to Saskatoon Wesleys who just missed the championship in 1932.

O'Neill was 18 years old then, New York Rangers, perennial cellar dwellers at the time, bought him. Bruins won out, the veteran Frank Prevost reportedly coaxing the O'Neill signature on paper.

Sustained aggressiveness is his strong point. Art Ross calls him a bundle of compressed dynamite whom he goes into a scrimmage seeking the puck, he usually comes up with it. Likewise he makes hockey his ruling passion and his hard, earnest efforts, plus the dynamic quality of his play have made him a Boston favorite. He's still a youngster and shapes up as one of the coming great of the big time circuit.

MADOC FIRST IN CENTRAL LEAGUE

Defeats Belleville Intermediates at Madoc 8-4

Madoc, (Special)—Madoc Intermediates took undisputed possession of first place of the Central Ontario League when they decisively trounced the Belleville entry at the Madoc Arena on Friday night with a score of 8-4. A good crowd turned out to see the opening game which was very important as the Belleville team are only playing a single schedule and a win or loss is worth four scoring points. With the aid of the cold spell a good body of ice has been forming in the rink and despite the mildness of the day the ice was in good condition. The game marks the first appearance of some of the Belleville team locally and some new faces are seen on the Madoc lineup. For the homesters Smith, Rose and Munro are making their debut in intermediate hockey the former coming here from Arnprior and the latter two coming from the High School team.

Individual honors can be named as Rigby for Belleville and Akey for Madoc.

The slow ice tended to make the game rough, Townsend of Belleville being the worst offender, but referee Watson soon chased the belligerents to the cooler. Akey's scoring bee of four goals gave him an edge over the other forwards while Rigby was the best defence man and Nickle easily the choice of the goalies, Keller and Alexander also turned in nice games for the locals This season:

First period—

2nd Period—

Madoc, West, (Alexander); Madoc, Alexander; Madoc, Akey.

3rd Period—

Madoc, Keller; Madoc, Smith; Belleville, Rigby; Belleville, Townsend.

Final Score:—

Madoc, 8; Belleville 4.

Referee—Dr. A. Watson.

Line-up:—

Belleville—Sinfield, goal; H. Townsend, rd; M. Rigby (c); Riddel, centre; Lee, rg; Hammell, lw.

Madoc—C. Nickle goal; K. Nickel; Don Whytock (c); Keller, rd; E. Alexander, rw; F. Akey lw; P. Embury, w; Munro, W. Ross, F. Smith, subs.

PRINCETON WINS FROM TORONTO

New York, Jan. 7 (CP)—The University of Toronto hockey squad

today bore the marks of a 7-4 clawing Princeton Tigers gave them here last night.

It was the second straight defeat of their United States tour, Harvard having humbled them by 5-4 at Boston Saturday.

The 1,000 fans who speckled Madison Square Garden were treated to a fairly fast game that was evenly fought until the last period when the Varsity Blue fluitered wearily. The Tigers pawed in four goals and the game was over.

After the game Coach "Ace" Bailey of Varsity expressed optimism over the possibility of getting the projected Canadian-American Hockey League under way next winter. The obstacle was the apparent reluctance of Queens and Western Universities to entering the circuit. They would round out a Canadian wheel of four teams, Toronto and McGill to be said, were assured of an International League.

It is understood the proposed United States members—Yale, Harvard, Dartmouth and Princeton — are already agreeable to the proposal.

Dominion Floats Bond In U.S. Money Market

Ottawa, Jan. 7.—(CP)—A bond issue of $500,000 will be floated on the United States market by the Canadian Government, according to finance Minister Dunning who yesterday filed with the Security and Exchange Commission in Washington Registration of the Loan. The money will be used to pay off maturing obligations in the United States and will have a 25-year maturity, bearing interest at 2 1-4 per cent.

Expiring loans to be paid off include one of $40,000,000 on Feb. 1, 1936, and a few others of smaller amounts.

"Shanghai Rose"

By Anne Forester

Picking the child up in her arms, Rose hastened down the steps to the store. Mr. Shrader, busily sorting the morning's delivery of eggs, nodded casually across the counter to ladies that straddled his nose. But the only real conquest of the day had turned on her entrance to see her sharply. With a contraction of the heart, Rose recognized the narrow face, beetling brow and gimlet glance of Linda Sewell.

Out a mile early, Aint ye, Mis Therrold?" he asked in his high, raspy whine. "Cry is it a little late, ah—heh, heh!" Scratching in that disgusting, rotten, rabidonly inquisitive, startled Rose out of her absorption. The next moment she had been peremptorily died away as his sharp glance now in Kitten's crumpled frock and obviously uncombed curls.

"I haven't had no breakfas' and my stomach says—" began the child's high, excited voice. Rose jerked her convulsively closer to her side; a variable, angry quivering within her, drowning out even her consciousness of Kitten's astonished whimper at the notion.

Lake Hewitt! Her mind clicked sharply, painfully, stimulated. Had it been Lake Hewitt standing outside her window last night? His step she had heard when she had pulled down the shade? And he seen Larry in the room—poor, weak, trusting Larry? Oh, why hadn't she remembered that shade sooner, she raged silently—what would it mean to Larry if this man did know?

His straight-laced, psalm-singing narrow tenets would surely see but the worst..... Unsteadily she looked at the apples in their barrels, at the bright woolen skirts, at the stove in the centre of the store, with the inevitable hour' dog lying beneath it.

Characteristically enough she thought but at of her self-preservation in the matter. No one, she would have reasoned, had it occurred to her at all, had any right to question her actions. The fact that she lived in a community which automatically made one accountable to one's neighbor, simply did not trouble her at all.

X X X

Setting out for her visit to Miss Abby's that afternoon, Rose found herself moving as though in a fog. Her skin felt cold, her muscles stretched tight. When she closed her eyes the lids seemed weighted with tiny grains of sand. The sleepless night had taken its toll.

Lottie, returning awkward and full of gossip from her trip, had undertaken to care for Kitten, and, with the previous package containing the sweetest box clasped under her arm, Rose walked to Miss Abigail's house.

Late shadow dappled the steps of the big, rambling house through the foliage of the trees that still hung from that shaded its white-columned porch. Margyd, disappearing in Inferno Mike's wake at her arrival, was concernedly anxious about her sodden shoes. It was raining again; a steady, drizzling downpour—but Rose Therrold, waiting in that spacious hall, felt at peace for the first time in days.

There was something in the gracious, orderly atmosphere that shut out the world; something of Miss Abby's own invincible armor about the richness and beauty of the rooms. Brocade and tapestry, velvet to the touch..... Sheffield on the sideboard in the dining-room beyond. Chinese porcelains, Hepplewhite chairs... and from somewhere the wide hallway, the flicker of firelight shining on the fragile gold mirrors and haired chandeliers; on the shony of bookcases and a black carven chest. Just visible through the open doorway....

Miss Abby, seated in a deliberately carved walnut rocker, cushioned by faded rose-garlanded tapestry, had seemed an approachable, almost human as today. Her usual stilled, penetrating manner was muffled under Rose's enthusiastic accounts of her visit to the chemist. At the forty fees—and her pleasure in putting the formula on the manager. A fighter herself, her tyrannical will and almost passionate stubbornness had never acknowledged defeat in any venture. The gentle earnestness, and quiet insistence of this girl, impressed her and stirred her in spite of herself.

She accepted the sweetmeat with her with scarcely a glance; handling over the substantial check she had secured from the dealer as though that was written on the thin pink slip of paper did not spell all the difference between heaven and earth to the girl who received and locked it immediately into her shabby purse.

It was growing dark outside; but within the big, softly-scented room the dampness was shut out by thick curtains of gold brocade. There was no light save the firs and the huge candelabra which stood beside Miss Abby's chair. Miss Abby had a fondness for old pieces—and old friendships. Two bayberry candles, pungently sweet, topped the mantel above the Adam fireplace. And suddenly, in the midst of the dim peace of the room, in the midst of the conversation about governesses and consignments of lotion, of territories and profits, Rose Therrold found herself quietly telling this strange, fierce old woman the queer, distorted nightmare that had been her life with Harvey Therrold.

Telling her, as she had never told anyone before, something of the misery that was haunting her waking hours now—since the arrival of Austin Deering.

Impatient and nonsensical! the old lady scoffed. "Pray, what, my dear Rose, could this man Deering do to you now? You say you paid him for the check Harvey forged. We did good work. Why not just put the man out of your thoughts?"

But the terrible old woman, sitting forward on the edge of her chair, was by no means deceived as to the young Rose's concern. One did not, as she was fond of saying, live to her age without reading behind the scenes. She was entirely aware of Barbara's friendship for this man; had, indeed, formed her own shrewd analysis of him on the occasion of his first Austin meeting, for all his dark grace, had not hidden from Miss Abby the sly secretiveness of his smile, the vaguely repellent audacity of his manner with women or the slight bombastic swagger in his walk.

"But there is no use in telling Jeffrey Therrold, Miss Abby," Rose finished earnestly. "I doubt if he could do anything about it—I know the man—

"No use telling me what?" The voice from the doorway startled them both. Jeffrey Therrold, his tall figure encased in a thick white sweater and creamy flannels, had come in from a late game of tennis in the rain. His dark hair shone damply from the drizzle; his dark face looked, worried and somber.

And he thought even as he advanced into the light, how well the dull mahogany of the spacious room, the Adam fireplace, the dim portraits fitted in as a background for the slim figure on the fender stool before the fire. Stooping to kiss Miss Abby's wrinkled cheek, he repeated his question. "What is it I am not supposed to know?"

Rose, instantly alert and perturbed by his presence, made a queer little gesture of entreaty toward Miss Abby; but the old lady, if she saw it, chose to ignore the signal of distress.

"Don't know but what the girl is right, Jeffrey," she said in her tart, dry voice. "I've been telling you the same thing for a good many days—but you will him, my dear—and what you've just told me—don't leave anything out. He might as well hear it all."

A warning within her rang a small, faint bell. What was she doing, Rose thought now that it was too late—interfering in something that was none of her affair—perhaps bringing the enmity of Deering again to her door.... But under the straight, inquiring glance of Jeffrey Therrold's eyes, she went doggedly on as Miss Abby had commanded. Telling what she knew of Austin Deering's unsavory history in the Orient; of his rapacity, his callousness, his ruthless greed toward women—

"It's Babs, of course," Miss Abby broke in at this point. "As I've told you Jeffrey, Babs is making the worst kind of a fool of herself over this man. Rose has simply borne out what I had already surmised."

"I think we've heard enough on this subject, Aunt Abby, if you please," Jeff Therrold said, without any sort of emphasis whatever. "If this man is all you say he is, I don't doubt that Barbara already knows it. As for his being married, as you say—that rather settles it, does it not? Babs isn't exactly a fool, you know. She can take care of herself!"

"Babs—" began Miss Abby; but was interrupted by Rose, who had risen to her feet. How could he, she asked herself, even as she walked steadily across the room—how could Jeff Therrold slight and hurt her like that—She had thought to do them a favor..... it was none of her business to be sure, but just—the same.....

Tears, so near to the surface these days, thickened the voice, in her throat. With a dignity made more pathetic because of the undoubted effort it cost her, she held out her hand to Miss Abby.

"I must go. Thank you again—for everything, Miss Therrold. Good night....."

Without another word, without a glance at the man, she hurried out of the room and down the hall.

CHAPTER 32.

A CONFERENCE IN THE DUSK

Jeffrey, in spite of their frequent clashes, merited more of Miss Abby's reluctant respect than did any other member of the Therrold family. She alone, of them all, fathomed his nature, and shrewd old eyes had long since detected that the almost savage taciturnity he sometimes displayed was in reality but a mask for simplicity and idealism.

Jeffrey, she knew, was strong—where Harvey had been weak. Sane and balanced—where Barbara was prone to let her emotions engulf her in stinging waters. Generous though he strove furiously to conceal it—where Ursula was calculatingly selfish to the core. Of her being.

These things Miss Abby knew; just as she knew that his habitual scornful manner hid a deep vein of tenderness and that his oddly disproving voice could warm surprisingly into hearty enthusiasm. It had been to Miss Abby that Jeffrey had turned in those first days after his father's death. She had never failed him since.

To the rest of the family he was merely the head of the household. Ruling his mother by the deceptive gentleness which coped so adequately with her tinselled little pretences. Ruling Ursula with a high-handed impatience which her shallow nature merited. Ruling Barbara through his love for her—Barbara, the liliest one, with the proud-tilted head, indolent grace and unsuspected ardent nature. Barbara had been the baby when Jeff had taken over the family management. She would always be a baby to Jeff.....

Her estrangement from him of late, her strange, sullen silences had hurt him more than he would admit; had, in truth, rather gotten on his nerves. And because of what, he asked himself, savagely? Because Babs had some childish, idiotic notion that it hurt her prestige to have Rose Therrold in Calherwood.

Weak from exhaustion and shock, thoroughly terrified by the hopelessness of her hideous position, Nora had lost consciousness. To-yat feared that she was dead; but he carried her on, nevertheless, that he might at least have the satisfaction of exhibiting her to his tribe.

The strange white creature would furnish the excuse for another Dum-Dum dance. Secure in his might, conscious of few enemies that might with safety to themselves molest him, To-yat did not take the precaution of silence, but wandered on heedless of all dangers.

Many were the keen ears and sensitive nostrils that carried the message of his passing to their owners, but only to one of them did the scent spoor of the bull ape with that of a she-Tarmangani suggest a condition worthy of investigation.

When keen eyes behind the shaggy bull ape and the delicate girl, a lip curled in silent snarl. A moment later, To-yat was brought to a bristling halt. A giant bronzed Tarmangani dropped lightly before him, a living threat to his possession of his prize.

Nature Thwarts Man at Niagara As Gorge Railroad is Abandoned

One of the first "open-air" trolleys that was used on the line. It's near an ogive.

The rockslide which prompted decision to abandon the Niagara Gorge Route Railway.

Bird's-eye view of Niagar Glen on Canadian side and the route of the gorge along the narrowest part of the Niagara river — one of the most picturesque spots along the way.

By Central Press Canadian

Niagara Falls, Jan. 7.—The famous scenic route along the bottom of the Niagara gorge, beside the swirling water of the Niagara river over which trolleys carried 12,000,000 persons during a 40-year period, is being surrendered to nature.

Workmen are about to begin tearing up the ties, so that salvaging of the steel can be completed before the spring's rock slides imperil the project.

Under the Avalanche

Only one stretch of rail will remain,—for some archaeologist of a future century to discover and cart off to a museum. It lies under the avalanche that occurred this past fall, and which prompted the operators, the Niagara Falls Power Company, to abandon the route.

Not since was there the considerable that it would have cost $10,000 to clear away the rocks; there was also the realization of the hazard to passengers from the cliffs, which have become more numerous in recent years.

Many a notable saw the spectacle of the lower Niagara rapids at intimate range aboard one of the trolleys—a list would include such names as Prince Henry of Germany Sarah Bernhardt, Li Hung Chang of China, Admiral Togo of Japan, the Duke of Sutherland, Sir Alfred Balfour, the Prince of Wales, the King and Queen of Belgium and others.

It Rocks Could Talk.

And many an unusual incident and sight has gone into the two-decade history. At the time of the Pan-American exposition in Buffalo at the turn of the century, the suicides over the falls were so numerous that gorge travellers saw as many as six bodies at a time floating in the river.

It was a frequent sight to see a fisherman landing a 150-pound sturgeon, and to see fish so thick along the shore that they resembled groups of floating logs.

A collision of two trolleys occurred in 1897, with injuries to 12 persons; an ice avalanche struck a trolley in 1906, killing the motorman and injuring five passengers, the Niagara Falls city garbage chute collapsed in 1913—just as a trolley was passing and showered the riders with refuse, evoking profound indignation; in 1917 a trolley plunged down a 30-foot embankment which had been undermined by water and settled in 10 feet of water, causing death of 13 persons and injury to 24.

Two historical spots were marked along the route — the scene of Devil's Hole Massacre, where Indians ambushed a party of Englishmen making a portage in 1763 and forced them off the top of the precipice, and the site of the old Lewiston incline built in 1764 as the first railroad in America.

But despite notables, history and science opportunities, the highway, which cost $1,500,000, is to be closed. Nature no longer is to be thwarted in its endeavor to brush a hand down the precipice and restore the picture of unrefined canyon wilderness.

RIOT OF COLOR AT ANNUAL CALIFORNIA ROSES TOURNAMENT

The annual Rose Tourney at Pasadena, Calif., is always a riot of color as brightly hued floats parade through the city streets and thousands gather to watch the Rose Bowl football classic on New Year's Day. Here is the float entered by the city of Los Angeles and portrays the China Clipper, done in roses. It won second place in the prize competition.

What may develop into one of the most historic sessions, in the history of the United States, began when the 74th Congress opened in Washington to a speech by President Franklin Roosevelt. In his speech, Roosevelt hinted at support to League of Nations in possible oil sanctions against Italy and a further strengthening of her neutrality policy, dovetailing from the long-established course of protecting her foreign trade. A new bill is being brought before the House to prevent United States trade with belligerent nations or at least to offer no armed protection for such trade. BRITISH, FRENCH FLEETS MOVE MYSTERIOUSLY

92 French Warships Cruise Mediterranean As League Council Meets

Greatest Concentration in History in "Inland Sea"

SPECULATION RIFE

Mystery of Spring Cruise of Home Squadron Perplexes Observers

London, Jan. 8 (CP)—The British and French navies are moving mysteriously. When the Council of the League of Nations meets on Jan. 20, the Mediterranean will be the scene of the greatest naval concentration in its history.

In addition to Great Britain's naval strength, the French first and second squadrons with a total of 92 warships ranging from battleships to submarines will then be cruising in the middle of the sea.

Spring Cruise.

The British home fleet units now at Gibraltar, comprising the Hood, Hamilton, Orion and Nepaune will be returning to the United Kingdom.

But the Nelson and the Rodney—the world's two largest fighting ships — together with the Furious and the Courageous, 31st destroyer flotilla, will leave home for a "spring cruise" beginning about the middle of January.

The exact destination of these ships is not disclosed, but the admiralty announcement said they are leaving in accordance with the regular practice of visiting the Mediterranean annually about a month or two later.

Published Thursday

British official circles declare the movements of the French fleet announced Saturday are not the result of a previous Anglo-French arrangement and that the British home fleet movements have no political significance.

However these movements follow on conversations between the British and French governments on joint measures to be taken should Italy, as a result of the application of sanctions, resort to acts of war.

Admirals At Brest.

In some quarters it was pointed out today naval movements in the Mediterranean at this time have officially been described as "cruises" and Prime Minister Baldwin employed the same terms when explaining to the House of Commons the concentration at Alexandria.

Meanwhile all the admirals and commanders of the second French squadron are gathered at Brest for two or three days of intensive map study under the supervision of Vice-Admiral Durand. The subject of study is being kept strictly secret and it is believed it may be in connection with the recent conversations between British and French staff officers.

French Admirals Pore Over Maps

Paris, Jan. 8 (AP)—All Admirals and Captains of the French Atlantic fleet today began a map study of naval tactics.

The theme of the drill, which will last for two days, was kept secret but was supposedly based on the theory applied in the war on early fleet in French waters.

This study includes several weeks' discussion between the military and naval general staffs of France and Great Britain regarding mutual assistance in the event of an Italian attack on the British fleet in the Mediterranean.

Pleased But Not Excited

Washington, Jan. 8 (AP)—Stephen Peichit, the negro actor who moves and talks in low gear, was pleased but not greatly excited by the finding of a jury in which he was reported to have lost $4,500.

The money-filled wallet was found by Kenneth Windham, mill truck driver, who immediately telephoned Peichit.

The negro drawled he would be glad to have it back if Windham would bring it to him. He paid a $60 reward when this was done.

NEWS BRIEFS AND ODDITIES

Shanghai, China, Jan. 8 (CP)—The first effort of the government to raise the living standards of the workers was announced here recently with the opening of four "model villages" for the housing of 220 small houses and a recreation centre. They are being rented to the city's poor at the lowest possible rentals.

Paris, Jan. 8 (CP)—France's decision to close four 1936 passes on the Gold of Isseue today with an official declaration between fire unidentified young men, believed to be all aids over the Alpsheuse of Italy.

The shots were exchanged on the football ground at Parc Des Princes, a traditional duelling ground. One of the combatants was wounded in the leg and carried away by his seconds and a doctor.

Vancouver, Jan. 8 (CP)—Mistaken for a burglar, David W. Shannon was in hospital today with a bullet wound in the hip. Detective Sergeant Fitz Simmons, off duty, was driving his car slowly past the Shannon home when he noticed a light moving about in Vancouver's coal and wood yard. He followed it, and when a prowler was revealed in the yard, drew his revolver and fired.

Cerry, Pa., Jan. 8 (CP)—Cerry's police chief, Ralph Shannon, was "up—when they need help, they send for me," he said. Then he called a rest call from the city jail yesterday after failing to spell a word in a string of 15 transferred.

Mayor—Miller stalked into the prisoners' quarters, briefly stepped a terrific right wing into the beefy jaw of the first arrivance, then floored him with a quick right hook to the jaw. He fell unconscious immediately.

The transient escaped before he was arraigned in court on a disorderly conduct charge.

Chicago, Jan. 8 (CP)—Floyd Gibbons, 48, charged with violating the Mann White Slave Act, in a lawyer, today offered this explanation:

"I met a girl in a night club. She was all alone and says, 'Come, buy yourself a beer.'"

Other reports mentioned told the police Shipman then banged at Gibbons' head with a bottle, but Carney was taken to a hospital.

Green Bay, Wis., Jan 8 —(CP)—Through the aid of a Municipal Court Judge, Ralph Cyril of Little Rapids was relieved of a case of acute legal confusion. Cyril went to the Municipal Court with: A summons as a juryman in a civil suit; a subpoena to be a witness in the same suit and a summons as a defendant in a Circuit Court case.

The court decreed Cyril's knowledge of case No. 1, in which he was a witness, disqualified him for jury duty. The Municipal Court issued the final hurdle by adjourning the other suit a week.

SUICIDE VERDICT BROUGHT BY JURY IN SMITH CASE

Nepanee Laborer Missing Over 3 Years Found to Have Hanged Self

MENTAL EVIDENCE

Identification Established by Rubbers Found Near Skeleton

That he came to his death by hanging himself and did deliberately commit suicide on or about the 9th inst., was the verdict returned by the coroner's jury empanelled today to enquire into the death of Henry Smith, 52 year old Napanee labourer, whose skeleton and remains were found lying in a swamp two miles south of Marlbank on the 10th inst. The inquest was completed in public court room at Belleville before Coroner Dr. Thos. F. G. Walbridge and jury.

The disintegrated clothing and other articles found near the torso of the body of the deceased were entered as exhibits many of which were identified as the property of the missing Henry Smith.

Dr. Walbridge, K.C. conducted the investigation and after hearing the evidence submitted to the jury a thoroughly controlled, that the deceased man had taken his own life by hanging. The jury agreed.

Discovery of Body

Fred Busby, Marlbank labourer, told of finding the remains of a man lying at the foot of a cedar tree on the afternoon of Dec. 31st. Busby was employed by Mr. Hagerman's swamp on lot 6, and 7 in the township of Hungerford. When he made his discovery he was clearing away some brush, when he came upon a rope hanging from a cedar tree. The rope was fastened to the body of the tree and the other end was in a noose end. Later I called Steven Agnew, a fellow workman, and we brought the corpse down from the ground and found the bones of the deceased to be

Lamont of Morgan's Denies Companies Urged to Expand

(By Preston L. Grover (Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Jan. 8.—(AP)—Evidence that J. P. Morgan invited Great Britain to buy control of an American Arms plant before the United States entered the World War was introduced today in the Senate's investigation of war-time finance.

The invitation was contained in a telegram from Morgan to the Morgan House in London. J. P. Morgan and Company then purchased seven in the United States for Great Britain and France.

Dated Jan. 14,—1916, it said the Winchester Repeating Arms Company was in financial difficulties.

Possibility of Purchase

"The point is, would the British Government be interested in purchasing this stock or in making any suggestions regarding its purchase or would they like to investigate the situation with their view of acquiring?" Morgan and Compar. interesting others in the purchase in the Winchester Company. If not completed in public court room at Belleville before Coroner Dr. Walbridge and jury.

The reply four days later showed the British opposed to such a procedure.

The Senate Munitions Committee held in reserve today evidence Morgan and Company supplied Great Britain with "inside information" in American Governmental activity before the United States joined the struggle.

Morgan was quick to quit smoking his undersiging pipe and bark at "inside dirt" when asked at one point if he wrote his printed statement of yesterday that German sabotage, discovered in France, sent this country into the war.

Sale of Rifles

Earlier in the hearing today evidence Morgan and Company contracted for $194,000,000 worth of rifles for the allies in 1915 before the United States entered the conflict was read into the records.

Testifying calmly as his huge pipe, J. P. Morgan listened intently as Committee Rathebohand, Committee Chairman Nye questioned him involving 4,400,000 rifles intended chiefly for British and French troops.

Referring to the Arms orders, Raushenbush asked:

"Doesn't it indicate you were urging the companies to expand production?"

Thomas W. Lamont, Morgan partner, contended the Bank did not "urge" the companies to expand.

LONELY ISLES GET GIFTS FROM KING

Steamer Pays Annual Visit to Islands of Tristan da Cunha

Durban, South Africa, Jan. 8.—(AP)—The British steamship Syria, De Lartraga, returned today from its annual visit to the islands of Tristan Da Cunha, in the South Atlantic, where it delivered the only mail the islanders receive during the year.

The ship also carried gifts from King George to his subjects on the three small volcanic islands, owned by Britain.

The mail brought from Governor Robert Close, chief of the island's population, was feared by the island's captain to be incurably ill but no one else among the residents was aware of the gravity of his ailment.

The group of Tristan Da Cunha —called Tristan, inaccessible and lonely—is midway between New York and Cape Town and midway between South Africa and South America.

Discovered in 1506 by the Portuguese Admiral Tristan Da Cunha, the Three Islands had 90 permanent inhabitants until 1916, when Tristan was left by the landed party.

Currie was later joined by two more men and a boy. Sheep, cattle, goats and pigs. Because American cruisers which raided British and German ships during the war of 1812 used the islands as a base, British annexed the islands in 1816.

A temporary garrison was placed on Tristan, but was withdrawn later and when it left, William Glass, his wife and their children and two Italians were left behind. Shipwrecked mariners, colored men from South Africa and Asiatic seamen, Italian and Asiatic settlers have since joined them.

The population is 125. They have no written laws.

18-YEAR OLD BOY FACES MURDER

Charged With The Death of Philip Lake Near Moncton, N. B.

Moncton, Jan. 8 (CP)— Arthur William Lake, 18-year-old Moncton Mills Road resident, was arraigned in a crowded court room today on a charge of murdering Philip Lake, whose charred body was found in the ruins of his aquatarian shack at lonely Pacific Junction.

He was remanded for preliminary hearing Jan. 15.

Authorities announced an inquest would be opened late today in the death of Lake, his 32-year-old wife, Bertha, and Sadie Lake, 12, one of all of whose bodies were found near the shack destroyed by fire in which a six-months old girl also was believed to have perished. No trace has been found of the younger child.

The mother's head was battered by some blunt weapon. Bannisters around the stairwell were torn from the walls.

Lake's wife was a sister-in-law of Philip Lake.

BUTCHER DIES HELPING FIREMEN

Kemptville High School Burns With $50,000 Loss

Kemptville, Ont., Jan. 8—(CP)—Fire today destroyed the Kemptville High School, causing loss of about $50,000, only partly covered by insured dead while fighting the blaze.

James Ault, 58, butcher, collapsed during the fire and died immediately. He was helping to drag a hose at the time.

The fire was noticed about 6:30 o'clock this morning by a man walking along the highway nearby. He turned in the alarm. A volunteer brigade arrived the flames had gained considerable headway.

Kemptville is without waterworks and firemen had to lay hose from a creek on Mideau River, using a steam pump to provide water pressure. It took almost half an hour to get steam up and lay the first line of hose. The school burn almost immediately. In two hours the building was destroyed. It was built in 1873.

The high school, built in 1873, had 150 pupils. It took them to a brick building consisting six classrooms and a fort.

Kemptville is 35 miles southeast of Ottawa.

The dead are Fireman Fred Pike, residents of Brownville, Me. They are Engineer Charles Hamilton, 57, of Webster, his fireman and T. W. Wright, fireman of the freight train involved in the crash.

JAPANESE OPPOSE NAVAL PUBLICITY

Tonnage Limitation And Publicity Proposals Preferred

LONDON, Jan. 8.—(AP)—Japanese delegates, it was learned tonight, have decided to discuss French and Italian Naval building program proposals at the London Naval Conference until the question of total tonnage and limitation of fleets is settled.

Admiral Osami Nagano of the Japanese delegation asserted the French and Italian plans favor the British and Americans without benefitting Japan.

DEALER DISCOUNT ON FORD CARS IS CALLED UNFAIR

C. A. D. A. Counsel Claims Dealers Suffer by Cut in Prices

TRADE - IN VALUE

Chairman Sedgewick Refers to Embargo on Used Cars

Ottawa, Jan. 8 (CP)—Reductions in the dealer's discount on Ford cars at the time of the recent reduction in price was unjustified and unfair, D. P. Sparks, counsel for the Canadian Automobile Dealers' Association, told the Tariff Board today.

The Ford Motor Company, he said, allowed its dealers $110 to $120 per car and without notice cut the dealer's discount 11½ per cent in some cases. The reduction in the dealer's profit was greater than the reduction in price of the cars. The reduction all but wiped out the small margin of profit Ford dealers enjoyed.

The dealers contended, Mr. Sparks said, if this were to be a reduction in the price of cars it should not be at the expense of the dealers. The crux of the dealer's problem was the trade-in allowance on used cars. He urged the Board to consider manufacturer favored and desired a high trade-in value on used cars and this means losses for the dealers on used cars which wiped out their profits on new cars.

The Many Dealers.

In Canada, Mr. Sparks told, many dealers were franchised, said Mr. Sparks. The manufacturers encouraged this by the "false economic doctrine by "high pressure salesmanship" but it was true for the dealers were often forced to make higher allowances on used cars.

Chairman Sedgewick suggested the embargo on the importation of used cars was responsible for the high price of used cars in Canada but Mr. Sparks disagreed. He said the spread between the price of used cars in Canada and in the United States was greater before the embargo than since. The embargo had

DEATH OF PAIR SUICIDE PACT

Bodies of Boy And Girl Found Beside Blown Off

Leamington, Ont., Jan. 8—(CP)—A complete investigation into every phase of the suicide pact of Leamington couple, with the theory the deaths of Elbet Brayeye, Leamington, and Earl Cumming, Kingsville, were a sweethearts, were the result of a suicide pact.

Bodies of the young couple, with both their heads blown off, were found in the Cumming car, which was in a car parked in Mersea township, Essex county.

An autopsy performed by Dr. E. K. Lyon, Coroner, later during the day showed death in each instance was caused by a self gauge. Singlebarrelled shotgun, which had been purchased in the week-end discovered, Dr. Lyon said no inquest would be necessary.

No explanation for the tragedy was available from the family of either victim. Only person known was Mrs. Emma Brayeye, a widow, would only say: "He must have gone crazy."

"Tip" Passed to Police Leads to Arrest of Trio Accused of Various Charges of Breaking, Entering And Theft

Kitchener, Ont., Jan. 8.—(CP)—Hogs.

They are also charged with breaking and entering O. H. Becker's Store at New Hamburg in November, and stealing goods worth $75. Ellis and Dedon are charged with the theft of a tire and rim from a car.

Among goods stolen from the Becker store was a quantity of men's clothing, police say.

Police said it was learned that Cordall undertook to alter some of the garments as they would fit him and that some one passed the "tip" along to police.

'Mystery Man' Zaharoff Uninterested Since 1924 In Vickers Companies

Sir Herbert Lawrence Makes Statement to Royal Commission

1925 LETTER CITED

Chief Accountant Young Admits Foreign Investments

By BEN ROBERTSON

London, Jan. 8 (AP)—The secretary of Vickers, Ltd., munition makers, denied flatly before the Royal Commission on private manufacture of arms today his company was a member of an international armaments ring" with business ramifications throughout the world.

J. Reid Young, also chief accountant of the company, said "armaments" while no deals quite sincerely held, are based on a complete misapprehension of the actual facts."

Net Members of Ring.

Young told the Commission: "I am interested in how Vickers Ltd., its subsidiaries and associates are not members of an international armaments ring, neither do they control any foreign companies whatsoever by shareholdings, by the nomination of directors or by agreements."

Sir Herbert Lawrence, chairman of both Vickers Ltd., and Vickers Armstrong Ltd., testified Sir Basil Zaharoff, so-called mystery armed salesman, had taken no part in activities of Vickers or its associates since 1924 except for retaining an interest in a Spanish company.

Interested in Armaments.

Vickers, said Lawrence, look upon themselves as "highly equipped specialists" in the armament field," devoting their attention to the more complicated and specialized forms of arms and leaving the manufacture of such items as shells and rifles to others.

Referring to the Vickers statement Sir Basil Zaharoff had not been connected with the company since 1924, Sir Philip Gibbs, novelist and member of the Royal Commission, quoted a letter written by the "mysterious" man.

In his letter, Sir Phillip said, Zaharoff referred to "my firm of Vickers".

View of Zaharoff.

The novelist described Zaharoff as regarded in the popular imagination as "a very sinister figure, always lurking behind the scenes, always acting as an agent for the sale of ammunitions of war."

Sir Herbert Lawrence's foreign investments include 25 per cent of the capital common and shipbuilding firm, 21 per cent of one Spanish armament of a company and 22 per cent of a company which makes half of a Rumanian armament firm.

Earl Cumming, Sir Charles Craven, managing director of Vickers-Armstrong, told Sir John Bennett, chairman of the Commission: "We have no control of these companies in any way. It is merely an investment."

CAFT DECIDING VOTE

Peterborough, Ont., Jan. 8 (CP)—Reeve Armstrong today was declared elected Reeve of Smith Township after returning officer Percy Hall cast the deciding vote.

When the ballots were counted Mr. Armstrong found himself one vote behind Mr. Fitzgerald each polled 310 votes. Only two votes were cast for Charles Weistaker. The fourth candidate Henry Coone, polled 132 votes.

6 FIGURE INCOMES COMMON IN U.S.

Corporation Executives And Movie Stars Draw Fabulous Salaries

Washington, Jan. 8.—America's top-flight salaries for 1934 were made public today by the Internal ways and means committee in a list of all persons who received $15,000 or more for personal services from any corporation.

Corporation executives vied with movie stars for listing of six-figure income awarding that of the President of the United States. Strangely, some of the nation's richest men were shown to be receiving a comparatively modest annual stipend.

Max West, whose "Come up and see me sometime." was at its height of popularity in 1934, received $200.-166.65.

Fred Ford, president of the Ford Motor Company, received $60.-336.96, while P. E. Martin, a vice-president, got $107,341.65.

C. G. Conway, chairman of Consolidated Oil, was near the top on the big business list with a total of $295,099.08.

The list, as drawn up by the secretary of the treasury under the Revenue Act, embraced total income from all sources. All civil servants and officers for example are omitted.

The amounts listed were simply those paid "by the corporation as salary, commission, bonus or other compensation for personal services rendered, if the aggregation amount so paid to the individual is in excess of $15,000."

Among the Leaders

City and District News

SANDING OF STREETS HURTS SLEIGHING

While lots of sand and cinders which strew the streets of the city have given local motorists much trouble during the past few days, by way of shaking the life out of them and rattles on the roads have not had such appeal to city dwellers in the way of thrills and others using sleighs since the first snowfall. So there has been almost prohibitive travel that use of sleighs within the limits has been almost prohibitive.

WILD GAME ABOUNDS WITHIN CITY LIMITS

Wild game abounds within the city limits if reports of residents from various sections are any indication. During the past few days reports of rabbits, pheasant and partridge being sighted at various locations have been given. Rabbits are especially numerous in some of the cemeteries within the limits, an odd partridge has been seen in vicinity of George Street and pheasants have taken winter shelter in parts of the marsh near the west dumps, according to informants.

CHRISTMAS TREES TAKEN TO DUMP

Most of the Christmas trees have found their way to the city dumps or have been chopped up and fed to the kitchen stove by now, in the opinion of Fire Chief Lynch and members of the department. Looked upon as a fire hazard, owing to the number of fire, much of the menace has been taken from the homes with their removal.

Council To Dine With Chamber Members

At a dinner that will be entirely non-political, the city council will be guests of the local Chamber of Commerce at the regular annual country gathering held in the Chamber of Commerce rooms at noon on Thursday. No guest speaker or program has been arranged.

TRIP TO BERMUDA FOR G. A. REID

A trip to Bermuda in April with all expenses paid is the latest gratuity given to Mr. George A. Reid at this city who is numbered among the first hundred highest insurance writers in Canada, West Life Assurance Company, comprising Canada and United States. The vacation period will be of two weeks' duration, Mr. Reid will be accompanied by Mrs. Reid if the latter's health permits. Notice that he is numbered among the winners of the trip was received by Mr. Reid today. Only one of the latest prizes given on him by the company in a beautiful diploma punch, given in recognition of his high rating of sales during the months of October and November.

P.E. RESIDENTS ARE NOW DRIVING BAY

Tracks and wheel marks at various locations on the frozen-over Bay of Quinte during the past several days indicate that the surface is now considered safe to bear heavy loads across its width, for men of the city have been awaiting further solidification before commencing the annual season's harvest.

CONTINUED MILD SPELL HELPS TO SAVE COAL

Tons of coal daily are being saved in local institutions, office and apartment houses of the city during the present continued mild wave. In schools the saving will be considerable over the year, it is adjudged by some of the school officials owing to the fact that so far the winter has been extremely mild and less fuel has been needed.

RABBITS BIGGER AND BETTER THIS SEASON

Bigger and better jack rabbits and cotton tails are nibbling the twigs and brush of the wooded areas in the county this season, and the animals are particularly numerous according to reports of local hunting parties who have called forth during the latest days of fair weather, that enough snow for tracking has made the sport enjoyable. Its year little sign of tularemia or "rabbits' disease" has been noted.

LOCAL VETERANS TO HOLD OPEN HOUSE

At a general meeting of the United War Veterans being held in Memorial Hall on Thursday evening, Col. Reeve Vanderveer will be guest speaker of the evening. Veterans from throughout the district are invited to attend the open house meeting and bring a friend.

Ameliasburg Township

Twelfth Man Held as 'Accessory After Fact'

Montreal, Jan. 8 (CP)—A warrant, charging Armand Venne with being an accessory after the fact in the Hull bank robbery and slaying of Armand Nadeau, arrived at Provincial Police Headquarters from Hull today.

Venne, 19th person arrested in the roundup that followed slaying of young Nadeau and led to the killing by police of Nathan Boverman, the man blamed for his murder, was taken into custody Sunday. He was said by his lawyer, Rene Demers.

BETTER LIGHTING RATE REDUCTION OBJECT OF HYDRO

Chairman Reid Outlines Plans of Hydro For Year 1936

LOCAL POSITION

Better Lighting Will Pay Dividends in Safety, Production

More and better lights for the city's darkened streets and a substantial reduction in Hydro rates for local users are just two of the things that the local Hydro Commission, working in conjunction with the city council will undertake, during the coming year. It was stated today in a brief interview with ex-Mayor Geo. A. Reid, Chairman of the local Commission.

Our finances are splendid at the present time and we have hopes at least of making some reduction in rates for users of the city. That is if we can get permission to do so from the Ontario Commission. But with our present good finances we see no reason why this should not be granted. We intend taking the matter up with the Ontario Board right away," declared Mr. Reid.

In the matter of street lighting, the city has to keep modern—keep pace with the rest of the municipalities who have found it pays to have a well lighted city. This is another thing that is going to be taken up with council at the very first opportunity. There are lots of places in Belleville that would be greatly benefited by the installation of better lighting, and in time this should pay dividends in safety and protection."

"We are in an enviable position here in Belleville in respect to Hydro; our plant is all paid for and now we are in a position to return some of these profits to the people who helped pay for it. We look forward to the new year with considerable hope" stated Chairman Reid.

"During the coming year, too, we hope that the citizens of Belleville will help their Commission all they can. They can do this by making constructive suggestions regarding the operation of any department of the system. We are always anxious to receive these and would welcome them from anyone who will forward them."

Obituary

HARRY HYDE (Tweedie)

Harry Hyde who for many years resided in the first concession of Sidney Township near Wallbridge Church and who had been living in Toronto for the past thirty years, died after a brief illness at the East General Hospital in that city on Tuesday, Jan. 7th. Old friends in this district will regret to learn of his death.

The late Mr. Hyde was in his 70th year and was born in Tudor Township, his parents being the late Daniel and Sarah Hyde. For years he farmed successfully in Sidney Township, and by many friends and acquaintances he was held highly esteemed. He was a member of the United Church and fraternally he was a member of the Masonic Order.

Surviving him are his widow whose maiden name was Miss Ada Jane Locke; two sons, Mr. Harry Hyde and Mr. Daniel Hyde, both of Toronto; four brothers, Mr. Daniel O. Hyde, Belleville; Mr. James Hyde, Lisbon, N.D.; Rev. W. old Hyde, Chicago; Mr. Albert Hyde, Calgary; one sister, Mrs. Robert Nelson, Toronto. Mr. Charles L. Hyde is a nephew.

The funeral will take place at Tweed on Thursday, Jan. 9th., Mr. Daniel O. Hyde and Mr. Chas. Hyde, Toronto, left Belleville on Wednesday afternoon to attend the funeral.

LATE ANTONIO ACERRA

The funeral of Antonio Acerra took place this afternoon yesterday from his late residence, 43 Camiff Road, to St. Michael's Church, where Requiem Mass was celebrated at 9:30 o'clock by Rev. J. J. Collins, who conducted also the committal service at the graveside in St. James cemetery.

The bearers were Messrs. J. Vona, T. Merrell, J. Staglon, D. Lapore, M. Pecion and J. Sangiovanni.

MRS. MAUD McINTYRE (Syracuse, N.Y.)

Mrs. Maud McIntyre, nee Maud Gilbert, of 720 Harrison street, Syracuse, N.Y., died at University Hospital, in that city on Friday morning last of heart trouble.

Surviving are a daughter, Dorothy Waterhouse of Rochester; three sisters, Mrs. Thomas Campney, Picton, Mrs. Harry Bell, Mrs. Wm. Young and a brother, Mr. W. H. Gilbert of Belleville.

The funeral was held on Saturday to Woodlawn Cemetery, Syracuse, New York.

(Picton papers please copy.

LATE BERTRAM I. THEOBALD

Tuesday afternoon the funeral of Bertram Ian Theobald took place from the residence of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bertram J. Theobald, 381 Charles Street, to Christ Church where the burial office of the Church of England was conducted by the rector, Rev. C. O. Wright.

Interment was made in Belleville cemetery, the committal service being conducted by the same minister.

Many friends were present at the service to extend their sympathy with the family in their bereavement and there were many beautiful floral tributes.

The bearers were Allan Bone, Thomas Ryland, James Hector and George Winters.

LATE MISS LORETTO SHIELDS

The funeral of Miss Loretto Shields took place this Wednesday morning from the residence of her sister, Mrs. Patrick Burtill, 36 Hillcrest Avenue, to St. Michael's Church and many friends present at the Requiem Mass which was celebrated by the Rev. C. E. Baker. The members of the Rosalind of the Children of Mary were present and at the close of Mass Mrs. J. M. Treadwell sang "Hearer My God to Thee."

The pall bearers were Messrs. Edward McCabe, Norbert Barrett, Leo Barrett, Ernest W. Dickens, Michael Tobin and Michael Shields.

Interment was made at Maynooth this afternoon; the body being conveyed to Maynooth by the Thos. C. Thompson Funeral Coach. The funeral party left for Maynooth immediately after the church service.

POLICE BLOTTER

Local police today were asked to search for Stanley Baker, 14 year old Sherbrooke Que., youth, who has been missing from his home for the past week. The information was received by the local authorities from young Baker's parents. He was described as a tall slightly built lad, 120 pounds, stands 5 feet 2 or 3 inches tall and is dark in complexion. He was last seen wearing a blue colored mackinaw top-coat.

Under this date at Napanee notified local authorities to be on the look out for a 1931 model Hupmobile automobile stolen at Napanee last night. The vehicle is Ontario license plate number OL-12.

Sixteen ironsters granted the police call book at the police station last night in search of warm sleeping quarters. No arrests were reported locally during the past 24 hours and only one motor accident, a slight collision, had happened on Front St. early last evening and resulted in fender damage only.

W. C. A.

The regular monthly meeting of the W. C. A. was held in the Council Chambers of the City Hall on January 7th at 2.30 p.m. with the President, Mrs. Bell, in the chair. Mrs. Tallon Ketcheson was appointed Flower Lady on duty at the Home for the month of January.

SUICIDE VERDICT IN SMITH CASE

person," stated Mr. Busby. He initialled the body tag for identification purposes by have seen the body hanging, as the brush was too thick to see through.

Skull And Torso Found

Provincial Constable Fred Barrett of Napanee took the witness stand carrying a cardboard carton in which the mummified clothes of the man were carried. Constable Barrett identified a piece of pine stump near the cedar tree where the rope was found. "It was from this stump we found the deceased jumped with the rope around his neck and a piece of the tree produced six feet of half-inch hemp rope that had been removed from the tree," stated Constable Bergeron Thompson and I carefully brushed off the snow from the stump. We also found a skull on the south side, while on the north side we found a foot. The flesh was all gone from the bones, but by means of carefully picking up pieces of the clothes we were later able to identify the skull as that belonging to Henry Smith or his wife prior to his death," added the officer. A belt buckle, a key, a razor, a safety razor, a pair of rubbers, a distinctive shirt and other articles of wearable clothing were the articles produced by the officer to establish identification. The officer also identified that the remains were those of Henry Smith.

Mrs. Minnie Smith, widow of the deceased, stated that she was also satisfied of the identification, as she had purchased the shoes and belt and clothing worn by her husband similar to those purchased by her late husband in March, 1934.

Mental Trouble In Family

"Was there any history of mental trouble in your husband's family?" asked Crown Attorney Donahue.

"Yes, my father and brother have been committed to mental institutions," replied Mrs. Smith, answered Mrs. Smith, who stated her husband seemed very worried over financial difficulties, her home had burned at Napanee early in 1932.

Mrs. Smith, daughter of the deceased, told of riding with his brother Henry, on April 6th, 1934, along the "Hog's Back Road". "The car stalled and Henry said he would walk back to Marlbank while I continued to walk towards our destination, Tank's Lake. I never saw my brother again and later found out he did not arrive at Marlbank on the 6th", stated the witness as he said he was satisfied that the remains found recently were those of his brother.

George Know, Napanee shoe clerk, identified the rubbers as those sold to Mrs. Smith, but could not swear to the identity of the shoes, as they were too badly disintegrated. Frank Hendricks, identified the belt as the one sold by him at his store, while Dr. O. C. Hunt, Marlbank, who conducted the post mortem testified the remains proved to be a human skeleton. There were no signs of injuries having been sustained, witness stated.

Sergeant Booth empanelled the Coroner's jury which consisted of the following— Thos. Cushing, foreman, Wesley Brass, Chas. Ridley, Chas. Whalen, R. Wensley, Clifford Thos. Holland and Walter Weisels.

The jury took only a few moments to arrive at their verdict of death by suicide, namely hanging.

92 FRENCH SHIPS TO CRUISE SEA

Cruise Destination.

Although it was at first believed the "spring cruise" ships might replace those being withdrawn, the Admiralty later stated they will not go into the Mediterranean.

A spokesman said the cruise regularly goes south to Spain and Portugal and generally meets the Mediterranean fleet at Gibraltar where the two fleets join for manoeuvres in the Atlantic.

This year, however, it was stated, the Mediterranean fleet will not join the Atlantic manoeuvres because of tension in the Mediterranean.

Details of Shipments.

Nelson, 33,500 tons and the Rodney, 33,900 tons, completed in 1927, are each equipped with nine 16-inch guns. No other ship carries such heavy armament. Though slower and smaller than the battle-cruiser Hood, their more recent construction and greater striking power make them the navy's most formidable units.

The Furious is a 22,450-ton aircraft carrier. The slightly smaller carriers Courageous and Glorious also are already on duty in the Mediterranean.

The fourth unit scheduled for the "spring cruise" is the Active, a 330-ton cruiser of the Carlisle class, completed in 1918.

On the other hand the battle-cruiser Hood and the battleship Rodney, recalled to Rosyth at once, are older ships than the Nelson and Rodney, having been completed in 1916 and 1927, and each carry eight 15-inch guns. The Orion and Neptune also recalled, are 7,000-ton carriers of the Leander class, completed in 1934.

FRANK DOMENICO DULY INSTALLED AS KIWANIS HEAD

Ladies Night One of the Most Successful Functions Yet Held

REV. JOHNSTON GUEST

Amid all the usual pomp and dignity attendant at installation ceremonies Frank Domenico was inducted as the head of the Kiwanis Club for the ensuing twelve months by Rev. "Jim" Johnston of Toronto, who had the installation in charge and who gave the principal address of the evening. Along with Frank, the various directors of the club elected at a previous date were also installed and the same officer bride promises were made by those installed and by the member body to give hearty co-operation in the carrying on of Kiwanis work in this city.

The occasion was ladies night and aided against the more sombre dress of the members of the Club the beautiful gowns that adorned the fairer element made a picturesque sight. More than 185 were seated at the festive board, most tastefully decorated and a most delightful dinner was served by Mrs. Ryan, proprietress of the Connaught. After there were stunts galore, a most pleasing program and an address primarily addressed to members of the club but which had a wealth of meaning and food for thought for the average citizen.

Musical Program Given

Long before seven o'clock the rotunda of the Queen's Hotel was filled with laughter as Kiwanians with their wives and the single members with their guests for the occasion arrived. The Connaught Trio, an orchestra of outstanding merit and of local production, gave a recital of popular numbers and so entrancing was the music many of the guests at the hotel were loathe to leave the dining room. Shortly after seven-thirty the call for dinner was given and the banquet room was soon filled to overflowing.

Cliff Saragar, president of the Club last year, was in charge of the function as the incoming and after singing grace, he appointed Ross Silver and James Rankier as song leaders and Albert Hopper and Hilda Logan as sergants at arms and the last two named were the busiest pair in the hall.

During the meal, the Commodores continued with their musical and such popular numbers as "Sad Sally in the Sunset" and "Treasure Island" had instant appeal.

Leo B. Riggs, presiding at the piano, put his usual zest in the community singing and starting with the Club song, the whole assembly was run out of hand, or beyond, a shadow of doubt, that the Kiwanis members can sing and that they certainly know their music. The program, that was submitted for the pleasure of the guests, was one of the best ever arranged by the Club. Particularly enjoyable exhibition was the performance of the "Mountaineers," a group of young boys who gave several "Hill Billy" numbers. They were most entertaining and will be welcomed back at any time their performance only added to the fact that Belleville possesses some of the best musical talent in the Province. Lieut. Fred Johnson, bandmaster, gave two delightful cornet solos.

Delightful Dancing

Delightful was the dancing of Miss Hagerman and Mary Forster. Miss Hagerman has developed acrobatic dancing to a fine art and her interpretation of dance movements was most pleasing and delightful. Miss Forster in her numbers and other features called for repeated encores. Last but not least was the clever work of that favorite, James Rankier. Jimmy can sing a Scotch ballad like no one else in the city and he varied the program by giving two or three Irish numbers in a most pleasing style. The program in its entirety showed careful planning and the entire committee of the Club and the committee in charge of the banquet are to be congratulated for their endeavors.

Phil McKee, who is one of the most energetic members of the Club and an elected director for the first time proved to the toast to the guests and in a witty and most capable manner told of the pleasure the members had in welcoming the lady guests at the banquet, and hoped that their visit would be one of profit and pleasure. Jos Malish contributed a clever sing and Mrs. Neale, who had a birthday on Tuesday, received a suitable present from the ladies were Miss Mary Foster, Mrs. Kathleen Hyndman, Mrs. Leila Fox and Mrs. Ethel McIntosh. A most pleasing feature of the evening was the presentation by Eddie Shapiro to Cliff Saragar, Frank Domenico and George Lee, the three members who so ably put over the campaign and carnival last fall. Three more members were behind the scenes with the campaign through. Eddie Shapiro gave a most interesting report and stated that they had each member entire financial plan of proceed and, suitably handled, of the Kiwanis Club and with moderation a silver plate with the name of the recipient, a token of appreciation. George A. Lee responded briefly, stating that he considered his duty in the club and was pleased that the campaign was such a success. Cliff Saragar and Frank Domenico incorporated their return of thanks in the chair in their addresses later in the evening.

Thanked For Co-operation

Before the officers were installed by Rev. "Jim" Johnston, Cliff Saragar gave his farewell address. He stated, that probably all had not been done that could have been done, but he was glad that he had been able to render some useful service in the club. He thanked the members for their co-operation during the past year and hoped that they will carry his part of the burden in the coming years for the benefit and upbuilding of the Club in this city. Words of praise from several members for the efficient manner in which he had carried out his duties were given.

After Frank Domenico was properly and duly installed into office, he took over the gavel and conducted the remainder of the evening as the presiding officer. Frank thanked the members for the honor conferred upon him and hoped by co-operation that the club would continue to higher heights. "I am following a hard man," said the new president, "but I know that the members will rally to the support of their president, and we shall go forward in Kiwania." It would be impossible to accurately report the address of the speaker of the evening. It was full of wit, pathos and food for thought. Rev. "Jim" Johnston has visited the Belleville Club on many occasions and each visit has been more pleasant than the last. Rev. Mr. Johnston is one of the finest after dinner speakers there is in the Province and last night he was at the height of oratory. He praised the Club for their recent campaign and hoped that the money obtained would be used for the advantage of the underprivileged child and also for the betterment of the community in which the club was situated. "You have a wonderful opportunity to serve," said the speaker, "don't let it slip through your fingers." The appreciation of the splendid address was expressed by F. C. MacLaurin, and National Anthem closed one of the most successful installations in the history of the Club.

P. E. County Elections

PICTON, Jan 8.—(Special)—With the close of the polls on Monday night Bert Pearsall, K.C., was elected Deputy-Reeve over Sherman Hagerman by a majority of 47. Councillors elected were: Dwight O. Sergeant, Wellington Centre; Rodger Hall, Clarence Marshall and Albert Hopper, and all had received an acclamation as well.

In Sophiasburgh, W. T. Kotcheave defeated Curtis Dorsey, by forty votes and Deputy-Reeve Frank Ingo. In the Council elections Victor Bongard, F. T. Hagerman, Roy Bongard and Wilfred Williams were elected.

North Marysburgh

In an election for reeve in North Marysburgh, Kenneth Carson won over Roy Lumby with a majority of 106. Councillors elected were Carson and 107 for Lumby. The Council were put in by acclamation.

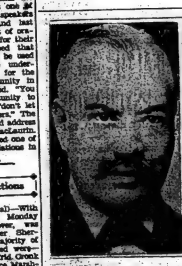
Hillier

In Hillier an election for Council resulted in A. H. Lloyd, Wm. Morton, Earl Burris and Joseph Treby being elected.

Wellington

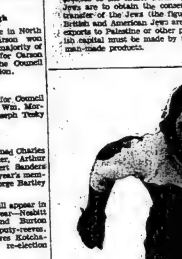
Wellington voters returned Charles Carter, Marshall Palmer, Arthur Goodmurphy and Albert Hagerman to Council. Two of last year's members were dropped, George Bartley and O. B. Bryant.

Only two new faces will appear in County Council this year—Reeve Thomas Pierce and Burton Pearsall, Hallowell, deputy-reeve. Councillors returned were Kolcaw and Carson sought re-election and were returned.



County Council meets for its inaugural session Tuesday January 26, when committees will be set up and the various matters referred to mayor of Picton and was defeated.

The 1932 council will be Amelias-burgh—J. S. Barber, reeve; Ameliasburgh, right policy, street foreman, auditor and trustees: The matter was left in abeyance.



Following reading of communications Mayor Norman asked for a motion to allow for a caucus of members and meeting will be completed some evening this week.

SHE'S DRESS BY HIS "MODEL LIFE"—Countess of Elizabeth Ryan, above, photographed New York fashion model, and Howard Stillman, also a noted model, is threatened with distaste. Miss Ryan objects to the address of the speaker of the evening. It was full of wit, pathos and food for thought. Rev. TWO AID GERMAN JEWS—Viscount Bearsted (LEFT), head of the powerful Shell Oil interests and Sir Herbert Samuel, former high commissioner to Palestine (RIGHT), will call for New York on Jan. 15 to confer with American Jewish leaders on a plan to permit persecuted Jews to escape from the Reich. Simon Marks, British chain store owner, will call with Bearsted and Samuel, making the group distinguished by the fact that it is composed of the three most prominent representatives of British Jewry. Each is pledged to contribute $500,000 to the cause. Germany's exodus conditions are there? First, Jews are to obtain the consent of the British government for the transfer of the Jews (the figure is put around 200,000) to Palestine British and American Jews are to provide a fund to finance German exports to Palestine or other points, inasmuch as liquidation of Jewish capital must be made by the exchange of such capital for German-made products.

SKATING QUEEN THINKS SHE'LL QUIT—Conceded to be best of North American women speed skaters and holder of every important title in her homeland, Kit Klein of Buffalo, N.Y., polishes up her blade work before leaving for Europe and some more victories. Kit says she will retire from competition when she returns since there are no more titles to win. She had just defended her national title at Newtaugh, N.Y. when this picture was taken.

Trenton and District

Trenton, Jan. 8 (Special)—Mr. Victor Wemyss and John Beadle returned home from Belleville last night were allegedly sideswiped by a Quebec truck. It appears that Victor who was proceeding home in a westerly direction met a car and Quebec truck proceeding east, towards Belleville. The truck which was following the car was three feet over the centre line of the road and afforded him no alternative as the lights of the car blinded his view. After the Wemyss car was hit it slid on down the highway and into the ditch. Neither of the occupants were injured although the car of Wemyss was badly damaged.

The slippery pavement in front of Wee Nine Inn, Dundas Street East was the cause of Vaughan Glover of Statemont hitting the vehicles of Mr. Rose of Belleville road and Mr. Smith of Trenton. Glover who was proceeding in a westerly direction turned out to pass the parked car of Smith and in the action his car went out of control and shot over into the path of the Rose car travelling east. The damages were relatively severe.

A. Muron of 180 West St., Orillia while proceeding south on Ridge-way Street, was struck by a Department of Highways truck, driven by Thomas Meyers. Mr. Muron knowing that the intersection was dangerous applied his brakes but thirty did not prevent the car by pavement and the truck slid into Muron's car. As slight damage was done to either vehicle a settlement was made between them.

When a trunk driven by Harold Sharpe of Toronto proceeding east on Dundas St. was struck by a Masonic temple tried to avoid hitting a car driven by Mrs. R. Vickers of Belleville, who was pulling out from the north curb where she had been parked, his truck slid and struck a car parked on the south side of the highway which is owned by Mr. Daniel Fairman, King Street. The impact smashed the right fender and the front skirt of the Fairman car.

Phoebe Jane Goodmurphy

Mrs. Phoebe Jane Goodmurphy passed away at her home in Consecon yesterday (Tuesday) afternoon. The late Mrs. Goodmurphy was the daughter of John Kemp and Jane Herrington of Amelia-burg and was of Dutch descent. She was in her 84th year. The deceased was born on June fourth 1851 and resided in the county of Prince Edward all her life. Her husband predeceased her some years ago. The funeral will be held Thursday afternoon from her late residence Mill Street, and the cortege will proceed to the United Church for services. Interment will be made in Lake Shore cemetery.

John Colebourne

The death of Mr. John Colebourne occurred at his home on Ford Street yesterday morning. The late Mr. Colebourne was born in Lancashire, England and came to this country when a boy. He was for many an employee of the Benedict-Proctor Co. for the last 40 years and had been in good health until a few weeks ago. The deceased was in his seventy-fifth year. His wife predeceased him a few years ago. He leaves to mourn his loss a son, Joseph and James in England and J. F. Colebourne in Alberta, two daughters, Mrs. H. Crowder of East Orillia, Alberta, Mrs. E. Harvey, Detroit, and two sisters, Miss Sarah Colebourne and Mrs. Mary Cleary also of Detroit. The funeral will be held from Mr. Colebourne's late residence on Ford Street, with service at St. George's Anglican Church, Rev. R. Smith will officiate. Interment will take place in St. George's cemetery.

Mrs. J. B. Murdoff, who has been confined to the Trenton General Hospital for some weeks returned home this week and her condition is favourable.

Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Cox, Victoria Avenue, who have been spending the past few weeks in Toronto have returned home.

Mr. and Mrs. Octave LaFayette of Prescott, spent a few days in town as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. Hunt, King Street.

"Metropolitan"

Lawrence Tibbett World's Greatest Singer with Virginia Bruce in Grand Romantic Musical

The magic of great song is the principal attraction at the Belle, tomorrow and Friday, matinee and evening, where Lawrence Tibbett is to appear in 20th Century's "Metropolitan" for the bright and charming romance of a young singer.

Pictured with sympathy, vigor and abounding humor, this comedy "Metropolitan" traces Tibbett's career from a young singer who must brook no delay, launches out on the world on his own, meets disaster and success, disappointment and romance and, at last, recognition.

His trail crosses that of Virginia Bruce, and there is affection between them immediately. But he has Alice Brady, who controls the money in their operatic company, is jealously fond of him, they must conceal their affection.

Between placating Alice Brady and attending to the wild vagaries of George Marion, Sr.; the orchestra conductor, Tibbett has his work cut out for him. When, at last, Miss Brady deserts the company all his anguish seems to have gone for nothing. But ingenuity and courage solves the problem and the climax presents Tibbett as the hero of the evening, vividly supported after his sensational debut.

In the course of the action, Tibbett sings selections from "Pagliacci", "Carmen" and the "Barber of Seville" as well as a number of popular compositions.

Tibbett's glorious voice throughout Tibbett reveals new possibilities as a romantic actor in "Metropolitan".

Miss Bruce is charming and lovely in the romantic lead. Miss Brady is still one of the most effective comedienes the screen boasts.

In the supporting roles, Cesar Romero, Thurston Hall and Luis Alberni are outstanding.

Horace, in Laugh Film

Because Edward Everett Horton has always managed to fill even the most meagre of his roles with the thoroughly human and lovable qualities of his personality, his role in "Your Uncle Dudley" which is the feature attraction on the same program will prove an unforgetable treat to Horton addicts.

It is a wise, sympathetic and often hilariously funny story, with a tailor-made, full-length characterization for Horton and as he proves his right to personal stardom.

The supporting roles in the picture are literally studded with excellent characterization, lovely Lois Wilson is the romantic interest in the picture with Horton. John McGuire is a personable, and intelligent Juvenile and Rosina Lawrence manages to be completely lovely and effective in her acting.

Belle's Biggest Show

The Belle's biggest double show, James Cagney and Margaret Lindsay in "Prince Kid" and Joan Blondell, Glenda Farrel, Hugh Herbert and Allen Jenkins in "Miss Pacific Fleet" plus Giant Belle Newsreel, will be presented at the Belle tonight, for the last times. The last complete show starts at 8.30 p.m.

AT THE CAPITOL

"ESCAPADE"

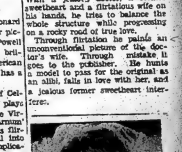
Amateur Finalist on Capitol Stage Tonight; Last Showing of William Powell

Accompanied by Dan Fairman and Band, Belleville amateur winners will make their bertle on Capitol stage—and according to Manager Maynard a treat is in store for Capitol Patrons.

"Escapade" Last Time Tonight

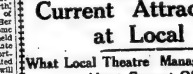
Stars, romance, music, gayety, laughter and drama all mingle in a gay and unique blend of screen entertainment in "Escapade" a new romance of Vienna, now playing at Capitol Theatre.

It explores Continental flavor and music, and puts them on the American screen in a story with unusual dramatic twists that keep the audience in a constant state of surprise. Through the deft handling of the story every entertainment value from laughs to tears, from drama to romance is packed into a single evening's divertisement.



Robert Leonard Directed

Directed by Robert Z. Leonard the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, stars William Powell and introduces Luise Rainer, brilliant Vienna stage star, to American audiences as his leading lady, has a notable cast.



Frank Morgan of "Affairs of Celini" and "Naughty Marietta" plays the jealous doctor, and hoods Virginia Bruce of "The Mighty Barnum" and "Times Square Lady" as flirtatious wife who gets Powell into a multiplicity of comical complications. Mady Christians, European star of "The Waltz Dream" is his jealous sweetheart and Reginald Owen plays the absent-minded musician lover. Henry Travers is the comical gardener and Laura Hope Crews, stage star of "The Silver Cord", Mathilde Comont, Lorraine Bridges, new singing discovery, are others in the cast.

The story deals with a debonair and talented artist, played by Powell, who fails in love, through complications, over painting of another man's wife, with the demure companion of a countess. With a valet's doctor, a former sweetheart and a flirtatious wife on his hands, he tries to balance the whole structure while progressing on a rocky road of true love.

Through mistaken identities and an unconventional picture of the doctor's wife. Through mistake it goes to the publisher. He hunts a model to pose for the original as an artist falls in love with her, and a jealous former sweetheart interferes.

Joan Blondell featured with Glenda Farrel in "Miss Pacific Fleet", at the Belle tonight only.

EARLY DECEMBER ELECTION

The early voting movement is gaining ground. It is now said that the mayor of Toronto is interested.

Belleville has been holding elections for years on the first Monday in December and so far no one here has risen in protest.

The advantage is clear enough. The elections are removed from the stress and strain of the holiday season. New Year's elections not only interfere with the celebration of New Year's but with that of the entire Christmas season. This is a time of the year when the rush of business, and the activities of the home, should not be mixed with battling over municipal problems. In late November and early December the municipal campaign is given a good chance of attracting the interest of most voters.

In some places the point has been raised that a New Year's election does not interfere with the time and labor of the working man, and that an election on any other date would. Whether that will affect other places, in Belleville the point has not been raised. Neither is the general distribution of polling stations there does not seem to be any ground for serious objection here.

In actual practice how does the system work out for the month of December? Some might think possibly a council, knowing it had already faced the election, might let work being given by the voters, would not feel responsibility for the last three or four weeks of the year, but the actual fact is that this situation has not been shown to make the last meetings of the year less important. Indeed there is usually more than half the council which is continuous into the next year so that the December meetings are well attended and interesting as sessions held before the elections.

Many rural municipalities have taken to the early voting ideal. And it would appear that many are to follow.

Belleville once stood with the great minority of municipalities on early voting but like Belleville, many have come to favor the early date.

100 YEARS LATER

One hundred years the world has been reading "Pickwick Papers", the anniversary of whose appearance in serial form was celebrated this week. No writer probably was more fortunate in his early work than Charles Dickens because with "Pickwick Papers" there could not be a more delightful effort with which to open a life of literary work. "Pickwick" is immortal as far as its characters and its genial outlook on life are concerned.

Dickens was to wreak it at the age of 23 years, or perhaps earlier, somehow had already blossomed out into full bloom as a writer ,though a little minor work had preceded the Pickwick venture.

The "Papers" is the work which only one writer was able to compose. That is his supreme excellence, that today no writer could take a single line and imitate the out-of-doors Dickens. His work is the final seal. That is always the mark of greatness.

Those who like a few hours of delight which will inspire them with healthful thought to towards their fellowman and life should pick up this century old work and read it until they rock with laughter or smile infectiously over the incidents of this ever-interesting story.

TOLL OF 1935

Last year claimed a large number of the world's famous, according to a list compiled by the Hamilton Herald. Some of them were Lord Byng of Vimy, Premier Aillion, Canada's Silent, and Atterbury of the United States, General von Linsingen, conqueror of Gallcia, and General Pilsudski, of Poland. The peace leaders who died included Arthur Henderson and Jane Addams.

The wellknown Huey Long was slain and Senator Schall, once bitter opponent of Theodore Roosevelt died. Senator Cutting of New Mexico was an aircrash victim.

The greatest crashes of the year were the fatal accidents of Will Rogers and Wiley Post and of Queen Astrid of the Belgians.

The Herald also names Oliver Wendell Holmes, son of the great humorist, and member of the U.S. Supreme Court, who is credited with having aided in the establishment of distinction between money rights and personal rights or a new relationship between capital and labor which is affecting the world.

Suggestion has been made that the public works department at little or no cost could do a work which would please the children of the city in making rinks on the Moira River. All that would be necessary to carry out a scheme which was used by boys years ago would be to place some boards on the ice to stop the flow of water as it floods at night and freezes. The boards of course would be required only at the south end of the rinks. Any number of rinks could be made on the river in this way.

SOUTHERN SNOW

By Alline Michaelis

There is never any snow here,
We know naught of virgin snow,
Nothing of the white flakes swirling
While the winds of winter blow.

Here are ever sun and summer,
Sweet with roses all year round;
And the only snows here falling
Are the petals on the ground.

Drifted petals of spent roses,
Red and yellow, pink and white,
Falling, falling like the snow flakes
In the days of winter's blight.

Heaped-up mounds of yellow snow flakes,
Little hills of scarlet snow,
Lying fading in the garden,
Tossing as the light winds blow.

There is never any snow here
In this land of sun and song;
All our snows are perfumed petals
Falling slowly all year long.

TO MRS. BARBARA HANLEY OF WEBBWOOD GOES THE DISTINCTION of being the first woman to be elected Mayor in Ontario. She was victorious in the civic election held on Monday, Oct. 21st over R. E. Streid, the vote being 82 to 69. She has lived 25 years in Webbwood where she served on the Board of Education. Mrs. Hanley is a former school teacher and is a director of the Ontario Educational Association. While Webbwood is not a large community, being a small town on the Sault branch of the C.P.R. it is not lacking in pep and civic pride, and in electing a woman to the office of Mayor the citizens evidenced that they do not differentiate between the sexes when it comes to selecting civic executives. Long may Mayor Hanley reign and rule.

PITCAIRN ISLAND,

a small dot on the wide expanse of the southern Pacific ocean, was brought vividly before radio listeners the other evening when a woman traveller told of her interesting visit to that island which is home to the survivors of the mutineers of the good ship Bounty who sought refuge on that lonely island from the long hands of the English admiralty law. The story has been well told in "Mutineers of the Bounty", "Men Against the Sea", and "Pitcairn Island", and has also been made into a motion picture which is creating records for attendance. The young woman who visited the island sailed many thousands of miles in a small craft manned by a sturdy band of adventurers anxious to see the out-of the way parts of the world. She talked with the direct descendants of Fletcher Christian, leader of the mutiny, and the others of the island, and was very hospitably entertained by the islanders, visitors from the outside world being a rarity on Pitcairn, and especially a white woman. Objects saved from the Bounty by the original mutineers, before the ship was burned, are still carefully kept by the islanders and interested the visitors greatly, bringing closer that ancient tragedy of the 1700's which has been a live topic ever since.

HAVE YOU HEARD THESE?

A chorus girl introduced her young man to another chorus girl, with the result that he transferred his affections. The aggrieved girl gave her rival a piece of her mind in a letter which read:

"Heartless creature: You know very well we had been going about together for six months. Wait till I lay my hands on you, you good-for-nothing bleached blonde. I'll scratch your face, pull your hair, and throw acid on you. Yours truly, C— N—

"P.S.—Please excuse pencil."

In the opening game last night at Picton of Group No. 1 O.H.A., intermediate series, the visiting team won, the score being 7 to 5. Particular mention may be given to Phillips in Belleville's goal while Symons and Whitty also of Belleville played fine hockey. Burns, Hudgins, Cooper, Bedborough and Heffernan put up a strong game for Picton. Valley after volley of shots were poured into Phillips, the Belleville goal keeper, and but for this cleverness of his work the result would have been greater for the winning team. The following composed the teams: Belleville:—Phillips, Symons, Whitty, Hough, Earle, Morrison and Mitchell. Picton: — Welsh, Bedborough, Heffernan, Ralph, Burns, Cooper, Bert Burns and Hudgins. The referee was Lou Marsh of Toronto.

At a few minutes before noon today a team of horses attached to the Tweed stage owned by Mr. A. Anderson of that city, were struck by the engine of a passenger train at the G. T. R. crossing on Grier street. It appears that the driver of the stage was waiting for a west bound freight train to pass, his horses standing on the clear track while the freight train was on the other track. An express train came along on the track upon which the horses were standing and he was unable to see it. The horses were in the centre of the track when the engine struck them; four were instantly killed and carried some distance. Although the front part of the stage was carried away the driver miraculously escaped injury. There were no passengers in the stage at the time.

Bridge Street Methodist Church which was destroyed by fire late in the afternoon of Jan. 6th, was dedicated in the year 1886 on the 14th day of May by the Rev. E. Ryerson, D.D. LL.D., and the Rev. George Douglas. Since dedication the church has had as pastors the following: Rev. Samuel Rose, D.D., Rev. William Hall, M.A., Rev. John Preston, Rev. John Burwash, Rev. G. R. Sanderson, Rev. A. Brethour, Rev. F. H. Bland, Rev. C. A. Hanson, Rev. William Briggs, Rev. S. D. Rose, Rev. E. B. Ryckey, Rev. N. R. Willoughby, Rev. J. H. Locke, Rev. Dr. Jeffers and the present incumbent, Rev. Dr. Rev. J. R. Clarkson. The original cost of the church was $36,000,and exclusive of the lot and the handsome iron fence which surrounds the church was valued at $30,000.00 at the time of the fire. Subscriptions for the building and the contents amounts to $18,000.00. A largely attended meeting of the trustees of the church was held in the evening of the day of the fire when Thomas Donnelly's office and the matter of building a new church in the spring was discussed. Messrs. John Bruton, H. Yeomans and Rev. J. R. Clarkson were appointed a committee to select a suitable design for the plans of services until the new church is erected. At a meeting of the directors of the Belleville Opera House Company which was held on the 7th inst. Dr. Ponton's offer, on motion of Mr. J. G. Jamieson, seconded by Mr. E. Guss, the opera house was placed at the disposal of the congregation free of charge, except light and fire. The first service was held on April 2nd., 1876 and cost $4,000.00; the new bell was hung in 1883 and cost $600.00; the union of all the Methodists in Canada was consummated in the burned church in the year 1884. Largely through the efforts of Mr. William Johnson, the superintendent of the Sunday School, the church organ was the fine piano recently presented by the ladies of Mr. C. F. Holton's class, were saved, together with part of the school library and a number of chairs.

"HOBO PRINCESS" AND FATHER—Charlie Reid and his six-year-old daughter, Dorothy, "Princess of Hobos", look down across the dropped off an empty freight car when it pulled into the Canadian National Railway yards in Edmonton last week after a side-door Pullman jaunt from Toronto. Reid, a young navy veteran and native of Edmonton, left the Alberta capital, beat his way by freight to Toronto and picked up his young daughter at her former home near Vienna, Ont., which hiked to Sudbury, where they caught a west-bound freight to Capreol. The profusion of railway police at that C.N.R. divisional point forced the pair to head for the open country, eventually landing into a stock car, which took them as far as Winnipeg. From there to Edmonton they travelled in an empty box car. Dorothy, though a trainman often, has been shelter in a heated caboose or switchman's shack. In the jargon of a hobo, young Dorothy, who does not care for the comforts that other children enjoy, explained that the trip "was pretty cold sometimes and sometimes there wasn't enough food." Charlie Reid, shortly after his arrival back in Edmonton announced that, with his daughter in tow, he will beat his way to the Pacific coast and over to the Orient. Pawaii, China, Japan—next spring. Neither father nor child appeared to have suffered any on their long cold trip through northern Ontario and over the prairies. Mrs. Reid, mother and wife, resides near Vienna, Ont.

QUINTUPLETS GET THEIR ANTI-DIPHTHERIA TOXOID—To guard the five Dionne sisters from any threat of diphtheria, Dr. A. R. Dafoe decided that they should be "toxoided". All five children took the inoculation without a murmur of protest.

Dr. Dafoe Publishes Study Of Quints Revealing Full History of the Famous Babes

Details Development From Time They Were Fed With Eye Dropper—Humorous References to Suggestions Sent in as to How to Name Babies—Comments on Conditions in Dionne Home

Montreal, Jan. 8 (CP)—A scientific psychological study of the Dionne quintuplets and how the babies to be "at age intellectually and developmentally, with the large two slightly above" by Allan Dafoe reveals in an article published by the Journal of the Canadian Medical Association.

The study was begun some time ago and is still being carried on, says Dr. Dafoe mentioned in an incidental reference in his article titled "Further History of the Care and Feeding of the Dionne Quintuplets." He did not elaborate his remarks or reveal who is making the study.

The article deals in a scientific manner with the care and feeding of the famous youngsters until they reached one year of age last May 28. Dr. Dafoe details their development from the first few days when they were fed warm water with an eyedropper every two hours to the time they started eating strained vegetables and fruit.

Their development has been continuous ever since they were moved into the hospital home in September, 1934, Dr. Dafoe wrote, "and I know of no more fit treat in the world than the one I receive when I enter the quintuplets' nursery every morning and see their rare collection of smiling healthy babies."

Record of Feeding

In an editorial accompanying the article the Journal called the article "the first scientific record of feeding and care of five world-surprising quintuplets."

Of Dr. Dafoe the editorial said: "We hail him as the only physician in history who has succeeded in rearing quintuplets to a point where they may be reasonably expected to maintain their existence for a prolonged period."

The Calladar physician lent a humorous touch to his recital of the babies' development by relating the advice he has received from all over the world about the babies' care.

"I feel I have learned a great deal in the last year and a half regarding infant care," he wrote.

"There was the veterinary surgeon who seriously suggested sow's milk as wonderfully nourishing. He pointed out how sow could be kept in the hospital and the babies directly suckled.

"It was intimated the sow could be trained to adapt herself to this

It is not possible for every family to afford an elaborate nursery for the care of the new baby, yet every home should make an effort to set aside a room in which the infant can sleep and be taken care of properly.

This is very essential to a child's health. A nursery, therefore, is far from being a luxury — it is almost indispensable. Always have the nursery the best ventilated and the sunniest room available.

Remember that a child passes about four-fifths of its time in a single room during its first year, and two-thirds of its time in that room during the first two or three years.

Sunlight is an absolute necessity if a child is to be kept healthy. A sunny room contains the humidity and less organic matter than one in which the light is diffused. Always try to get a room with southern exposure for your baby.

Also keep the nursery clean absolutely clean. No work — cooking, washing or ironing — should be done in a nursery. It is best, also, if no plumbing exists, for plumbing sometimes produces poisonous odors.

For the winter, use the open fire if by all odds the healthiest. This, however, is not always possible. Steam heat is next best. Avoid those heating agents which use up so much of the room's supply of oxygen.

Be sure to have plenty of fresh air so that the oxygen supply will keep up the room refreshing. As far as the temperature of the room goes, the average should be about 72 degree Fahrenheit. It would be better, however, to have it a little lower, say 68, than higher. It is essential, therefore, that every nursery room contain a thermometer, not as an ornament but for use. Consult the thermometer frequently as to the temperature — do not guess at it.

During the night, for the first few nights, the temperature should never be allowed to fall below 65 degrees. After the child is more robust during the second year, it can stand a night temperature of 60; during later years, even one as low as 50.

Never allow draughts in the nursery. Protect against these with screens or, better, with ventilators in the windows; a board or a glass placed across the bottom makes an excellent device.

Try by all means to keep the nursery quiet so that the child may be able to relax and sleep. Even though an infant may sleep many hours in a noisy room, the effect on the nervous system is bad.

The furniture in the nursery should be simple and functional. Keep it bright and cheery. Heavy curtains and portiers are to be avoided, as well as upholstered furniture. Rugs are better than carpets. They can readily be cleaned and the floor mopped regularly.

The bed of the infant is likewise important. Always give the child a bed to himself. Even in the earliest days the mother should not sleep with the child. There is danger of suffocation of the infant.

Brass or enameled beds are the best for the baby. They are readily kept clean. Beds where one side may be let down are a great convenience. Over the wire springs should be a hair mattress or possibly a rubber sheet, a draw sheet and a plain sheet. Pillows are not necessary.

Dr. Bloch's Daily Bed Hint

The eating of raw chopped beef now and again is not only enjoyable but a healthy change from cooked meats. In fact, most of us do not eat enough raw foods. Particularly is this true of vegetables that may be eaten raw. When so eaten none of its vitamin content is lost, while in the same time its fibrous consistency is excellent in promoting intestinal elimination.

Comments on Conditions in Dionne Home

Dr. Dafoe mentioned in an incidental reference in his article titled "Further History of the Care and Feeding of the Dionne Quintuplets." He did not elaborate his remarks or reveal who is making the study.

The article deals in a scientific manner with the care and feeding of the famous youngsters until they reached one year of age last May 28. Dr. Dafoe details their development from the first few days when they were fed warm water with an eyedropper every two hours to the time they started eating strained vegetables and fruit.

Their development has been continuous ever since they were moved into the hospital home in September, 1934, Dr. Dafoe wrote, "and I know of no more fit treat in the world than the one I receive when I enter the quintuplets' nursery every morning and see their rare collection of smiling healthy babies."

Record of Feeding

In an editorial accompanying the article the Journal called the article "the first scientific record of feeding and care of five world-surprising quintuplets."

Of Dr. Dafoe the editorial said: "We hail him as the only physician in history who has succeeded in rearing quintuplets to a point where they may be reasonably expected to maintain their existence for a prolonged period."

The Calladar physician lent a humorous touch to his recital of the babies' development by relating the advice he has received from all over the world about the babies' care.

"I feel I have learned a great deal in the last year and a half regarding infant care," he wrote.

"There was the veterinary surgeon who seriously suggested sow's milk as wonderfully nourishing. He pointed out how sow could be kept in the hospital and the babies directly suckled.

"It was intimated the sow could be trained to adapt herself to this maternal duty," the doctor wrote.

No Convenience in Home

The article contains the physician's first comment on conditions in the Dionne home. On the opening of the hospital, he wrote, "gave me the first opportunity for unrestricted medical control (with its various ramification in this case) in the baby's own home.

"Everyone realizes, I am sure,"the difficulties that any family would have in adjusting themselves to a situation that the birth and survival of quintuplets produces. The Dionne house was a representative home of the backwoods, and, of course, offered the usual limited facilities of that country."

The "inside" of the family life was shattered by the various duties carried out by the three nurses, orderly and cook, which were necessary for the welfare of the babies. This is quite natural, therefore, that the family should find the whole situation bewildering."

Dr. Dafoe wrote that physicians in Northern Ontario have very little opportunities to follow carefully the early care of infants. Women of the backwoods usually carry on those duties and doctors were called only in serious illness.

"I have no illusions about my special knowledge that I possess in the practice of paediatrics and therefore I have tried to take advantage to the best my ability, of the good results obtained in our research centres."

Charts Worked Out

The article is accompanied by charts showing the caloric intake of each child in her first 24 months of life, the amounts of food used by each, day by day, and their collective and individual development.

The originals of the charts are large wood engravings which have been presented to the Ontario Government by Dr. Dafoe and his brother-in-law, J. A. Wise of Toronto who aided him in preparing them for publication. The Toronto physician has been a daily aid to his brother since the children were born.

An unnamed resident of the United States, a friend of the medical fraternity, plans to obtain 172,000 copies of Dr. Dafoe's article for distribution to every physician in the United States and Canada, Dr. W. A. Dafoe said today.

Stirling and District

Stirling, Jan. 8—The regular monthly meeting of the Stirling Women's Institute took place on Friday afternoon in the Institute Hall, Mrs. Arthur Gardoner, Mrs. L. Rodgers, president, took charge of the opening of the meeting, which was opened with the Institute Ode and the Mizpah benediction. Collect followed by the Lord's prayer in unison, and the meeting was scarewed with worthwhile New Year's resolutions showing an unusual tendancy of helpfulness and love for visitors. The minutes of the previous meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. R. H. Williams. Mrs. Harper Hoffman asked that the organization offer co-operation to the committee in charge of the Stirling Girl Guides in a charitable enterprise in full swing here with Mrs. Jos. Wilson spoke on the prize list and at the last meeting it was asked consideration and suggestion for future reference.

The interval of the afternoon was under the direction of Mrs. Carleton Wilson, Mrs. Harper Hoffins spoil with the Current Events in a very interesting manner. Miss Thompson gave a splendid paper on Community Activity and Mrs. J. Keller Read, who also offered a very pleasing vocal solo. Community singing was then commenced at the piano by Mrs. R. H. Williams. Mrs. Hoffins gave a very interesting address on the "Thought of New Year's Resolutions." Mrs. Wilson also spoke on "Belief." A recipe recently given by Mrs. Ross of Holmes, District President of the organization, gained a unanimous hearty vote. Ladies that several requests for a copy of it were made at the meeting. The recipe is a delightful Christmas cake.

A hearty vote of thanks to the hostess and the very capable program committee, served by Mrs. H. Hodgson and the meeting was closed in the usual manner after which a dainty lunch was served by the hostess.

Grand Talkies Shown in Illustrated Lecture

Large congregations are attending the interesting series of illustrated lectures on the life of Christ which are being conducted in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church in the evening during the course the next few weeks. The services are commencing at 7.30 o'clock and then including the song service at the beginning. Scripture lessons, and the addresses are illustrated on the screen erected for the purpose.

On Sunday evening a tenor solo sung by Arthur Duncan while very appropriate slides were shown on the screen in a very artistic manner. Last evening during the singing of the hymn "Lead Kindly Light" by Rev. J. A. Kolfend added great-ly to the interest the service. The slides selected for these addresses are very beautifully colored and the artistic manner in which shown make this interesting series an unusual treat in point of artistic beauty. Rev. J. A. Kolfend has arranged with the congregation from time to time in the past with the expert manner in which he conducts these services the increased number attending this particular series proves the fact that his efforts are greatly appreciated by members of the church and congregation. The colorful story of the life of Paul, who was the greatest evangelist of the world with the exception of Christ Himself, is greatly enhanced by the beautiful painted pictures which are the impressions of this great man, as seen by some of the world's outstanding artists. The series is to continue throughout the next few weeks, in the evening and no one that those who found it impossible to attend the first series will be given an opportunity to see this unusual trial in future.

The season of hearing and sight of the audience are given a chance to function in this type of sermon and the effect upon the minds of the people is marked each week as week is very apparent.

St. Paul's United Church Men's Club

A great deal of interest was taken in the evening service of St. Paul's United Church on Sunday evening when the men of the congregation took over the management of the service. The congregation were led in lively singing by a male choir under the direction of Mr. G. L. Gute who presided at the organ and a special musical number which was greatly enjoyed by a male trio composed of Mr. Ross Hedley, Hobk. Patterson and Fred Rigby taking part. Mr. Wells principal of the public school occupied the pulpit along with Rev. E. W. Rowland. Mr. Wells announced the hymns and reading the Scripture lessons. Rev. E. W. Rowland deliver-ed a fine address in which he offered stern but justified criticism of present day life and work of the church' work. This condition has been upon us and we have all of all mankind to revive our interest in the great movements for the bringing of peace and goodwill to all men. We have an obligation to fulfill within our power to help carry our share of the burden. This very timely address was greatly admired.

A cold is not something to trifle with carelessly. It is a serious matter. It should be treated for what it is—a condition of the system which lowers the resistance and renders diseased tissues susceptible to the germs which cause pneumonia, influenza and other dangerous complications.

Grove's Bromo Quinine is a treatment which acts on the cause of a cold. It drives out the cold germs from the system and restores normal conditions quickly.

1. It opens the bowels greatly but effectively.
2. It combats the cold germs and fever in the system.
3. It relieves the headache and "aching" feeling.
4. It tones up the system and helps build up body resistance.

This is the kind of treatment you need when you have a cold. Grove's Bromo Quinine is safe and effective.

A simple line Grove's. Keep a box handy at all times and at the first sign of a cold—if you feel "chilly" or "achy"—take Grove's Bromo Quinine, however, as soon as possible.

Weddings

KLEINSTEUBER—MACK

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized Monday, December 23rd, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Mack, of Crookston, Ontario, when their eldest daughter became the bride of Ernest Roy Kleinsteuber, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Kleinsteuber of Sulphide, Ontario. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. R. Hall, minister of the Standard Church.

The bride looked charmingly attired in a gown of flowered georgette with white accessories, and was attended by Miss Mildred Mack, while the groom was supported by Mr. Arthur Kleinsteuber of Sulphide, Ontario.

A bounteous supper was served at the home of the bride's parents, at the immediate relatives.

The newly wedded couple will reside at Crookston, Ontario.

MacMILLAN—WICKENS

On New Year's evening at eight o'clock the marriage took place of Miss Norma Wickens, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wickens to Mr. James MacMillan, both of Crookston. Rev. Mr. Tomlinson, Dundas Street, officiated. Mr. and Mrs. Seward Mitchell of this city were the attendants. The bride and groom left by train for a wedding trip to Toronto and Niagara Falls. They will reside at Crookston.

CONDEE—ANDERSON

The marriage took place in Picton, at the Manse, on New Year's Day, of Nina Lucile, third daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Anderson of Demorestville, to Mr. Ralph Loney Condee, of Belleville. The Rev. S. M. Scott officiated.

The bride wore a pretty jacket dress of Oriental crepe trimmed with mink, and a brown velvet hat. They were attended by the bride's parents.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the groom's sister and her husband, Capt. and Mrs. J. A. Buchanan, 32d Foster Avenue, Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Condee left for a wedding trip to Ottawa and Montreal. On their return they will reside in Belleville.

SANGSTER—McINTYRE

The marriage of Mrs. Mary McIntyre of Lancaster, Ontario, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Collins, Belleville, Ontario, and James Percy, son of Mr. James A. Sangster, M.L.A., and Mrs. Sangster, Bainsville, Ontario, took place January 8th at the First Presbyterian Church, Montreal, Quebec, Rev. Dr. Malcolm Campbell officiating.

Mrs. J. A. Sangster of Bainsville, father and mother of the groom, were present at the ceremony.

Following a short wedding trip to Quebec City the young couple will take up residence in Bainsville, Ontario.

ECONOMICAL RECIPE FOR CHRISTMAS CAKE

Recipe for White Christmas Cake submitted by the Stirling Women's Institute:

1 cup butter
1½ cup citron peel
1 heaping cup white sugar
1 cup cocoanut
1 cup nuts
1 lb. white raisins
½ cup crushed pineapple
½ cup candied cherries
½ cup pineapple juice
Sugar flour
1 teaspoon nutmeg
1 cup almonds
2 teaspoons vanilla
1½ teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon lemon extract
Shred citron peel fine, blanch and chop almonds, prepare fruit and nuts and flour, using part of the alloted three cups. Cream butter well, add sugar and cream well, adding eggs, one at a time, beating well between each. Sift baking powder, salt and spice with flour, add to or, salt and spice with flour, add to mixture alternately with pineapple juice. Add pineapple, floured fruit and nuts, stir well. Bake in a moderate oven 1½ to 2 hours, using well-greased pan lined with greased paper.

PRESENTATION

Centenary—A very pleasant evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cassidy, Sidney, on Friday, Jan. 3rd, when about sixty friends and relatives gathered for a miscellaneous shower in honor of Mr. and Mrs. John Kingston (nee Mildred Cassidy). Mr. Wright was chosen as chairman and a short program was given. Mr. Gordon Carrison and Mr. Roy Robbins sang a couple of musical numbers. Miss Lena Sutherland and Miss Hazel Keene each gave a reading. The following address was read by Miss Helen Hart:

Dear Mildred and John:

We, your friends and relatives have gathered here this evening to extend to you our best wishes for a long and happy wedded life.

You, Mildred, who have been a willing and efficient worker in all church activities connected with our community, we wish happiness and prosperity in your new home.

Although we will miss you greatly, we are glad to know that you will be living near us and hope you will often return to see your Centenary friends.

John, although some of us do not know you very well, we hope to get better acquainted and that you will have all the happiness you both deserve.

The preacher declared it.

The paper boy's motto is small, but it is! and a lasts

Have lately been wed.

The young couple united

We see them with pride.

Are John Kingston the groom.

He's getting a darn good bride.

We trust that your future

Will always be bright,

Your pathway joyous

Your troubles be light.

Now, if shadows should come,

Just whistle and sing,

It will make the clouds vanish

And much brightness bring.

Mildred, be to your husband

A kind and loving wife,

And then he will love you

The rest of your life.

Now on this occasion,

We have brought you tonight

A few little gifts

That we hope you will like.

Just accept these few gifts

As a slight token we pray

Of the love and esteem

We shall bear you away.

Signed on behalf of your friends from Centenary.

Marking Too Linen

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please answer a question for me concerning the correct use of monograms? I am engaged and I am getting my linens for my hope chest, and I would like to have them monogrammed. I dislike using my name-to-be, but would it be proper to use my own initials?

2. Does a married woman use her husband's first initials on linen, towels and so forth? Is it correct to use her own first initials, her husband's first initial, and their maiden initial?

3. My fiance wants to wear a wedding ring. Who should buy this ring and when and where is it purchased? Is a plain yellow gold band the best taste?

4. When one is invited to a shower and does not receive a gift, is it correct to go to be, would it be all right to give the bride-to-be a personal gift, such as lingerie, or what would be more appropriate.

1. Indeed it is proper for a bride-to-be to use the initials of her maiden name on her linens and her her silver and on any other house accessories for her new home. It is a matter of fact, this is the really traditional thing for her to do. Formerly this was always the custom, and conventional-minded brides-to-be still adhere to this. I am very enthusiastic about this custom, and especially when a bride has not decided to mark your linens in this way.

2. A married woman uses the initials of her informal married name, not the initials of her husband's name, when she is marking her linens. Let's say Mary Smith marries John Brown. Then the initials she uses on he linens are her letter-paper, and so forth are MSB.

3. You are the one who buys the wedding ring for your groom-to-be. A rather narrow plain yellow-gold or platinum band is correct. When the groom too is to receive a wedding ring, the double-ring ceremony is used, and the rings are exchanged during this part of the ceremony. When you make arrangements with the minister who is to perform this ceremony, be sure to tell him that you have decided on this double-ring ceremony, and he will explain to you the procedure.

4. Yes, when the bride of shower is not made definite in the invitation, you may, if you wish, give the bride-to-be a personal gift, such as lingerie, or a gift of any kind for the new home, something in china, silver, glass, linen.

Bread-and-Butter Letter

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please tell me how to write a letter to a boy's mother in acknowledgment of a lovely week-end I spent in the country with them?

J.

Your "bread-and-butter letter" might read something like this:

Dear Mrs. ——,

How very kind you were to ask me to come to your home for that glorious week-end. Everything—and how deeply and highly I loved every minute of my visit with you and your family. The days were memory-making days, and ever since I came home my thoughts have been full of the delightful times I had. While I was there how hesitant you were, Mrs. Wells, and how "at home" you make a guest feel. Please tell your son, on my heart, for your goodness and hospitality to me.

Your friendship is a treasured possession, and I look forward to the time when I may be visiting with you. And your family was so kind to me, and your delightful friends were so charming to meet. At the time I shall have an opportunity friends sail all the grand things that everyone thinks about your your genius for friendship and for hospitality, and your exceptional graciousness and kindness. And I add my hallelujah to theirs!

Dearest love to you and your family, and again my warmest thanks and appreciation.

Sincerely yours,

(Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on Good Manners in this column.)

Advice to the Lovelorn
By Beatrice Fairfax

(Copyright, 1936 King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

The First Year Is the Hardest

Before we were married, my husband seemed the jolliest sort of a person. And now, though we have been married less than a year, he is grouchy, and seems to care for nothing but to listen to the radio. He hates to go home, he stays out so often. When my old friends drop in to see me he is cross, and his mother is barely civil.

I have never taken a motor ride unless his mother goes along. She wants to know everything about our business and when she comes I see how much we spend for everything, where we go. All this is taking away love for my husband.

Unhappy Bride.

So many men are tired when they come home evenings that they do not care to see even congenial friends. They like to sit quietly by the radio, unless some special plans have been made. Is he a card player, and would he care about having his friends in for a game of bridge or poker? You can arrange a nice little supper for them to have afterwards, and let the evening be strictly masculine affair.

If he has any sense of justice, he will not object to your having your friends.

You will have to be very tactful about your husband's mother. It's pretty hard for some women to understand that they no longer come first in their son's affections, and to confine in her of your own accord, and win her friendship. You will be happier if you do this than if you break up your home before you have given your marriage time enough to smooth over some of the difficulties of the first year.

He's Terribly Homely But Fascinating

Dear Miss Fairfax:

When first met him, he repulsed me. He is terribly homely, but he is so considerate, charming and thoughtful that I have learned to love him devotedly. Some of my friends tell me it would be a criminal mistake to marry so homely a man, especially as he is ten years my junior.

Annette.

The criticisms and advice of your friends have nothing to do with your case—in fact, they are quite impertinent. And as this man has proved himself fine and most thoughtful, I say marry him and be happy.

Has Frightened Him Away

Dear Miss Fairfax:

She is really beautiful and a little the older lad's men. We met at a dance, and I fell for her immediately. She terribly bashful in my admiration till she took the initiative and told me that she was crazy about me. I think if she were serious, she wouldn't have done that.

To tell you the truth, I'm really afraid of giving her my heart's all-long lovemaking. She may be making a fool of me. Or, if she is serious, I'd like to do a little of the courting myself. I play in an orchestra.

Wandering Minstrel.

Perhaps your music may be responsible for this young lady's love-making. Great ladies have fallen for great musicians, and popular tenors have to keep secretarial staffs to cope with their fan mail. But music or no music, it's a mistake for a girl to take the initiative in courting. Watch your step, and don't yield too quickly to the siren. This will also answer L.F.F.

Washington, Jan. 8 (CP)—Opening his press conference today, President Roosevelt remarked there was one news except Charles Michelson, Director of Publicity for the Democratic National Committee, needed a hair cut.

Michelson, sitting nearby, ruffled up in his mat and retorted some one had to accompanise in this administration.

Mr. Roosevelt joined in the laughter.

Train Child To Become Liked

Popularity at School Depends on Parents, States Miss Grenelle

By Lisa Grenelle

Popularity was not very popular at school, and for several very good and simple reasons.

First, he couldn't "take it". Second, he wouldn't mind his own business, and third, he thought he knew it all.

During certain years, being popular is by far the most important achievement in a child's life, especially in an adolescent's life. It is not necessary, or even desirable, for him to be the most popular boy in his class or set, but it is almost tragic if he is not readily accepted.

Unpopularity generally is not only immediately painful, but often permanently destructive. So terrible is the child's the experience of being heartily hated by his own kind that his later years are often tragically influenced by it. Only too frequently it destroys forever his self-confidence and leaves him with a permanent scar, a deep inferiority with a fear, perhaps a hatred or bitter distrust, of his fellow man.

What is Teach

But perhaps he will not be clever or she will not be pretty. What can you do about that? What can you do if your child is shy, awkward, delicate, sensitive or backward?

You can teach him to play a good sport, not to cry when he falls and hurts himself; to be considerate, not to make personal remarks and act personal questions.

Nothing so quickly revolves around him don't let him suspect it. The world will be his enemy forever, and the world will...be very scornful and angry if he expects it to.

Don't let him be a show-off, or even the able child who is necessarily conscious of the fact that he is a "good sport", the one who is tactful, considerate, the kind of business, the one who doesn't try always to be the centre of attention.

It's Parents' Job

These simple lessons may be learned at six, at seven. And if they are not learned then, other years will be harder. Popularity is largely settled before he is ten—and it is largely the parents' responsibility.

Sunday School Re-Organizes

The annual meeting of Northport S. S. was held in the United Church on Sunday afternoon, January 5th, 1936, for the purpose of re-organizing for the coming year. The meeting was opened by a hymn and prayer by Rev. Mr. Thompson, and over the entire meeting Mr. F. W. C. Kent was appointed Secretary.

Mr. W. G. Creeper in a few words welcomed the S. S. to the use of the co-operation and assistance given during the past year by the congregation. The treasurer gave a satisfactory report showing a small surplus on hand. The following reports were given by the Temperance, Missionary and Publication also the Home Department. A report of the Leadership Training Class held in Demorestville Town Hall in November was given by Mrs. Wm. Bird. The Missionary Address was "What Did Jesus Teach" by Russel Harris. It proved very interesting and educative. A number in the township attended these classes.

The officers for the year 1936 were elected which resulted in the following:—

Supt.—W. G. Creeper.
Asst. Supt.—W. G. Ferguson.
Recording Sec't—John Carlile.
Asst. Recording Sec.—Geo. Taylor.
Treas.—Miss Ruth Wallbridge.
Pianist—Miss W. Robinson.
Asst. Pianist—Miss K. Sanderson.
Librarian—Marion Clow.
Temperance Instructor—Committee of G. Kent, Geo. Carlile; W.G. Ferguson.
Missionary Dep't. Committee—Miss Ruth Wallbridge; Mrs. W. G. Creeper, Mrs. W. H. Longmuch, Mrs. F. Ketchepaw, Mrs. J. H. Mallett.
Home Dept—Mrs. W. D. Crozier.
Cradle Roll—Miss Ethel Robbie.
The teachers for the various classes are as follows:—

Class No. 1 known as "The Glenara" organized previous to this meeting—Teacher, F. G. Clow; Asst. teacher, Miss Kathleen Sanderson; Secretary, George Carlile; Sec.-Treas., Winnifred Robinson.
Class No. 2. Teacher — W. G. Creeper. Asst.—George Carlile.
Class No. 3 Teacher—Mrs. W. O. Crothers; Asst.—Mrs. Roy Simpson.
Class No. 4. Teacher—Mrs. Eugene Robbie; Asst.—Miss Florence Germain.
Class No. 5 Teacher—Mrs. J.H. Mallett; Ass't.—Miss Ruth Wallbridge.

After some very helpful discussions the meeting adjourned with prayer by Mr. C. R. Clow.

Elaborate Coiffures Pass In Favor of Simple Style

By Helen Follett

Jean Harlow

Some girls are having fun growing pigtails. Aye, it is true my hearties! Just as others are getting a thrill hurling their shoulder length locks chopped off, so that they can resume the goo...old shaved effect.

One arrangement of the pigtails is this-wise; part the hair in the centre, down to the nape. Plait four pigtails, tie and mingle the ends. Place the braids crosswise and allow ringlets to snuggle comfy, shaft the ears. There you have something different! It is easy to do if you have had a permanent and the tress ends stay in curl. Otherwise it is no good.

The sisters are, as usual, divided into two camps (those that love to play with their brain wool so they must have it fairly long, and those who find it a waste of time to fuss with curls. Each headdress is satisfactory in every way. Thus you can have what you like and still be in style.

We note the return of the swirl. It is charming on those who are not as young as they once were. Elaborate coiffures can't get anywhere! They are too dressy, too difficult to keep in order.

Extremely thin hands aren't any prettier than puffy ones. They look clawlike. To make them more presentable, exercise them daily. Stretch out fingers and thumbs in the limit, bring them into the palm with a curled hand, then push.

Every night apply coco butter. Thumb it into the knuckles, massage from wrist to finger tips, from finger bases to finger tips. Rub the hands into cold cotton gloves and let the skin and tissues feast upon the lubricant all the night long.

Hats have gone completely hairwire. Never have we observed cheapness of such varied outlines, never have we had them so de-

SPURNED DANCER TAKES LIFE—Unrequited love was given by police as the reason for the suicide of Dolores Wands, 19, one of Broadway's most beautiful blonde showgirls, who leaped to her death from the sixteenth floor room of a New York hotel. lightfully crazy! Without question, the hat is the most important detail of dress. A wrong slant will make a girl look dowdy.

There are a few beauty rules about hair. The round-faced woman needs a trim, the long-faced one can wear a hat that is of the turban type with good effect. Short girls look shorter when they select a large, flat bonnet and tall ones taller when they wear high crowns.

DEALER DISCOUNT IS CALLED UNFAIR

had no effect either in raising or lowering the price.

The embargo should not be removed, he said. It had been beneficial and no one would gain by its removal.

Level New Standardized.

G. G. Kew, assistant secretary of of the Ford Motor Company, said the discount of ford dealers in Canada had now been reduced to the level prevailing in the United States. The higher tariff, which was formerly 21½ per cent was a temporary measure and the reduction to 22 per cent had long been planned.

For the Canadian Automobile Chamber of Commerce, representing General Motors, Chrysler, Hudson and Studebaker, H. C. Grant, C.E. Long took issue with Mr. Sparks. He said the industry was not in the sorry plight Mr. Sparks pictured.

No Money On Sales.

Dealers made no money on selling cars on the average, said Mr. Sparks. An analysis of reports from 600 dealers showed on the average a profit only on parts, accessories and services and labor, he said.

This statement was challenged by W. L. Smith, General Motors, in-so-far as that company was concerned but it turned out Mr. Smith's figures were for one year and Mr. Sparks' for another.

R. Y. Graham, chairman of Saskatchewan, Alberta and Manitoba, said he had a suggestion for a uniform price for cars all through Canada.

Other standard manufactured articles such as typewriters were sold at standard prices throughout Canada, Mr. Graham said.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Jan. 8.—(CP)—Toronto industrial market turned stronger and more active at mid-afternoon today following a moderate sag around noon. The sub had dipped on profit-taking in British American but later International Petroleum sold up 3-8 to 45 3-8 and B. A. recovered just soon less. Gains were boarded for the distillery, steel, food and utility shares.

Bell Telephone touched a new high for some years at 146 and Consumers Gas sold a point higher at 100. Brazilian Ford A and C.P.R. held fairly steady.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, Jan. 8.—(CP)—Buying of the gold shares on the New York market stiffened Toronto mining market in the afternoon trading today and nearly all the senior yellow metal stocks moved upward. Malartic gained a point to 42 and the bids for Dome, Pioneer, Bralorne and Lake Shore were raised.

Scattered gains appeared in the base metal list and there were reflecting slightly higher prices for bar silver and copper on the London markets. Noranda advanced 3-8 and Noranda had a narrow gain.

Mylamaq is the outstanding issue of the silvers, touching 2.96 for a gain of 6 cents.

WALL STREET CLOSE

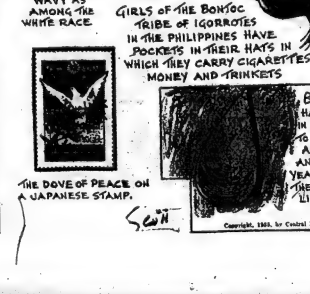
New York, Jan. 8 (AP)—Utilities and specialties showed particular strength today in a generally firm stock market.

Trading was active most of the session, in an early churning movement the tape fell as much as five minutes behind trading on the floor of the exchange, but several other occasions lagged moderately.

General gains ranged from fractions to around 2 points and a few specialties even better.

Steel Common Illinois gained 2, Allied Chemical 6, and International Business Machines, and Goodyear lifted 3 to 4. Others with advances up to 2 points were Lorrs, Sears, Radio Corporation, Gen. North American, Sun Oil, Continental Baking "A", Pennsylvania, Consolidated Gas preferred, Chesapeake Corp., Peoples Gas, Silver Farm, Case, and Radio Preferred "B".

The late tone was firm. Transfers approximated 3,000,000 shares.



Charges Ethiopians Gather About Red Cross

Rome, Jan. 8—(AP)—An official Italian communique charged today that Ethiopian warriors had sought Red Cross protection from Italian airplanes on the Ogaden front.

"In the region of Alamata, south of Lake Ascianghi," the communique said, "the Ethiopian warriors, as soon as they saw our airplanes, spread on the ground three large red crosses and gathered around them."

Board Room Gossip

As supplied by Biggar and Crawford to Frankcom, Harrop.

J. M. Consolidated Will Not Walk For Electric Power

Although there is a possibility that hydro-electric power may be turned on at the J. M. Consolidated property in the spring, sources close to the company are quoted as taking a more conservative view. Construction of the necessary transmission line from Rock Bay to Jeanmetta is certain for next fall, but probably not sooner; they say. Mining operations at the Mine will not be held up, as the company will proceed under Diesel power.

McKenzie Red Lake Production at Normal

December production at McKenzie Red Lake totalled $65,000 against $64,000 from the treatment of 4,000 tons of ore for the month, or approximately 133 tons per day. Development results are reported to be good and ore reserves steadily being added to.

Fortunes in Mining Stocks

The dawn of a new year always calls attention to the progress made by the mining industry in the year just completed and to the fortunes made in mining year after year.

Seventeen Canadian gold mines have been brought into production during 1935 with an aggregate tonnage of over 3,000 tons daily. This production has helped to boost Canada's gold output from $22,000,000 in 1933 and prospects are that 1936 will see new records established in this respect. Not only have numerous new producers and total gold output, but the number of dividend paying branches of the mining industry have had a record year in which both the country and investors have reaped enormous benefits. The production of nickel and copper is now the highest in the country's history, while that of lead and zinc is approaching record levels."

The Fortunes in Lake Shore and Noranda.

No better illustration of the large profits which have been the reward of courage, patience and foresight may be had than in the case of Lake Shore and Noranda. About ten years ago Lake Shore was a penny stock. Had a man then bought 1,000 cases at 15 cents, for a total investment of $150, and held on to his stock, he would be receiving in dividends to-day $1,000 besides his 1,000 shares being worth $50,000. Not so many years ago, in 1922, original stock of Noranda was available at less than $100 a share. There were then issued for 100 shares and a $100 investment in 1923 is now worth about $50,000.

Shares in a regular producing mine are still the most sought after investments, as they always have been—and always will be.

The Reciprocal Treaty and the Liquor Business

The "most favored nation" trade pact which Uncle Sam has arranged with Canada specifically states that given the Dominion Distillers a slight advantage there. Under the old in tariff rates on four-year old whiskey from $5 to $2.50 per gallon. But this reduction is not the only advantageous to both National Distillers and Schenley, which have large options on Canadian liquor on which the duty has not yet been paid.

As a result, the lower price for whiskey should tend not only to strengthen the position of both the leading American distilling producers, to the disadvantage of the smaller distillers which have specialized in "great" straight whiskeys, but to mention the bootleggers. Thus the revenue will have raised and curtailed by the elimination of the bootleg trade, and the public will get an increasing curb on illegal spirits which have been estimated as 17 million gallons per year.

Shawinigan has been well bought of late. The directors adopted a conservative attitude in the matter the dividend recently to 60 cents per annum. Earnings in 1935 are estimated at about $1.20 a share, indicating that the directors had they so desired, could have raised the dividend fate considerably more than they did. The stock also does not now reflected the betterment in the newsprint situation from which source Shawinigan derives a major portion of its income.

The annual statement of Canadian Industrial Alcohol is expected to be made public within a week. The report will show bank loans eliminated for the first time in five years. The Board's remarks accompanying the statement should prove of considerable interest. Canadian Industrial Alcohol has made good progress in the past twelve months with the current outlook promising.

McColl-Frontenac was a strong and active feature yesterday. For those desiring an investment in this issue is attractive. The fiscal year ends with this month and earning will show a large margin over dividend requirements. McColl-Frontenac in the past twelve months years, earned $1.48 per share average on the common.

The rise in British American Oil has created considerable discussion. Not only has the company, through its subsidiary, brought in a gusher on its Oklahoma holdings, but sales and profits 1935 were also record in 1934. In time, B.A. Oil should derive considerable revenue from its subsidiary holdings. In 1934, the company reported $1.06 a share on the common.

$600 GOLD CAARIED OFF

Hamilton, Oct., Jan. 8.—(CP) Thieves broke into the George H. Lees Company, manufacturing jewellers, last night and stole $600 worth of gold. The loot consisted of rolled gold plate and a quantity of settings for jewels.

Produce Prices on Montreal Market

Montreal, Jan. 8.—Butter and egg prices at Montreal had an easier tone yesterday. Potato prices were stronger, advancing 5 cents per bag except on No. 2 Quebec whites, which held steady. Cheese and poultry prices ruled unchanged. Receipts were posted at the Board of trade as 1,738 bags of eggs, 1,186 boxes of butter and 31 boxes of cheese.

The butter market ranged from 30c to 36½c per lb. for No. 1 in carlots or 1c to 2c higher, selling generally to be 36½c.

On the egg market graded shipments in cartons or l.c.l. lots were 30-31c for A-large, 27-28c for A-medium, 25-26c for A-pullets, 23½-24½c for B, and 23c for C.

LIVESTOCK

Toronto, Jan. 8 (CP)—Opening trade was slow on the Toronto Market today and not enough cattle rains were on hand to establish prices. There was a holdover of 1,000 head from yesterday. The calf division prices were lower, hogs were unsettled, no sheep were offered and a few lambs sold steady.

Receipts as reported by the Dominion Livestock Exchange were: cattle, 390; calves, 110; hogs, 530; sheep and lambs, 40.

With no cattle coming, opening call sales were lower at from $10.00 to $10.50 for choice, though most veals sold downward to $3.50.

No hog prices were established in the early morning sales.

A few common to medium lambs sold weaker at $8.00 to $8.50 and there were no sheep offered.

HOGS

Toronto, Jan. 8 (CP)—Bacon hog prices shored upwards at most reporting market points today, led by a 40-cent rise at Brantford. Chatham was up 50 cents, London price 40 cents, Peterborough rose 25 cents, and Barrie, Stratford and Kitchener prices were up 15 cents. Hull was the only point to remain unchanged. Prices:

London, $8.00; Chatham, $8.00; Barrie, $7.90; Brantford, $8.40; Peterborough, $8.00; Stratford, $8.00; Hull, $7.85; Kitchener, $8.00.

Secondary Schools in District Convene to Draft Schedules

Splendid Season in Basketball is Anticipated

Basketball teams from six different secondary schools in the County of Quinte district in the O.S.S.A.A. drafted their 1936 schedule at the Belleville Collegiate recently and find the opening date January 17th. The Belleville Collegiate and the Picton Collegiate entered teams in all four series, namely senior and junior boys and girls while Trenton High School has a senior and girls' team and also a junior boys' team in competition. Napanee C.I. only entered teams in two girls' series, the Albert College and St. Michael's Academy will compete solely in the senior intermediate boys' group.

Whenever possible four games will be played nightly at the two school team was represented at travelling expenses of the school teams, the boys' and two girls' games will be played when all the rambles, in the following schedule will indicate. The Madoc High school team (even if entered in the meeting and expressed their desire of entering the group, but until their teams were not quite up to the standard of the teams performed from the schools of the Quinte district as yet. Coach Milt Allison, of the girls' team agreed to meet the Madoc entry in a practice game but are not in order to acquaint the "cornbeaters" with the style and calibre of play exemplified in the Bay of Quinte group. All teams are hoping to qualify for the finals of the O.S.S.A.A. competition in the event of winning their respective group honors. Picton, Napanee, Trenton and Belleville schools all intend to enter junior teams in the girls' series and will play two "Alls" on the night scheduled, both junior and senior girls appearing in double headers.

Zonal Sheets

Marked interest was shown by the representatives of the various schools in the Picton being made in basketball throughout the Bay of Quinte district, especially in the enlargement of the groups in 1936, this year showing the largest entry in the history of O.S.S.A.A. basketball in the surrounding district. The various coaches intimated keen competition could be expected as all teams compiling had been practising for the last two months. Coach George Lansing is in charge of the boys' group at Picton C.I. while Coach Edith M. Allison is in charge of the girls' teams at that school.

Encouragement Seen In Formation of Loop

Perth, Oct., Jan. 8.—(CP)—Declaring he had received encouragement here and in Smith Falls, Brockville and Carleton Place with the organization of a Canadian-American Baseball League, Knotty Lee, former player, manager and club-owner in the old Michigan-Ontario Baseball League, left here last night. In Perth, Lee interviewed Dr. H. G. Hagerman, member of the St. Lawrence Baseball League.

The new organization contemplates linking up Canadian teams with those from New York State, including Malone, Ogdensburg, Massena and Watertown. Kingston, Ont., may also be asked to join the circuit.

Lee will interview interested parties in Smiths Falls, Ottawa and Brockville with the view of calling a general meeting at Brockville early in February when permanent officers of the various clubs will be asked formally to establish the League.

TWEED DOWNS MADOC BY 3-2

Losers Score Their Two Goals Within Ten Seconds

Tweed, Jan. 8.—(Special)—For fifty-five minutes of play "Shirt" Thompson of the locals kept Madoc off the score-sheet and with a fast scoring game of hockey at the local arena on Monday night, the Tweed sextet piled their counters in the dying minutes of the third frame, the final tallies coming within seconds of each other. The local, in the first period, scored one of the two counters of the game, and in the second period, one to the good, emerged victors by a count of 3 to 2. Jeffries' goal was disallowed in the final minute of play.

From the initial faceoff the locals showed marked superiority over their opponents' rivals. Thompson, starring for his second shutout and turned aside with ease all shots directed his way. He was afforded sufficient protection by his husky defence men "Jack" Lail and Ken Tummon who made the going pretty tough for their opponents. Thompson looked real good on shots from the stick of Ross Alexander and Keller who played in mid-season form.

Lail Scores First

W. Lail who plays smart hockey throughout notched the initial counter on a triple passing attack with Elsbury and Cournoyer, early after the opening of the first period. Elsbury added the second a minute later on a pretty faceoff beside Madoc blue-line, Meraw drew the first of their two penalties for bodychecking Ross into the boards. The locals "Shad" of Lail, Cournoyer and Elsbury was easily the best combination on the ice.

The second period was featured by plenty of hard but clean checking and produced some of the best hockey of the evening. "Buck" Leal, "Mickey" Moffatt, Ken Lail, Ross Alexander and Keller for the visitors were through repeatedly but the local goalie appeared unbeatable until shortly before the conclusion of the period when Cournoyers alleged the rebound of Elsbury's shot past Nichol for the locals' and final counter. It's the locals to make the score 3 to 0. Alex drew the only penalty for the period for a minor offence.

The third period was somewhat listless at the start as the fast pace was telling on both teams and was bunting hard by Tummon and retired from the game. W. Leal and Meraw drew penalties for minor infractions of the rules but got back before the visitors could capitalize on their advantage in man power. With less than five minutes to go Keller's shot dribbled off Thompson's skate. This lucky goal gave the visitors new life and they showed the only flash of real form they displayed all night when Alexander scored a sparkling goal in less than fifteen seconds on a nice combination play. Keller and with a minute to go on Shangue's pass but the goal was disallowed.

Madoc—C. Nickel, goal; Wm. and Anbury, defence; Smith, centre; Alex and Alexander wings; Kincaid, Rose, Hailstone, Keller, subs.

Tweed—Thompson, goal; Tummon and "Buck" Leal, defence; Shangue, centre; McGuire, and Meraw, wings; Cournoyer, W. Leal, Elsbury, subs.

Referee—George Geraldi, Trenton.

DETROIT WINGS SAILING ALONG IN FIRST PLACE

Defeat Rangers to Put Them Game And One Half Ahead

BRUINS COMING

Toss Black Hawks By Making All The Breaks Count

By The Canadian Press

From any angle Detroit Red Wings look the surer things than ever today to stay out in front in the National Hockey League's American division.

Meeting New York Rangers' challenge last night, they turned back the Broadway Patchen crew, 3-2, showing speedier forward lines and a sounder defense than the New Yorkers could muster, and thus put themselves a full game and a half ahead of Rangers.

Meanwhile Boston Bruins made it a fight for third place in the American division by taking advantage of penalties to bag a 3-0 victory over Chicago Black Hawks, who lead them now by only a point. Both of the games were the only ones played in the N.H.L. last night.

Young Pete Kelly sent the Detroiters away to a flying start in Madison Square Garden game with a goal half way through the first period and Herb Lewis gave them a two-goal margin in the second, when his shot from the side of the net went past Dave Kerr off Ching Johnson.

Battered old Ching Johnson got his fourth goal of the season, early in the second and thereafter Red Wings threw up a defensive wall that Ranger attacks could not crack. Johnson's counter, made with Glen Brydson's assist, was the only point the Blueshirts had as they had since back in 1923, when he collected 17 points in the league.

Take Advantage of Breaks

Bruins won from Hawks because they took advantage of the breaks they came, when Ole Ossalla, Mike Hodden and Billy Bell, rightly enforced the new rule under which the new instructions issued referees after last Saturday's brawl of gouging, uncorked the Tuscan.

When Marty Burke and Art Duncan 5-4 in charge fellow Brain Red Beattie to the penalty bench, Frank Patrick sent four men up the ice. Mike Mackasey manoeuvring and brought results. He passed first to Doug Young, who came and 16 seconds lated fed Cooney Weiland a puck, that got past Mike Karakas.

Chicago put up a thrilling one, largely because Chicago elected to play defensive hockey. Then Dan McFadyen added a thrill in the third period, when they staged a fight and were given major penalties.

MAGEDOMAS WIN FROM R. C. A. F.

Brockville Entrants in Ottawa City League on Winning Streak

Brockville, Ont., Jan. 8 (CP)—The league-leading Brockville Magedomas increased their record to straight victory last night when they defeated Royal Canadian Air Force team of the Ottawa Senior City Hockey League game here. The victory put Brockville six points ahead of its nearest rivals.

Magedomas assumed the lead in the first period when they tallied two goals while holding the airmen scoreless. Ottawa started off the second frame by netting their first goal but Brockville came back with two more and had a 4-1 lead almost to the end of the period when Eric McNeely, Gordon, Ryan combined to make it 4-3. Ernie McNeely drew a penalty midway through the period and was still serving when the third started.

Bob Bergin racked up two goals to even the tally in the third second and it looked like a win for Coleman got the puck from near the Magedomas blue line and made it win for the deciding shot.

Twenty penalties were handed out Ottawa drawing eight.

Lineups:

Royal Canadian Air Force: Goal St. Denis; defence, McInenly and Bergin; centre, Eric McNeely's wings, Jansen and Porteous. Subs, Ernie McNeely, Morrison, Lacompte, Stanyar, Quinn, Lowrey and McLean.

Brockville: Goal, Murray; defence, Price and Sherry; centre, Hood; wings, Coleman and Lowrey. Subs, Dexter, McMahon, Grabosel, Gordon, Ryan and Mac-Donald.

Officials: Hooper, Ottawa, and Miller, Brockville.

HOW TO BEAT SAM LANGFORD

Harry Wills, lumpish negro fighter, was an amateur of the power of Sam Langford in the ring. Langford was a powerful fighter, no doubt. Sam was matched with Fred Fulton, "white hope" and one of the better heavyweights of 20 years ago. Fulton knew that Langford, also negro, was very tough. He questioned many fighters for weeks on what style to use against "Tham." None seemed to have much to offer in the way of advice.

One day Fred ran into Willie. The question was broached to him.

"The best way, Mr. Fulton," confided Willie, "is to take a club and when he ain't lookin' jess bust him on de head, and when he turns 'round with one arm, so much surprise to see who hit him, jess bust him again and knock him out."

"And then what?" asked Fulton in suspense.

"Reckin' 'Tham,'" answered Willie, "only dere ain't no use to bust him de second shot, 'cos all."

CHAMPIONS HELD TO 1-1 DRAW

Stirling (Special)—Remembering the fine brand of hockey displayed by the boys in the Centre Hockey loop of last year, a good crowd of enthusiastic hockey fans turned out for the opening double-header which took place in the Stirling Arena on Monday night to see West Huntingdon score a well earned victory over the new Foxboro squad. Which is still in the stage of formation and promises to be a real threat when they get their plays clicking. The first period was fast being out all his material in this first game and the boys gave them the score in this game was 5-2 for West Huntingdon, with Mott scoring four of the counters for boys in blue. In the second game the play was even more exciting and spectacular although short, handed the Bethel team held last year's champions' honors until the last thirty seconds of play, in a game that ended in a 1-1 tie.

Stirling band under the leadership of Marcelle Bell was in attendance and the players, managers, league executive and spectators took part in a two minutes silence before play began in memory of William Brough, star player of the Centre team last year, who passed away last summer. This brief service was conducted by Rev. E. W. Rowland.

KEARNS HAS ANOTHER DEMPSEY—SEE ROPES—The man who was in Jack Dempsey's corner during most of the Manager's fighting career has another heavyweight named Hank Bath. Here is Jack (Doc) Kearns, with his new protege who at least shares with Dempsey the distinction of coming from Colorado.

OUSTED PLAYERS DENY CLAIM MADE FOR MONEY TO GO

Eyes Subject First Broached By President Gilroy of C.A.H.A.

Montreal, Jan. 8.—(CP)—Visions of representing the Maritimes on Canada's Olympic team in Germany thrust aside, four members of the Halifax Wolverines team, that won the Allan Cup last spring were in a train today bound for the homes they left just one month ago to train in Port Arthur and deeply disappointed at being dropped from the team.

Between trains in Montreal last night the four—Sylvester "Daddy" Bubar, New Glasgow, N.S., and Vince Ferguson, Chronicle Leader and Ernie Mosher of Halifax—all disagreeing, denied the recommendation for their families while abroad and said they had not discussed the subject until it was brought up by E. A. Gilroy, President of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association on the train from Port Arthur to Toronto.

With Bubar and Mosher doing most of the talking the players were unanimous in declaring they had been unfairly treated after they had been dropped in regard to the fateful Olympic Committee meeting held there. They were not called into the meeting and only one members of the committee after President Gilroy had announced they were dropped, they said.

"First Time" Gilroy

According to the players the subject of provision for their families was first brought up by Gilroy, when he asked them if Nova Scotia was looking after their families because he would not care to take them unless their families were looked after in their absence. They told him the matter had to be arranged.

Bubar said Gilroy suggested they get someone with influence to see what could be done towards getting the families the Provincial grant recommend to Wolverines after they won the Hamilton, Ont., semi-finals and the players asked him to try as he had more influence than they did. All agreed Mr. Gilroy was sincere in his desire to help them obtain the arrangements.

Hughie Farquharson of Montreal Maroons has tendered an invitation to join the Olympic team and will probably play centre to Ralph St. Germain, Port Arthur, left wing, for form what was the ace line of Montreal Victorias last season. Pat Kitchen of Toronto Dukes and Dinny Moore, Port Colborne goaltender, have also accepted invitations. A reply is expected today from Jim Peters, former Port Arthur player now in England.

The Maritime players were indignant at any suggestion they were hoboists and denied they had been paid money. Mosher said he would have had brains enough to "get the price" if he had thought of trying anything like that," was the way they put it.

CURRENT SPORT

DAY BY DAY

Absence through illness has left us far behind the times in the local sport realm thus far this season, ut we'll try and catch up with the situation as soon as possible. The January situation inauguration was held up, when last night's Peterboro' at Belleville immediate league was postponed and now we find the locals scheduled to open the "A" series of group No. 1 at Peterboro on Friday night. O.H.A. hockey has ushered in locally on Saturday night when the R.M.C. Cadets will appear at the Arena. The original date was Friday night, but owing to the intermediate date at Peterboro Manager Thomas was forced to ask for a change of dates for his opening junior game, laudenbeg the local Colts seem in sck plenty of punch, as was demonstrated in Kingston last week, when lacked slightly in condition at that time. This has been overcome, however, as Skipper Thomas has been drilling his Colts every night since.

Basket ball is looming strongly on the local sport horizon these days with a fast pointed Belleville eight in Belleville, this year Belleville boasts of two squads in the O.A.S.A. juvenile and intermediate "A", three senior basketball teams, St. Michael's, Albert College and B.C.I. and one junior school team at the Church Athletic Association, five girls' teams ready to face the barrier in the Bay of Quinte group of the C. O. S. S. A., a junior and senior squad, three girls' Belleville, eight basket ball teams in provincial competition in 1936. Yes, the cage game is advancing by leaps and bounds. The Interscholastic basketball league in the intermediate O.A.S.A.A. will pay off the group lid at the B.C.I. gymnasium on Saturday night when Coach Ralph Morden's "T" squad face the speedy Queens intermediate "A" squad. Coach Morden has lost the services of Godfrey Scott, Farley Faulkner and Ernie Smith of last year's local squad, but in their place four of last year's speedy frosh A. C. juniors have stepped up and should materially strengthen the "T" squad. Art Cole, Jack Faulkner, Floyd Mumford and Abe Tobe are the new comers and will team with Vic White, Al Wickerson, Dawson Maclean and Atkin; of last year's intermediate squad. Dean Coach Morden considerable scoring punch when they meet the 'Queens' squad on Saturday eve.

Interscholastic basket ball also took a turn for advancement in public favour and the material uplifting of the cage game, when no less than 15 school teams were registered to play in the Bay of Quinte group of the C.O.S.S.A. this season, eight being girls' teams and seven boys'. Of the seven boys, Picton H.S., B.C.I. and V.S., Albert College and St. Michaels entered senior interscholastic cage teams, while B.C.I., Trenton and Picton boast of junior boys also. B.C.I., Picton, Trenton and Picton schools all entered junior and senior girls' teams. Basket ball, like rugby football is fast gaining in public favour in Belleville and today can be listed as one of Belleville's major athletic activities.

We understand that Frank "Pete" Smith of the Belleville Y.M.C.A. and Athletic Club, is working towards the rejuvenation of the old Bay of Quinte Hockey League, senior teams from Belleville, Trenton, Picton and Napanee. The idea sounds logical as Trenton and Napanee have senior games in order to have competition for their O.H.A. entries.

The loss of the four Halifax members of the Dominion Olympic hockey team was keenly felt when the Olympics landed a 4 to 3 decision to Toronto last night. Goodness knows the competition will be tough enough in Germany next month and it is high time the C.A.H.A. realize just the class Canadian team will be confronted with. In the matter of opposition, and therefore ultime the best players available. Another star player possible. Incidentally the recent flare-up between the four Maritime players and the C.A.H.A. is to be regretted from a little angle, the absence of "the bread winner" but should not the city of Halifax or the Province of Nova Scotia taken care of that little item? Everyone knows that an $18.00 a week employee cannot leave a family for a period of four months without financial assistance of some kind, but the incident could have been more diplomatically handled, we suggest. There are just as good puckchasers in Halifax as the four Maritime players in question, but surely they deserve every consideration after winning the Allan Cup last spring.

President Jack Wilson of the Belleville Industrial League is active, he aughing for a couple of more entries for his loop. At present the B.I.L.L. boasts of four clubs, but President Wilson expects to raise the roster to at least six before the loop gets under way next week. Confidentially the industrial team wishing to amalgamate, should contact Percy Wilson.

We received a note from the family of Cecil Peters recently requesting us to esteem to all friends in Belleville his very sincere thanks for the many messages and acts of thoughtfulness for him during the holiday season. Dean Ford is still battling gamely for a speedy return to health, but his fight will be a long and tedious one. We have been informed. Naturally local baseball and sport fans will be interested in his recovery and for the information of those wishing to convey to him their personal expressions, we might say that his address has been changed. He is confined to Ward H, Toronto General Hospital, Toronto, and any cheery note sent to him would naturally assist him in his fight against illness.

"Shanghai Rose"

By Anne Forester

Because that pack of silly parasites of Hahs played with thought it a disgrace for Harvey Thorrold's wife to be working.....

Well, after all had their chance, the man reflected grimly. And he, Jeffrey Thorrold, had lost it. If things had been different at the first; if they had all been less hasty; less jealous; if he had listened to none of them, reserving his judgment until he had seen for himself that evening when he had called at the little cottage with his arrogant, self-satisfied proposal to take Kitten from her mother.....

Jealous burned daily within him. Money at her hand. Nothing, Jeff decided, could grow with this struggle, tolerantly, gaily away from the memory of its attitude that night. Friendly she might be—but it was not in human nature to forget. As for offering her money, help of any sort now..... about all he was good for was to keep on insulting her, hurting her.....

Savagely he bit through the end of his cigarette, throwing it impatiently into the fireplace. She hadn't meant to be interfering, only to be kind, to help..... If Barbara were making a fool of herself, it was then, after all, that someone stepped in. He walked restlessly to the window, staring down into the damp garden—see only Rose's wide, unhappy eyes, hurt, appealing, pathetically resorted. And resented, perhaps for the first time, how much he had been thinking of Rose lately. The bridge-table bridge.....on the links..... Out of a clear sky, fashioned from some chance thought, came the picture of a silent shoulder in a crowd, would come into handsome memory of Rose Thorrold..... fire and flame and spirit in a world of thin grey shadows.....

"Well, Jeffrey?" Miss Abigail's voice from her dim corner. Her faded, dark eyes shining with some inner excitement. Her chin face almost expressionless in the light.

"I'm sorry, Aunt Abby, I was thinking," he said. He lit another cigarette with nervous movements of his hands, snapping the lighter shut with a click. The low-hung sky was brighter now after the flurry of rain, but when the room fell to twilight had deepened. He pulled the thick silk cord which flooded the room with light—and when he spoke it was to revert to the topic which had really brought him here today..... his worry about the reports he had received from abroad ..... his more recent worry about his man Deering's reliability as an agent for the Mill.

You were right about that Syndicate business, Aunt Abby," said Jeffrey Thorrold. "They've refused to take our goods unless we discount that old note. It means taking a direct loss—it's a holdup, but we've got to fix it. We can't let the shipment of silk come back on our hands."

"Which simply brings us back in a circle, doesn't it—to the subject I am trying to discuss with you?" she said. "Now what, if anything, Jeffrey, my dear boy, do you know of this agent of yours?"

"Deering? Now don't let's go into that again—please! I know what you would say—that I trust people too much. But Captain Deering's been in China for years, and knows these people, and personally I think he's as good as anyone for the job. I can't say I like him—but that has nothing to do with his ability. If we could just keep the social tangles out of business it would help a lot! I'm sorry this matter of Hahs had to come up today..... I had rather counted on a talk with you about the Mill."

He had, indeed counted on having a talk with this old-fashioned counsellor, who had guided him through most of his adult life. And now it was spoiled—he was irritable, too exasperated to concentrate on the business he came to discuss. But they had been having a party at home when he left. He made a wry grimace at the thought of going back..... Voices—pitched in varying keys of ascending laughter, the shimmering odor of gardenias, the glowing sweetness of candlesticks and drinks..... Tubby Martin forever leaving the room with an empty cocktail shaker, returning with it full..... Irene Fleming—that impossible red-haired girl from Detroit..... Barbara glowering one moment, the next almost tearfully gay..... Ursula, Bill Prentice, his mother's escharine comments and admonitions.....

He was sick of it, Jeff told himself. Sick of parties and empty promises on the part of business associates and the responsibility of looking after a family that did nothing but thwart him at every turn.

On a stand beside Miss Abby's chair was a silver pound bowl filled with roses. Deep-hearted yellow roses, filling the warm room with fragrance..... like the scent of those bushes that had drooped in the rain that night he had brought Rose Thorrold home from a dance.....

With an exclamation, almost of grief or disgust, he rose and flung himself moodily down on the hassock beside Miss Abby's chair. Something of the gesture of the small boy Jeffrey, come to ask for forgiveness for a recklessness or a folly long ago, flooded the old-time feeling of embarrassment in the grown man's tone when he addressed the small figure in the chair.

"Look here, Aunt Abby—damn it!—excuse me, but I've got to ask you something. This is between you and Harvey's wife. How's that girl managing to live..... don't tell me to mind my own business, to 'out' he hesitated briefly, adding defiantly: "After all, it is rather up to to know an eye on the thing."

Miss Abby smiled. She had promptly reached over and extinguished the lamp he had lighted, the darkness, Miss Abby knew from experience, had a way of bringing out strange confidences in one at times.

"I dare say it hasn't been any too pleasant," she began—then stopped on the impulse to say more; to tell him of the new venture which Rose had in mind. This she decided in that instant, she would keep to herself for the present. It was time someone in the Thorrold family boldly herself aware to a realization of what Rose Thorrold had been trying to make of herself. In some sort of admiration for the girl's uncomplaining courage. Not, Miss Abby reflected, that the situation as it stood was entirely Jeffrey's fault. Living, as he did, in that household of women bended to make any man lose his proper perspective. But the fact remained that she, Miss Abby, had felt rather badly for quite a long while over her favorite's defection in the matter of Rose Thorrold. That he had refused to think of a Barbara, rather than his own better nature. Miss Abby was fully aware..... All right! now let him wake up at last and worry; time enough to tell him of the new business venture when it had begun to function. Let them all worry!

"No—what I mean is—who are her friends.....does she have any?—Outside, of course, of that chap Larry Morgan! She seems to see a great deal of him. I like him—though how he can stand Prohibition I don't know!" The words, clipped harshly, came out with otherwise curbed intensity—and again Miss Abby grinned shamelessly through the dark.

"Now, Jeffrey," she said mildly, "I seem to remember on a night or years ago..... you and Harvey and this Morgan lad did quite a number of annoying things—annoying, that is to those of us who tried to keep you out of jail. What's he done since that's made him less diverting?"

"Oh—not a thing....I suppose I didn't mean that, really. Only—well, I always did rather resent Larry," the man said..... "Not for himself—he's a good enough sort. But for something he's got that I never could have..... the thing that Harvey had—poor Harvey! A sort of graceful facility, an ability to take life as it comes—without being the slave to death's-head-at-the-feast all the time! You know, Aunt Abby, I'd give half my life to be able to take myself and live life less seriously!"

Well—Miss Abby thought delightedly—putting out that lamp hadn't been such a bad idea!..... things around me, even then," the man's voice went on. "I remember, when I was 15, Larry Morgan stole my girl....."

So! that was the way the wind lay, eh? Miss Abby's darting glance touched the sweetmeat box on the table. What if that quick slip of a check she had given Rose Thorrold never was spent for an interest in a beauty lotion business? What, if before the first of the year and the venture came to pass, some old quirk of Fate should will that the problem of Rose Thorrold's future should be solved in some other way? "Larry Morgan stole my girl.....Wasn't that what Jeffrey had said? And now here was this other girl—this girl she had admired and respected on sight.... Stupid! the old lady gave an impatient jerk to her shawl. She must be getting old, not to have foreseen this before. What a joke it would be on Ursula and that Barbara. If Jeff ever woke up to what was the matter with himself these days? She chuckled aloud.

At the sound, almost guiltily, the man leaped to his feet. His eyes seeking the illuminated dial of the clock on the desk. "By Jove—it's after seven! I've got to rush home to dress. Goodnight, Aunt Abby—see you tomorrow. I feel—rested—been pretty tired lately. Got to talk to Rose for a moment tonight, too!" He kissed her again. And was gone.

CHAPTER 28.

Life may have begun to hold new interest for Catherwood, in general, but for Barbara Thorrold, the autumn days had been filled with furious excitement.

On the shallow mezzanine floor above Ernestine's Shoppe had been held the week-end on Thursday afternoons of each week the elite among Calnerwood's younger feminines set—the acknowledged leader of whom was Barbara Thorrold. "With their drinks and their smokes and their carryings-on," Mrs. Pruitt once had described it.

The "carryings-on" were, in fact, nothing more alarming than an "interminable bridge" tournament, continued from one Thursday to another. Ernestine supplied the tea and cigarettes. And in return did a thriving business in the Shoppe. It had all been innocent enough—and, up to the advent of Rose Thorrold in the town, had completed their one major excitement.

Now, to Barbara's already overwrought and intensified state of mind concerning this rather doubtful sister-in-law, had been added the incident of her brother Jeffrey's impulsive action on the night of the Initiation sundry of her friends had put upon his championing of Rose; knew just how much capital they had made of it to infuriate her. Your true admiral is seldom without enemies in the ranks. Barbara had never accepted to save the feelings of others.....

Jeffrey, himself, had refused to discuss the incident. And, after one stormy scene, which had sent Mrs. Thorrold to bed with a heart attack, and Ursula flying for Dr. Curry, even Barbara had not dared broach the subject again.

TARZAN THE INVINCIBLE

(Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service)

The wicked eyes of the bull ape flamed with hate. "Go away," he said. "I am To-yat." "Put down the shell," demanded Tarzan. "She is mine!" replied Tarzan. "Put down the shell, lowed To-yat. "Put down the she," repeated Tarzan. "Or I kill. man, "or I kill. I am Tarzan of the Apes, Lord of the Jungle!"

Tarzan drew his hunting knife and crouched as he advanced toward the bull. To-yat snarled and cast the body of the girl aside that he might not be handicapped.

As they circled, each looking for an advantage, there came a sudden terrific crashing sound in the jungle.

Tantor, the elephant, asleep in the security of the depth of the forest, had been suddenly awakened by the growling of two beasts.

Instantly his nostrils caught a familiar scent spoor—that of his beloved master, Tarzan, and his ears told him that Tarzan was in battle.

To the snapping and bending of trees, the great elephant rushed through the forest; and as he emerged suddenly, towering above them, To-yat the growling of two beasts. Instantly his nostrils caught a familiar scent spoor—that of his beloved master, Tarzan, and his ears told him that Tarzan was in battle.

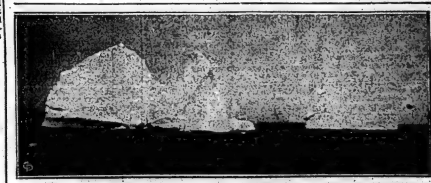
NATIONS THAT WOULD FIGHT ITALY

Expert observers feel that the European situation is tightening and suggests threats of hostility as the new year begins. Near the land of Dictator Benito Mussolini are two bitter traditional enemies of Italy. These two—Jugoslavia and Turkey are not averse to precipitating war against their ancient enemy, especially at a time when they feel sure of the support of France and Great Britain. Turkey against Italy.

The sensitive hands and faintly sardonic countenance of Arturo Toscanini, famous director of the New York Philharmonic Symphony and master who directs 2,000 classical compositions from memory, are shown in these unusual studies of the great musician. Toscanini sails from Naples Jan. 8 to begin his tenth—and perhaps last—season of directorship. He will conduct 24 concerts in New York. The rush for tickets for his concerts began several weeks ago.

SKIERS FIRST CANADIANS ON WAY TO OLYMPIC



Canada's skiers were the first athletes from the Dominion to start the trek toward Garmisch-Partenkirchen where the winter Olympic games will be held. Though the Finns and Norwegians are conceded an edge in this sport, Canada and United States are each sending teams. Two of the Canuck squad are shown here. Left is Tom Mobraaten, Vancouver, and right, Karl Saadvick, Montreal. Centre shows an action view of a skier in the air, a scene which will be repeated by the cream of world skiers in the little German town.

AND NOW THE DUKE IS KING OF POLAND!

Dame rumor doth herself proud when it comes to spreading gossip about the youngest son of Britain's royal family, the Duke of Kent. First, when he married Princess Marina of Greece, he was scheduled to become king of that troubled nation. Now, European reports say that, since there is a new monarchist movement in Poland since death of Pilsudski, Prince George is favored as logical candidate for the throne. The ancient palace of kings in Warsaw and the Duke of Kent are shown above.

HUGE ICEBERG ENDANGERS SHIPPING IN NORTH ATLANTIC

The iceberg season on the North Atlantic is starting much earlier than usual this year. Reports from Cape Race, Newfoundland, state that a huge berg, 700 feet long and 200 feet high was sighted by the Swedish motorship Seward. Such an iceberg must be of tremendous proportions when it recalled that only about one-ninth appears above the surface of the water. Icebergs constitute a grave source of peril to Atlantic shipping, and by international agreement, the North Atlantic is patrolled by special lookout ships to guard shipping lanes. Above shows two smaller icebergs in the North Atlantic.

PRINCESS MENEN HIT—Princess Ismail Daoud, a member of the Egyptian royal family, whose mission and hospital in Ethiopia was the target of Italian bombing planes, causing great indignation in Egypt. INVENTS THIRD EYE

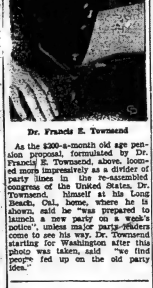
Dr. V. K. Zworykin and his "electron telescope" which, with the electron tube invented by him, supplies man with a "third eye" enabling him to see in the dark. Dr. Zworykin and his associate inventor, Dr. George A. Morton, demonstrated their discovery at St. Louis science convention.

THIRD PARTY HEAD?

Dr. Francis E. Townsend



As the $200-a-month old age pension proposal, formulated by Dr. Francis E. Townsend, above, loomed more impressively as a divider of party lines in the re-assembled congress of the United States, Dr. Townsend, himself at his Long Beach, Cal., home, where he is shown, said he "was prepared to launch a new party on a week's notice", unless major parts leaders come to see his way. Dr. Townsend starting for Washington after this photo was taken, said "we find people fed up on the old party ides."

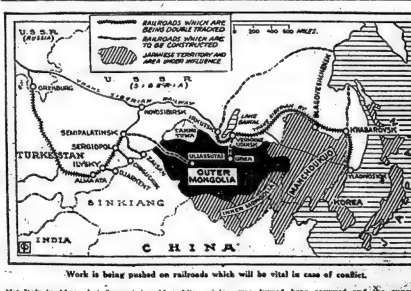
AIRMEN SEARCH FOR MISSING FLIER



LIEUTENANT JOHN F. HELMS AND TOBY WING

NEW AEROPLANE DESIGNED TO CROSS ATLANTIC IN 13 HOURS

This queer-looking, but speedy craft, is the Crusader, newly-built aeroplane which could get you to Europe in twelve hours, if you so wished. The craft, designed by Thomas M. Shelton, will travel at a height of 26,000 feet and will make 700 miles an hour at cruising speed. The aeroplane will make a Miami-Chicago hop shortly. S. F. Baltaline, engineer; Captain J. S. Cordner, test pilot, and Thomas M. Shelton, designer, (LEFT to RIGHT) are shown with the aeroplane.

Work is being pushed on railroads which will be vital in case of conflict.

Little Benny's Note Book

Me and Puds Simkins and Skinny Martin was standing around the letter box and Shorty Judge came up, and we all gave the special salute for members of the Flying Trapeze Artists, Shorty saying, G, fellows, golf calm the luck, my mother says we cant keep that bed spring in our back yard.

Aw heck, did she say positively? said Skinny, and he said she's absolutel. She says it's unsanitary, she says she's going to get the first race man to throw it out again, he said.

Good rits what's unsanitary about it? Puds said, and Shorty said, That's what I asked her, G reenies, ladies certainly are funny about other peoples bed springs. Maybe she mite change her mind if you fellows asked her, coz if you do I better not be there or else I shell think I put you up to it, he said.

And me and Puds and Skinny went over to Shorty's house and rang the bell like a committy, and Mrs. Judge came to the door, saying, How-ed isn't in.

Well G, Mrs. Judge, do you realize he cant be president of the Flying Trapeze Artists unless he keeps that spring in his yard? said Skinny Martin, and Mrs. Judge said, Good, that will give him more time for his studies, and maybe if he works hard he may become president of a bank or even of the Lizy of Nations.

Well jimminy, Mrs. Judge, if he gets a lot of exercise jumping on that spring maybe he wont stay so short, Skinny Martin said, and Mrs. Judge said, It's more likely to give him a long rest than a lot of exercise. Boys with broken legs are usually found in bed, she said. Anyway I'm sure I'm very much obliged for your advice. Is there anything special you wanted to ask me? she said.

No mam, us fellows said.

And we went back to tell Shorty what happened without giving out, spells the embarrisment of anxsilly taking her.

YULETIDE DANCE BRILLIANT EVENT

Miss Helen Redmond and Miss Olive Nightingale sponsored a beautifully arranged "Yuletide Dance" held on Thursday evening at Quinte Inn, when they were hostesses to some one hundred invited guests. The Inn was alglow with color and festive decorations. The large crowd formed a charming picture as they danced to the splendid music of the Wellington Orchestra. "The Paul Jones" was a feature on the program as was the "Leap Year Tag", which proved most amusing and cause for plenty of surprises and merriment as the boys found themselves hustled out of their stall and unquestioned routine of the last four years. At midnight a lovely lunch was served by the younger committee.

Those assisting with the pretty quilt were: Miss Florence Walbridge, Mr. Howard Wood, Misses Beatrice and Mary Walbridge with M. Ewert Bonter, Mrs. Robert Dempsey held ticket no. 46 winning the beautiful "Dresden Plate," quilt. The guests were from Belleville, Picton, Northport, Trenton, Wellington, New Brunswick and Toronto.

Not Italy in Africa, but Japan in China supplied the greatest aggression of the year 1935. Without blare of trumpets or rise of public indignation, Japan has steadily pushed herself down into China from the north. Evidently learning a lesson from her disastrous invasion of Shanghai in 1932, when world public opinion was turned against her, Japan is now doing things quietly, suppressing all publicity, even to Japanese people. But Japan in her entrance into north China and Mongolia also must reckon with Soviet Russia, with whom Japan has been in conflict several sharp clashes for years. Several years ago Japanese conflict centres.

BRITISH DIPLOMATS SEEK TO SAVE PARLEY

John Gilbert, Screenland's Famous Lover, Victim of Heart Attack

Wreck of Naval Parley Is Forecast at London; Salvage Efforts Made

Japanese Flatly Refuse to Disclose Anything But Total Tonnage

CLOUDS OVER PACIFIC

Final Crackup May Take Place in Five-Power Session

By LLOYD LEHRBAS

London, Jan. 9 (AP)—Great Britain, France and Italy appeared on the brink today in a final, desperate effort to save the London naval conference from being numbered on the rocks of disaster.

Fearful that flat Japanese refusals to discuss anything but total tonnage limitations might cause an immediate collapse of the conference and send all naval limitations, Anglo-French-Italian naval experts met secretly, stepped into the breach personally.

They doubled in attempt to induce the Japanese to name a navy ratio officially satisfactory to them, or otherwise assuring that, today at the latest.

Conference With U.S.

The British also arranged for a conference with the American delegation today or early tomorrow, depending upon the outcome of the conversations with the Japanese.

If the conversations succeeded, a strong possibility the Japanese would split the parley or bolt from it altogether, leaving the powers to decide whether to push on to London or to abandon the conference.

Japanese spokesmen declared they were interested, first and last in the total tonnage question—under which they demanded parity—and were not at all interested in other aspects of naval limitations in which the conference sought to turn.

Japanese correspondents with their delegation added in Tokyo a possibility Admiral Osami Nagano, Chief Japanese Naval Delegate, might fly home by naval plane to confer with the Emperor.

Mikado's Ire Put Rest.

The Japanese delegates had considered flying by way of the United States, it was explained, but deemed this inadvisable if the conference should be wrecked.

The United States, French and Italian delegations withheld comment on the situation, awaiting the results of the British-Japanese private meeting.

A final break-up might come tomorrow when Lord Stanhope, president of the British Empire delegation, called a formal session of the full conference.

A conference jury particularly dear to the heart of Marshal Rion, formerly of Saint John, N.B., died from a blow on the head and the 21-month-old son John died from exposure. The father's body was found in his shack 13 miles from here but was burned so badly that it was a perfect cause of death. A young child was believed to have been cremated in the fire which destroyed the squatter's home Sunday night.

FIRE LOSSES DECLINE

Toronto, Jan. 9 (CP)—Ontario's fire loss for 1935 shows a decrease of $24-thre and a decreased insurance loss of $1,534,776, it was revealed in a report issued today by W. J. Scott, Ontario Fire Marshal.

Public Expresses Confidence In Newspaper Advertising

Survey Made Covered 21 States and 122 Occupations

5000 INTERVIEWED

(By Howard W. Blakeslee)
(Associated Press Science Editor)

New York, Jan. 9 (CP)—An expression of confidence that newspaper advertising is reliable, and that it is what consumers want of the public, was reported today by Charles G. Flesh in an advertising Research study.

More than 5,000 persons from coast to coast were asked 15 questions about newspaper advertising by a corps of young women. The questions were put to 61 field workers, housewives, lawyers, bartenders, beauty shop operators and many other categories.

Dr. Paul Lazarsfeld, "Flesh reports, "Which do you usually consider more reliable, statements given about an article in salesmen or advertisements in your daily newspaper? 85 per cent. declared for newspaper advertising. Even the majority of salesmen questioned agreed newspaper advertising was apt to be more reliable and 90 per cent. favored newspaper salesmen.

"Eighty per cent. of those questioned said that in their opinion advertisements make daily newspapers more interesting."

Textile Institute Representative Presents Brief to Tariff Board

Ottawa, Jan. 9 (CP) — Motor manufacturers appearing before the Tariff Board today agreed to place at the disposal of counsel for the provincial governments all confidential information filed with the board on costs of production and prices in Canada and the United States.

Chairman George H. Sedgewick read a telegram from Ralph Ford, president of the Ford Motor Company, authorizing him to release the American cost figures filed with the men tyried by the Ford Motor Company of Canada.

W. F. Preeth, of the Studebaker Corporation, and H. B. Thomas of the Chrysler Corporation, also consented to similar disclosures.

Mr. Sedgewick announced he had been under a partial misapprehension yesterday when he said General Motors had not filed certain information. Some such figures had been tyried and General Motors had also agreed to furnish them to Provincial Government counsel.

Trade Secrets.

W. J. Smith of General Motors said the automobile dealers had suggested General Motors dealers should be glad if they were not forced to disclose their profits. Mr. Ingram, counsel for the Dealers' Association, "They have all the capital tied up in the business. They can't make a profit and they can't get out."

Free Textile Aegis.

Douglas Abbott, representing the Primary Textiles Institute, read a brief objecting to special concessions to automobile manufacturers on textile imports as proposed by the Provincial premiers.

The brief said:

"If the principle of making special purpose items on the basis in the suggestions now before the Tariff Board were adopted, it would lead to such individual industry using textiles in which materials afford the chief employment of a considerable proportion of the 65,000 workers now engaged in the textile industry in Canada, which is essentially a small town industry found in all but two of the 94 with an annual payroll at the rate of $40,000,000."

MILD EPIDEMIC OF MEASLES IN CITY

Belleville is experiencing a contagion of measles at the present time, the Medical Health Officer reports. Cases of illness were hailed today by the announcement by Dr. O. C. Clarke, Medical Health Officer, that 42 have been laid up and out of school by the measles. "We have had a few of them though," admitted Dr. Clarke.

The decrease is especially prevalent among the junior population, and nothing has been done, or can be done, to check the spread, he noted in the course of questioning. The pupils in the Public School, the Collegiate, the School House, Miss E. A. Sandwell, Reg. N., is in charge.

38 INMATES IN COUNTY JAIL

After a period of quietness surrounding prison room vests, population of the County Jail has again swung a decided increase in numbers. According to Chief Governor C. H. Fraser, at the present time 38 inmates are housed in the institution, including one female. Only one male prisoner is confined. Highest number previously held was 48 prisoners a year ago, extending over some years.

Safe Men Use Umbrellas, Mail Bag On Sidewalks

The Belleville Post Office has appointed a supervisor of safety, whose duty it will be to instruct employees in a method of handling the mail so that it will be delivered in the city hall by a shaking of the letter carrier. By-the-way, letter carriers are now using umbrellas instead of mackintoshes to remove responsibility for wetness of the mail. It is said that the mail is never covered with mud, slushy or other material for the protection of which Mayor Ellis is now considering proposing an amendment to the by-laws, and for this purpose.

ROUTINE BUSINESS FEATURES MEETING

Passing of accounts and ...other routine business featured the regular session of the County and Bridges Committee of Hastings County Council, held in the City Hall yesterday. It was presided over by Steven James Moore, Stavely, Reeve of Ameliasburg, by the way. Present also was Rush of Sidney, chairman of the committee during the past year, a meeting of the House of Refuge Committee was being held today. This meeting will also be featured by routine business and the conclusion of the committee's business for the past year.

FEATHERED TRIBES PROTEST HAWK'S ENTRY

The feathered tribes of starlings and gulls who have been inhabiting the east side dump in large numbers since the advent of cold weather, shrieked high protest in exalted squalls and chirps yesterday afternoon when a large hawk moved in on their territory. But the regular headdresses moved out to a safe distance, in front of their privates and eyed the intruder, as it slowly circled aimlessly about. Later in the morning off amid the jaws of its smaller feathered cousins and the interloper disappeared, the real estate business of picking a living continued.

Vocational Committee Meets Tonight

Members of the Vocational Committee of the Board of Education will wind up the year's business of the committee at a regular meeting to be held this evening. Only routine matters are expected to be dealt with by the committee, it is stated over by Trustee Reg. Mccririeff, chairman.

BLAZING CHIMNEY 'CAUSE OF ALARM

Sparks from a blazing chimney in the residence on College Street, south of Dannifton Road were responsible for an alarm turned in by the local fire department at eight o'clock last evening. No damage was reported.

NO ICE BOATING

Hopes of ice boating enthusiasts of the city and district that they might be able to enjoy their favorite sport before Christmas were faded again this morning, as further inches of snow were added to the depth of the fall by a thaw, forecast of the season for a short period was the result, and also to get in a few days sailing on the smooth ice.

OLD CLOTHING NEEDED BY SCHOOL CHILDREN

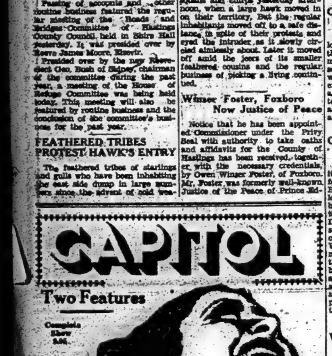
Clothing is still needed at this local relief office it was reported this morning. Particularly, old clothing suitable for repairing for school children are appreciated, as well as heavier clothing for work on the list. It was pointed out again that the Relief Office is the better how frayed and worn it may be, as they can be patched, are just as acceptable as new.

Gun Shed Addition Approved by Engineer

Apparently well satisfied with the recommendation for appointment formal approval of the new 34th Battalion Armouries on Bridge Street, the local Armouries was given yesterday afternoon by Lieut.-Col. H. C. E., of the Engineering Staff of Military District No. 2 Headquarters, Kingston, and by Lieut.-Col. Bowerman, officer of the Dominion of Public Buildings Branch of the Commission. A complete inspection of the building was made, the morning by the visiting experts who were accompanied by F. Arnold Thompson, of the firm of Thompson Construction. The building was constructed by the Pedersen Construction Company of this city.

WEEK OF PRAYER QUITE SUCCESSFUL

The week of prayer held in connection with the seven churches in the city has been most successful, it was evening in Wesley Methodist Church, where the seventh and concluding meeting was held Friday night. Rev. Mr. Harold Reid was in charge with Rev. Bert Howard of Albert College delivering the address, the subject being "Holiness and their Rulers".



GIRL'S ARM BROKEN BY HIT-RUN SKATERS

Last evening, Mary Aman, 71 Highland Ave., met with a painful accident while skating on the rink. Two young men, who were skating backwards it was reported, skated against her, knocking her down so violently that her right arm was broken just above the wrist. She was taken to the hospital where her arm was x-rayed and the fracture set by Dr. Blakelee. The young men, it is said, did not stop to investigate or render assistance, but skated rapidly away. The violence of the impact may be judged by the fact that the bone was driven completely through an inch by one of the skates.

Woman Braves Fumes To Rescue Two

Hamilton, Ont., Jan. 9.—(CP)—Braving choking gas fumes, Mrs. Sarah Naylor rescued two persons from death before midnight last night. George Hamilton, grocery store is beneath the apartment in which Mrs. Naylor resides, was in his shop with a clerk, Edna Marsh. The blower on the furnace went out and the fumes filled the room, soon filled with gas.

Mrs. Naylor noticed the fumes and aroused her neighbors, a woman and two children, and then went downstairs to the store. There she found Pollock and the girl clerk both unconscious. Dragging them to the street she summoned help. Doctors succeeded in bringing both victims around although they were suffering ill effects today.

Tabernacle United Marks Close of Successful Year

Spiritual and Financial Gains Seen in Every Phase of Activities

Tabernacle United Church congregation has closed one of the most successful years in its history for the... second consecutive year a balanced budget has been presented. This year 1935 showed marked increases over the year 1934. Twelve reports and their officers for the year 1936 the congregation held its annual meeting on Wednesday evening. Twelve church pastors, no fewer than 225 members and adherents enjoying the dinner which was provided by the Women's Association. Rev. R. Neptor, minister, presided over the banquet and the subsequent session. A spirit of optimism over the progress in all branches of the church's activity activated and dominated the meeting.

Rev. Neptor said that the "record year" in the congregation's life has just closed. "We are very thankful for the support given to all departments of the church's life. We have had a very effective board," he declared. "The Sunday school has shown a considerable increase in the past two years, the people's work is progressing, and not only have we had the co-operation of the congregation but we have had also the blessing of God."

Optimistic Note Struck

"We have come to the time of a balanced budget again. For the second year the Tabernacle has been able to close the books at the end of the year with every account paid. The Tabernacle's consequence looks with optimism upon the future."

Mr. O. F. Lent was named secretary of the meeting.

Mrs. S. Hendrie, reporting for the Comrade Club told of many activities, and of receipts of $467.77.

The session report read by Mr. C. F. Frost, acting clerk of session was as follows:

Encouraging figures of the ...dicionary and Maintenance Fund were presented by the treasurer of the fund, Mr. Cecil Lent, showing receipts of $500.68 an increase for the year of $1234 and a still greater increase over 1933.

Mrs. F. Hendrie reported dollars from Dr. George Laughlen of Toronto, in memory of Miss Hendrie, who died during the year was presented to the M. and M. fund though it will be included in the total given by the treasurer.

The following members of the Congregation were passed by the retiring session for their faithful service rendered during the year:—Mrs. Morton Laughlen, Edward Weiler Calnan, Miss Beatrice Grace Charlton, Miss Rhoda Adaline Sinclair, Mrs. Emily May McNeil, Thomas Wilson, Mrs. Hannah Ashley, Rev. H. B. Kenny.

The nomination stood for a moment in silent tribute to the memory of those who had died during the year which ended in the prayer of thanksgiving for the blessings of their lives was read by the minister.

Financial Report

Mr. J. O. R. McCurdy read the report of the Board of Stewards, of which he is chairman, showing receipts of $4,509.10 with a balance on hand, and all the necessary for the year had been met. Mr. McCurdy commented the congregation on its hearty co-operation and stated that the anniversary dinner, offering alone totalled $1,118.50.

Mr. J. Fraser Paul, chairman of the Board of Stewards, reviewed the finances.

Mrs. Arthur Naylor speaking for the Women's Association showed receipts of $218.25 which had been raised during the year. This important branch of the work of the church was able to make a large contribution to the success of the year 1935, the Women's Association being the women for their loyal support and co-operation in every way towards the fine work which the Women's Association is accomplishing.

The installation of officers for the year 1936 followed. The following officers were elected:

100,000 PERSONS PAY ON INCOME

New Ontario Tax Will Not Tax Corporation Income

Toronto, Jan. 9.—(CP)—The new Ontario income tax will impose 20 per cent on corporation income as does the Federal tax, it was reported here.

Although the Ontario Legislation follows closely the Dominion statute there will be no provisions similar to the Federal tax on the income of corporations. Ontario already has a corporation tax.

About 100,000 persons will be liable to pay income tax under the proposed legislation and from those it is expected a total of about $3,000,000 will be realized.

Chester Willins, Comptroller of Revenue, will return to Ottawa Friday to discuss Ontario's new legislation with the Federal Government, and to make final arrangements for collection of the provincial tax through Federal machinery. The Commission of Canada will pay the Federal Department of Revenue for collection service has not been decided, it was understood.

SIGHT RESTORED TO BLIND GIRL

Says Pictures Different When You Actually See Them

Regina, Jan. 9.—(CP)—Blind more than a year, 18-year-old Christine Henderson, of Hassett, Sask., is beginning to see and is "not afraid" for her eyes.

Diabetes, from which she suffered brought on cataracts on both her eyes. These spread over the eyeball until in August, 1934, she became completely blind.

One operation was performed last March and another in June. The cataracts began to disappear. Late in the summer Miss Henderson's condition improved until she could distinguish between day and night. Yesterday she was fitted with glasses and went to see a motion picture show.

"They're different altogether when you can see them," she said after watching the picture, the first she had seen in almost two years. She had attended shows, while blind and with the aid of a guide could follow in her mind what was taking place on the screen. But actually seeing the pictures provided much more enjoyment, she said.

"I believe I could get along by myself anywhere now," she said.

Describing her feeling while living in total darkness, she declared she said. There were periods, when she was completely hopeful that her sight would be restored, and there were times when hope faded her completely.

Although she has recovered partial sight in one eye only, she is hopeful specialists will win sight for the other as well.

WORKERS RAID DRESS COMPANY

Two Arrested and Warrants Out For Five For Malicious Damage

Toronto, Jan. 9 (CP)—Two men were charged with doing malicious damage to property and warrants were out for five more today after a raid on the premises of the Dominion Dress Company, where 15 organized workers smashed several machines, bars garnetted and overturned work tables.

David Bealler, proprietor of the Dress Company, said the reason for the raid was the refusal of his employees to join the Dressmakers' Union of the Workers' Unity League.

Arrested by police after the melee last yesterday were: Jack Hill, 22, and Harry Bayer, 26.

Plainclothesman Arthur Keay, guarding the Adelaide Street West plant outside which about 100 persons were milling, while the 15 charged inside to wreck the place, made an attempt to cope with the trouble single-handed. He went into the building and was holding one man, when another struck him on the side of the face. His shirt was torn and his hat was knocked off.

He chased his assailant. Two more plainclothesmen, passing in motor car, came to Hill-said. They arrested Hill and Bayer. The crowd, which had been outside the plant followed the police and threatened to release the prisoners by force until police reinforcements arrived in radio cars.

COUNCIL URGED TO STUDY ACT

Toronto Official Says Whole Dismissal Business Out

Ottawa, Jan. 9 (CP)—No bigger than the proverbial man's hand a week ago, the cloud which enshrouded the tangled affairs of Toronto developed last night into a violent tempest. Bestview is the small municipality on the Montreal Road at the eastern exit of Ottawa.

For some time there has been in financial straits. Last week the Council gave dismissal notices to employees, hoping thus to effect economies. Last night Inspector R. J. Moore of the Provincial Municipal Affairs Department, who is conducting an inquiry, threw a monkey-wrench into the whole project and told the Town Council the dismissal business was out.

Incidentally Mr. Moore urged the civic administrators to "study the Municipal Act," and so acquaint themselves with their powers.

FASCIST FORCES NEAR FRONTIER

Withdrawn Year Ago After Laval-Mussolini Accord

(By Charles H. Cupill, Copyright, 1936, by The Associated Press)

Rome, Jan. 9.—Italian forces were disclosed in the vicinity of the Italo-French frontier, from which troops originally were withdrawn after the conclusion a year ago of the Laval-Mussolini accord.

The presence of Italian forces in the neighborhood of the frontier became known from an inconspicuous dispatch from Asti, in the far northwestern corner of Italy describing a presentation of flags to a regiment of the Assietta division.

This disclosure recalled the authoritative announcement several weeks ago in view of threats of a League of Nations oil embargo against Italy, in addition to the present penalties for the Fascist warfare in Ethiopia, "certain troop movements" were in progress.

Competent sources said at the time the movements "were not more pronounced against any particular nation," but whether the French border was being re-garrisoned was not then specified.

Investigation Of Dismissals Looms Today

Halifax, Jan. 9—(CP)—Investigation into the unprecedented dismissal of four players from Canada's Olympic hockey team loomed today.

Three of the four Nova Scotia hockeyists dropped from Port Arthur Saturday, ag to swear out statements for officers of the Maritime Amateur Hockey Association, who have promised to "sift to the bottom" the action in Toronto and the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association Committee.

The trio of former Halifax Wolverines—Hamish Mosher, "Chummie" Dunbar, and Vince Ferguson—arrived back home last night with little to say. They reaffirmed how-ever, they had never asked the C. A. H. A. for any money to guarantee the security of their families, while they were away and the C.A.H.A. President, E. A. Gilroy, had been first to broach the subject of their families needing support.

The fourth Wolverine, goalie "Daddy" Bebar, was in New Glasgow after leaving his mates at Truro yesterday.

NOT LIKELY TO HEAR HAUPTMANN

Court of Pardons Considers Mercy Plea on Saturday

Trenton, N.J., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Gov. Harold G. Hoffman expressed doubt today the Court of Pardons (any) Bruno Richard Hauptmann's request for a personal hearing when it considers his mercy plea Saturday.

Never has a condemned man appeared before the Court to ask clemency.

Incidentally Mr. Moore urged the civic administrators to "study the Municipal Act," and so acquaint themselves with their powers.

Incidentally, the Governor disclosed certain documents relating to the case are en route here on the German liner Europa due in New York tomorrow.

WELLAND WOMAN KILLED IN CRASH

Passenger Bus Hits Transport Truck on Bridge Near Huntingdon

Huntingdon, Que., Jan. 9.—(CP)—Two persons, including Elizabeth Hoodless of Welland, Ont., were killed last night, when a passenger bus crashed into a heavy motor trasaport truck on a bridge south of here.

The Canadian victim was 60 years old. All of the dead were passengers on the bus, en route from Port Wayne to Indianapolis. The other dead were identified as:

Henry Muelhauser, Chicago; Lora Aline Bryant, 23-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Bryant of Monroe, Mich.; William J. Harvey, New York City.

Sheriff Orville Johnson opened an investigation immediately to determine the cause of the crash. Hills and curves block the view at each end of the bridge.

The two heavy vehicles sideswiped on the bridge and remained tangled on the road, a steel balustrader of the bridge keeping them from toppling into a creek bed 15 or 20 feet below.

3 INCH BLANKET OF SNOW IN CITY

Fall Gives Extra Employment to The City's Workers

A three inch blanket of heavy snow, which fell over the city late last night and early this morning, followed by an appreciable rise in temperatures during the fore part of the day, resurrected snow shovels from cellars and gave extra employment to dozens of the city's workless. Although no official calls have been made at the local Employment Service of Canada office, in many cases unemployed with shovels on shoulders solicited the job of clearing walks in residential sections. On the department of public works ten men called from the relief lists and six extra employees of the department were on the job early this morning, cutting crosswalks and city property. Trouble in the shape of derailed fenders and buckled bumpers was anticipated by the department as a result of the following thaw and drizzle of rain which was giving a mirror-like pollish to streets and roads. Sand trucks were again on the job tackling the slipperiness of the travelled Boroughfares.

WHAT TO LOOK FOR

Developments of the next fifty years are expected to include pasteurized air, small airplanes which can be packed and carried under the arm, moving sidewalks and moving sidewalks, artificial light which rivals sunlight so that windows will no longer be required, elevators running at lightning speed, highways lighted almost as in daytime, disasters more common that man will have to work to escape same and the vacuum tube developed to do the monotonous operations of industry.

These are the forecasts of A. W. Robertson, chairman of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company.

But though the future will be so different in outward form, man will be the same. He it will be that must do the thinking for machines work but do not think. Brains and human emotions will still dominate.

PROTEST EFFECTIVE

"Jailed" has been on the stage in a resume of the Lindbergh case carrying the title "Crime Doesn't Pay". He has been heralded as "the most enigmatic, colorful and widely publicized personality in America". It was plain sailing until he ran up against twenty-five ministers in Plainfield, N.J., this week and his scheduled vaudeville appearance has been cancelled.

This decision was taken by Dr. John C. Condon, of Flanders, because of the protest, "in the interest of justice and mercy, for both the bereaved and accused in this case," which demanded a boycott of the lecture, "as the ministers recommended "a passive resistance against all attempts to commercialize the personnel and machinery of justice and against all attempts to exploit for financial gain the common instinct of idle curiosity."

The New York Herald states this protest is a popular revulsion against the cheap hippodroming of a national tragedy and deserves support. It points out that this revulsion received its crowning impetus in the flight of the Lindbergh family to England.

Commercialization of this or any other tragedy should be stopped; all right thinking persons surely believe. There was after to child a prejudice strong that it prevented the jury from going on the stage. Surely it should have prevented witnesses doing so.

A horrible chapter has been written in the kidnap-murder and some few lines are yet to be added. The whole story has been a terrible one to all law-abiding citizens without fear, favour, unthinking and irresponsible citizens having this story repeated and repeated to them in places of amusement. The crime story has its lesson, but the entertainment has no place for it, while a crowd is present just to be entertained from the tedium and ennui of an unoccupied hour or so.

The twenty-five ministers of Plainfield N.J., deserve the gratitude of every citizen and of the cause of decency.

RUSSIA RELAXES

Soviet Russia is relaxing from its straightjacket. It has allowed a semblance of religious worship. It has gone back to some of the dignity of the Czarist days in allowing glittering uniforms and the title of marshal to some of the leading military chiefs. It has taken down the barriers against foreign writers, even Rudyard Kipling being allowed for publication in translation for the pleasure of children. These children's illustrated editions will run from 30,000 copies to 300,000 copies and will include Mark Twain's "The Prince and the Pauper", "Tom Sawyer", "Huckleberry Finn", Grim Brothers' Tales', Fennimore Cooper's 'Last of the Mohicans', and Kipling's non-imperialistic 'Jungle Book' these appearing this year for the first time since the revolution. Dickens' 'David Copperfield', and 'Dombey and Son' and Daniel Defoe's 'Robinson Crusoe', the Grimms' Tales and Russian stories by Pushkin and Alexsei Tolstoy will be the largest of the children's works.

Oldeschilden for whom ten editions of 100,000 are being published will dine almost exclusively on nine Russian authors, there being but one foreigner, no other than William Shakespeare, the Englishman allowed.

Dusly the Soviet is finding that Russian interest is not tied up with any one system of government. The narrowness of the Russian governing class is disappearing.

If the whole world were put into one scale, and my mother into the other, the world would kick the beam.—Lord Langdale.

If there is aught surpassing human deed or word or thought, it is a mother's love.—Marchioness de Spadara.

As we grow old we become both more foolish and more wise.—Rochefoucauld.

WHO LET THE BLACK MAN IN?

Since the trouble down there started many have been mildly curious as to how Abyssinia gained a seat at the League of Nations. The question naturally boils up again with Mussolini's repeated observation that the Ethiopians are a backward people who should not have a voice among the powers; and it is just a few weeks ago on the same score that Italian delegates walked out of a meeting when the black men got up to state their case. How come that the Italians did no such thing when Abyssinia was admitted to membership in September of 1923? Here's what a kernel of history tells us: "In the Sixth Committee . . . . . the British delegate suggested that Ethiopia ought not to be admitted until some further investigation of its actual position had been made; but the Italian delegate minimized the importance of existing social conditions in Ethiopia, implied that these should not be a bar to Ethiopia's reception into the League, and advocated favourable action on its application." The Australian representative alone emphatically opposed the application; but when a vote was taken it was unanimous. So it was that Italy herself helped to responsible for the Ethiopian in the Geneva woodpile.—"Bystander" in Toronto Globe.

FLYING EIGHT THOUSAND MILES FROM MANILLA in 58 hours, 52 minutes, the Phillipine Clipper bettered the previous record made by the China Clipper by more than four hours. From Honolulu to Almeda, California, 2,400 miles, the time was 17 hours and 27 minutes. The round-trip record between California and the Phillipines of 16,000 miles was made in 118 hours and 52 minutes. The gallant old sailing ships which used to make voyages of months and even years duration look small today as regards speed compared to the great airships which are annihilating time and distance. Of course there is vast difference in cargo space between the sailing ships of old and the airships, but the demand of the time seems to be speed and more speed with the cost not counted.

JOSEPH BRADETTE, M.P., who represents the farthest north constituency in Ontario, and once addressed an audience in Belleville is a remarkable man. He made a success of the store-keeping business in Northern Ontario, then entered politics. When elected to Parliament he could speak little English, but set to work at once to learn the language. Now he is an eloquent and forceful speaker in either language. Not satisfied with that distinction he took up study for the law, and has passed preliminary examinations and is going full speed ahead bound to achieve his objective as a full-fledged lawyer. All of which adds up to the fact that Joseph Bradette is a man of persistence and ability, and one who is not content to stand still, and shows what can be accomplished by anyone who has a definite objective and the determination to gain it despite any discomforts and discouragements.

CANCEL GAME IF FOUR COMPETE

Olympics Will Not Play Against Players Dropped from Squad

Halifax, Jan. 9 (CP)—Cancellation of the Canadian Olympic team's exhibition games here next week was threatened today by Fred Marples, secretary of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, in the event the Olympics should be opposed by the four Halifax Wolverines dropped from the squad Tuesday.

Marples, in a wire from Toronto to Jack Conn, manager of the disbanded Wolves, said the game was off if Conn insisted on using Ernie Mosher, "unlimited" Lawlor, Vince Ferguson and "Daddy" Rubar on the Halifax team scheduled to play the national team on the eve of its sailing for Germany.

Conn, promoter of the scheduled Jan. 16 match, immediately asked Marples by wire to reconsider. The four players, he said, have been advertised as on the Halifax team and the public would be "very indignant" were they dropped.

Playing berths with a hockey team in England were offered today to Ernie Mosher and "Chummie" Lawlor, former Halifax Wolverines dropped from Canada's Olympic team Tuesday for amateur hockey demands.

Cliff Benedict, former National Hockey League star and now coach of an English team, cabled a friend in Halifax to ask the two Wolves if they would join his team. The proportion was they would receive free trip to England with no salary for their hockey services.

The pair had no immediate answer for Benedict whose last position on this side of the water was coach of the Saint John Beavers in the Maritime Hockey League.

WAR IN ETHIOPIA IS NOW GOING WELL

(By George Hamblelon)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Jan. 10.—(CP Cable)—The war is not going well for Italy.

Dispatches from Ethiopia report Italian troops encountering stiffening up roads and creating new and unexpected difficulties for the invaders.

The Berlin correspondent of the Evening Standard learns "on unimpeachable authority" two internment camps sheltering more than 1,000 Italian conscripts have been established during the last month in the Bavarian mountains.

ACQUIT EXERCISE BOY OF MURDER

Jockey Saunders Yet to Stand Trial in Death of Woman

Lewisburg, Ky., Jan. 9 (AP)—Walter Schaeffer, 20-year-old exercising stable stargle boy from Chicago Heights, Ill.' today stood acquitted of murder in the death of Mrs. Evelyn Silwinski, killed by an automobile after a wild party here the night of Oct. 20.

A jury in Criminal Court found Schaeffer "not guilty" after deliberating an hour and 48 minutes last night.

Commonwealth's Attorney Merit O'Neal said dismissal of an accessory charge against Willie "Snoky" Saunders, dapper little Calgary, Alta., jockey who was Mrs. Silwinski's companion on the party, was under consideration.

Mrs. Agatha MacKicon, fourth member of the midnight round of night clubs and drinking that ended in Evelyn Silwinski's death, was the principal prosecution witness.

O'Neil declined to discuss the possibility Mrs. MacKicon's testimony that Saunders assaulted Mrs. Silwinski "Drives or four times" would lead to Grand Jury action. In Kentucky, a convicted rapist may be punished by hanging.

Try This on Your Radio Next Sunday

New York, Jan. 9 (AP)—If you thought music went round and round before you should know that Sunday at high noon E.S.T. and for half an hour thereafter the music is going to go round and around and round and around—

Johnny Johnson, the band leader, said his public is all worked up over the current popular opus, "the music goes round," etc. and that something drastic had to be done.

"Half of the people want me to play it," he said, "and the other half don't want me to. As a fitting answer to both groups I am going to play it for a solid half hour and if anybody wants to make something of it he can see my lawyer."

Not only persons will participate in the affair — orchestra, chorus and soloists. The thing will be played in every shape, manner and form, round and round, arranged and rearranged. A chorus will sing it eight times, just to break the monotony.

It is estimated by the trumpet player he will "play" the number 'round' something like 328 times and that the music will go round and round, presumably for 30 minutes. (WJZ-13 poon Sunday).

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT The Capitol

"To Beat the Band"

Two Age Hits, Melody and Fun; "Manhattan Lady"

They play and dance in HCO Radio's new musical, "To Beat the Band", and through all the comedy there runs story all lively and as bright as the music itself. The whole production is a pot-pourri of melody and merriment.

Hugh Herbert and Helen Broderick have the leading roles. Herbert was never more perfectly cast than as the fuddy-duddy who falls into a vast amount of money but cannot get it unless he fulfills a queer unusual provision in his benefactor's will. Miss Broderick, star of the New York stage, finds herself equally at home in a role reminiscent of her Broadway days. Eric Blore, as usual is cast in a way which enables him to cajole many chuckles.

In addition to an outstanding cast there's the musical organization known originally as "The California Collegians" who scored a musical hit in "Rose-Marie". The five song numbers were composed by Johnny Mercer and Matt Malneck, and Mercer "c-cedes" with "To Beat the Band."

Also on the same program "Wakefield Lady" is a sensational melodrama in a romantic setting with comedy highlights. Featuring Ann Sutherland, Reginald Owen, "Red", who brings her charm and vivaciousness to the screen for the first time, in this picture.

AT THE BELLE

"Metropolitan"

Romantic musical, New Lawrence Tibbett Hit

For sheer musical merit, no more distinguished picture has ever come from Hollywood than the Lawrence Tibbett starring vehicle, "Metropolitan", which begins its engagement at the Belle theatre today.

But "Metropolitan" doesn't rest on its musical laurels.

The picture which presents Tibbett in selections from succeeding operatic favorites as "Pagliacci", "Faust" and "Rigoletto," also has a resounded plot, an engrossing love story, drama and its full share of comedy.

The cast of "Metropolitan" reads like a Tibbett admirer's dream. A young singer to gain recognition. An impatient wife, her progress in the recognized opera companies, he attaches himself to a wildcat grand opera outfit, starring Alice Brady, a temperamous and vertiginous prima donna.

She controls the money, holds the purse strings of the angel, but because Tibbett fails to reciprocate her affection his career and that of the opera company is threatened.

His affection for Virginia Bruce then becomes matters worse, and Miss Brady leaves the company in a huff. Stranded, Tibbett makes a heroic effort to put the company across, a coup de fails, and finally success and Miss Bruce's aid.

Edward E. Horton Fun Film

With all the whimsy, pathos and genuine comedy at his command, Edward Everett Horton renders a portrait of a small town hero who had to take a number of ticks to get wise to himself in "Your Uncle Dudley," the romantic comedy, announced as the second feature attraction on the same program.

Starred in the title role, Horton plays the part of a man who has a pathetic weakness for silver loving cups and banquets.

Lois Wilson, who has persisted in loving him for many years, doesn't like the way things are and hopes for a change.

It comes when Horton's parasitic sister demands that he return money loaned him years and when friends turn deaf ears to his pleas for a touch.

Horton does an about face that startles his fellow citizens and carries a number of hilarious comedy situations and brings the picture to a romantic climax.

In addition to Miss Wilson the cast of "Your Uncle Dudley" features John McGuire, Beatrice Lawrence, Alan Dinehart and Marjorie Gateson.

"Trained Hoofs' revealing thrills and spills of the turf will be exhibited on the same program.

Performances start daily at 2.30, 7.15, the last complete show starting at 8.30. "Metropolitan" starts daily at 2.40 and 8.30. "Your Uncle Dudley" starts daily at 2.45, 7.25 and 9.45 p.m.

Scenes from RKO "Beat the Band" at the Capitol Theatre

Personals

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin McGeachie of Edmonton, are visiting with the latter's sister and husband, Dr. and Mrs. Gaye Brandon, of this city.

Mrs. William Mosman has arrived at home after undergoing an operation at Belleville General Hospital and is recovering nicely.

Rev. Rev. Monsignor Michael McDonald, D.P., pastor of St. Patrick's Church, Napanee, and formerly pastor of the Church of St. Peter-in-Chains, Trenton, observed his 25th anniversary of receiving of his ordination to the priesthood on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Patterson and Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Rollins of Cox Hill left today for Florida, to spend a brief vacation.

Mr. Wilfred (Dusty) Flagler left this week for Toronto where he has accepted a position.

Miss Lorella Doyle has returned to the city after spending the past week in Toronto visiting her brother, Mr. W. J. Doyle and family.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. R. Mason was the scene of a very happy gathering recently when Mrs. R. H. Mason, Mr. Mason's mother, was the guest of honor. Mrs. Mason arrived in Belleville some weeks ago from her late home at Rustend, Sask. Those present were her daughter, Mrs. Green and two daughters and three sons, Mrs. Wrenn and husband and two sons, Mr. Mason's daughter, Mrs. Wig- and husband and baby girl and Mr. and Mrs Lyle Mason and three children. Mrs. Mason has resided at Rustend since the death of her late husband, Mr. Miles Mason went West in 1914. Mrs. Mason now intends to make her home in the East.

A large number enjoyed the euchre party and dance at the Moose Auditorium last evening. Prizes for euchre were won as follows: ladies' first, Mrs. Hazlewood, Mrs. J. C. Thompson; third, Miss E. Behan; fourth, Miss Hazlewood; fifth, Miss H. Reid; sixth, Mrs. Allison; special, Mrs. Hixon; men's first, G. Harpster; second, Frank O'Brien; third, Ar. Rogers; fourth, Mr. Soderberg; fifth, George Hunter; sixth, T. J. Simpson. Mrs. Burks won the rumble prize. The Commodores played for dancing.

Rev. J. F. and Mrs. Evenson, of Plainfield, spent Monday afternoon calling on Mr. and Mrs. Robert Demorest, of Alexander Cheese Factory, near Madoc, where Mrs. Demorest lies in her home very ill.

Dale Sharpe, Corbyville, who is in the Belleville General Hospital after undergoing an operation for stoning of the river last week, is progressing favorably.

It isn't very often you combine dignity with a jaunty and youthful note, but this model does. A cape and black woollen with tuxedo panels and a bow and tie collar of Persian on the detachable cape.

A best seller and rightly so, is a dinner dress of velvet with a neckline edged with bracelet length of in steel-cut beads. This comes in black, Stranded, Tibbett makes a heroic effort to put the company across, a coup de fails, and finally success and Miss Bruce's aid.

Books from Infected Homes Not Dangerous

Other than the fact that they are given a good airing following their return from homes which have been under quarantine for some common infectious disease, no especial precautions are taken with library books before their return to circulation, it was stated by library officials today. "There is slight chance of any of our customers catching anything from a book," it was asserted. Under instructions of Dr. J. S. Cronk, M.O.H., the city, the simple precaution of airing is being taken.

It is news when the same type of evening coal can be ordered either in precious ermine or in blacked Persian lamb. The model, a swagger coat, has tuxedo revers, a plastron front and a jewelled clip for fastening.

Keep Hair Healthy

Frequent Shampoos, Brushing And Diet Among Hints For a Glorious Crown

(By Helen Follett)

Beauty Seekers should have a weather eye on the future. Time never improves the complexion or the hair. In fact, the old man with the scythe has it in for us.

More than one woman has taken her hirsute halo for granted, giving it only that kind of attention that had to do with arrangement. What she should do is to keep the growth healthy by frequent shampoos, nightly friction of the scalp and vigorous brushing to pluck out the dead shafts. The balanced diet is a help. Hair has to build cells and has to have nourishment from the blood streams. So act wisely.

Considering the extreme delicacy of the individual shaft, it is surprising that such fine strands last as long as it does—sometimes for six or seven years.

It is composed of three layers, the outer one or cuticle, the middle one that is called the cortex and the inner structure which is the medulla or marrow canal.

The cuticle is formed by overlapping cells, like the scales of a fish. You can feel them, if you rub hair the wrong way. The medulla contains the coloring pigment. For some unknown reason that disappears, then the hair is white. Science sheds the first lesson in glorious crowns.

In treatment of dry hair an excellent medium is made by combining one ounce each of castor oil and one ounce of alcohol. The purpose of the alcohol is to thin the oil and to create warmth in the scalp.

Heat the mixture slightly, trickle it onto the scalp with a large medicine dropper. Spread out the fingers and thumbs and give the scalp a good mauling. Let the tonic remain on over night. Next morning begin the shampoo with a rousing lather, using soap generously. After the hair is dry, rub a little brilliantine into the scalp.

When nails are extremely brittle, are inclined to break and acquire ragged edges, file with an emery board when shaping them. Every night apply cuticle cream or oil to the finger tips in hot olive oil for five or ten minutes.

Drink a quart of milk a day. Milk contains calcium, which is necessary for the health and well being of human tabues.

Then why not get rid of blackheads is to steam the skin, produce a good glow of perspiration, and then apply a plug of solid fat, tipped with atomphetic dust. Make heat soften this barricade.

After the steaming apply lather with a clean powder pad and pat it in with the finger tips. Don't rub. Then place over the face a washcloth that has been dipped in warm water. Rinse away with tepid water, dry, friction lightly with cold cream.

SUES MOTHER—Ann Cooper Hepburn (above) has filed suit for damages for $500,000 for an alleged malicious operation performed on her. She has named as defendants her mother, Dr. Tillman, Dr. Samuel G. Boyd and Mrs. Mary S. Scally.

Rosland Russell

Course of Toxoid Treatments Given Dionne Quints

North Bay, Ont., Jan. 9.—(CP)—The Dionne quintuplets have completed a course of toxoid treatments for prevention of diphtheria, it was announced by Dr. A. R. Dafoe.

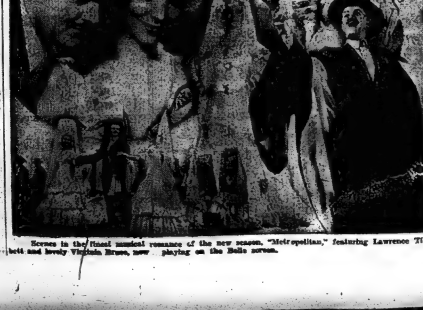
Although everything possible is being done to guard against sickness or disease in any form, Dr. Dafoe felt even there the risk was too great to leave them unprotected.

A series of three treatments was started in November and has been completed with no discomfort to the babies.

In connection with the treatment of the quintuplets by toxoid which toxoid has accomplished in Ontario, we hope to continue the present policy of distributing free toxoid for the vaccinating of Ontario children. . . Any interference with this form of health protection would quickly result in our losing many children from diphtheria in a very short time.

"Toxoid is no longer an experiment but is a method of disease prevention which has proven its worth and if by the provision of such simple means the Department of Health can cut down our death rate from this disease so considerably, it is our duty to do so, even though the cost runs in the neighborhood of $15,000 annually."

New York, Jan. 9 (CP)—To, with fame and fortune in your bosom-ness, says Prof. Howard W. Haggard of Yale University, you are six times a day instead of two or three.



He explained tests showed workers are more efficient the first three hours after eating.

Besides, he added, it isn't true your stomach needs a rest.

Washington, Jan. 9 (AP)—AAA is a household word in United States farms, but the new home will be taboo tonight. That's the White House.

The annual reception to the United States Supreme Court will be held there, then, for the fifteenth time, swept Roosevelt's farm plan away.

The six Justices who constituted the law suit are expected to attend but two of the dissenters will not. Justice and Mrs. Brandeis have consistently avoided formal social affairs in recent years. Justice Cardozo, a bachelor, shies away from them, too.

HEALTH and PSYCHOLOGY

By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D.

Famous Authority on Psychology

Copyright, 1935, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

If you have ever been to a nerve specialist, you have gone through the experience of having him shine a light in your eyes, to see how the pupils react; of being asked to place your feet close together and close your eyes, or of having him tap you with a little hammer just below the knee-cap. The doctor, in other words, was testing what are known as cranial nerve reflexes.

These cranial nerves—there are twelve of them—are very important. Any derangement of these nerves means cranial nerve disease, and that is a serious order.

Most of the nerves, of course, pass from the brain proper, the cerebrum, down into the spinal cord and out of the cord with the supply organs and parts of the body with motion, sensation, etc.

The first cranial nerve is the olfactory. It is the nerve of the sense of smell.

The second cranial nerve is the optic. This is the special nerve of sight.

The oculomotor is the third cranial nerve. As its name implies, its function has to do with movements of the eyeball.

The fourth cranial nerve is known as the trochlear. It runs to one of the muscles left out by the oculomotor nerves.

Next, the fifth cranial nerve, is the trigeminal. This is the largest of all nerves. The trigeminal supplies nerve energy for the eyeball and the tear gland, the mucous membrane lining of the eye and nose, the nose as well as the muscles and skin of the forehead, nose and eyebrow. There are also branches to the skin of the cheek and the temple, the upper teeth the mucous membrane lining the mouth and the pharynx. Another branch of the nerve, the external ears, to the lower jaw, to the muscles employed in chewing. The lingual nerve is a branch which endows the tongue with the sense of taste.

The sixth cranial nerve is the abducens. This runs to the external rectus muscle of the eyeball, one of the two muscles not supplied by the oculomotor nerve.

Facial is the name of the seventh cranial nerve. It supplies the ears and neck and has to go with the sense of hearing.

The glossopharyngeal, as its name suggests, runs to the tongue and pharynx. It also is concerned with taste.

The pneumogastric, the tenth cranial nerve, is also called the vagus because it wanders about the body so much.

The eleventh nerve is the spinal accessory. It runs to the muscles of the neck.

The last cranial nerve, the twelfth or hypoglossal, is the nerve by which we are enabled to move the tongue.

DR. BISCH'S DAILY DIET HINT

Many housewives are afraid of leaving food in a can after the can has been opened. There is no harm in such a practice, although in the case of acid fruit such standing may give the fruit a metallic taste.

However, an opened can containing food should always be kept in a cool place, well covered.

CARGILL W.M.S.

The Cargill W.M.S. held their monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Blake Pitman. Rev. Merrick conducted the installation of officers. Mrs. Simmons, the new Presidents opened the meeting with the hymnbook Psalm after which all joined in singing hymn 264. Mrs. I. R. Wallbridge, leader of Group 1, then took charge of the program. A New Year's prayer was read by Miss M. Jones. Luke, the fifteenth chapter was read and Mrs. Patterson gave a very appropriate reading. "The Little Black Sheet," Hymn number 494 was sung. The third chapter of the Study Book was capably given by Mrs. Patterson. Willett Pitman then favoured, with an instrumental selection. The treasurer, Miss Margaret Reynolds gave a very satisfactory report showing that the efforts of last year's work amounted to $86.54. A contest was given and the meeting closed with hymn 118 and prayer by Mrs (Rev.) Merrick. Lunch was served by the hostess and group leader.

A vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. Pitman for her kind hospitality.

SURVIVERS STEER BATTLE

CLEVELAND, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Freighter E. C. Pope tied up to her dock in Cleveland Harbor late yesterday, survivor of a battle with Lake Erie ice.

Although the ships showed effects of battering and crushing in the ice fields, the crew of 30 was in good spirits.

The E. C. Pope had been homebound off Peter Island since Sunday in a field ranging up to two feet in thickness. The U.S. coastguard cutter Tahoma freed her after a 36-hour battle.

Campbellford Maroons Out Of O.H.A. Race This Season

Unable to Secure More Than Six Players For Team

Manager Eddie Thomas of the local intermediate O.H.A. squad received official information from the Campbellford Maroons today to the effect that the Maroons were definitely out of O.H.A. competition for 1936. The reason given by Secretary Beatty of the Campbellford Club, was the lack of interest being shown in Campbellford by the players, the club only being able to sign six players to his roster up to last evening. What affect the move of the Maroons will have on group No. 1 in the Intermediate "A" series of the O.H.A. could not be foretold by Manager Thomas, as it only leaves Peterboro', Oshawa Cherlee and Belleville in the group with the Belleville outfit enjoying a "bye" rating at the present time.

What speaking of the incident, however, Manager Thomas would confirm the reports of Harry Ingram and Goalie Don Morton, both of whom reside in Stirling, only 13 miles north of Belleville were also the services of one other player from the north, "Trevelyan" Lessard of Trenton, at present playing hockey.

In the meantime Manager Thomas will make the facts of his situation before the O.H.A., pointing out that Belleville is now unable to combine an intermediate "A" group by playing with the strongest "boys" and "kids" only. What disposition will be made of the matter however, is not forthcoming, but that an authentic answer on the matter of playing Stirling players in Belleville will be received tomorrow, it is expected.

BILLY HUDSON LEADS SCORERS

Veteran of Pittsburgh Squad Has Hard Rapid Rise

WINDSOR, Ont., Jan. 9.—(CP)—The veteran Billy Hudson of Pittsburgh Shamrocks threatened today to take over the scoring leadership of the International Hockey League when only four points behind the pacemaker, Gordon Pettinger of Detroit Olympics, who now is playing for the National League Red Wings.

Scoring a goal and his assist last night as the Shamrocks dropped a 4-3 decision to Detroit Olympics, Hudson boosting his total to 23, compared with Pettinger's 27. Only Pittsburgh "Star tops all marksmen with 15 goals.

Tied for third place were Jack Martin of Syracuse Stars, champion scoring ace of last year, and Frank Daley of Cleveland, with 21 points, followed by Bill Thoeby of Buffalo, George Parsons and Eddie Burke of Syracuse and Nick Wasnie of Pittsburgh, 20 each.

HARVARD EAST FOR McGILL

Boston, Jan. 9 (CP)—McGill's red hockey horde today had completed a rout of the Dartmouth, Yale and Harvard squads. Their last pasting attack gave them a 3-0 shutout over Harvard here last night, just as it previously had turned back Dartmouth by 13-2 and Yale by 3-1.

Tommy Cain, crafty right-winger, scored two goals as the Canadians sped to their seventh straight triumph over the John Harvards.

VARSITY TRIMS YALE

New Haven, Conn., Jan. 9 (CP)—After scoring a brilliant victory over Yale Bulldogs, University of Toronto hockey squad today had two wins and two losses to show for its invasion of the United States.

The Varsity Blues fought out of a deep rock to score four goals in a wild, 15-minute outburst in the final period and trim Yale here last night, 4-3.

Their other victory was over the St. Nicholas Club of New York. Previously they had fallen before Harvard and Princeton.

BASKETBALL

Resuming the series of basketball games in the Intermediate series of the Ontario Amateur Basketball Association which thrilled local fans last winter, Belleville Y.M.C.A. basketballers will meet Queen's University in a scheduled game at the Collegiate gymnasium on Saturday evening. The game is the opening match of the season, and both squads will be on edge to win this all-important contest.

Although Coach Morden anticipates a close game on Saturday, he is not anxious for repetition of the games with Queen's, Royal Military College, and Kingston Y which were played here last year. But a single point separated the teams in each of these games, amply testifying to the equality of the four teams in the Eastern Ontario division. The test of the B.M.C. team in preventing through the playdowns to the Provincial finals hung on the contention that the league is one of the fastest in the Province.

A Thriller Expected

While many believe that hockey is the world's fastest sport, basketball fans are always open for an argument on this subject. For sustained and spirited action, the "bounce ball battler" game as it is played in Ontario can compete with any but an extraordinary game of hockey. For excitement, thrills, and speed, basketball is without a rival. Of the three games played on Saturday last year, two were decided by breath-taking basket, scored in the final seconds of play.

Coach Morden has selected a high-scoring aggregation to represent the city this season, and with the steady defensive work displayed by the veterans of last season, the team appears headed for a group championship. The acquisition of Bill Hall of the Sons of the Desert A.C. juniors, with the steady improvement of Jack Ward's "rookies" will make the Y.M.C.A. team a powerful threat in the league.

Although the Queen's game is somewhat of an unknown quantity, its standard power throughout the past few seasons guarantees a smart team for this year. The University outfit is being coached by Ralph Jack, well known rugby player, assisted by Jim Carruthers, physical director at Queen's University.

BUT HOW ABOUT MAN ON SECOND BASE?

"Dad" Sam Jones, veteran pitcher who retired recently, relays a "true story" he credits to Babe Ruth. It goes like this:

"We used to have a pitcher who was a wonder at that trick motion stuff in catching men off base. He was one of those fellows who could throw with either his left or right hand.

"It was a tough battle. Finally, in the ninth, this pitcher's club put over a run. Well, in the last of the ninth, the opposing club filled the bases with nobody out and the fans were shouting for the pitcher's blood.

"He strolled over to the bench as though he was getting a drink of water and quietly picked up another baseball. Then he went back to the box.

"Well, sir, that fellow took a little wind-up and with his right hand he threw to first base, catching the runner there asleep. With his left hand he tossed to third and caught that runner flat-footed, too. And I'll be durned if his motion wasn't so deceptive that the hitter swung, and struck out. Completed a play right there, that pitcher did. He won the ball game."

QUEENS READY TO ENTER LEAGUE

Statement is Made by Charles Hicks of Athletic Board

Kingston, Ont., Jan. 9.—(CP)—Charles Hicks, secretary of Queen's University Athletic Board, took exception today to a reported statement of Coach Irvin "Ace" Bailey of University of Toronto hockey team that reluctance on the part of Queen's and Toronto, Varsity or Western Ontario to join an international-intercollegiate hockey circuit was mitigated against his present formation.

Bailey was quoted as saying after his team last 7-4 to Princeton Monday night, Toronto and McGill were ready for the League.

"I am quite sure in making such a statement," said Mr. Hicks, "the Varsity Coach is not speaking with authority, for officials at Varsity and McGill are aware of the fact Queen's has been trying for several years to have the International League formed and only a few weeks ago T. A. McGinnis, chairman of Queen's Athletic Board, while in Boston, conferred with Harvard officials regarding the league."

CURRENT SPORT

DAY BY DAY

This evening over at Trenton the first game of O.H.A. hockey to be played in Harry Moore's village in two years will hold the eyes of those when Walter Gerow's Napanee intermediates move into town. As the situation now stands the Intermediate group embracing Trenton and Napanee each team can only expect to have two home games, owing to the fact, that a double schedule has been adopted, Frank "Duke" Smith of the Belleville Yacht and Athletic Club, has been appointed scouring to survey the old Bay of Quinte League and has his "sailors" plus the Picton Hockey Club ready for action. It is understood, that Trenton are ready and willing to join forces with Belleville and Picton in a proposed Bay of Quinte League, but for some unknown reason Napanee does not seem to shine up to the proposal as yet.

If Napanee and Trenton are headed up in a double schedule in the O.H.A., why not have the Yacht Club and Picton play a double schedule having the two different interspersed with a single schedule between all four teams? This would merely mean that Napanee, for instance, would greet Picton and with their O.H.A. double schedule with Trenton, while they could also play a single schedule with Belleville and Picton, thereby Napanee and Trenton and Napanee of two extra home games during the season. The Napanee and Trenton enterprises could count their O.H.A. double headers in with the proposed Bay of Quinte League, thereby not causing them to play any extra games except the two with the local "sailors" and Picton. The Bay of Quinte League has permission from S. K. "Shanty" Masters to use his Barrows Trophy to be given for the winners of the Bay of Quinte loop. The cup in question is now held by Trenton and is a fine silver trophy well worth competing for. As previously pointed out both Napanee and Napanee would benefit by having four extra games during the season, two with the Yacht Club and two with Picton.

President Jack Wilson of the Belleville Industrial Hockey League is a go-getter of the first school. Every John has at his disposal up for his loop and they will convene at the Arena Monday night, course President Wilson was forced to defer slightly from the usual industrial trend of teams, but he has Corby's, Belleville Rapeseed, Ameri-can Hardware, Bankers, T's Men's Club and St. Andrew's Men's Club lined up and ready for action. If any other clubs are interested and can make their way down to the Arena about 7.00 p.m. tonight, they might be included in the proposed schedule, that doubtlessly will be drafted.

Press dispatches from Eastern Ontario would lead one to believe, that Kmotty Lee is doing a land office business in the matter of selling the Ottawa Valley mentors, professional baseball. After the many varied experiences of the baseball moguls in the Valley loop for the past couple of seasons Lee should not be able to give them much information regarding the costs, etc. of pro ball. Then, of course, Kmotty gained a world of experience a few years ago in his connection with the Ottawa Pro. League, which many a young and promising amateur career was dashed on the hard rocks of inability to make the professional grade and eventually found themselves a ball player without a place to play.

Tomorrow evening all four clubs in group No. 1 in the intermediate O.H.A. "A" series, are scheduled to play with Oshawa at Campbellford and Belleville moving out to Peterboro', Manager Eddie Thomas signed Earl McDonald to a Maroon certificate yesterday and expects "Mac." to bolster his defence considerably. Earl played junior and intermediate hockey in Belleville in years past and always proved an outstanding player. He is attending Queen's in his final year of medicine. Jim Ethier will doubtless team up with McDonald, while Thos. "Derby" Jeffery will be back between the goal posts. As a starter in the Skipper Thomas has Pete and Carl Morgan flanking Cy Berridge, who's Harry Watson looked St. Louis and Jimmie McCuire will make up the second line to battle the Peter.

Due to the fact, that the local intermediates are playing in Peterboro, Friday evening, the K.M.C. of Belleville Junior group has been postponed 24 hours and will be played at the Arena on Saturday night. Manager Thomas is holding around for a couple of high class packsters from some where Prince Edward County to help bolster his home squad, and incidentally gave notice they are to be reckoned with their splendid showing against the crack Queen's Kingston team last week. Ross Barley of Wellington, will be one of the new additions, it is believed. On Saturday night also the local Y.M.C.A. intermediate "A" basketeers will make their initial bow to the fans at the Collegiate gymnasium with the speedy Queen's team as their opponents. Coach Ralph Morden's "Y" squad has been practising for the big blow-off on Saturday night and with the addition of four of last year's high-scoring Queen's juniors, the local intermediates should prove a formidable force in the E.O.A.A.A. in 1936. For those unfamiliar with Queen's competition under warm facilities, there is nothing to compare in the sport realm alongside of the cage game.

With five teams represented the local City League, a hockey loop that operates nearly a dozen years after regular skating hours, got away last night with Loblaws, London Lunch, North End (Station), the Herchimer Ave. and the Arena Mice all entered. There is an opening for one more team and persons interested should get in touch with Manager Gay of the Arena and proceed to have a representative at the Arena next Wednesday night, when the complete schedule will be drafted. In the meantime the loop will commence operations next Monday night, when Herchimer Ave. meets the London Lumbers, while on Wednesday night the North End clash with Loblaws. This league is for players who are not members of other local leagues, in other words the league for players, who play just for the fun of the game.

FROM EVERY CORNER OF THE WORLD

to the daily newspaper come flashing the engrossing incidents that are at this very moment making today's history. The whole atmosphere of the daily newspaper is comprehensive action—dealing with things of the moment that have just happened, or are about to happen.

When white paper leaves the printing presses in the daily newspaper office, it is no longer some inert material, but an active powerful force reaching the thousands who thirst for its contents.

Practically every Canadian family reads a daily newspaper. It is an essential part of daily life and without it all would feel a distinct loss—nothing can take its place.

On the newspaper's pages also are advertisements placed there by thoughtful, energetic and far-seeing merchants and producers. The best traders in Canada—the firms which grow in strength and prestige year after year—know that the daily newspaper is as necessary to them as their raw material. When the fight is hardest—they have often proved this—it pays to strengthen their newspaper lists.

Follow their good example!

Washington, Jan. 9 (CP)—As a pipe smoker, J. P. Morgan's decidedly unorthodox.

While United States Senate investigators talk of war and billions, Morgan keeps refilling the same pipe—his smoking procedure is ten billions into nicotine. They say it's bad for the heart—but one should change a pipe or let it go at that.

Moreover, the banker doesn't rub it against his nose to maintain the polish (on the pipe not his face).

Real his complicated tobacco contentment, a small cleave has, is something for an habitual smoker to envy. It is based on his heavy watch chain. When Morgan wants to reload he pushes a gadget and out comes a brief fall.

From another mechanism also attached to his chain, he produces a white wooden matches with red tops.

Stirling and District

Stirling—For th. third time pol- have attempt to break in- trance to the premises of Frank Bayley's Feed Store and on the two previous occasions, succeeding in getting into the building, they were prevented only by a particular change. Mr. Stanley Shoppe had some misfortune with his car one day this morning, notified the Provincial Police Department at Belleville. OPP. Sgts. Hamilton and Oak- also Special- ...gating and it is expected the guilty one will be brought to justice. An attempt to gain entrance was made on Monday evening during the time the hockey match was being played. Entrance was gained by breaking a pane of glass in the back window. Finger- footprints in the newly broken glass were used by detectives to identify the culprit, but the attempt was unsuccessful. Mr. Shoppe admits that he hasn't lost very much in the past attempts and feels that the publication is a precautionary measure for the benefit of all local merchants.

Week of Prayer to be Observed in Stirling Churches

The first service in observance of the week of prayer was very well attended, as the series opened in St. Andrew's Presbyterian church on Monday evening. The service was conducted by Rev. J. A. Kofland, assisted by Rev. R. J. Rowland of St. Paul's United Church. Rev. A. S. McConnell of St. John' Anglican Church gave the address of the evening, delivering an inspiring message on the theme "The Worthiness Before God". On Wednesday the service, was held in St. John's Anglican Church. The ministers of each church taking part in the union services.

Carmel Young People's Society met in the church for the regular weekly meeting on Friday evening. Miss Gladys Fryer officiated and the meeting opened with a song service after which Mr. Bird led in prayer. The Scripture lesson in the 13th chapter of Matthew was read by Mr. Russell Fryer. Miss Myrtle Haarman then rendered a pleasing piano solo. Mrs. Bird Fryer gave the address of the evening dealing with the "Life of Matthew the Practical Follower of Christ". The report of the previous meeting was heard by Miss Dorothy Holden. Interesting readings given by William Reynolds and Bert Haarman were greatly enjoyed. The final number on the program was a trio sweet duet- ed by Miss Dorothy Holden. The attendance recording system revealed an attendance of thirty. The meeting was closed with the Mizpah Benediction.

Good Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman
(Copyright, 1935, King Features Syndicate, Inc., World Rights Reserved.)

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Our sorority is planning a formal ball the latter part of the month. The members of the sorority will share all expenses, and are to invite our own escorts. Just what things will be done? Would we approach the boy in the same manner if we saw him in person or by, would I letter or telephone?

2. We find that we—the sorority—cannot afford flowers for our girls, so would it be proper to mention this fact to our escorts or would it be too much like asking for a corsage? Or is not what we could we approach him on the subject?

3. Another one of our members is in doubt about the appropriate it would be to ask a friend whom she as only met three times.

Sorority Sisters.

1. The very best way for the members of your sorority to give this kind of invitation is by sending notes of invitation to the men whom they are inviting.

2. It would be very poor form, indeed, for you to make any mention of flowers. If you can't afford corsages, that's that—it isn't necessary to wear corsages. And the choice of sending corsages should be left with the young men, whom you are asking to be your escorts; they will plan to send flowers, as merely a form of appreciation for the kind invitation. And if they are not thoughtful about it they are not thoughtful, that fact will have to be accepted, graciously. But there should be no "hinting" about the sending of corsages.

3. Whether or not a girl should invite a man whom she has met only three times depends on the three times they may have been just casual meeting or they may have an definitely established a pleasant friendship that such an invitation would be thoroughly appropriate. The girl herself would have to decide about this. Yes it is be too much like asking for a corsage? Or is not what we could we approach him on the subject?

STIRLING OPENS YEAR WITH WIN

Defeat Marmora 4-3 in Open-ing Game of Centre O. Group

Stirling, January 7—(Special)—Well over 300 hockey enthusiasts were sold for the opening game of the season at Stirling arena on Monday night, when a large crowd of enthusiastic supporters gathered to see the newly formed Stirling team score a 4-3 victory over Marmora in the first game of the season. The fans were more than satisfied with the showing of the Stirling boys many of whom have just recently graduated from junior league hockey. The Marmora team were in there trying all the time and gave the best united to them on several of their visits. In the final period they had a decided edge on the play but failed to beat Morton in the Stirling nets who was outstanding star of the evening. Stirling was minus the services of their first few minutes of play. Starting at top speed they had several rushes on Oakley in the Marmora nets before the visitors got thoroughly organized. After about seven minutes of play Robinson, who turned in a great game for Stirling, scored the first counter on a shot from the blue line. Marmora began to settled down and for the next few minutes it was end to all at the Stirling end with the visitors pressing hard. Stirling failed to get away and started the defence to make the second goal. Marmora then turned on more steam and with many brilliant rushes and combination plays kept Morton busy but their efforts were finally rewarded when Stewart scored the second goal in front of the Stirling goal by Cannon. The period ended with Marmora pressing hard for the tying goal, featuring many fine combination plays, and individual rushes, but they just couldn't beat Morton. The 2nd period found the play about even again with Ingram's rushes being combined by the Marmora stars of Smith the fast skating defense start of the Marmora crew, who went through several times only to be outgunned by Morton. Several of Wallace's shots also found themselves deep in the pads of Oakley. The period ended with the score still 2-1 for Stirling.

Last Period.

Marmora set a similar pace from the outset of the final period. Morton performed Marmora with a rush from every angle keeping the play always on the Stirling end of the rink. Ingram and Wallace finally broke away for one of their speedy rushes and Cleary when Ingram gave it to Wally Wright in the mouth of the goal. He had no chance on that one. From the face of the Stirling defence came a rush when after going through the entire Stirling defence Ingram drove a shot from Hewitt right in front of the net. With the whole Marmora line following the Ingram rush Cleary and Wallace finally broke through to make it 4-1 for Stirling. Marmora sent out five forwards in the last minute in an effort to get back in the game and they outplayed the Stirling team to some what slow degree at Morton who always happened to be in the right place. Stirling were given one to make it 4-3 and the game with Stirling standing down the line at every opportunity. It was fast clean hockey with not a penalty in either team throughout the entire game.

Between the second and third periods Mr. Tom Ward president of the Stirling club called the gathering to order and the draw for the lucky door prize was made by Mrs. Reeve W. C. West, assisted by Mr. T. W. Solmes. The 1st prize a five dollar gold piece was won by Mr. Les Gendron of the Bell Telephone staff from Belleville. The 2nd key donated by Mr. Ward, was won by Raymond Clark of Stirling. The 3rd pair of gloves was won by Mr. Russel Cassidy of Springbrook. This prize was donated by Mr. Earl Leary. The 4th prize a hundred cigarettes donated by Mr. T. W. Solmes was won by Mr. Lorne Brooks, manager of the Glen Ross Hockey Club.

The Stirling Band was in attendance and the opening ceremony carried through in a manner fitting such an occasion. Among those present on the ice before the start of the game lined up behind the both teams who were introduced to the fans individually by Mr. Ward were the Stirling Club executive, members of the Club executive, and Mr. R. W. Meddleton, President of the Stirling club who kicked off the puck to mark the opening of the season. Stirling has been without a senior team for a number of years but the fans portrayed their eagerness to support a team by their large presence at the opening game.

The Line-Up

Marmora—G, Oakley, goal; Smith and Shannon, defence; Hamming, Hewitt and T. Shannon, Campion, Johnson Stewart and Neal.

Stirling—Morton, goal; Mott an Ingram, Defence; Wallace, C Fraser, and Robinson; Wright, Rogers, A. Fraser and Hagerman.

Referee—McWilliams of Marmora.

MODERN RIP VAN WINKLE STILL SLEEPS.—The victim of a mysterious disease, William H. Lord, 82, has begun the tenth year of a lifetime sleep. His physician stated Lord has all the appearances of a hypnotized man as his stolidity in his chair, unaffected by the light or any other stimuli except the voice of his devoted wife. Even during a gay New Year's family reunion, in which his seven children and 15 grandchildren gathered about him, he slumbered at the head of a table spread with holiday cheer. Here, 1926, Lord, then a weaver, fell into a long sleep. Doctors called it catalepsy. Since that time they shook their heads sleep; doctors tried to arouse him, but to no avail. Since then he has been bedridden, once in 1930 and once in 1933, only to fall asleep again as soundly as ever. His wife ministers to him as to a helpless child. At her command, he reaches for a glass of water or for food. No other person, not even his children, receives any response from him. Noted brain specialists will study this strange case. The emaciated "sleeping beauty" victim is shown seated at the head of the table "presiding" over the family reunion.

Little Benny's Note Book

We was railing breakfast and me said to pop I wouldn't really have to go down town today but there's a little shopping I could do at a pinch and it would give me a good chance to have lunch at the Bohemia Tea Room and list that marvellous yorick cream read my palm and tea leaves again. They say the ofterer you go to her the more uncanny her insight seems to be. For instants the first time Sally Jardin consulted her she told her practically everything she had ever done.

Little do you aspect it but you have as to number one sykik in our very mist, pop said. I refer to myself in person and no tea room. I don't know why I never told you that I have sykik powers. I suppose I didn't want to embarrass you but for years I've known all kinds of things about you that I've never mentioned, he said, and ma said, Now William you have not.

The proof of the pudding is in the spilling, so I'll give you a few examples, pop said. At the age of 13 months, when you were learning to walk, you tripped and almost broke your left ankle, he said and ma said I did nothing of the kind. If you're wrong before you start.

You cant remember back to the age of 13 months, so how do you know I'm wrong? pop said, he said. For the simple reason that I do so you know you're rite?

Because I'm sykick, pop said. I can see into the future too: You're going to suddenly ascend to the throne of the Darkest of Cleopatras, he said, and ma said, William Potts dont you dare suggest such a grisly thing or I'll smear rite in the middle of my speech by the very power of auto fuggestion, and I'm down to speak at tomorrow's meeting.

I cant help it if I'm sykick, pop said.

And he went to his office and ma called up some lady on the telefone and said she wouldn't be able to speak at the meeting.

No More Piles

Get Quick, Pleasant Relief

Probably not one person in ten knows the cause of piles is inadequate circulation of blood in the lower bowel.

That is the scientific truth about piles and is the real reason why ointments and suppositories do not give more than temporary relief—they do not remove the cause.

Your piles can not be relieved until you have restored the blood-flow which causes them. That is why an internal remedy like HEM-ROID should be used.

HEM-ROID is the prescription of Dr. F. E. Mitchell, who has made many lives happier by correcting the cause. His medicine succeeds because it stimulates the kidneys to increase the pressure of blood in the veins of the lower bowel, helps it to heal and restore the sore, tender parts.

So if you have failed to get the relief you want from your sore, painful piles, and would like to give HEM-ROID a trial, you have our positive guarantee your money back if just one bottle of this prescription does not give pleasing results. J. S. McKeown & Son or any druggist can supply you with the genuine HEM-ROID.

By Anne Forester

As a stone dropped into a quiet pool reaches by ever-widening ripples some distant shore, so did the advent of Captain Austin Deering just at this time affect the placid stream of Otherwood society. Pauline Slade, spitchcard operator at the National Bloom "went with" Cecie Shops, clerk at the Otherwood Hotel where Captain Deering took up his abode. Between them no detail of the distinguished visitor went unheralded. Deering's collection of antique snuff bottles, his gold-mounted dressing gown of heavy Chinese satin, his sandalwood chests, his dragon-crested hair brushes, even the Rajah of India." Cecie had been quoted as saying dramatically on occasion, "don't wear no more silk underwear than him!"

Otherwood had not had such a thrill in days. And of it all, perhaps the greatest item of local interest was the newcomer's very evident attraction for Barbara Therrold herself.

Barbara, be it said, had started the thing more in the nature of a counter-irritant than anything else. It had been something of a small triumph, after the sting of the past months, to be able to flaunt this foreign fop, to stand in the center of her old group again, her dark head lipped insolently back, a spiral of smoke issuing from her deliciously rouged mouth, helping the Captain cluster in an admiring audience his priceless bits of amber and white jade, listening to him talk with that slightly British accent that was balm to her sore young soul. Austin Deering was different from the vogue. And, as was right, he was the acknowledged property of Barbara Therrold.

The faint touch of audacity in his manner, his trick of looking her deep in the eyes, his quite authoritative air of complacence were just enough different from the men she had known to intrigue her and flatter her; had as he sure knowledge of her present state of mind made it a simple matter to inform her wife-to-be that here, in this interesting and adventurous stranger was someone who understood her—and gave her the homage that was her due.

Barbara was just that young.

X X X

Slowly Jeffry Therrold crossed the entrance hall of his home and wearily climbed the stairs. Passing with unseeing eyes the parchment of ragged copper-colored chrysanthemums by the door, the lovely if often palming of his father over the stairway, the beckoning fingers of the fire in the library.

All the way home from the Abbey Inn in the car he had been troubled by the necessity for this encounter with Barbara. So much of his life spend and spoils of time had gone out of her lately; so spiritless and nebulous she had been toward herself—seeming to take the stand that it was he, and not her own childish attitude toward a rather unfortunate circumstance, which was responsible for her unhappy state of mind. Never before, even in her most unreasonable humors, had Babs kept up her defenses against him for so long. Always, as a child, she had been tenderly repentant; deliciously and joyously contrite when convinced she was in the wrong. She would come to him now, thought the man; she must come to it at once. It was wearing him down, wearing all of the family down. It was ridiculous and undignified and stupid!

As for this nonsense about Austin Deering, he goaded himself furiously. It was nonsense; pure and simple, nothing more. Barbara had a level head, for all her spoiled kid ways. She'd see, we took—and had met men before. Deering was supposed to be attractive to women, though he was hanged if he could see why; Jeffry admitted the man to be a fluent and agreeable host, a magnetic teller of interesting tales..... But—but all of the stories about him were true, if Babs was letting herself in for unpleasant gossip, then it was time to call a halt. Even a business affiliation had its limits. Damn it, if this man had a wife in Shanghai why was he hanging around Barbara Therrold?

Jeffry, it may be seen, was in no mood for the quiet talk he had promised himself to have, and unfortunately for his aims, Barbara herself had reached a state of mind which was as tinder to his low. The party this afternoon had been more than a usual success. More than ever she was convinced, in the light of Captain Deering's whispered jibes, that Otherwood, as a scene for her cannibalities, was an amusing and impossible hole! Nobody, Barbara told herself, could get anywhere here—no one at her age had the right to tell her what to do—

Jeffry Therrold, standing on the threshold, regarded his sister with unsmiling, brooding gaze. Then slowly he came into the room.

"Mind if I smoke a cigarette?" The very aloofness of his tone brought back her grievance.

"Not at all," Barbara said; and flung herself back on the couch, her lovely arms raised and clasped behind her head, defiance in every line of her lean young figure. She would stand no more scoldings—no more criticism she vowed to herself bodily.... if Jeff had really cared for her at all he'd have tried to make peace weeks ago, instead of—

Barbara's lips quivered—but her chin set with mutinous scorn. If he would say he was sorry about that horrible Shanghai Rose—if he'd talk his way he used to talk—

But Jeffry Therrold didn't. He talked—but it was with his eyes fixed sternly on the details of the room. The chaise-lounge, the rare wood desk.... the canopied bed, satin and pale! All part of Barbara, as were its crystal toilet-articles on the dressing table, the clothings on the delicately tinted walls. All part of the softness and beauty which he, Jeff Therrold, held up as a contrast to the sordid mess of his distressing friendship she had formed for a man reputed to be a scoundrel and a knave.

True, Jeff admitted, he had himself introduced Captain Deering to Babs. But surely she had more sense than to let a man like that cause such trouble....

"Cecie?" With a spring, Barbara was off the couch, standing before him all the pent-up fury, all the exaggerated grievances or the past months glaring from her eyes. He should talk to her of gossip, of the intrigue, of adventurers!.... He the proud author of the family, and mention scandal and riff-raff and knaves....

Oh, yes, Barbara knew that Captain Deering had been married! Her laugh was a tribunal of vindication. He had told her—but what of it? That was all over now. And besides, what business was it of his, Jeffry Therrold? He with his cabaret girl friend, that unspeakable woman whom Harvey had dragged into their lives....

At the light in her brother's eyes Barbara faltered, her glance haughtily childish in its defiance. Then, bent on lashing herself against the thick wall of his silence; saying cruel things, unforgivable things, things she did not really believe herself. Saying them from out of the depths of her wretched, rebellious heart—For months now Barbara had been goading herself to believe that because Jeff had not liked with her in this matter of Harvey's wife she must one day get even with Jeff. Her very love for him and dependence on his approval of herself seemed pivoting on this event that had come between them. It had become an obsession—an obsession of a spoiled, undisciplined child; building up in her mind a ridiculous, exaggerated case against her family, against her own mode of life.

Just when she was beginning to believe it again, had told herself now, between sobs. Just when she was going to live down the horrible summer; just when people were commencing to forget about that Shanghai Rose.....

"Shanghai Rose!" she flung it at him mockingly. "Shanghai—"

"Stop it! Do you hear me, Babs! Stop, it this instant!"

But even as he grasped her slim shoulders Jeffry Therrold let his hands drop helplessly to his sides. He had a feeling of futility; the same sort of feeling when as a child Babs had lain sobbing on the floor, refusing to get up, to be comforted until the storm had worn itself out. A feeling of impotence; and a sick sort of pity. She was so young, so tired, so without standards.... poor little Babs!

Yet, almost without his own volition, born of the confusion of his mind, his voice took on an unfortunate edge of his old commanding tone; even while his heart ached to the core.

"In the meantime," he finished, turning slowly, sorrowfully in the door, "I forbid your having anything to do with this man Deering!"

Barbara, rising on one elbow, surveyed the white parcel of the door through which he had passed with an expression utterly hostile and determined. A faintly triumphant, faintly frightened look, in the drowned black eyes, blazing in her face. Barbara had found a way to get even.

CHAPTER 38.

December.

Frost and snows from little chimney pots and big. Rain-dimpled puddles and biting small winds, that set the lilac bushes thrashing by the gate and stripped the last of the rose bushes to a shivering nakedness which somehow, more than any other factor, seemed to bring home the idea that winter was finally here.

The river below Rose's cottage, frozen to a solid, opaque sheet of silver, was no longer calm and unruffled under the whispering lace of the willow trees bordering its banks. It was alive with the shrill shouts of skaters from the village. With children, bundled mummy-like against the cold in fluffy mitts and mufflers, screaming in excited delight.

Estelle laughing opulently out of her new Russian blouse, sat crouched over her tea-cup in a corner of Rose's kitchen, thrilling the small Kitten with startling, if unauthentic fairy-tales, all told in a lisping, baby voice. Kitten regarded her with grave attention; clasping to her side the person of her pet doll Mabel—a forbidden liberty—and occasionally interrupting the recital with a shrill, astrusely, or carried head down and feet aloft in disgust.

"Never you mind, Miss Therrold," Lottie had said earlier in the evening. "Trains always goin' to be late, that baby'll get her chance. Why—come this time next year, who knows but you will'll both be rich! There's real money in the beauty business—and when that lotion o'yours begins to sell—say! The women'll fight over it—you know how beauty shops are. It's like little whimsies like that—"

"I don't know, Lottie," Rose mused in her soft voice. "I don't know that I'd want that—being rich, I mean. If I could just be sure that I could earn enough always to keep Kitten safe.... to keep her from heartaches—children have them, too—" she added, as though to herself.

"You bet kids get heartaches!" Lottie's smiling pink face sobered oddly. "I remember when I, was seven.... they harrupped me for something I never did! I didn't mind the licking I was used to lickin', in that time. But the heartache I got over the injustice of the things —Say, I can remember that even now!"

"YOU PRESS the BUTTON.."

About forty years ago the Eastman Kodak Co. originated their famous slogan "You Press the Button — We do the Rest" to show how easy it was to take a Kodak picture. To them we gratefully acknowledge the inspiration for this advertisement.

"WE DO THE REST!"

No wasted time when you toss your advertising problems in our lap. No wasted effort, no misspent advertising dollars! No grief, no worrying, no uncertainty. From rough idea to finished proof the entire responsibility is ours. You simply "press the button"—we do the rest.

You press the button and our plant begins to move. Layout service, copy suggestions, typography advice are all furnished free. Every facility of our skilled organization—and of the Meyer Both Advertising Service which we buy for you — is yours for the asking, today, tomorrow, next week and all the year.

You press the button—we do the rest! From front office to carrier boy our staff is yours. Geared for service, the Daily Ontario Intelligencer is a modern, completely equipped newspaper, ready at all times to produce advertising that will sell more goods at less cost to you!

FR. COUGHLIN TO MEET ROOSEVELT

Radio Priest of Detroit Has Talk With President

Washington, Jan. 9—(AP)—President Roosevelt talked with Father Coughlin of Detroit in a 30-minute visit, described by the priest as "entirely social".

"I happened to be here on business," Father Coughlin said, "and I paid a courtesy visit to the President."

He added he was going to establish a National newspaper and was looking for the best possible editorial writers.

Asked if he was going to support President Roosevelt in the next campaign, Father Coughlin said that was not discussed.

"We just avoided that subject," he added.

FIX CROSSING AT SHARBOT LAKE

Government Waging War to Eliminate Level Crossings

OTTAWA, Jan. 9.—(CP)—Waging war on railway level crossings which have been taking an increasing annual toll of human lives, a total of $1,400,000 approximately was committed in 1935 for remedial works across Canada. It was estimated. The sum represents an increase of about $500,000 over 1934 commitments.

Twenty-five per cent of the $1,400,000 has been actually expended. The balance will be spent in 1936 as work on the authorized projects is carried out.

Showing amounts of Dominion commitments, ranging from 40 to 100 per cent. of the total cost in different instances, major works authorized by the Governor-in-Council in the last five months include:

Plain Road, Halton County, on C.N.R., $147,000; Morrisburg, Ont., on C.N.R., $105,000; Sharbot Lake, Ont., on C.P.R., $9,200; Paquier, Ont., on Kapuskasing subdivision of C.P.R. $3,135.

REACHES CENTURY MARK—Anthime Bigras of Ottawa (shown above shovelling snow) celebrated his one hundredth birthday anniversary on Jan. 7. He declares he owes his long life to the fact that he never smoked nor drank any alcoholic beverage during his lifetime. Married 71 years, Mr. Bigras is in excellent health.

INFORMAL POSES OF JUSTICE ROBERTS

WORLD'S CUTEST TEDDY BEARS—The cuteness of the Australian Koal bear has long been appreciated by toy manufacturers who modelled the "teddy bear" after them. They are considered the world's most lovable animals. The mother and son pictured here, in Melbourne, present a charming picture. The young lad is called "Joey," and always arrive singly. There are no twins in Koalaland.

OLYMPIC SKATERS—Boys and girls of the U.S. Olympic ice skating teams bow in New York before getting ready to sail.

KILLER OF AAA PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATE?—U.S. supreme court's six to three decision nullifying the Agricultural Administration Act, with Justice Owen J. Roberts, a Republican, writing and reading the opinion of the majority, had one political aftermath, according to observers, and that was the casting of Roberts into the public eye as a possible Republican party presidential candidate. Justice Roberts, 60 years old, has been on the U.S. supreme court bench since June, 1930. A native of Philadelphia, he taught law at the University of Pennsylvania for 20 years. He was appointed a special deputy attorney-general to represent the U.S. government in prosecution of cases arising under Espionage Act, and was named by President Coolidge as one of two attorneys to prosecute the "oil cases" in 1924. Horticulture is one of Justice Roberts' hobbies.

LOOKING BACKWARD

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

JAN. 9TH, 1916

Mr. William M. Haslett of Buffalo, Sask., formerly of Spring-brook, North Hastings, spent a few days recently with his cousins, Mr. Joseph Templeton and Miss Thompson in this city. Mr. Haslett and his brothers, who are located near him, are among the many Hastings County boys who have achieved success in our Northwest.

The "Type Pickers" of the Intelligencer following Cornet having and herewith challenge the "Smith Talkers" of the Deacon Shirt Factory to play the annual game of "shinny" at the ice supportus of this city at as early a date as these famous shirt makers can get satisfactory shirts made to wear upon this most suspicious occasion. In his time the rule of late years to play strenuous games of this winter sport annually and although the Deacons have been successful in the majority of games, the "Type Pickers" intend to "David Harum" them this year if the Deacons have the necessary nerve to come out upon the ice. The "Type Pickers" insist that no "professionals" shall be "roped in", only real "Type Pickers" and "Smith Talkers" to color the contest.

30 Years Ago

JAN. 9TH, 1906.

His Worship Mayor Charles N. Gilmour once more to-day gave proof that he is a hustler by making a multitude of good appointments in his inaugural message which was presented to the city council to-day.

Since the first day of the New Year every train has brought students to some one of our three colleges. This year will be a record one.

Mr. J. B. Hamilton drove across the bay to-day from Massassaga. Mr. W. O. Alexander and crowd of the ice to-day.

Mr. Thomas Hasley is now the proprietor of the Albion Hotel.

It seemed like old times in the rink last night when the Belleville and Port Hope juniors were playing hockey and a number of enthusiastic were "rooting" for the home team. Almost the same cry think of the good old days when Belleville had a team which could show its heels to the best of them. Will we ever have another like it? In the words of the poet you can search me, but they do say that there will be a new rink and a cracking good team in this city next winter. However, the game last night was fast and furious. With only a few minutes to play the score stood 5 to 4 in favor of Belleville and it looked sure for us, but you can never tell. A swift Port Hope forward followed up a long shot and scored, making the score a tie. Ten minutes remained and then two five minute ends. In the first five minutes there was no scoring; in the second five minutes Belleville shot a goal and won as hard a game and exciting match as ever was seen on local ice. The following comprised the Belleville team: Pirie, Pepper, Connelly, Weiler, Burks, Alford.

The market train on the Central Junction had a hard time to get back to the depot this morning; the snow and ice on the track impeded its progress.

The members of the canvassing committee in connection with the re-building of Bridge Street Methodist Church are meeting with a hearty reception from all denominations. The subscription list is growing and the hope of the trustees to build a church free from encumbrance has a good chance of being realized.

The Bridge Street Church congregation will hold services on Sunday in the Opera House. The pastor, the Rev. J. R. Clarkson, will preach. Morning subject, "Homiletics"; evening subject, "Shattered." The Sunday School will meet in the Oddfellows' Hall, Robertson Block, Front Street.

New York, Jan. 9 (CP)—A modern "phantom of the Opera" today plagued engineers in charge of demolitions from the "Normandie."

The "phantom" haunted the ocean liner Saturday when Mignone was being sent out over the air from the venerable Metropolitan Opera House. Eerie clicks and growls entered a three-protected cable connecting the liner with the broadcasting studio.

Perplexed engineers were grimly to have the "phantom" laid before the opera ever took on the air this Saturday.

NEWEST LINDBERGHS HAVE FOUND SANCTUARY IN WALES—It is at this house at St. Bride's, near Christ, Wales, that Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, his wife and their son Jon, are now living. The house was formerly occupied by Capt. Aubrey Morgan, brother-in-law of Anne Lindbergh. A strange aspect of the case is the fact that the cameramen and reporters who Lindbergh found so ubiquitous in the United States, are still with him in Wales. They have laid a veritable siege to the old mansion.

GIRL INDIRECT CAUSE OF DEATHS POLICE ASSERT

Brothers Held For Murder After Statement is Obtained

IMPROPER ADVANCES

Drinking Party Takes Place in Cabin Before Fatalities

Kenora, Ont., Jan. 10 (CP) — Donald Bannister, 30, arrested last night on a charge of murdering Phillip Lazan, appeared in court today and remanded for eight days. Lazan died under mysterious circumstances and the charge. He was committed until Monday.

Arthur Bannister, 32, a lumberjack, brother of Donald, was arrested yesterday afternoon and charged with the murder of Wednesday on the same charge. A date, Frances, 18, is held as a material witness.

Monchet, N.B., Jan. 10 (CP)—Two youthful brothers were in custody today on murder charge and a girl of the same age was held as a material witness as Royal Canadian Mounted Police announced solution of the deaths of Phillip Lazan, 30, found dead with his and their two children in his squatter's shack at Pacific Junction, 13 miles from here.

Arthur Bannister, who was charged at 8 p.m. Wednesday with murdering Lazan, was joined in Moncton Jail by his 20-year-old brother, Donald, charged with murdering Lazan last night. Their sister, Frances, said by police to have been the instigator of the crime, was held in custody without charge but under guard in a hotel room.

Police said the statement showed the brothers had been drinking with Lazan when they left him "made advances" to their sister. In the ensuing fight a stick of firewood was hurled by Lazan just as the older woman came out of her room. It struck and killed Lazan.

The stick was picked up by Arthur, police said, who hurled it at Lake. The squatter collapsed, the settling on all hands and setting fire to the cabin. As the flames consumed the building the pair—Bannister's 3-year-old son, Bannister's wife and Mrs. Ring—escaped from the burning cabin. Lazan had already been left in the building.

A silence found by police near the ruins was believed to be that of a dog he loaned to Arthur but in reality, said police, it was dropped by Daniel.

Just Eighteen Minutes Required to Electrocute The Four

ALL YOUNG MEN

Convicted of Shooting a Patrolman a Year Ago in N. Y.

Ossining, N.Y., Jan. 10 (AP)—Just 18 minutes were required to put to death in the electric chair four young slayers of a New York police-man—grim aftermath to a crime caseless into which they were led by a gang leader.

Newman Raymond, 21, Irving Akselrad, 20, Emanuel Harmon, Sr., Alexandria, Va., contractor and former steamfitter, was the first of the four to die.

While the elder Raymond, who in 1934 was a Democratic candidate for mayor of New York, stood in the prison death house, Akselrad, Harmon and mute from grief, the son walked slowly to the chair. The calmest of the quartet, he calmly seated himself and was electrocuted.

A five-minute intervals, the state then exacted the extreme penalty of Amerigo Angelini, 22, Fellows Children, and the head. Members of they don't compete with the fire which took the lives of three children in the nurses' home on the second floor below.

Japan's Equality Demand Considered Before Parley

By LLOYD LEHRBAS

London, Jan. 10 (AP)—Reliable sources reported today Great Britain and the United States had reached an agreement to return to consideration of Japan's demand for equality at the International Naval Conference.

Agreement to Consider.

The British arranged to communicate with the French and Italian delegations late in the day but authoritative quarters indicated an agreement of all delegations already was seemed.

It was learned on good authority that the Japanese are pressing new details of their parity proposals which other delegations previously had declared but had been unable to obtain.

Later, the British officially requested the French to return to discussion of Japan's proposed "common limit" of fleet tonnage.

A French spokesman said: "We have not yet received any approval, but we will do so." He emphasized France remains interested in its opposition to all ratio systems.

Tokyo, Jan. 10 (AP)—Japan's cabinet discussed today the decision of the London Naval Conference, blocked by the controversy over Tokyo's demands for fleet equality, and heard Premier Minister Koreikyo Takahashi declare the London parley "doomed."

Foreign Minister Koki Hirota reported to the cabinet London developments of his colleagues.

Big Power Parley.

London, Jan. 10 (CP) — Japan's withdrawal from the International Naval Conference, now accepted as inevitable, will not be allowed to end the parley it was indicated in British circles today.

From a five-power conference it will be turned into a six-power conference, losing Japan but gaining Germany and Soviet Russia, these circles said.

The move is regarded both as an effort to restore the prestige of the conference, deadlocked by Japanese insistence on parity, and as a move to keep Japan Great Britain will move closer to the Soviet Union for support to increasing Japanese strength in the Far East.

Tariff Reduction to 15 P.C. On All Cars Urged by Importers

A. O. Thorne Says This Would Allow Canadians More Than U. S. Dealers

HEALTHY RIVALRY

Ottawa, Jan. 10 (CP)—Reduction of motor car tariff rates to 15 per cent on all cars was proposed before the Tariff Board by A. O. Thorne, representing the Canadian Importers Association.

Such a rate of duty, Mr. Thorne said, would allow Canadian manufacturers to charge $100 more a car than American manufacturers, but would mean a lower price to the Canadian public due to healthy competition with the United States. It would mean an increased sale of cars and more employment in the servicing trade.

When Thorne submitted a brief, he was at once challenged by E. G. Long, counsel for the Canadian Motor Industries Association, to say what companies he represented. He had instructions from the Nash and Auburn Motor Companies.

Present Tariff Embargo.

In the last few years Canadian motor car manufacturers have had protection of a fixed value for duty on imported cars rather than duty amounted to an embargo. Behind this protection they had increased their prices to Canadian purchasers, while prices of cars in the United States were reduced. Canadian automobile prices had also been increased at a time when prices of other commodities were slowly coming down.

In attempting to submit a schedule of comparative automobile prices in Canada and the United States, Mr. Thorne was at once checked by manufacturers who claimed his figures were "not accurate."

"At any rate," said Chairman Gen. H. Sedgewick, "Mr. Thorne's greatest opposition lies in the fact that prices raised in Canada and reduced in the United States will not be denied."

Chairman Sedgewick said manufacturers could not complain of others being confused by comparative prices in Canada and the United States when the prices quoted by manufacturers themselves "are not clear" and when no cars were sold at those prices. He was referring to the practice in the United States of quoting factory prices which Canadians considered had fallows in their comparisons.

Bombing Intentional Says Newspaperman

Halifax, Jan. 10 (CP)—Italian bombing of Red Cross units in Ethiopia was deliberate, according to Robinson Macdonald, Halifax newspaper correspondent, who arrived here today on his way home after a year in Ethiopia.

"It was tested in the yard of the Italian Hospital at Desarn," Macdonald said "and nothing could show a plainer red cross or more clearly the bombing their view of the ground. Then they bombed the hospital because they saw the red cross, not because they didn't."

HOPE IS FADING FOR HAUPTMANN

Court of Pardons Will Meet at Executive Office Not Trenton

Trenton, N.J., Jan. 10 (AP)—The last hope of Bruno Richard Hauptmann to make a personal appearance before the Court of pardons faded today when Governor Harold G. Hoffman's office announced the court would not meet at the state prison.

The Governor, through William S. Conklin, his press aide, said the court would meet at the office at 10 a.m., to consider Hauptmann's plea for clemency, would meet as usual at executive offices.

A meeting at state prison would have been without precedent but Governor Hoffman's delay in announcement where the court would be held been taken by some as an indication he hoped for a last minute statement from the condemned convict of the Lindbergh kidnap-murder.

17-YEAR OLD BOY RESCUES MOTHER

Made Two Trips Into Burning Home Before Bringing Her Out

Chatham, Jan. 10 (CP)—If Mrs. Elsie Davidson, 40 years old, recovers from the burns she suffered when one old she was pursing into her kitchen stove exploded and destroyed her home, she will owe her life to her 17-year old son, Angus.

Mrs. Davidson, wife of Henry Davidson, treasurer of East Tilbury township, was in a hospital here today seriously ill after her son had ventured into their burning home three times before he finally found her unconscious in the smoke and fire, and carried her outside.

Henry Davidson and his son, Angus were in the barn doing the chores last evening when the two younger children, Margaret, 10, and Bob, 12, came out and told them the kitchen was on fire. The flames spread swiftly. With Mrs. Davidson inside unable to escape.

Angus entered the house twice and was forced to come out without finding his mother. A third time, his hair singed, his arms and face scorched, he entered. He found the old lady "brought her away from the flames."

Coroner is Dissatisfied With Some Verdicts

Smith's Falls, Ont., Jan. 10 (CP)—Dissatisfaction with some verdicts returned at recent inquests is voiced by Coroner Dr. C. L. Code in a statement, Hazlestement some when the jury was empanelled at the inquest of James Lacey, 19 year old resident of Portland, Ont. The youth died yesterday in hospital of injuries suffered last Tuesday when struck by a truck driven by Earl Smith of Oshawa.

Impressing the jurors with the seriousness of their duties, the coroner intimated his opinion former jurors had failed to appreciate fully the necessity of rendering a verdict "without fear or favor".

"In a number of my some verdicts rendered in this town," said the coroner, "one cannot help but feel that the jury which recently investigated the death of William Muldoon was cited, Dr. Code referred to Saunders, the jurror said the reason he approved a verdict which had considered natural and accidental causes in attributing Muldoon's death was because "the man was dead and there was no use in causing trouble for someone and causing loss of jobs."

HITCH - HIKERS USE HORSE, SLEIGH

Boys With Sleighs Blamed For Driving Off Horse

Local milk dealers today complained to the police authorities that their delivery routes are being upset by youthful miscreants to hawl their sleighs by milk and bread wagons while milk, Not only do small boys and girls prove a menace to the traffic in the matter of fastening their sleighs to the rear of milk wagons, but they lower loads, thereby proving a hazard to traffic approaching from the rear. Another complaining one milk dealer left his horse and sleigh parked on Ann St., when the conveyance left the street by, only to find both the horse and sleigh had disappeared upon his return. Later the vehicle and horse were found standing alone on Dundas Street. The horse had been driven away by small boys who attached their sleighs behind and procured a low wills one of the older boys to take the driver's of the horse. Police promised action in the matter of fastening sleighs to the rear of milk wagons, but this practice is not discontinued. The repeated practice of 'catching rides' on the rear of milk wagons has been found also to be curbed, police intimated. Several accidents involving both children and the travelling public in general, it is asserted.

CAMPAIGN FROM BED

Led Made British History in July With Sweep of Province

Charlottetown, Jan. 10 (CP) — Premier Walter M. Lea of Prince Edward Island died here this morning while the Premier, weakened by a long fight with pneumonia, was waging a losing fight with death.

Campaigned From Bed.

He had been urged by his doctors last year to give up public life and retire to his prospering farm but he insisted on leading the Liberal party through the July election of last year.

He directed the campaign from his sickbed and when he was convalescing from a lung illness and he rose only once to make a public speech. Apart from that occasion all his appeals were directed to the electorate through the press and over the radio.

His election on July 23 saw his party make a clean sweep of every one of the 30 seats in the province's house and Island's assembly and legislative council. It was the first time in Canada's history that one party had swept the board in a provincial election.

SPEND $700,000 IN NORTH AREA

Power Units Promised at Far Falls And Rat Rapids

Toronto, Jan. 10 (CP)—By next autumn the mining areas of the Patricia district in Northwestern Ontario will be served by two new power units installed by the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission at a cost between $700,000 and $800,000.

Upon completion of negotiations with mining companies of Red Lake and Pickle Lake areas, T. Stewart Lyon, Chairman of the Hydro Commission, said he had announced contention into the northland of power development by the commission.

The program involves installation of a new 5,000-horsepower unit at Ear Falls and one of 7,500 horsepower capacity at Rat Rapids. Tenders for installation of the Rapids unit will be called at once, Mr. Lyon said.

Hollinger Gold Mines, Ltd., Mackenzie Red Lake Gold Mines, Pickle Crow and Central Patricia Mines Ltd. are the principal companies with which contracts have been made.

SANCTION ON OIL MAY BE REOPENED

Secrets of Oil Sanction Movement Are Revealed

London, Jan. 10—(CP-Havas)—Official circles predicted today the League of Nations will reopen the question of an oil embargo against Italy almost immediately.

Augusto de Vasconcellos, Portuguese chairman of the League of Nations Committee of 18, it was stated by a reliable informant, will call a meeting of this body to consider oil sanctions after the League Committee of 18 meets today.

Such a step, it was believed, here would make it unnecessary for an individual nation to bring up the sole responsibility for such action and other countries are backstating.

1 to 2 Billion Dollars Estimated Cost of Bonus Decision Now for Senate

Bill is Backed by American Legion And Other Societies

SENATE MAY AMEND

President Opposed to Full Payment at This Time

Washington, Jan. 10 (AP) — A crushing United States House of Representatives majority today passed and sent to the Senate a bill authorizing immediate cash payment of the bonus to nearly 3,000,000 American Great War veterans. Its immediate cost was estimated variously from $1,000,000,000 to $2,000,000,000.

The final ballot was taken before galleries packed with spectators.

The bill was backed by the American Legion, veterans of all wars and disabled American veterans.

Prompt consideration of the cash bonus issue by the Senate Finance Committee was promised by Chairman Harrison (D., Miss.).

Talmadge predicted the House bill is too great, the committee was considered likely to amend the measure to vote only a fraction of its own, realizing President Roosevelt opposed to full payment at this time.

$3000 HOLD-UP AT TORONTO BANK

Toronto, Jan. 10.—(CP)—Two armed bandits held up the Dominion Bank branch at Davenport Road and Lansdowne Avenue today and escaped with about $3,000.

The bandits were armed. As they fled in a motor car after grabbing up the money teller Reginald Hiss fired two shots at the car. None seemed to take effect.

Denies 1915 Exchange Panic Manipulated to Force U. S.

J. Pierpont Morgan Tells Senate Arms Inquiry at Washington Session

Washington, Jan. 10 (AP)—J. P. Morgan took the offensive at the Senate investigation of American war-time finance today with a flat denial his company manipulated foreign exchange in 1915 to force the United States government to permit loans to the allies.

Senator Nye, chairman of the Senate Munitions Committee had time to shoot a single question, the keynote of the famous banking house said gravely:

Foreign to Traditions.

"It is quite clear there is an idea in the minds of a considerable that we brought on the exchange panic in 1915 in order to influence the government.

"I want to deny in as clear a manner I can that we had any such idea or thing in our lives.

"Such charges are foreign to our traditions and our history. We never did such a thing in our lives."

Committee members, attempting to show financial ties with the allies prior to the time the United States entered into the Great War, had a sharp dispute with Morgan yesterday as to whether pressure by the firm forced Woodrow Wilson to let down the bars to the flotation of huge allied loans in the United States.

A Morgan intercompany letter was read saying the sinking of the steamship Arabic by a German submarine on August 19, 1915, with loss of two American lives, would create favorable sentiment for a proposed loan in United States.

Senator Nye (R., North Dak.) asked:

"How did the sinking of the Arabic assist in the floating of an international loan," Senator Clark, (D., Mo.), demanded.

"It was two American lives, a most regrettable affair, increased sympathy for the allies, and made background for the issue better," Morgan replied.

Medical Student Turned Down Rhodes Scholarship to Take Up Music, Makes Debut Tonight

Joe Benton Takes Place of Richard Crooks in Metropolitan Performance

33 YEARS OLD

Ed Johnson Promises Contrast if The Role is Filled Satisfactorily

New York, Jan. 10 (AP)—A long-shot gamble that Joe Benton of Sayre, Pa., took 13 years ago when he turned down a Rhodes scholarship will pay off tonight in a debut in the Metropolitan Opera House.

Joe Benton, now known as "Giovanni Martino," was a medical student of Oklahoma medical student when he made his choice.

"It was either stick to accept the Rhodes scholarship and go on to seek to be a physician," he said, "or to take a music scholarship and enjoy the excitement of a singer's life."

Benton's call for his choice with the Metropolitan while waiting yesterday in the office of Manager Edward Johnson.

Johnson, the former choir boy of Oneida, had just learned Richard Crooks, scheduled to sing the role of Des Grieux in Massenet's "Manon" tonight, was ill.

"Can you sing it?" demanded Johnson turning to the 33-year-old former Oklahoman.

"I've sung it," Benton replied.

There was a brief rehearsal.

"You sing it better than I ever could," Johnson said "and you get a Metropolitan contract."

Benton still acquired his present name quite as spectacular as his chance at the "Met."

The young tenor was in Italy about to appear in a performance when a Fascist aide informed him he, being M. "Benton" (as the Italian pronounced it), was obviously a Frenchman and would not be permitted to sing.

Benton, equal to the occasion, promptly adopted the Italian name of "Martino."

The performance went on.

TOM HETHERINGTON GIFT RECIPIENT

Regret over his departure from the local Bank of Commerce, where he has been engaged as clerk for many years was shown in concrete fashion on Wednesday evening, when the staff met at the home of Mr. E. V. Illey, manager of the local branch bank to present Mr. Thomas Hetherington with a beautiful chime clock on the eve of his departure. Mr. Hetherington has been transferred to a Montreal branch of the bank. Presentation of the clock was made by Mr. J. Baker, who expressed upon behalf of his fellow employees his regret at the loss of their co-worker. Suitable reply was made by Mr. Hetherington. Previous to his position with the local Bank of Commerce Mr. Hetherington had been employed by the old Standard Bank in this city.

FARMERS HOLDING FOR BETTER PRICES

"Although the United States market is now opened up to them, the natural trade pact has given shippers and breeders of cattle in this district a distinct advantage, so far as the sale of stock is concerned," is the being noticed in this district, it was reported by Jacob Rudell, buyer of the district, today. "Most of the cattle owners seem to be holding them for expected higher prices later on. There is plenty of food in most farmers' barns, so there is no worrying whether they sell or not. It was different a year ago when conditions were not so good."

Russell Woodley Elected Retail Merchants' President

Municipal And Merchants' Problems Are Discussed

REVIEW OF YEAR

A largely attended and enthusiastic meeting of the Retail Merchants' Association of Belleville was held Thursday evening in Dickson Coffee Shoppe where a very appetizing dinner was served before the business of the evening was taken up. President John McIntosh occupied the chair, with Vice-President R. J. Wray, assisting and Secretary W. J. Doyle, a number of matters of interest to the mercantile community and the betterment of the city generally were discussed and action taken. Among the matters discussed were better street lighting for Front Street, Victoria Avenue, Bridge West, East, and Campbell Street, also Credit Bureau, province-wide daylight saving legislation, transient traders and pedlars, etc.

The principal business of the evening was the annual election of officers, the position of President of the local association going to Russell Woodley, who has been a very active and valuable worker in the organization, and a member of the executive committee, besides serving important sub-committees. The election resulted as follows:

President—Russell Woodley.
Vice-President—John McIntosh.
Secretary-Treasurer—W. J. Doyle
Executive Committee — Russell Woodley, R. J. Wray, Laurie Lewis, Charles Fry, E. Shapiro, Frank Dominico, Fred Wallbridge, James Chalmers, J. Conway, W. Leslie, S. Ticome, J. E. Logan.

Mr. Logan read a review of the accomplishments of the past year; various reports were presented and Mr. Shapiro spoke of the necessity of the city by-laws being consolidated so that transient traders could be more effectually dealt with. This matter was left with Laurie Lewis and Frank Domenico to bring before the city council.

Christmas window dressing of stores at uniform time was brought up and several lines of business from all reported that petitions, duly signed as required, were ready for presentation to the City Council, and others were in process of preparation.

Auditors report showed the finances to be in a very satisfactory surplus, the auditors being Douglas Ross and Fred Wallbridge.

Laurie Lewis and Russell Woodley were appointed delegates to the annual convention of the Ontario Retail Merchants Association in Toronto, in March next.

Reports were presented in connection with the Christmas Carnival, street lighting and decorations and a discussion took place on the question of daylight saving. The by-law final plans not being carried out for the installation of additional lighting on Bridge and Campbell Street. A committee was appointed to take this question up with the parties concerned, and plans were proposed whereby the Christmas decorative lighting and decorations for this year.

Ed. Shapiro was congratulated upon his election to the Public School Board, and Laurie Lewis and Frank Domenico were also congratulated for their success in the civic polls.

Smallest Star Weighs 620 Tons Per Cubic Inch

Atmosphere 12 Feet Thick; Tennis Ball Would Weigh 100 Tons

Mt. Wilson, Cal., Jan. 10—Discovery of the smallest star yet known, only 4,000 miles in diameter, was reported to surprised astronomers today. It weighs 620 tons per cubic inch, has a gravity pull 3,000,000 times greater than the earth's, and is enveloped in an atmosphere only 12 feet thick.

Dr. G. P. Kuiper, who sighted the tiny white speck in the outer sky, said it is a new "white dwarf" star. Out of the millions of visible stars, only four or five white dwarfs have been seen with the Carnegie Observatory's 100-inch telescope here.

This is as Big as Earth

Bulking only about one-third as big as the astronomically tiny star, its density is what is emphasized by comparison of its 4,000-mile diameter with that of the sun, 865,000 miles, and the largest known star, Antares, 400,000,000 miles in diameter. How such a gravity pull is tremendous. A man weighing 150 pounds on earth, transported to this star, would weigh 254,813 tons. Under such pressure in a human body would collapse and spread like water.

The star is composed of gas heavier than anything existing on earth, the astronomer said.

A tennis ball on earth filled with this material would weigh something over 1,000 tons on the star.

Heat Explains Weight

How gas could be so heavy was explained by the star's great heat of 36,000 degrees. In the terrific furnace, atoms lose some of their electrons and are left with a positive charge. Thus there is much more matter and weight per cubic inch.

Kuiper said he felt sure the tidal pull would shatter any of the larger stars that might venture around the compressed on the small star to only 12 feet thickness, Dr. Kuiper discovered.

Trenton and District

Trenton, Jan. 10 (Special)— A fifty brake safety competition meeting (Thursday) in the car barns of the Quinte Transport Company at Trenton, Ont., was held on Thursday just across the road from the Miller Bros. Foundry. At the time of the outbreak three of the transport company's trucks were in the yard. One of the trucks was driven out but the other two were completely destroyed by the fire which broke yesterday afternoon the fire was discovered in time to prevent much of the damage has not been made but it is thought, that the loss is considerable.

A.T.P.A. Meets

A meeting of the Anglican Young Peoples' Association was held last night in the parish hall, the first meeting opened with a hymn followed by prayer. A lesson from the Gospel of St. Mark was read by Rev. F. A. Smith. Two selections on the guitar by Reginald Barrett delighted the audience. A fifteen minutes address by Rev. Smith was given by Rev. Smith. Some solos and duets were then showed and a short period of fellowship followed. The evening closed with "God Save the King."

C.G.I.T. Meet

The C.G.I.T. met last night in King St. United Church to discuss plans for C.G.I.T. week, which will be held next month. After business had been transacted the Devotional period was held. It opened with the singing of the hymn "O God our help in Ages Past". This was followed by a prayer by Miss Dorothy Eina Smithrim. This period was brought to a close with the singing of the hymn "Lead on O King Eternal."

Problems Facing City Discussed by Council And Chamber at Dinner

Members of 1936 Council Guests of Chamber of Commerce

RESOLUTIONS PASSED

Some Present Advance Advisability of City Manager

Closer unity and co-operation than ever before between Belleville City Council and the local Chamber of Commerce will probably result from the dinner meeting held here this evening, and a number of definite steps were taken.

Quality it will be an active year in which both the Chamber and city council will function and not upon important measures, which will reflect to the city's good. And the likelihood is that the citizens may see new legislation entirely foreign to past councils shaping through the joint co-operation of both bodies.

City Manager Central

Chief among these for consideration upon which mutual agreement was reached yesterday will be the adoption of a city managership control of this city, a new and sweeping investigation into probable overhauling of the relief system, greater work upon the suggested explanade; better lighting of the city's streets; a new start upon the Bell parking problem; more civic bathing beach and other minor matters.

Welcoming Mayor Harry Hill and council members to the annual dinner luncheon, President Bert Boyce of the Chamber expressed his gratification at the large attendance. He reminded that only through the co-operation of the two governmental bodies could the advancement of the city be accomplish. He referred expressly to the recent Mayors luncheon as a step in the right direction, a sense a feeling, that should be apparent in the city," he added. Both Mayor Hill, re-elected and elected annually for the betterment of Belleville, elaborated Pres. Bert Boyce. "If we as a Chamber of Commerce just sat here and conducted affairs we couldn't justify our existence. We were formed for the purpose of help, and to do all we could, and only through helping council is that made possible." Two resolutions, which were passed at the last meeting of the Chamber of Commerce were presented members of council with a hope, that full consideration would be given them during the coming year.

Resolution Passed

Moved by Mr. Lou Riggs,
Seconded by Mr. W. C. Bettinger,

It is the belief of the Directors of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce that Municipal affairs would be more efficiently directed under the present form of administration. Under such method a highly trained Executive would be in charge of the actual detail of the administration, with the policy laid down by the elected Council. It would make for greater system and continuity of policy. It would be largely freed of political influence, and great economy we believe would be effected in the City's expenditures, and through co-ordination, in purchases for all Departments.

That the City Relief be put under the Department of Public Works or some committee and that a thorough investigation of same be made to eliminate any relief being given to those not entirely deserving.

Briefly Mayor Hill acknowledged his introduction. He concurred in the statement of President Boyce, that citizens in Belleville had acted wisely in choosing their city council this year. "It will probably be one of the best councils we have ever had." Referring to the recent mayor's luncheon Mayor Hill pointed out that it was an original idea of his own to have it at the start of the year so that "city council and representatives of all branches of the city could get a start off on the right foot.

Hearty endorsation of the resolutions passed by the Chamber and a promise that full consideration of both matters would be given by the council was pledged by Mayor Hill.

"City managership is a big thing, I myself, have had in mind for some years. As for the relief matter we intend this year to have an investigation into every phase of it. This is going to give us insight into conditions that have been extremely marked in a number of cases, and is a matter that could be talked on all day."

"City Manager" is good many other questions, too, that are going to be taken up, continued Mayor Hill. "One of these is the gas question, and this must be backed at once. The parking matter is also one, that must be gone into at once. As it is now it is in terrible shape. We must not be able to stall off on this, but we are going to do the best we can for the greatest number. And in this we are going to need the help of the Chamber of Commerce."

Spirit of Co-operation

"I've never seen a year when there has been such a spirit of co-operation and a better feeling shown than there is now," declared Mayor Hill. "I hope we don't overstep our mark this year, but we are going to have to be up and doing. We may be able to improve the city financially and morally."

Mayor Hill concluded with a reserved hope that the co-operation displayed would work together for the good of the city with better co-operation than ever before. "Criticisms and a show of constructive criticism are welcome."

"The council will be criticized, no doubt, by us, and we will probably be criticized by council. We will be criticized by council. So let's away criticism, and have anything in mind here, that we have a real Mayor and one who will work 'at all times' for the city," Mayor Hill supplied Leo B. Riggs.

Alderman Harold Saleman as the first member of council called, expressed his hope of prosperity for the Board of Chamber and plunged at once into discussion of one matter, that he hoped would be taken up by bodies during the coming year. "Belleville is losing considerable traffic in North Hastings. A few years ago we used to have ninety cars a day in traffic through the facilities of the north, but now we have seventeen cars. Our wholesale stores are suffering loss of trade, while Trenton correspondingly has increased. I think that a campaign to get them back, to get the people to come here, and of entering that territory should be started at once. The north through Trenton and Stirling, Trenton some time ago entered into a campaign to get this through to that way and was eminently successful."

Urgeing Summer Resorts

President Boyce suggested as one way in which Belleville could come back into her own in this manner would be to have all summer resort owners with a personal letter from the city urge upon their customers the advisability of using the Madoc Road in preference to the Trenton route. Something in the better advantages of stores and accommodations they would find if they did so.

"Why do they go by way of Trenton?" queried K. H. Illsley.

"Chiefly because Trenton entered into an intensive campaign urging tourists not to use the Madoc road but to go the other way," enlightened Mr. Saleman.

Alderman Frank Domenico pointed out that the annual municipal luncheon he had attended as guest. He thought as a result of this there be some that would react to the benefit of the city. "We read a lot in the press of ownership and I believe, that it would save the taxpayer money if we had a city manager. I am confident, that this would be joined in at once by the possibly a chairman from council will be appointed as head."

"I don't know, I couldn't do as much as I wanted to in my department," interjected Mr. Domenico, referring to the lighting system. "But I am glad to see that we have appointed Chairman of Light and Power, Alderman Ellis, that council may on the question of spending the refund from Hydro on street lighting. But something in the city need better lights and it has been one of the main questions why I ran for council again this year."

"As for the explanade—we need it. I think that the strongest opposition toward this is some from council and that the matter can be taken up by both bodies. Work on this matter could be perfect over a period of years for the city's employed and its benefits to the city would be greater than many realize."

Following the concluding remarks of Ald. Domenico, President Boyce took the occasion to point out an important fact.

Chamber Never Divided

"There is probably an erroneous impression abroad in this city that at our Open Forums meetings, where we discuss in part their chance to get up and say something, that the Chamber is always divided on certain the sentiments of the Chamber. But it is not so. Each one is free to speak his mind on these occasions, and generally we don't know, what they are going to say; and we can see clearly at times there. There may be things said that don't quite set right with this body or this city council, or the citizens, but they are not voiced as the stand of the Chamber."

Alderman J. W. Barlow pointed out to his remarks, that many people are not cognizant of the number of the Chamber. "They have little idea of what actual benefit is to the city and what a splendid idea of who comprises it. "If they did not down and find out themselves they would alter their opinion. I had to do that. When I went on council I had no idea what might have been that way, but since, I have had to change my mind. But I had my mind made up that it wasn't right, and nothing would be made any live it n'y full support as I do now. This has always been my stand and this is during the coming year."

Tribute was paid to the efficiency of Ald. Domenico as chairman of the light last year and promise of full consideration to matter of street lighting was given by the speaker. The parking problem was another matter that requires immediate attention. "It's positively dangerous at present and will be for a season," he added.

Chairman of Fire this year I realize it will be one department, that must be kept up if there is any other in the city that should be. We are going to try to live up to its present efficiency, and even better it if we can. As for the relief, I am in full accord with council, but we have a manager of the department and it is up to him that council's wishes are kept up."

Start Preliminary Work

"The explanade problem was another matter," continued Ald. Barlow, in the opinion of Ald. Barlow, "we have not the money to do it, money and had no return for it; we have it. But before this explanade is approached actually there is a lot of preliminary work to be done. Bodds and I believe that council will be glad to help in this in every way possible."

Ald. Barlow asked for criticism during the coming year, but criticism that might help the governing body. "We are not perfect. Only in this way was it possible to improve. Criticism is good for both sides of Belleville, he added.

Ald. Bodds pointed out, however, that since he had been in Belleville he had tried to perform in and through the city's interests but that "I, with others, may perhaps at times have been over enthusiastic, but it has always been my aim to do the best I could for the city. My address was good; it brought a lot of things into the open, that should have been brought out before years ago. This year as in past years, I intend to be as interested sincere serfied in its activities but we in order to do the best we can for the city."

"City managership," continued Ald. Bodds, "has practically been tried out and found successful, notably in the United States where in both the large and small cities it is being under this controllership. Why it should not be tried out in Belleville the end of the year this question will be settled, and the time for preliminary work toward this end will have been prepared."

Alderman Ellis in dismissing declared, that municipalities of today are spending too much money in construction—where such municipality was receiving a return. "It is just a little different from its fellow's. "Through this reconstruction we have not only made a beautiful city, but a safe one. Whether Belleville is mostly adapted and is the best agricultural district of any and we must all realize this and look after the matter. We have been unable to have keen competition from the larger cities, but in the matter of light it has advantages, declared Alderman Ellis, referring to the parking problem entered the picture, he intimated.

Council Not Prepared

Briefly the speaker referred to the explanade. "Before I go into this I was approached I believe, if it had been considered, that many of the old have had more consideration, but the time has changed and we must face it then. In connection with the explanade construction, it had the effect of raising the land the entire west. Finances of the city were a big factor and council has only fifty per cent. of its revenue controllable and it has to be very careful".

Alderman Armstrong pointed out that preliminary work on this matter was necessary necessary and he promise work for the city's unemployment. He suggested that in connection of the properties through which the Bell river runs and some dilapidated buildings now stand. The owners, he intimated, might be induced to have them removed and the ground filled in and levelled off. "Then we would have a cleared spots and extra parking facilities for the increasing number of cars. The people could then be induced to come into the city and make their purchases here, could, he reminded, be done with little capital expenditure.

"The chief objection to the explanade at the time was that it broached was the fact, that the Bell river would have to be raised and no assistance could be given on this by the government, declared Alderman Armstrong. I believe the one reason why council turned to Zwick's Island and the duplicate water main as by means, where when could be given work and the government would pay 50 per cent. of the cost."

Relief question came under an independent government board, believed the Alderman. Belleville would be better off in this manner and the matter would not come under council. "It is a big thing, rightfully believe. Ward supervision throughout the city and a committee to look up would do much to reduce expenditures, he added. "We've had relief for four years, and with the proper advance of science and the increasing efficiency of the relief services. It appears, that we will have it with us for a long time yet. Some change will have to be done eventually with the question."

Tribute Paid Chairman

Tribute was paid to the efforts of the Chamber of Commerce in working for the best interests of their city. "You members are men whose investments in the city are such as are naturally anxious to see it go ahead; the progress of the city is to the benefit of the citizens, we can't get isolated prosperity; when it comes, it comes to all every line," Alderman Armstrong reiterated his confidence that the coming year full co-operation and helpfulness will exist, between the two bodies.

Alderman Thos. Cushing stuck in his conviction that a civic bathing beach must eventually come, not only to afford a place for bathing but for the benefit of the citizens as well, again appealed to the Chamber for their support on the matter. "As chairman of the Tourist and Publicity Committee last year I know that we lost scores and scores of tourists for the simple reason that there was no camp expressed surprise, that the city had no bathing beach, and went on again to some other place. Belleville, one tourist told me, has the finest waterfront that, she has now," impressed the speaker.

The beach could be constructed at Zwick's Island or near the hospital, or any other suitable place, continued Alderman Cushing, but it would be a benefit to the city as a whole of all proportion to its cost. Merchants would benefit by it, trade and increased tourist trade but not least of the benefits would be the fact, that children would be given a safe place to take a cooling dip, when they felt like it.

As to city managership the mailman pointed out, having been in office for several years, declared the speaker, "During the past few years and in the future, I feel that the city's business was not being run as economically as it should be. We haven't been getting results we should. We have been paying out money but there is no efficiency; where there is no efficiency there is waste. We need a city manager, that we will have control."

Several Cities Cited

Several cities were cited by Alderman Cushing, where the city manager idea has been well worked out and Belleville should be investigated. Fifty cities in the United States have adopted this and are continuing it in the belief that council should be here. "Let us put the matter before the public, that a Chamber of Commerce stand behind the suggestion and support it. I think we have it will eventually be brought about if considered by council."

In reply to Ald. Cushing, President Bert Boyce pointed out that for some time the matter of a public bathing beach had been under consideration by the Chamber of Commerce and at present a committee was actually surveying the situation.

"It has to come eventually, there's no doubt about it," he declared.

Alderman Clifford Barragar declared, that the matter of parking in this city was a big problem and at this time this year his work would be taken up by the Chamber of Commerce and that every effort would be bent toward the solution of the parking problem. He declared his mind open to consideration, but that the committee was active.

The parking problem in the city, continuing Alderman Barragar, is admittedly a difficult one and one, that will require considerable for some time by the Kiwanis Club of Belleville, Ontario, Syracuse and other cities

HAS BEEN A GOOD CITIZEN

Mr. George A. C. Weir, who is retiring from the active banking service as he closes ten years' service as local manager of the Bank of Montreal, has made numerous friends in Belleville and the surrounding district through his position as banker and advisor and through his attractive personality and fine social qualities. He has united business and the social side of life in a rare combination, and when he departs from Belleville he will leave a distinct gap in the life of the city. He will be followed by the warmest feelings and the best wishes of the people of this community and by regret that his sojourn here has come to an end.

A more loyal official in the performance of his duties as banker or as a sort of intermediary between the bank and the public could not be found. He has given satisfaction to the bank, proofs of this being his appointment to the important Belleville branch and the length of time he has been permitted to reside in this city. As the manager of the institution carrying the municipal accounts, he has been brought into intimate relationship with every phase of municipal life, his wide experience of a lifetime of banking and interest in finance having prepared him for the important position he came to occupy in this community. As a result he has made banking more interesting and intelligible to the public and his readiness to give information and offer careful opinion has been appreciated. His offhand manner which makes him immediately at friends with business men and other classes of citizens alike has made him an invaluable counseller in municipal finance and in private matters. It is needless to say that under his management the bank he represents has served the municipality and the public well.

Fortunately for this city Mr. Weir has had a long experience and has done a great deal of thinking on problems of education. He had no sooner arrived here than he was appointed to the Board of Education and served on the advisory committee with distinction. His mind which is incessantly active and well-informed found real scope in this field of voluntary public service, which merits public gratitude. He has taken a firm stand in numerous community efforts and has all in all been a citizen of whom Belleville might well be proud, for his help has been a real contribution to the progress and welfare of the city. In the days before relief efforts had become crystallized into the form along which they are carried on today, he bore no small share in solving the problems which kept coming up day after day. Those pioneering days in relief effort are not to be forgotten by the citizens for they owe Mr. Weir and others an expression of gratitude for what they have done in the interest of the less fortunate.

The outdoor life here has found in him one of its most active exponents. Angling, golf, and kindred interests have benefited by his participation. He has taken an active part in social life as a prominent clubman.

Well-informed, energetic, affable, sincere and outspoken, gifted in the art of presenting friendships and successful in his life-calling as banker, he has made Belleville richer for the fact that he has spent a decade in this city. The tributes of his friends the other evening when a complimentary dinner was tendered him and he was presented with a gold watch and chain as a token of appreciation of his life and work here but symbolizes what the community at large feels. All join in the wish expressed the other evening that Mr. Weir and Mrs. Weir may find their way leading them back to this city for their permanent home.

MARATHONING THE SCRIPTURE

359 persons in relays read the Bible through in 69 1-4 hours at an Oklahoma tabernacle, the minister reading the last five chapters. There were 615 reading periods.

Who was edified, even if the congregation could do nothing else the next few days but talk about it? Who knows his Bible any better? Who has been inspired by this marathon race through the 66 books of the Old and New Testaments? Who enjoyed the fine poetry and the inspiration, and above all the supreme spiritual outlook upon life, which the Book unfolds?

There might be one chance in a billion of any real inspiration coming out of this performance, but there are thousands of chances that the marathon will confirm those opposed to religious teachings in their opposition or drive some sincere worshippers into dizzy. The latter at least will be saddened.

There is a way to read and inwardly digest the Scriptures. Surely the Oklahoma marathon way is not the method.

In this wild world, the fondest and the best are the most tried, most troubled and distrest.—Crabbe.

BIRDS

"Darlings," God said to the birds,
"Go now and sing,
For men are weary of Winter,
Go and bring
Promise to empty branches."
He set them free,
Winged to carry His praise
Joyously.

They built in meadow and tree,
In barn and croft,
They carried the word of love
Afar, aloft.
They were colored like flowers.
Their wings
Was pointed and balanced and strong, a marvellous thing.

"Darlings", God said to the birds,
"Go now to another place,
Men cease to wonder at last
At any grace.
Leave for a while and then
After barren days,
One robin shall make their hearts
Awake to praise.

So all the singing birds
Lifted their wings to go,
They found a path in the blue,
High way they know,
Only the chickadee stayed
To sing in the snow.

NEW JERSEY IS ONE OF THE SMALLEST STATES in the United States of America, is adjacent to New York City, and houses many of the folks who work, every day in the big city. Naturally the impression prevails that New Jersey is just a sprawling suburb of New York. This seems to be erroneous for the figures have just been released showing that in the five-day open deer hunting season last month no less than 2,200 deer were slain by hunters. The fact that several hunters were also slain indicates that it is a regulation hunting ground, but few people outside of the area in question had any idea that so many deer roamed wild almost within sight and sound of the big city of New York.

WARSHIPS OF GREAT BRITAIN AND FRANCE steaming about the Mediterranean to keep the peace and prevent war seems ominous, but no doubt the statesmen who are responsible for the procedure know what they are doing and believe that a show of force will minimize the inclination of some people to start something.

ANGINA PECTORIS IS ONE OF THE COMPARATIVELY NEW DISEASES, or old diseases renamed, which is causing people of this day anxiety and inclining them to be more careful with their health. It is accompanied with great pain when the attacks come. Medical scientists have been investigating this disease for some time and from time to time reports are issued of the discovery of new methods of treatment more or less successful. The latest which promises relief and even cure comes from a member of the staff of the University of Maryland, reporting to the American Association for the Advancement of Science his discovery of a drug which he says not only furnishes instant relief from the pain which characterizes this disease but which, he claims, effects a complete cure. This drug is snuffed into the nose when the pain begins and is said to give relief within one second. So far it has been used on twenty patients, the report says, and is said to have given permanent relief to eighteen of them. These 18 are apparently completely cured, while the remaining two cases failed to benefit.

"DRIVE SAFELY" CAMPAIGNS are being waged in the United States in order if possible to reduce the large casualty lists each year among motorists. Pledges have been drawn up containing all the important points necessary for safe driving and motorists are asked to sign and keep this pledge. The movement started in New York City where it has met with very favorable response and thousands have signed already. The movement is spreading and will no doubt have a very good effect. In fact in New York City motor accidents have been considerably reduced according to official reports since the Drive Safely Campaign was started.

HAVE YOU HEARD THIS:

Radio-Minded

Grandpa was having his after-lunch sleep in the armchair and was emitting sounds that might have come from a defunct saw. As father entered the room he saw little Joan twisting one of Grandpa's waistcoat buttons.

"What are you doing?" he whispered. "You musn't disturb him."

"I'm not disturbing him, daddy," explained the child, "I'm only trying to get another station with him."

LOOKING BACKWARD

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Jan. 10th, 1916.

Many persons were skating on the bay yesterday. Several ice boats were out and a sail boat was carried them along at the rate of thirty miles an hour.

The Belleville Business Men's Bible Class held its annual election of officers yesterday and resulted as follows: H. W. Ackerman, Honorary President; E. F. Dickson, president; J. A. Burbridge, First Vice President; H.S. Smith, Second Vice President; J.H. Moon, Treasurer; N. O. Allison, Hon. Secretary; G. H. Robinson, Secretary; M. P. Duff, Assistant Secretary; Finance Committee, S. Arnott and R. B. Morden; Chorister, A. M. Chapman; Organist, Miss Edna Wallace; Teacher, F. E. O'Flynn, B. A. The class is one of the largest adult Bible classes in the Dominion and was organized by His Honor Judge Deroche. We congratulate the teacher and the members of the class upon the splendid success of the work during the past years. The membership is about one hundred and fifty.

At the annual meeting of Juvenile Oxford Lodge, No. 14, A. O. U. W., the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Past President, Robert Dobbs; President, Robert F. Ford; Vice President, H. Brown; Secretary, Walter Taylor; Physician, Dr. Tracy; Treasurer, P. D. Ford; Chaplain, Walter Stapley; Inside Guard, Edgar Stapley; Inside Guard, Lorne Vickers; Committeemen, H. Penn, Alf. Green, and Ray Vickers; Auditors, F.D. Ford, J Penn, J. Harris and A. Silk.

The week of prayer service was held last evening at John Street Presbyterian Church. There was a fair attendance and the meeting throughout was of interest. The devotional part was conducted by the pastor, the Rev. A. H. Symons and the address was the Rev. A. M. Hubly of Emmanuel Church.

We know a party in this city who sings all day long—tunes flat when he warbles in church, but he means well. Perhaps you know some like him. It would never do, however, to indite everybody who sings out of tune; the local "weeklies" would be up against it sure.

I have some very handsome Black Bear Robes made from Goat skins. I say this in no spirit of boasting. It is not the fault of the goats that they are not bears. It is simply their misfortune. But if the public will purchase them for bear, believing them to be bear, that is no fault of mine. I will be derived from the Robes as if they really were Bear. And the economical citizen will save money and the enterprising farmer will find profit out everything will be lovely. Joe. Morgan, Opposite Anglo-American House. (Adv't)

The Railway Situation

To the editor of the Ontario Intelligencer, Belleville, Ontario.

60 Dundas Street,
Belleville, Ontario,
January 6, 1936.

On the Editorial Page of the Globe today appeared an article over the signature of S. T. Mallin, Orrville, Ontario.

I would strike him to carefully read Mr. King's stand on the Railway question which is the maintenance of the integrity of the Canadian National Railway, Publicly-owned and Publicly-operated. One would think by Mallin's letter that Mr. King took his stand for the Maintenance of the C. N. R. and the Integrity of the C. P. R. He says Mr. King has the opportunity to make himself solid with the general public in the whole country from disasters. If Sir R.W. Beatty only had the C.N.R. out of business we would not have heard the word from Mr. Mallin. He says that the C. P. R. is endeavour to make adjustment with the C. P. R. I take issue with that, as that point as Sir R. W. Beatty is ready for almost any kind of adjustment in order to save the shareholders of the C. P. R. He says there is no reason why the C.N.R. companies should not agree to pool. If no one goes under why they should not have pooled between Montreal and Toronto and it's this. The C. N. R. had the C. P. R. beat a half hour on the time and had ninety percent of the passenger traffic. Mr. Mallin says "Close down those parts that run losses on either railway." What do all sane, level thinking people say in if the Post Office Department shut out all the mail runs because they did not pay. He says that Government ownership is wrong. What's private ownership? Monopoly. It's a monopoly, no competition, no duplication which Mr. Mallin says and is practically free from politics. So much for that we do not say a word. It's a Grit or a Tory brings our mail and we don't care a hoot. The Postmaster is a political brother It's a Grit or a Tory brings our mail and we don't care a hoot. The Postmaster is a political brother.

COL. VANDERWATER IS GUEST SPEAKER

Subject is "Social Service Among Returned Men"

Music, songs, and special entertainment followed the regular business of the Army and Navy Veterans in Canada in Memorial Hall last evening on the occasion of the regular meeting and social evening held by the local branch. Well over 150 veterans of the city and district and their friends were present to enjoy the evening's entertainment.

In a special address, that was directed chiefly for the benefit of returned men, Col. Roscoe Vanderwater, past president of the association, who chose as his topic "Social Service Among Returned Men" brought home to his interested listeners some pertinent facts regarding post war conditions among their members. He was introduced by chairman for the evening, Comrade Lou Soules, who officiated in the absence of Quentin Boyd, president of the local branch.

Included among the entertainers who helped make the evening a success were James Bankier; Sergt. Major Wright of the R.C.A.F.; Bruce Sills; Frank Howard; Jack McIlvoh; Clare Patterson and others. Chas. Mason was accompanist and soloist on the piano.

Inadvertently it was stated in yesterday's issue that the meeting would be an open house by United War Veterans.

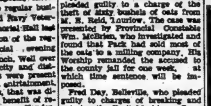
MILLION IS LEFT BY JOHN GILBERT

Three Year Contract After 1929 Debacle Rebuilt Fortune

Hollywood, Jan. 10.—(AP)—John Gilbert, last of the silent screen's "great lovers", left a fortune estimated at $1,000,000 when he died.

A heart attack yesterday ended the career of the 36-year-old actor, who climbed from extra ranks to stardom on the screen, then faded into retirement because his voice was too high-pitched for the "talkies".

A large share of the fortune his fans realized was swept away in the stock market debacle of 1929.



In August of that year he signed a three-year contract with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer which reportedly paid him $500,000 annually.

The estimate of Gilbert's estate was made by his attorney Judge Seymour D. Thelen, who said: "He could have lived to a ripe old age in luxury on the income of his investments".

Private services will be conducted Saturday morning in a Beverly Hills Mortuary Chapel with only relatives and close friends attending by invitation. The Rev. Neal Dodd of the Church of the Angels will officiate.

STRUCK BY TREE

Kingston, Ont., Jan. 10 (CP)—Struck by a falling tree, Stanley McDonald, 40, of Harrowsmith, 40 miles north of here in Frontenac county, is in serious condition in the Hotel Dieu Hospital here. He is suffering from several fractures of the femur and pelvis.

Lynn, Mass., Jan. 10 (CP)—The police were still in the shop they had raided as a horse race betting establishment when the phone rang. Sergeant Lawrence Ethan answered.

"Who won the fourth race?" a woman asked.

"Disqualified," Ethan replied.

"Who was second in the fifth?"

"The cops—" was all the Sergeant could say before the connection was broken.

Seattle, Jan. 10 (CP)—How to cure in Portugese is the answer to this problem of Clark E. Yonker.

For seven years director of the Rockefeller Foundation's tropical disease station in the Philippines, he is coming, via New York, to Seattle where he will campaign against yellow fever.

"I don't talk Portugese," the languages I speak, he said, "but I guess I'll get along."

"I learn probably first when I arrive in a new language. It's very simple."

POLICE COURT

Six motorists appeared in the local police court this morning before Magistrate H. J. Butler, K.C., to-day under the new ordinance issued by the Highway Traffic Department relative to charges being laid in all motor vehicle infractions of the H.T.A. Four pleaded guilty to operating motor vehicles after summons without displaying the proper licence. The minimum fine of one dollar was entered each delinquent, no costs being imposed today.

This is the beginning of the new law issued under the H.T.A., explained Crown Attorney M. G. Donnan, K.C., when the first offender appeared, intended giving no operating his motor car without the proper rear light displayed after dark. Improper vehicles and defective brakes also come under this category, it was announced.

Carl O'Brien, Belleville truck driver, pleaded guilty to a charge of reckless driving and did George Dickson, Hillcrite trucker. Both were fined ten dollars and costs and their chauffeur's licenses suspended by His Worship for three days.

Motorcycle Patrolmen Sam Evelyn and Neil Downey laid all of the charges presented under the H.T.A. today. The court pointed out during the proceedings, that ignorance of the fact would not be accepted as an excuse for infractions of the H.T.A. in the future.

Stanley Pack, Belleville laborer, who is at present on relief in this city, elected summary trial and pleaded guilty to a charge of the theft of sixty bushels of oats from Mr. E. Reid, Tyendinaga. The oats was presented by Provincial Constable Hogle, who laid the information and found that Pack had sold most of the oats to a milling company. His Worship remanded the prisoner to the county jail for one week, at which time sentence will be imposed.

Fred Day, Belleville, who pleaded guilty to charges of breaking and entering the Fruit Machinery Company here and stealing $8.00 and electric drill had pleaded guilty in a like manner a yr. ago. His case was further enlarged today as the court desired more information on the matter. Day's accomplice pleaded guilty to a charge of non-support.

At the request of Mr. C. J. Cameron, his counsel, a charge of assault laid against Joseph Williams, Huntingdon was enlarged for one week. The charge was laid by Roy Post, a neighbour.

OLYMPICS EARN TIE WITH STARS

First Point Gained by Detroit Against Syracuse This Year

Detroit, Jan. 10.—(CP)— Manager Donnie Ingalls of the Detroit Olympics relaxed today after consulting the International Hockey League schedule and found his team will not have to meet the Pontiferous Syracuse Stars for six other six weeks.

Olympics barely earned a 3-3 tie against the speedy stars before 8,000 fans at the Olympia last night after trailing arroughout. It was the third meeting between the two group leaders and the first point earned by the Detroiters in conference play. Syracuse leads in overall gain, who prior to last night's tie had beaten the Cs two straight.

Only the presence of Wally Kilrea on the line-up saved the Olympics. Kilrea, who had dropped down from the Red Wings for the game, scored the lucky goal in the third period and when aided in the goal that deadlocked the contest in the overtime.

EMPRESS FUNDS SAFETY IN JERUSALEM—Empress Menen of Ethiopia need no longer fear the bombing planes of Il Duce. With her son, Makonnen (favorite of Il Negus), she has gone to Jerusalem, where an enthusiastic reception was given her. Of historical interest is the fact that the ark of the covenant, most sacred of Ethiopia's possessions, is said to have been acquired by the Queen of Sheba during a visit to King Solomon in this same city. The empress claims descendancy of the Queen of Sheba.

AIR LINDBERGH AND SON DRIVE TO EXCITED HAVEN—A strong police force, and a huge force of reporters and photographers greeted Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh and their 2-year-old son, Jon, when they arrived at the steamship American Importer. They were photographed as they stepped down the gangplank of theship to land and again as they departed the pier in a car for a local hotel (above). They are now residing quietly at St. Bride's near Cardiff, Wales.

Tweed and District

Tweed—The inaugural meeting of Tweed Village Council was held at the Council Chambers on Monday Jan. 6th at 11 a. m. when Reeve W. H. Sayers, Councillors J. W. Kingston, C. St. Way, Rupoweb Kinz and Ira Hayes, Public Utilities Commission Joseph Rashotte present. The oath of office was taken by the above officials and the clerk, O. G. C. Morton, appointed Public Council and Public Utilities Commission duly organized for the current year. The council adjourned to meet at 7.30 p.m.

The adjourned meeting of the Council was held in the Council Chambers at 7.30 p.m. Monday with all the members present. The following standing committees were appointed:—

Finance—Myles, Way and Sayers. Streets—Kingston, King and Sayers.

Fire, Light and Water — Myles, King and Kingston.

Parks Committee, L. Gordon, T.N. Beatty, Jas. Ryan, C. D. Wilson, G. R. Way, Ed Myles and O. D. C. Morton.

Communications were received from the Ontario Municipal Association, Chief Constable J. C. Hayes, Monthly Report, Workmen's Compensation Board and accident rebate of payment. The Ontario Dept. of Municipal Affairs advising that the Ontario Government is levying tax on income in 1936 in lieu of municipalities.

A delgation of six unemployed men interviewed the council in respect to the securing of work after much discussion as to the possibility of providing work they were advised that the council would endeavour to provide work for them.

A motion was passed appointing Chief Constable J. C. Hayes Weed Inspector for 1936.

A by-law authorizing the Council to borrow the necessary money to meet the current expenses of the year was introduced and after being given its various readings was duly signed, sealed and numbered. Other by-laws were passed dispensing Dr. J. A. Thompson as a High School Trustee for two years in lieu of Dr. H. Morrison's term as the latter had resigned; James Ryan was also named High School Trustee for a period of three years.

The following accounts were ordered paid:—

The clerk was instructed to notify the owners of real estate acquired by the village by reason of Tax Sale, that they must pay the taxes in arrears for 1936 equal to the 1935 taxes on the same, and that failing to do so the Council will take this amount will apply on the 1936 taxes for same. On motion the Council decided to allow interest at the rate of 5 per cent per annum for prepayment of 1936 taxes.

The Tweed Horticultural Society directors met in the Council Chamber on Tuesday night with President Wm. R. R. Nicholson in the chair. The secretary read a letter from the Ontario Horticultural Society President Mr. Ocromore of Guelph in which he stated that grants to the Ontario Organization had been reduced from $50,000 a few years ago to $4,000 in 1935, and that there was a likelihood of the grant being cut off entirely by the Provincial government. Many small societies are able to carry on only with great difficulty and will be forced to suspend operations if this grant is cut off. All the work of years will be lost as a result. Societies are urged to appeal to the local M. L. A. to use his influence to have the grant continued for the current year. A motion was passed authorizing the president and secretary to draft a letter to this effect to be forwarded to Mr. Jas. Hill, M.P.P. for East Hastings.

The following committees were appointed to arrange for a Smoker and Bridge to be held in a short time:—Committee, Dr. F. A. Faul, S. H. Connor; Table Committee, C. H. Kerr; Arrangements Committee, Mrs. H. M. Countryman, Mrs. A. C. Blakely, Mrs. J. Ryan, Mrs. D. W. Sills, Mrs. F. Badgley, Refreshment Committee, Mrs. Badgley, Mrs. Ryan, Mrs. Foster, Mrs. Drinkwater.

A motion was passed to hold the annual meeting on Tuesday, Jan. 14th in the Council Chambers.

Going to the assistance of two of his fellow workmen in the Craig Nickel mines at Falconbridge resulted in fatal injuries to Clayton Cadbourne, aged 32, on Thursday January 2nd. Blasting operations were in progress and the two men were thought to have been overcome with gas fumes. Cadbourne descended a ladder to their aid when he too was apparently overcome with the fumes, and fell a distance of approximately sixty feet sustaining injuries which resulted in his death a few hours later. His body was brought to Tweed on Saturday afternoon for burial. Surviving are his wife and two children, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Cadbourne of Tweed, besides four brothers and four sisters.

The clerk was instructed to notify the owners of real estate acquired by the village by reason of Tax Sale, that they must pay the taxes in arrears for 1936 equal to the 1935 taxes on the same, and that failing to do so the Council will take this amount will apply on the 1936 taxes for same. On motion the Council decided to allow interest at the rate of 5 per cent per annum for prepayment of 1936 taxes.

The Tweed Horticultural Society directors met in the Council Chamber on Tuesday night with President Wm. R. R. Nicholson in the chair. The secretary read a letter from the Ontario Horticultural Society President Mr. Ocromore of Guelph in which he stated that grants to the Ontario Organization had been reduced from $50,000 a few years ago to $4,000 in 1935, and that there was a likelihood of the grant being cut off entirely by the Provincial government. Many small societies are able to carry on only with great difficulty and will be forced to suspend operations if this grant is cut off. All the work of years will be lost as a result. Societies are urged to appeal to the local M. L. A. to use his influence to have the grant continued for the current year. A motion was passed authorizing the president and secretary to draft a letter to this effect to be forwarded to Mr. Jas. Hill, M.P.P. for East Hastings.

A motion was passed to hold the annual meeting on Tuesday, Jan. 14th in the Council Chambers.

Going to the assistance of two of his fellow workmen in the Craig Nickel mines at Falconbridge resulted in fatal injuries to Clayton Cadbourne, aged 32, on Thursday January 2nd. Blasting operations were in progress and the two men were thought to have been overcome with gas fumes. Cadbourne descended a ladder to their aid when he too was apparently overcome with the fumes, and fell a distance of approximately sixty feet sustaining injuries which resulted in his death a few hours later. His body was brought to Tweed on Saturday afternoon for burial. Surviving are his wife and two children, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Cadbourne of Tweed, besides four brothers and four sisters.

PRAYER SERIES CLOSES TONIGHT

Last of Meetings of Week Will be Held at Victoria Avenue Church

The final meeting in connection with the week of prayer will be held in Victoria Avenue Baptist Church on Friday night. The attendance and interest in the meetings have grown during the week. Thursday evening the meeting was conducted by Rev. W. J. Walker and a very timely address was given on Missions by Rev. I. B. Naylor. Mr. Naylor declared in the course of his address that "The Orient and distant lands have come to the doors of the westerner's civilization. It therefore behooves us to inculcate into our life and civilization the idealism and spirit of the Christ we profess".

The service tonight is in charge of Rev. A. G. Hunter and the address on "Home Life and Education" will be given by Rev. H. E. Newman.

36 IN CLASS FOR FOOD STUDY

Red Cross Nutrition Course Opens at John St. Church Hall

The Red Cross Nutrition Course, a series of eight lessons in food study and economics, was opened and organized on Wednesday evening with a very interested group of thirty six women, members of the School for Leisure, under the auspices of John Street United Church Young Women's Guild. Miss Louise Wallbridge and Miss Clara Cathcart have offered their services as teachers and the Red Cross is very grateful to them for contributing to the work.

The first lesson was given by Miss Margaret McCready of the Ontario Red Cross who invited the women to stop her at any point and ask questions if difficulties arose. It was quite amusing how many queries there were on the question of food. Women have been reading about the subject lately and eagerly seize the opportunity that such a study course affords to get certain points cleared.

A great many current theories are abroad about what to eat and why. It is only the results of scientific research that is passed on in the Red Cross Course. There is also a thorough demonstration on how to put the theories into practice. On Wednesday evening there was a demonstration of hot breakfast porridge, made chiefly of whole wheat. The addition of wheat germ, bulk bran and flax seed was explained. Whereas Dr. Columbia University has said that only 10 grams of bran should be taken in adequate amounts will definitely preserve health, more than any other food. There are very few women who do not have the interested in preserving youthful appearance, but few realize that old age but one can prevent the signs of old age from appearing by eating the right foods. To enjoy a healthful and active life for a healthful and active life for a long time is the selection of foods.

It was stressed to the class that one must be interested in good food for a week or a month and then revert back to the old careless habits and expect good results. Recipes will be published and carried on as regularly as we carry out the lessons.

Most mothers would be quite embarrassed if their children were to ask for candy, nuts, teeth or ears but how many of them realize the harm which they give to the child and which is his basic need. The public schools are certainly doing something about it, but not see but after a period of years visited the School for Leisure and appear. It is to prevent ill health and the Red Cross is undertaking health education in forming nutrition classes. It is hoped that other groups of women will be interested in taking up such a course of study for their own and their families' welfare.

Nursing Class

The School for Leisure class in Home Nursing will begin the Red Cross course on Wednesday at the Y.M.C.A. with Mrs. G. J. Forster as instructor. Other classes are also being organized throughout the city for the study of Home Nursing methods.

CHATTERTON W. M. S.

The first meeting of the New Year of the Chatterton W. M. S. was held at the home of Mrs. J. H. Frederick on Tuesday Jan. 7th, 1936.

The meeting was preceded by a pot luck supper served to nearly 100 people, the proceeds amounting to $10.00 was very gratifying.

The meeting opened with quiet music. The President Mrs. Bleecker was in the chair and was followed by a hymn. Prayer was offered by Rev. Horton. Scripture reading by Mrs. F. Heasman followed by prayer in unison. A splendid paper on Temperance was given by Mrs. P. Campbell. Minutes were read and adopted. Roll call was answered by the suggestions for the Auxiliary for 1936. Reports of the various secretaries were given. Mrs. F. Lough, leader of Group 1 took charge. A hymn was sung. A reading by Mrs. R. Sayles was followed by a solo by Miss B. Bleecker and a reading by Mrs. F. Fluke. The meeting closed with the benediction. The attendance of twenty-two was very good. All are members hope to see as large an attendance at each meeting throughout the year.

Dog Lies Beside Suicide Grocer

Stratford, Ont., Jan. 9.—(CP)—With a shotgun near by the body of James H. Stewart, 55, grocer, was found at the rear of his store today a bullet wound through the mouth. A .22 calibre rifle was found near the body.

W. H. Whale who had gone into the store to make a purchase, made the discovery. Stewart had lived alone for many years and so far as known had no near relatives. Coroner Dr. M. Fraser decided no inquest was necessary. W. G. Brown of Leamon said to be a cousin, was notified.

EXCESSIVE LOYALTY A HANDICAP!

(By Lisa Ornelle)

Young Susie was a faithful little soul. Whatever she changed. Those she liked on Monday she liked on Tuesday and Friday, Alfie, Malmie Adams was her best friend; seven years later, Malmie Adams was still her best friend. Susie especially as she grew older, did not make new friends easily or liked her old one's best and all the time.

But Adelaide was a different proposition entirely. She was as fickle as Susie was faithful. Her great enthusiasms on Monday were by Wednesday tossed into the scrap. Between five and twelve Adelaide had a hundred friends. She was her choice always, or even often, was not entertaining. Sometimes Adelaide's friends were as desirable as her parents could have wished; others were quite the reverse.

Adelaide's fickleness, however, cannot be charged with the obvious answer that it was incurable lightness of character that it was unstable and disloyal.

Richest Experience

Adelaide changed her friends rapidly because she herself was changing rapidly. She became dissatisfied with them, and, being an outgrew them, because she was curious, impatient, eager for new experiences and at seeking them, was a child, knows instinctively, people are the richest experience.

Adelaide was learning wisdom and through her long string of friends. Especially, perhaps, did she learn from her less fortunate ones.

She was learning how to get along with all manner of people, every kind of temperament. She was absorbing valuable lessons in adjusting friends to various phases of life.

But she was forming also a dangerous habit. She was getting always something new and exciting from others and was becoming dependent on the stimulus of change. People that she never got bored her just because she knew them well?

It's always the case, both ends of the stick are bad. Both Susie's and Adelaide's inadequacies applied to extreme, must end in tragedy.

Loyalty is a fine thing, but even so praiseworthy and sound a virtue can become a handicap.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S LEGION

The regular meeting of the Young People's Legion was held on Wednesday evening with the president, Mr. Eric Naylor, in charge. After singing the hymn, "O Perfect Love" On Earth Do Dwell." Mary McCoy offered prayer. Miss Irene Young read the Scripture portion from Psalm 37, Thirty-four were present throughout the evening.

The Fellowship Group were in charge of the business session with Mr. Jack Green, the speaker for the evening, took all present on a thrilling dream trip to the mission stations in South Wales, where Mr. Green had employed before coming to Belleville. During the evening Mr. Reg. Wardle gave two musical selections and Miss Glenys Green offered two delightful readings. A prize for the contest was won by Donald Reynolds.

After the usual social half hour the meeting was closed with prayer by Miss Nellie Collins.

You Must Relax To Maintain Beauty

Rosemary DeCamp

This pretty radio star works hard but enjoys it

(By Helen Follett)

When life is a frantic scurry of activities the feminine countenance takes on tense lines. Frowns appear to be tranquil. Women look along, but not very hard, shoulders pushed forward. What's the idea? There's lots of time! One needs only to arrange one's daily affairs and take them as they come.

The highly-energized woman may have a reputation as a dynamic character, but she's not a very restful companion. Nerves gone to pot, lot of time. If she keeps up the hectic pace she will be the victim of exhaustion, and relaxation is necessary if one is to keep youthful in spirit and beauty. Armied with the day's activities she falls into bed with her mind in a state of confusion, nerves yowling for release, and sleep. She tumbles, tosses about, crawls out in the morning looking like the breaking up of a hard winter.

There's such a thing as working calmly and restfully. It is a part of the beauty constitution—of its laws.

PRESENTATION

On Thursday evening of last week a large number of friends and neighbours gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Mundry, 5th line of Rawdon, and presented their son Gordon and his bride with a beautiful library table and floor lamp. An address was read expressing the esteem in which the young couple are held and wishing them much joy and happiness throughout their married life. The groom made a very suitable reply thanking all for their gifts and kindly expressions of appreciation and inviting them to call upon them in their new home.

They were given three hearty cheers and all sang "For they are jolly good fellows".

Rev. Canon W. G. Swayne acted as master of ceremonies in his usual capable manner. The evening was spent very pleasantly in games, community singing, dancing etc. Readings were given by Miss Ida Vance and Miss Edna Bird. A bountiful lunch was served by the ladies.

The address was as follows:—

Harold, Jan. 2, 1936.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Mundry.

Having learned of your recent marriage, we, your friends and neighbors, have met to spend a social evening with you and do honour to you before you settle in your new home.

You, Harold, have spent your boyhood days among us, and we have indeed been glad to have you in school and university. We couldn't let this momentous event in your life pass without showing in some slight way our appreciation for you, as we have always found you a true friend, and we feel that because of your sterling worth you will make friends wherever you may go.

To you, Marion, we should say we hope soon to be better acquainted and we ask you to accompany his best wishes for your future happiness in your new home.

As a slight token of our esteem and good will towards you both, we ask you to accept these gifts also our best wishes as expressed in these lines;

We wish good health to stay with you,
And things to waken laughter,
And should some days be dark and rainy
We wish you sunshine after.

We wish enough of wealth for you To keep you free from worry, And time to fold your hands and rest In times of care and hurry.

And then we wish each coming day To bless you, as it meets you, And finally we ask of you Think often of these friends, who greet you.

Signed—Lorne Hagerman, John Courtney, Lindsay Tanner.

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE BELLE

"Scandal Scotland"

Stars World Famous Laugh Team

When Laurel and Hardy unwittingly enlist in a Scottish regiment about to embark for India, the fun begins in their latest M.G.M. comedy, "Bonnie Scotland", showing at the Belle theatre tonight and tomorrow. And when Stan and Ollie, with others of their outfit, impersonate high officers upon the occasion of their visit to the Khan of Oaseer, tribal chieftain, the hilarity reaches its height.

Involved in Intrigue

In the first place, imagine, if you will, Messrs. Laurel and Hardy as kilted Tam picture them involved in intrigue in the bandit-infested desert stretches of far away India. In no other picture in which they have appeared have they enjoyed such a gloriously strange background for their antics.

Aided and abetted by his warm friend and counsellor, Mr. Hardy Stanley McLaurel (known to Scotland to claim his share of a fortune left by an uncle he never met) Stanley's portion of the legacy is revealed as worthless parchment. Then, as the picture opens, Stranded in the same country, the boys inadvertently enlist—signing indictment papers and before they realize it are officers in the 71st Regiment of Scotch Highlanders and are off to India for desert patrol duty.

There's Romance Too

A romance involving pretty Lorna McLaurel (June Lang), a Scotch lassie and Jeffrey Stanley (William Janney), a barrister's clerk, is woven into the story.

Among others in a really notable supporting cast are Anne Grey, Vernon Steele, Jimmy Finlayson, Ted Adams, Forrest, Maurice Black, Daphne Pollard, Mary Gordon and Dorothy.

"Bonnie Scotland," unquestionably one of the most entertaining pictures of the season, with Messrs. Laurel and Hardy have yet appeared, comes to the Belle theatre tonight and tomorrow, commencing tomorrow (Saturday), matinee daily.

King Solomon of Broadway

"King Solomon of Broadway" Universal's musical comedy drama of the Great White Way, which is now starring Edmund Lowe and featuring charming Dorothy Wilson and Jimmy Trinish, is announced as the second feature attraction on the same program.

Lowe cast as the operator of a glamorous night club and dance hall on Broadway, which is reported by Louise Henry, Edward Pawley, Jack Mulhall, Arthur Hoyt, "Dutch" and other noted players.

The story concerns the adventures of Lowe as part owner of the dance palace, after he has given the place his security for a gambling debt. Such names as New York's "Public Enemy No. 1" enter into the greatest interest in the place. Lowe finds his position an embarrassing one, but manages to keep the night club place sure out to get him for being his security.

Gay music, including songs written by the talented Pinky Tomlin, Conrad and Lewis Klaibin, and sung by Miss Page, erstwhile radio singing star, plus plenty of comedy injected by Lowe and other characters al, go to make a production packed with interest and suspense. Giant Belle News reel will be exhibited on the same program. "The Mystery Squardon" and children's stage hour will be presented on the stage Saturday afternoon at 2.16 p.m.

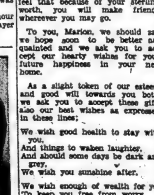
Two Wise Features

Lawrence Tibbett world's greatest baritone and lovely Virginia Bruce are featured in the romantic musical delight "Metropolitan," to be presented at the Belle tonight for the last times with Edmund Lowe and Jean Wilson in the laugh-crammed romantic comedy "Your Uncle Dudley", plus "Trained Hoofs," revealing our horrible and equine. The complete show starts at 6.30 p.m.

"To Beat the Band"

Two Age Hits, Melody and Fun "Waterfront Lady"

They play, sing and dance to RKO Radio's new musical, "To Beat the Band", and through all the comedy there runs a theme as old as night as the music itself. The whole production is a pot-pourri of melody and merriment.



Hugh Herbert and Helen Broderick have the leading roles. Herbert was never more perfectly cast than as the fuddy-duddy who falls heir to a vast amount of money but cannot get it unless he fulfills a most unusual provision in his benefactor's will. Miss Broderick, star of the New York stage, finds herself equally at home in the role of comedienne of her Broadway days. Rich-ard Cromwell, Frederick, and Ann Sothern, who enables him to cajole many chuckles.

Fred Keating has the part of a radio announcer.

Adding to an outstanding cast there's the musical organization known variously as The California Collegians who scored a musical hit in "Roberta". The five song numbers composed by Johnny Mercer and Matt Malneck; Ben Oakland created "To Beat the Band."

Also on the same program, "Waterfront Lady."

"Waterfront Lady" is a sensational melodrama in a romantic setting with comedy highlights, featuring Ann Sothern and Robert Armstrong as "Red", who brings her charm and vivacious to the screen for the first time, in this picture.

HEALTH and PSYCHOLOGY

By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D.

Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

Copyright, 1935,
King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Child training, no longer a hit-and-miss method, is based on exact science. Child training principles have been devised that can and should be mastered by every earnest parent.

The results full well that it is far easier to give advice on child training than to carry the principles into execution, no matter how sound they may be.

In the child we have an embryo being that can be trained just as surely as a plant or a tree to grow straight, bear more flowers or more fruit.

Sometimes parents think that child training is everything, that it takes too many newfangled notions. To hear the average parent exclaim talk would be apt to believe. Children did very well in the past, they claim, without so much fuss and science.

They have we so much unhappiness, discontent, nervousness and general maladjustment in the world today? Shoe a man or woman is merely a development of what he or she was as a child, is it not logical to assume that we would be far better off, physically, intellectually and spiritually, had we all had the advantages our child training has now made science now has to offer?

To be sure, in the olden days we had no such science. But now that we have it, when the best minds have worked on the problem, it is not our duty to give the benefits of the new knowledge to our children?

Don't for instance, baby and fuss over your child too much.

You should, on the contrary be allowed to enjoy the love of your child. Also, every child should have plenty of affection. But don't overdo it. Don't give so much that your child becomes a helpless querulous dependent.

Don't always give in to your child. Giving the little one his own way leads to trouble for you. It saves trouble. But only in the beginning will you find that you made trouble they can always come to you. If you are a father or mother, be the master, let him know that you never will fail to understand.

Time rules are but a few of those that parents should follow. I believe they cover the common-est errors of child training.

DR. BISCH'S DAILY START HINT

Diet for typoid patients should be planned with the utmost care. All foods should be bland and as digestible as possible. This may be supplemented with eggs soft-cooked, poached or scrambled, cooked cereal, oatmeal, and toast with a teaspoonful of butter.

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, Jan. 10 (AP)—The Stock Market closed today's session on the House of the Soldiers' Bonus Bill today without a quiver. Trading continued decidedly quiet. The generally firm tone which began at the opening of business was maintained. A wide assortment of steels, metals and industrials held or slightly extended early advances.

There were no conspicuously soft spots and the few losses were a few rather wide gains. Among these were Chrysler and Loew's.

Improvements up to a point or more included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, International Nickel, U. S. of N. J., Purdy Oil, Standard Oil of California, Montgomery Ward, Allied Chemical, Deere, Boeing and Douglas Aircraft.

The late tone was firm. Transfers approximated 1,500,000 shares.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, Jan. 10 (CP)—Senior golf clubs displayed a bullish tone in the early afternoon in Toronto Mining Market today with McIntyre selling up to 44½, showing a gain of nearly two points, Dome 5, up and Teck Hughes 13 cents up at 5.10. Secondary golds had been the mornings leaders and during the mid-day session pegmatites of the gains were forfeited.

Base metal issues advanced strongly in sympathy with strength of the metals on the New York Board. Copper and lead were up in London, another supporting influence. Hudson Bay touched a new high for recent years and gains were registered also by Falconbridge, Sudbury Basin and Sherritt.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Jan. 10 (CP)—A general upward trend was maintained by the Toronto Industrial Market throughout trading hours of more than recent weeks. The olls loomed up in the early action and British American Oil moved up to a new high for several years at 20¼ while Imperial Oil, Gas pipes and International Petroleum was heavy losing ½ to ¾.

Accepting New York's Market up, traders bought International Nickel actively and the gain advance more than a point on heavy turnover. Smelters were lower and barely steady. Distillery stocks were steady to strong on light turnover and Brazilian C.P.R. and Ford A were steady.

LIVESTOCK

Toronto, Jan. 9 (CP)—The Toronto Livestock Market presented a dreary aspect at the opening today with traders having little to do. There were no sales of cattle or lambs, the hog price, as usual was unsettled and there were no sheep or calves offered. A cattle holdover of 600 head swelled that division.

Receipts as reported by the Dominion Livestock Branch were: Cattle 70; calves, none; hogs, 30; sheep and lambs 220. Five lambs, all Western, had no sale in the early trading.

Weighty steers, butcher cattle and cows moved lower in draggy trading on the local livestock market yesterday. A light fresh run failed to speed up buying and some 400 head were still unsold when trading closed. Packers declined 50 cents per cwt., while sheep and lambs managed to hold steady with Tuesday's close. Receipts included 680 cattle, 360 calves and 160 sheep and lambs.

Cattle sales in the cattle mart included mixed and choice weighty steers at $6 to $6.35, and handyweight butchers at $4.25 to $5.75. The weighty steers were down about 25 cents on the week and the butchers down 25 cents. Butcher cows were 25 cents lower at $2.75 to $4.25, and the few bulls offered were steady at $3.25 to $4.35. Choice fed calves were also steady at $7.50 to $8.25.

The calf mart dropped 50 cents lower at $10 to $10.50 for choice. Common calves ranged downward to $5.50.

A small lot of lambs sold firmly at $11 per cwt. according to quality. Sheep were steady at $1.50 to $4.50 cwt.

TRANSFER BUFFALOES

Ottawa, Jan. 10.—(CP)— Twenty Canadian Buffalo cows are going to Montana in an effort to save the country's bison from extinction. Interior Minister Cowan disclosed today.

The Canadian Bison, living in the Wainright, Alta., Park will be distributed in Private Free State or Hamboung, Holstein and Brunswick where small herds of the Govern-bison exist.

Only 70 native European bison exist at present.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied by Biggar and Cranford by Financial Service.

Sullivan

Good results are being obtained from underground development at the Sullivan Consolidated Mines. One hole drilled from the second level in the main workings has yielded very high values, in one section the ore runs a ounces of gold per ton.

Very satisfactory results are also being had in the new southwest wheres the driving of a raise is approaching ore bodies. Plans for the management regarding the important possibilities of that new section. jl9

Paymaster

Two new directors have been added to the Paymaster Mines Board, Maj. Gen. D. M. Hogarth and Jos. Errington, the latter president of Little Long Lac Gold Mines Ltd., and both men being prominent figures in several producing mines. Both these gentlemen have acquired substantial interests in Paymaster.

According to a "street" rumour the management plans to reorganize the capital structure and reapitalize the stock one new share for three present shares. The latter has an issued capital of 6,850,000 shares.

Red Lake Gold Shore

The Company has sold 400,000 shares to net the treasury approximately $200,000. It is proposed to install a mill of 125 tons a day capacity.

Coral Patricia

December output estimated at between $90,000 and $95,000. This figure brings yearly output up to $775,000. The increased milling rate of 150 tons daily is scheduled to become effective February 1st.

Paymaster

Maj.-Gen. D. M. Hogarth and Jos. Errington having acquired substantial holdings in Paymaster have joined the board of directors.

Perron Gold

Milling operations are expected to be initiated within the next two weeks. Ore reserves are estimated at 300,000 tons of 0.13.50 to $14.00 ore.

Pickle Crow

The main vein has been cut at the 625-foot level. The crosscut intersection ran ₹30 across 3 feet. The 750-ft. level crosscut is expected to reach the vein in a week or ten days.

McKenzie Red Lake

Output in December was $64,000 as compared with $50,000 the previous month. Development work also progressed.

God's Lake

The drift on the 400-foot third level has a length of 76 feet in ore. The average width is 3.8 ft. and average grade is .69 on gold.

Despite the improvement in the building industry in the past eighteen months, total building in Canada today is still less than half of what is considered normal. There is a potential market for residences which should be in large measure supplied in the current year. Considerable study has been given to the prospects for the building industry and the investment position has been that this field is in line for a moderate boom.

An interesting point is called to attention. It may not be generally realized, but it is possible to obtain a yield of more than 5% on bonds or by purchasing a dividend-paying stock on margin. As an example and demonstration, let us take Bruck Silk, which at 16 on $1.20 annual dividends yields 7½%.

The purchase of 100 shares of Bruck Silk requires $1600. The margin requirements are 40%, leaving a debit balance of $1200 on which interest is charged at the rate of 5½% or $66.00 a year. Dividend income on 100 shares of Bruck is $120 a year, leaving a net income 100 shares has a profit of $51 a year which, on a $400 investment, is equivalent to 12¾% on the money. Thus, whereas by purchasing Bruck Silk outright the returns 7½%, on margin, the return is enhanced by 5½%. One advantage about outright purchase, of course, is that one need not worry about the margin.

Canada Cement Mismirades Satisfy Possible 1% Debt Charges

The Canada Cement Company Limited is listed as one of the companies the opportunities still existing for scaling down debt charges.

Of the $17,559,000 funded debt charges against this company on the basis of its fiscal year on November 30th last, all is redeemable at 104 on or before December 1st, 1937, and thereafter at 102, plus accrued interest in each case.

If all these bonds could be refunded at an average interest rate of 4 per cent. the annual interest cost would be about $680,000, compared with approximately $1,000,000 on the present basis. The record of the Canada Cement Company is so high with respect to such obligations that it seems logical to assume that it could easily refinance with ease. The management is also highly regarded.

U. K. CATTLE PRICES

Ottawa, Jan. 10 (CP)—The tendency of the cattle market at Kirkenbrad, England, this week was toward higher prices, according to cable advice received today by the Department of Agriculture.

Choice cattle sold from 13½ to 14½ cents per pound dressed weight, including offal, and supplies of this class were light. Medium grades were steady. Heavier weights were down from 11¼ to 12¼ cents.

Produce Prices on Montreal Market

Montreal, Jan. 10.—There was a steadier tone on the local egg market today, but no improved demand developing at week's declines. No further reductions were reported. Butter, cheese, potatoes and poultry were unchanged. Receipts were 1,000 cases of eggs, 1,000 cases of butter, 168 cases of eggs, 1,358 boxes of cheese and 1,000 sacks of potatoes.

On the egg market graded shipments in carlots or l.c.l. lots were 25-27c for A-large; 25-27c for A-medium; 24-25c for A-pullets; 23½c for A-firsts and 23c for C. Sales were being made at the minimums of the ranges given during the early part of the day and a stronger tone and the maximums was noted later.

The butter market was quoted all the way from 25½c to 26½c per lb. for No. 1 in carlots or l.c.l. lots.

Eggs Go Lower In Toronto

Toronto, Jan. 10.—The downward trend continued in local egg prices today, the trading again was quiet. One bright spot, however, was the fact that there was shown to did not seem to be as much pressure to sell as in previous sessions. There was no signs of a slight improvement in demand in late afternoon trading, however, as consumers which are being advertised extensively for the week-end trade are expected to pep up consumer demand a bit. Losses yesterday for eggs generally ranged to one cent per dozen, placing current prices at low levels for the current downward movement.

Trading in butter was dull and unchanged. No Ontario solids holding unchanged at 26 cents. There was no change in the old. I reported but demand seemed to be better for the under grades.

Lack of Ability to Finish Off Plays Saved Maroons

By A. E. FULFORD

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Black-thatched Johnny Gottselig went down in Red Dutilon's book to-day as an opponent, who must be checked to impotency the next time New York Americans meet Chicago Black Hawks. The 29-year-old Saskatchewan athletic wonder defence so successfully last night he scored all Chicago's goals in their 4-1 victory at Madison Square Garden.

Watching Gottselig perform the four-goal feat were 8,000 fans and Sweeney Schriner, the only other player, who has been a goal scorer nines in one game this season. The American's performance was hardly as spectacular as Gottselig's, as he stayed in in an early-season game against Toronto.

Gottselig's one-man show drove the Hawks within two points of New York Rangers in the American division second spot, and robbed the Americans of a chance to edge up Maroons and Canadiens in all-Canadian at Montreal in the only other National League game on last night's bill.

Howie Morenz, veteran Chicago centre, stole a bit of the Gottselig glory, when he assisted the Regina Cyclone on two of his goals. The other pair Johnny got all by himself. He split two between the first and second periods and added the other in the third.

Scores in Gang Fray

Schriner's line got the only American counter, which tied the score in the opening period after Gottselig's first goal. Then Johnny scored it with Schriner and Lorne Carr drawing assists from the gang play.

Lack of ability to finish off their plays robbed Canadiens of a victory over Maroons, somewhat crippled by an injury, that kept Allan Shields out of the game after he was injured through libel of manager Tommy Gorman. They had to shake out a pair scorned with Maroons' 17 but could do no more scoring than the Sir-ishy Cloak boiler.

Canadiens got their first break from Lorne Chabot-Goldworthy goal-tender in the first period, while each team was man short. Then Lionel Conacher, Gus Marker, Herb Cain and Bob Gracie played a game play, that ended with Gracie pokier the puck past Wilf Cude, Maroon goalie.

It was demonstrated, that even with rigid enforcement of the penalty ference rule teams can get along without too much whistle blowing. When Conacher and Mervyon Watson ed the first five minutes without a ron in over a penalty, necessitating, no change of the starting lines.

Canada's Hockey Team Still Without Victory in the East

Minus Several of Their Stars Were Defeated by Hamilton 6-3

Hamilton, Jan. 10—(CP)— Still without a victory in the east, Canada's Olympic hockey team moved down to Brockville today, working its way towards the Atlantic seaboard by defeating a local squad and performing any hair-raising feats.

Under-strength last night, when they faced Hamilton Tigers, the Olympians were bombed 6-3 by one of the O.H.A.'s better teams, but the squad, that will represent Canada at the Olympic games in Germany next month, was without Jackie Shiell, Pat Kitchen, Dave Neville, Hugh Farquharson and Arnold Dawson.

Jimmy Hagarty, playing in Regina, and will join the team at Garnish-Parkenbrichen. So the Tigers didn't beat an Olympic team at its best. But it represented what was placed in front of it decisively, outplaying the Olympians in every period.

Gottselig Shows Supreme Artistry In Scoring Spree

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, —Jan. 10.—(CP)— If they ever hurt Johnny Gottselig seriously in time to break him it is going to be just too bad for National Hockey League goalkeepers around the circuit.

Just about a fortnight ago some fellow playing goalkeeper gave the former Regina Pat Star a thorough going over. He was laid up ten days. But last night, after listening to Coach Clem Loughlin tell him to take it easy until he had fully recovered, the dashing left wingman of Chicago Blackhawks went on the Madison Square Garden ring and single-handed gave ew York Americans at 4-1 lacing.

Four Chicago counters were allied by the slender, black-haired Jazzphooter from the western Canada city and at times seemed as that would have slighted the souls of each old-time professional. Even as one of the artistic as Frank Mc-Gee, Dick Irvin, Maloney and Newsy Lalonde. Poor Little Roy Worters, the American goalie gentleman, thought so. Johnny, however, not even lay a hand anywhere near the puck that whistled into the cage.

Then crowd of 8,000 gave Gottselig one of the most rousing rounds of applause any visiting hockeyist has received from the fans since he had his second marker, which was the most spectacular and cunning scor on Garden ice in years.

Coming hot with the team for Chicago at midnight after suffering a sore back, pounded almost raw red by his enthusiastic teammates and friends.

ACE BAILEY ON SKATES AGAIN AS VARSITY MENTOR—Irvin "Ace" Bailey, former puck-chasing star of Toronto Maple Leafs, whose professional hockey career was terminated by a collision in Boston, is back in togs here on the skates once more. He is demonstrating to his University of Toronto squad how to form a goalie cup of position after carrying the puck in close. The net-tender is Holton Shipman, regular Varsity goalie. GRIFFO'S ROADWORK HELPED THE DOG

Roadwork to most boxers is one of the better methods of training. But to the famous Australian fighter, Young Griffo, it was taboo. He hated it.

When the famous Australian boxer was sent out to do 10 miles on the road he would return heavier than before he started. The trainer, scenting some irregularity, told Griffo to take his dog with him the next time he went on the road. He knew that if the running had been honest, the dog would be panting.

Griffo obeyed instructions and the first time, sure enough, both man and dog were panting when they returned. The second time neither one seemed distressed. The trainer's suspicions were aroused. He followed Griffo.

Once more Griffo was sent out with his four-footed companion. This time the boxer covered without the dog. But the dog was panting his head off.

So the next time Griffo went out, the trainer did some scouting. He discovered Griffo—sitting under a tree throw a stick for the dog to fetch.

Campbellford Players Eligible To Play With Local Squad

Team Remained as an Intermediate 'B' O.H.A. Entry

KNOWN AS "REDS"

Following communications with Secretary W. A. Hewitt of the O.H.A. through R. R. "Sandy" Bygrows, local member of the O.H.A. executive, Manager Eddie Mitchell informed he could use the same three Campbellford players who played for Belleville in the Kingston City League in O.H.A. competition in 1935 and Belleville would still be permitted to retain their intermediate "B" status in the O.H.A. this year.

Directly following the disbanding of the Campbellford Maroons, Master Thomas immediately contacted Mr. Bygrows and the O.H.A. executive to whether or not Belleville would be entitled to the use of the Campbellford players, two of whom lived only 13 miles from Belleville, in the Stirling. Subsequent information received was in the affirmative and the Belleville team has been permitted the services of goalie Don Morton, Harry Ingram and Thurgood Thomas. Whether or not these players will join the ranks of the locals has not been announced today, however, Ingram and Morton both being employed with Massey and team in the Centre League, but pre-season the services of Morton the Belleville has been granted, however, Manager Thomas today expected to contact these three players in relationship to continuing with the locals from where they left off in the Kingston loop. Belleville will still retain its interested-tate "B" grouping, Secretary Hewitt informed Manager Thomas last night.

Skipper Thomas agreed to play double schedule with Oshawa and Peterboro, both class intermediate A" teams in order to provide those cities with competition during the regular schedule season, however New bright red or scarlet uniforms were purchased by Manager Thomas for the locals and will be worn at Peterboro tonight, while the locals will be known as the Belleville "Reds" in 1936. Manager Thomas has two goalies for the flight's game in Peterboro' "Derby" Pettery and Don Morton, Ingram, East Mcdonald and Thurgood are the contending defencemen, while the first line will doubtlessly consist of Whitton, flanked by Carl and Pete Morgan. The remainder of the team is Bt. Louis, "Cy" Barrick, Larry Morgan and Jimmie McGuire.

STIRLING WINS OVER MADOC 4-2

Defeat Last Year's Champions on Own Ice

Madoc, Jan. 10 (Special)—On Wednesday, Stirling, the new entry in the Central League capably demonstrated their right to be challengers for the championship by defeating Madoc, last year's champions, on the latter's ice by the score of 4-2. The ice was in good condition and the game very fast.

The first two periods were fairly even but early in the third Madoc became discouraged and Stirling ran in three quick goals. The last ten minutes of the game were very fast and exciting with Madoc carrying the play by Stirling and Goalie Morton the latter expert work by Morton the s nile kept Madoc from tying up the score. The game was quite clean with Referee Adams handling out a few justly earned penalties.

The lineups:

Stirling: Goal Morton, Defence, Ingram and Tulloch, centre, Mott, wings, Wallace and Scully. Subs, Gerow, A. Fraser, Robinson and Rodgers.

Madoc: Goal, Nickle, defence Emberry and Don Whytock, centre Kelley, wing: Alexander and Akey. Subs, Row, Smith and Kincaid.

Referee: J. Ackers, Stirling.

Scores:

1. Madoc—Akey (Smith).
2. Stirling: Mott (Ingram).

Second period:

No score.

3rd period:

4. Stirling—Scully.
5. Stirling—Wallace.
6. Madoc—Row (Akey).

JOHNNY MUNRO BEST PLAYER

Queens University Team Defeated in Ottawa City League Fixture

Ottawa, Jan. 10 (CP)—Queen's University Golden Gaels, in their initial appearance on Ottawa ice surfaces in the Ottawa Senior City League fixture here last night. It was Queen's second defeat in as many starts. Johnny Munro was the outstanding man ahead, scoring twice and figuring on the goal scored by Art Stalibry.

The first period between Queen's University and the airmen was scoreless. After 14 minutes of the second frame had elapsed, however, Frank Jansen opened the scoring for Air Force on a somewhat lucky goal from far out and it was the opening signal for a free-scoring game.

The students were greatly handicapped as they were leg-weary after a long bus ride. They were held up at Smith's Falls on their way here as the highway had to be cleared after a day's snowfall.

NAPANEE GAINS 3-1 DECISION OVER TRENTON

First Game in Group Scheduled Played on Slushy Ice

WILSON DANGEROUS

Walt Gerow, Coach of Winners, Has Smart Squad

Trenton, Jan. 10 (Special)—The first game in a four game intermediate O.H.A. series opened here Thursday night between Trenton Whitials and the Napanee team with Napanee winning 3-1. The game did not commence till nineteirty as the Napanee team suffered a mishap on the way up. The first period opened at a fast pace with the fans on the Cain, Lanman and LaMorre of the Whitials wading right into the Napanee organization. R. Cain and H. Cain, Napanee, showed the many fans a lot of fighting spirit and was a dangerous man when in on the net throughout the entire game. With Mclaren changing all lines at both teams the boys loosened up and play seemed to turn to the offensive. Plenty of action was shown by the Whitials line of Miller and Smith, who time and again were in on Curris in the Napanee nets. About halfway through the period Wilson Dan, defence player of the Whitialls received a penalty for slightly body checking a Napanee player.

Although the Napanee team penalized frequently, their defence was off, they could not score and strange as it may seem their first goal right after Mitchel returned to the ice. Their first goal followed a scramble in front of the net by Mitchel, who had the puck in his possession for a few seconds, when him by K. Murphy, Napanee centre who in a scramble in front of the net Whitial net, and all the top of the net. Referee Davis rang the bell and players of both teams skated in centre ice for the face off but the goal judge stopped the proceedings until it had been decided that it had gone in. Whether or not this got the Napanee player's goal is not known but it appears that way, for right after face off by the side of the Whitial net K. Murphy was let the puck out to C. Jackson who skated in front for the first Napanee score.

Gives Inspiration

This goal seemed to give the Napanee boys inspiration and Lloyd Grey in the Whitiall net been phenomenal the score by the end of the period would have been much more. Action Plus, was shown by the Whitiall line of Cain, Lanman and LaMorre who opposed the line of J. Jackson, C. Jackson and H. Miller and Napanee. Each line all around these boys but could not score, when in position. The period ended with the score 2-0 for the Whitialls in the Napanee corner Referee Davis blew his whistle.

In the second period the Whitialls were more out-lucked than outplayed but time after time they failed in on Curris in the Napanee net and Miller and Smith in the Napanee fence for some time nothing could get through. Napanee's second goal in the first five minutes he led an attack on the Whitial goal to score their second goal of the evening. "Shanghai Rose"

By Anne Forester

Rose, too, could remember them—the heartaches of her lonely, tare-fraught childhood. There had been a willow tree at the foot of a long somewhere; she couldn't remember where. Only like wire the had been! went to rush blindly beneath its comforting fronds, hide her face in the earth, her small heart bursting with woe. She must not forget it. Million cold years, she vowed, above the fair little face in the wall, the enchantment of "setting up past six

Martha Harris was coming to sit with the child, and Rose had allowed her to wait up. This was church night for Lottie and Mr. Mertz; and Rose had promised to return and tend the little sleeper, which, on Saturdays, Lottie kept open until nines for the accommodation of the mill-workers and their wives.

"And myself," Lottie was wont to add, with a knowing grin. "Saturday night being pay-night, and me knowin' my beau! Why, say, if I was to leave them boys go over Sunday with all that money in their pants there'd not be a red cent left for poor Lottie to pay her rent. It's like Mr. Mertz says in that story about the undertaker: 'I got to catch 'em while the tear is in their eye'."

There was a sound of heavy bumping and the grind of brakes gallantly fighting a battle against injury to. Mr. Mertz, protesting and indignant over the fact of having arrived at the front door by the process of sliding the entire length of the garden path on his back, had returned from the church.

His pale brown derby had been replaced by a coon-skin cap of elegant proportions, the fur flaps framing his chestnut moustache like a frame, and his searing comments regarding the weather came forth in a mild stream that rounded out the picture complete.

It would take more than a mere snowstorm, Rose thought with a chuckle, to keep Mr. Mertz from his chance to drive his car. The mildest of men when on foot, Otto Mertz behind the steering wheel of his ancient flivver became himself in italics. Everything about him seemed to end in a flourish.... The curl of his blond hair during he beat the snow-dirt on. The ends of his neat necktie, looped rakishly at his throat. The very quirk to his little finger as he swung crisply down the street, the car taking the curb at an angle of 74 degrees.

Martha Harris, waving goodbye from the security of the little back porch, seemed to Rose the last link in a safe, sane world before she was plunged through space into the twilight world.

Mr Mertz never talked while driving. Lottie, in the front seat beside him, obediently augmented by a silence which, more than anything else, impressed Rose with the seriousness of the task. Rose, happily left her to the tenor of her thoughts....

Restless thoughts. Chaotic thoughts—suggested by the approach of Christmas again, the throng of old memories and new. It was, she thought, not for the first time of late, as though Harvey Therrold, in passing through her life, had taken with him all the sunlight and color she had ever known.

Little bits of the pattern of the new life stood out sharply from the rest. Harvey Therrold, driving past her on the highway all summer in his car; an hooked half-smile on her arrogant mouth, the trail of her friendly laughter flung back backward on the air.... Ursula, stopping abruptly when she met Rose on the street, with ostentatious deliberation to the opposite edge of the curb.... Jeffrey's impatient query of her warning about Dorothy—suddenly showing her that in criticizing one of the Tremont sons she criticized her, had overstepped! This had been the bitterest memory of all, Rose thought. How was she to know that it was the very shock of her disclosure about Barbara, which had prompted Jeff's reaction; of the amazed incredulity which had swept him, the fear that perhaps in spite of his scoffing denial, there might be truth in what she had said.... Rose had not seen him since that evening at Miss Abby's. He was in Leslie had informed her, on a visit to the capital—something about trouble at the mill. Riding bumpily through the drifts in the back seat of the little car, Rose felt again the old sick sense of defeat, the fierce, untamed desire to hurt this man as he seemed fervent just on hurting her. It infuriated her so—this trick he had of seeming to offer a flag of truce, seeming to want to be friends, even though it was a disarming sort of friendship.... and and then, without warning, retiring again behind the guarded, impersonal manner which so depressed and enraged her. It was so unfair, so bewildering. Enough the girl, grieving miserably from the windows of the little car.

It was snowing again, as it had snowed steadily most of the morning. Picket fences bounding the little village gardens leaning crazily under the weight of the piled-up drifts. Flakes, drifting relentlessly down over a strange white world of familiar contours, through which people walked with mirth-provoking uncertainty. Slipping and sliding, sprawling and helping one another to their feet, clothing frosted and shoes made cumbersome by the loose snow which resisted and clung.

They were slowing down before the lighted and steaming windows of Welch's Store. Lottie turned upon to face Rose with a smile.

"Don't bother—I'll pop in without any trouble!" Swiftly Rose opened the door of the car, and plunged breathlessly across the slippery walk. The flivver, polite to the last ditch, remained pantingly waiting by the curb until she was inside the store.

From the closed interior, as Rose opened the door, came a stifling sense of warmth and oppressiveness—compounded of the smell of wet rubber, the thick, acrid odor of damp woolen goods and the entire absence of fresh air.

Gasping, she threw off her rain-coat, throwing up the windows Lottie never remembered to leave open, gratefully breathing the sweet wet air before turning to unlatch the front door and light the lamps. With her hand on the doorknob Rose stopped as one arrested in flight—all of her focused on a scene just enacted before her eyes.

Mr. Mertz, flourishes nicely to the fore, had successfully negotiated the turn in front of the store, and was heading back to town in the flivver. On instant there crept from the direction of the opposite fence a limousine which the watching girl in the window recognized at a glance as belonging to Burton Therrold. A limousine empty of occupants, but having for a driver no less a being than Austin Deering himself. Austin Deering, driving the heavy car, with a reckless and deliberate burst of speed.

The flivver swerved sharply to one side, the fender on the right side coming in sharp and splintering contact with a hydrant near the fence. Rose had a horrified glimpse of Lottie's round blue eyes, of Mr. Mertz' contorted face as he hinkily hopped to the curb. But before he could run back the big car had backed swiftly off, turned the corner in the swirling snow and was gone.

"Fondly the fender—" Rose could hear Lottie's soothing voice. Hear Mr. Mertz's heart-broken wail, as he climbed stiffly back into the car and continued on to town.

But Austin Deering had he but known it, had made an enemy. One who was to defeat, in the very moment of its consummation, the most daring of the myriad-headed schemes of his career....

And half an hour later, Rose Therrold, standing in the shadows of Lottie's tiny back room, looked up to see Austin Deering himself bowing to her from the doorway of the store!

(CHAPTER 31.

"Hello, Rose!"

Casually insolent, deliberately insulting—the voice of Austin Deering spoke the words. As, advancing slowly down the centre aisle of the little store, he faced the girl standing rigid in the doorway of the room at the rear.

"How do you do?" The voice of Rose Therrold, struggling thickly from the vice which seemed closing about her heart. Someone, she noted with a wild sense of relief, was coming into the front part of the store. Someone.... only a customer needed respite.

Her second swinging back from the shock of this unexpected encounter, rallied with difficulty to the task of administering to the customer's wants. Merely a swarthy mill-worker, demanding a sweater; this to Rose he looked a veritable god. Panic, beating in sick waves against her consciousness, seemed to engulf her anew. It had happened—this dreadful meeting with this man. He was here, waiting for her ....wanting to talk to her again....

If only Larry would drop in—but Larry was out of town again. Nonsense, thought the girl, with a wrenching effort at control.. what did it matter—what could Austin Deering say to her that would matter any more? It was the memor-

Tantor watched while the ape-man knelt beside the prostrate girl. Tarzan had thought her dead, but he discovered that she was only in a swoon. He placed off into the jungle, making a path for Tarzan and the girl.

Tantor, the elephant, halted at last upon the bank of a considerable river. Twining his trunk around their bodies, he lifted the two gently to his broad back. Then he waded into the river and set out for the opposite shore. Here again, he went ahead making trail.

At last, when he broke into a broad, well-marked game trail, Tarzan took the lead and Tantor followed. When Zora Driver opened her eyes, she realized that her cheek was not pressing against a shaggy coat, but against the smooth skin of a human body.

What was it made her heart flutter in this cold, sickening way—she, so long accustomed to the hostile audiences of the tank towns, to the insults of Billy Scalzini's cabaret.

"Not so fast, my Rose. Aren't you going to ask me to sit down? Thanks—I'll sit here. You and I have one or two things to talk over."

"Now, look here—if you've come here to bother me, Captain Deering —" Rose began hotly.

The man raised an arresting hand, without warning gripping her wrist lightly in her side; the cold eyes boring relentlessly into the depths of her own.

"POCKET" GLIDER SOVIET INVENTION—While interested spectators looked on, a flier at Central Aerodrome, in Moscow opened a large suitcase and took out a mass of special, waterproof fabric weighing about 33 pounds. Before their astonished eyes he pumped it for about 15 minutes. The result was an aeroplane glider 50 feet long with a wing spread of 26 feet. BELOW is the material as it is unpacked. On TOP is the glider, ready to be manipulated by the winds. It is easily controlled in the air.

NICE AND PEACEFUL FOR REYZLAFF NOW—Pitching hay and feeding stock on his North Dakota farm constitutes the only training of Charlie Reizlaff for his fight with Joe Louis in mid-January. The Leonard, N.D., batter may be doing quite a bit more than the pitching when he gets into the ring with Detroit's slugger. But anyway it's nice and peaceful where Charlie is here.

LET THIS BE A WARNING TO YOU!—Let this be a warning to those who skate where the ice may be none too thick. Though this took place at Putney Heath, England, the story it tells is good anywhere. It shows a skater who disregarded warnings and fell through the ice. He is being rescued by another skater.

G. A. KINGSTON OF CAMPBELLFORD DIES SUDDENLY

Was Editor And Publisher of Campbellford Weekly Herald Since 1904

BORN NEAR STIRLING

At One Time Teacher of Languages in High School

Campbellford, Ont., Jan. 11 (CP)—George A. Kingston, editor and publisher of the Campbellford Weekly Herald since 1904 and former Mayor of the town, died suddenly at his home late last night. He was 64 years old.

Mr. Kingston appeared to be in the best of health during the day. He died almost instantly from a heart attack.

Born in Sidney Township, he was a graduate of public and high school in Stirling and taught public school in the County of Hastings for three years, the last year at Tweed. He studied at Victoria College, the University of Toronto and graduated in 1898 in Modern Languages. He taught languages in Campbellford High School for seven years. About the year 1904 he bought the Campbellford Herald, which he has published ever since.

Surviving are his widow and four children, Wilbert, Campbellford; Ethel and Muriel, all at home and one sister, Theresa Dunnett of Stirling, Mrs. Kingston was formerly Miss Belle Armstrong of Campbellford.

The late George A. Kingston was a prominent Oddfellow and was a past district deputy grand master of the I.O.O.F., a past noble grand of Golden Rule Lodge, A.F. and A.M. Campbellford, and a past principal of Izak Chapter of the Royal Arch Masons.

For a time he was interested in Holstein cattle, a very large herd of which he owned.

He was a very active member of the United Church and was held in respect by all persons.

The funeral, under Masonic auspices, will be held here Monday, conducted by Rev. Harold R. Neil of St. John's United Church. Interment will take place in Mount Pleasant cemetery.

PLAN REACHED TO LINK AIRLINES

Will Serve 215 Cities in The United State And Canada

New York, Jan. 11.—(CP)—An agreement linking 20 of the 23 domestic airlines of the United States into a unified air express system, serving 215 cities in this country and Canada, has the approval of the interested transport companies and the railway express agency.

The new system, which has completed yesterday, affords air-express users their first direct link with the extensive railway express service operated for years by Pan-American Airways. Ground and air planes are said to be embraced by the agreement.

Two of Gilbert's Ex-Wives Attend Funeral of Actor

Hollywood, Jan. 11 (AP)—Two of the four women dashing John Gilbert wooed and married were among the more than 100 mourners invited to funeral services for the 38-year-old actor in the Wee Kirk o' the Heather Chapel today.

They were Virginia Bruce and Leatrice Joy, both actresses, and each the mother of a daughter by Gilbert, "handsome Jack," lead of the screen's "great lovers", who died on Thursday of a heart attack.

Friends kept the place and hour of intermment secret and arranged with Beverly Hills police for a cordon of 25 officers to guard the mortuary and direct away the curious. The action was taken to avoid mob scenes such as attended the funerals of Rudolph Valentino and Lilyan Tashman.

The bulk of Gilbert's estate, estimated at "around $400,000", was expected to go to his fourth and last wife, Miss Bruce.

NEWS BRIEFS AND ODDITIES

Washington, Jan. 11 (CP)—Terrell Maverick, 11 year old daughter of Representative Maverick (Democrat, Texas), also knew what President Roosevelt didn't eat two cookies served him at the 250 Jackson Day dinner.

The lucky lassie who attended the President gave her the two cookies saying "here's a present from Mr. Roosevelt, I've had three."

She thanked the waiter, took them home, fed into one and "promised myself I'd save one and eat them some day," "I didn't like the taste," she said.

Trenton, N.J., Jan. 11 (CP)—The man who "fires the gun" likes to give the signal for the cancellation of Mr. Roosevelt's trip every Friday night begins the day with a song. Col. Mark Bradbrook, Democratic state chairman, has made it a daily habit for many days to sing "I didn't like the taste," he said.

"It always makes me feel better," he said today. "To whistle and sing are relaxing. Perhaps it is because of their usefulness to the musician of my own making that I enjoy them so much."

The habit, he said, is a heritage from his days in the army.

Chicago, Jan. 11" (CP)—Chas. Sigan, 10, was free today to make a twenty woman his seventh wife, he said in his latest divorce suit. Ruth St. Sigan, 23, were divorced yesterday. Mrs. Sigan is singer under the name of Pat O'Connor. Married only 10 days, Sigan were divorced in September, 1934, and then remarried the next month. Mrs. Sigan charged him with habitual cruelty and mental cruelty. She said, she charged cruelty in her petition.

She explained that Sigan had previously married Everett and remarried two other women.

Hollywood, Ont., Jan. 11 (CP)—Head Office John Miller will keep right on living where he was born if he has anything to say about it. He has refused a bonus of $1,000 offered by his father beside the hotel she was waiting. As she turned away from the proffered money she told him angrily and passionately of his face. She marched walked away with the girl and Miller had two children put in his lap.

Hollywood, Calif., Jan. 11 (AP) —As a movie star now 11 today, the best actresses are not actresses—they're ladies, Shirley Temple declared.

"The girls who stand behind ribbon counters in millinery shops or wherever selling is done, do more and better work than the girls that picture stars do," said Janet Gaynor.

"I ought to know.

She said shoes in San Francisco during the strike stalling in Hollywood.

St. Thomas, Ont., Jan. 11 (CP) —A youngster who didn't stop to give his name after he had driven his sleigh ride of his life, when he ran into a motor car, collided and escaped unhurt. The car was damaged, but the left fore wheel of the sleigh on. He flattened himself when he saw neither he nor driver of the car was hurt, but he thought he ran under the car from front to rear, escaping by inches from under the rear bumper.

Pasadena, Calif., Jan. 11 (CP) —Mrs. M. Pedmail came home from church today to find Pedmail, her new amusement, there stood her radio.

Last Oct. 11, when she came home from church she found that he had been there and her radio was gone.

Hanging on the front of the radio today, Mrs. Pedmail found a card. It read: "I'll be back soon. I have been saved."

Augusta, Ga., Jan. 11 (CP) — Pills purporting to be a cure for all medicine have put Allen, four-time circus elephant, on her feet again.

Allen's keepers recognized that her declining decided her spirits as well as her appetite and began pill-pilling.

Allen was transferred from her winter quarters, a cotton warehouse, to a "little big top" where she is being exhibited as an added feature. Last Hin it was circus day, Allen's keepers worked up and now Allen is on the road to recovery.

CRIMINAL COURT ACTION DEPENDS ON GIRL'S WILL

Mayhem Charges Will Be Laid Against Mother if Girl Signs Papers

HEIRESS EXCITED

At Press Conference Girl Asks If Case Big as Lindbergh Scoop

San Francisco, Jan. 11—(AP)—Criminal charges in the sterilization of Ann Cooper Hewitt, 17-year-old heiress, sounded today upon the girl's signing compatibility against her socially prominent mother Mrs. Marvon Hewitt McOster, and the surgeons who performed the operation.

Mrs. Dra. Samuel C. Boy and Tilton E. Tillman.

Samuel Fourtner, Assistant District Attorney, said he would take mayhem complaints if the girl would sign them.

Mrs Hewitt's attorney, Russell Tyler, said his client who brought suit against her mother and the surgeons for $500,000 damages for filling of criminal charges was up to law enforcement officials.

She charged her mother duped her in an alleged plot to gain eventual control of the Hewitt estate, her wealthy father, the late Peter Cooper Hewitt.

Mrs. McCarter said the operation was necessary because of the girl's abnormal mental condition, a disputed point in the case.

Miss Hewitt, interviewers she had always dreamed of having babies of her own but did not believe in adopting children. Her own mother, she said, "had never loved me."

Some day she wants to marry "the right man" she has not met, she said along, a man who must be "kind and considerate" above all else. She said she could support herself as a wife should.

She was elated at a press conference.

"Is this really a scoop?" she asked. "Is it as big as the Lindbergh scoop?"

P. E. ISLAND IS WITHOUT GOV'T

With Death of Premier Members of Cabinet Lose Status

Charlottetown, Jan. 11.—(CP)—Prince Edward Island was without a government today, with the death yesterday of Premier Walter M. Lea yesterday, members of the cabinet automatically lost office and offices status and resigned.

The funeral will be held later in the day to Victoria where services will be held Sunday afternoon at the United Church before burial.

Recorder Advises Work in Woodpile

Montreal, Jan. 11.—Next time Judge Lamothe sends a vagrant who gets the better of him and he feels out of sorts, he recommends to break the house furniture he will make a fresh start in the court that her husband was sending to their furniture store.

"Whenever he gets into one of these tempers," she said, "he grabs the chairs and hurls them through the door. Every time he's furniture we have has been thrown about at different times."

Former Medical Student Wins Ovation at His Debut at "The Met"

New York, Jan. 11 (AP)—Giuseppe Bentonelli or just plain Joe Benton if you're from Oklahoma, brought a Metropolitan opera audience to its feet cheering last night in his debut on 48 hours notice.

It was "Great Samaral" for Bentonelli who got the tenor role in Mascagni "Amico" because lower-ed Richard Crooks was taken suddenly ill of a throat infection. His "Depart, Pal: Vision" solo in the third act which he announces Lauzon to enter the priesthood brought a lengthy ovation.

At the end of the act, reluctant and finally pushed into the stage box by the governing Lorrela Pons who sang Manon, Bentonelli was applauder at length. Then only did Richard Crooks' name appear.

Ramsay MacDonald Nominated for Seat In House of Commons

London, Jan. 10.— (CP-Cable)— Former Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald and two other candidates were officially nominated today for the vacant Scottish Universities seat in the House of Commons.

MacDonald, now Lord President of the Council in the National Government, will be opposed by Prof. Dewar Gibbs, Scottish Nationalist, and D. Cleghorn Thomson, Labor. Result of the voting will be declared Feb. 6.

The vacancy resulted from the death of A. Noel Skelton, Conservative, a few days after the general election of Nov. 14. Premier Stanley Baldwin and MacDonald lost his seat at Seaham in the general election.

MIGUEL COMEZ IS LEADING IN CUBA

New President Would be Friendly to The United States

Havana, Jan. 11.—(AP)—Miguel Mariano Gomez, Machilan candidate, assumed, the lead today in returns from the Republic's first election of a subsitutional president.

Gomez, mayor of Havana, was the former husband of Zoila Casuso, who charged with bribery in which he was acquitted in September, 1934, and closer ties to the United States under his administration.

Elections were marked by scattered violence in which at least two persons died.

The latest returns showed:

207 of the 5,111 precincts in the Republic:

Gomez	28,216
Machado	17,125
Carlos de Cespedes	245

MRS. BANNISTER TO BE QUESTIONED

Baby Found in Home Believed to be Missing Child

Moncton, Jan. 11—(CP)—A baby girl lying in the home of Mrs. Mary Bannister, mother of the two youths held on charges of murder, was found to be believed by authorities to be the missing six-months-old daughter of Mrs. Gladys Wilson of Lake. The baby girl was identified by relatives and friends.

A number of Liberal members of the legislature, which in its case means all the members of the legislature, will be held early next week to chose a new leader.

It is said there will be held this afternoon, members of the legislature attending the funeral of the late premier of Trinity United Church, will conduct the service.

The funeral will be held later in the day to Victoria where services will be held Sunday afternoon at the United Church before burial.

"JAFSIE" LEAVES AS HAUPTMANN MAKES FINAL BID

Journeys to South America Prior to Execution Date of Bruno

LADDER REQUIRED

Majority Vote Rule But Governor Must Vote With Majority

(By Samuel G. Blackman)
(Copyright, 1936, by the Associated Press)

Trenton, Jan. 11 (AP)—William Conklin, prus aide to Governor Hoffman, said today the Governor had left for Florida. The Governor, who left the country last night, is taken into custody for questioning.

Conklin said the Governor would instruct Attorney General David T. Wilentz to take such action against Bruno Richard Hauptmann into executionary regardless of the action of the Court of Pardons.

Conklin's statement for special reasons the Governor has given an interview in which he said in reference to a magazine article by Condon:

"He makes the flat statement that more than one person was involved in the kidnaping and he says he will write he knew two of these involved. If Dr. Condon knows these things he owed the authorities should have the information.

TRENTON, N.J., Jan. 11.—Bruno Richard Hauptmann did desperately for life today as Dr. John F. Condon, the aged schoolmaster, who testified against him, eyed South American travel.

With Col. Charles A. Lindbergh included in the cortege at the funeral of the famous intermediary "Jafsie" on a neighborhood steamer, the two most damaging witnesses against the Bronx carpenter were out of the United States as his attorneys acted his escape from the electric chair.

Gov. Harold G. Hoffman notified the other members of the State Court of Pardons to be ready to begin consideration of Hauptmann's plea for mercy at 10:30 a.m. E.S.T.

The Governor, president-judge of the Court, whose attitude toward Hauptmann was believed more favorable to Colonel Lindbergh's departure for Great Britain, said of Condon's trip:

"This is highly significant in view of Dr. Condon's actions and statements since the Flemington trial."

Attorney General David T. Wilentz, however, declared "Jafsie's trip is the business of nobody.

"I saw no reason why he should not go," Wilentz declared. "I see no reason now."

Dr. Condon, who paid $50,000 ransom in the Lindbergh baby kidnapping to a man he identified as Hauptmann, sailed for Los Angeles from New York on the steamer Santa Rosa last night. Lindbergh conferred from a magazine article by Condon, part of a story entitled "Jafsie Tells All".

"I believe it is highly important," said Governor Hoffman who requested the document.

The latest article of the series in the magazine tells how Dr. Condon became involved in the kidnapping. It is followed by a future article will tell whether Hauptmann is guilty.

Knows Nothing of Defence

Governor Hoffman reiterated his sole interest is "to make sure justice is served, professed know nothing in advance of what the defense would present at the Pardon Court hearing Monday and understood Fidavits by persons, who had interviewed across the investigation stage "would be offered in an effort to show new evidence."

These were presented to be signed by:

Gaston B. Means,some time agent of the United States Department of Justice convicted of obtaining money under false pretenses from Evalyn Walsh MacLean of Washington and Miss Jennette who contacted the kidnappers and paid the ransom.

Sequels Ladder

John Hughes Curtis, Norfolk, Va., boat builder, convicted in Flemington of constructing ladder through which he could contact the kidnapper. He was released on bail and set off the Atlantic Comm.

Thomas F. Hise, former Department of Justice Agent who tells a story of hearing men in a house hold discuss plans for the kidnaping a few days before it was carried out.

Defence counsel were reported to have held a private conference last night but all of them maintained

BAKER INSTRUCTS IN BUTTERMAKING

Well Known Creamery Instructor Succeeds to Dairy School Post

Kingston, Jan. 11—The Instruction Staff appointed for the Winter Course in Dairying at the Eastern Dairy School comprises:

Mr. H. B. Sandwich, Instructor in Dairy Bacteriology and Chemistry.

Mr. J. F. Robinson, Instructor in Cheesemaking.

Mr. C. W. Bowman, Instructor in Culture, Hand Separators, and Dairy Engineering.

Mr. J. L. Baker, B.S.A., Instructor in Buttermaking.

Mr. W. H. Mitchell, Engineer and Assistant Cheesemaker.

Instruction in the science and methods of dairying subjects pertaining to dairying will be given by the Superintendent.

Retirement of Mr. J. A. Craig

After long years of faithful service as Instructor in buttermaker at The Eastern Dairy School, Mr. J. A. Craig is about to retire and enjoy his well earned superannuation. Mr. Craig has been connected with the School since November 1903. Few men can equal Mr. Craig's record for making the highest quality butter. In 1922 he won first prize and gold medal at the International Dairy Show in Glasgow. As a maker of "Dairy School" his success may also be attributed to the fact that he rigidly observed the motto "Quality First". His retiring with the long service of any member connected with the Dairy School Staff. His kind, quiet personality will be greatly missed.

Appointment of Mr. J. L. Baker, B.S.A., as Instructor of Buttermaking in The Eastern Dairy School, Kingston

Mr. J. L. Baker, B.S.A., has been appointed Instructor in Buttermaking at The Eastern Dairy School for the Winter Courses in Dairying following the retirement of Mr. J. A. Craig. Mr. Baker is a graduate of dairying from The Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph. He is well known in the butter industry of Eastern Ontario having been Creamery Instructor in the Belleville and Kingston territory for the past six years.

Refuse Application to Abandon Railway Line

Ottawa, Jan. 10.— (CP)— The Board of Railway Commissioners for Canada has given its approval to the application of the Canadian National Railways to abandon the railway line from Port Hope, Ont., to Peterborough, 36.28 miles, but has given the public here last night, the length of line on which the company would be relieved, to 28 miles.

It was shown in 1934 the railway had a deficit of $21,095 in operation of the system. Gross revenue was $21,095 and total expenses $48,208.

Roosevelt Amends U.S. Diplomatic Code to Keep Peace Among Wives

Washington, Jan. 11 (AP) — To help peace among the wives of United States Diplomatic Corps, President Roosevelt has issued an order deciding a question of long standing.

At issue was the question:

How much latitude is allowed a chief of mission abroad in choosing the "official hostess" for a social affair if he happens to be a bachelor or his wife is away at the time and the diplomatic set to act for them.

This has aroused jealousies among the wives of other members of Legation or Embassy staffs.

The President issued "an amendment to the instructions to diplomatic officers of the United States.

Representing a signal victory for bachelor diplomats and bachelor attaches, the order said:

"Hostesses in missions:

"In the absence of the wife of the head of a diplomatic mission, only the cabinet member or other of the head of the mission or the wife of the counselor or highest ranking secretary having a wife present at the post may act as hostess for the head of the mission."

Actual Slaying Termed A "Pure Accident" by Magistrate at Hearing

Two Committed For Conspiracy And Two as Accessories

WOMAN COMMITTED

Laura Cote, Said to Have Driven Killer From Ottawa to Cedars

Hull, Que., Jan. 11 (CP)—Magistrate Roland Millar today committed to stand trial on charges of conspiracy to murder Dec. 4 of Armand Nadeau, 18-year-old clerk of the Banque Provinciale de Canada here.

The six will stand trial for murder are: Joseph Rochon, 49-year-old Ottawan; Paul Lamarche, 21-year-old Hull native of the bank and driver of the car in which Nadeau was slain; Georges Chenier, 21, bank clerk at the bank; Jean O. Beauseiel, 23, clerk, who replaced Nadeau at the bank; Charles Donnelly, 37, the Cedars, Que., driver of the car in which the slain Miller, Nathan Marin, was said to have ridden; Edmond Lalonde, Montreal, who had obtained the services of Martin for the holdup.

The magistrate dismissed charges against Ernest Gelon, Allan Journet of Montreal, the same did not appear in the evidence.

Two For Conspiracy.

He committed to stand trial on charges of conspiracy to commit an indictable offence, Laura Cote, 30-year-old housekeeper of Hull merchant, and George Potvin of Hull, the man she said drove Lamarche and Lalonde out of the city after the murder.

Magistrate Millar committed Laura Cote, 30-year-old friend of Rochon, on a charge of being an accessory after fact. This was one of the charges the crown suggested yesterday might be laid against her. She allegedly drove Martin from Ottawa to the Cedars after the slaying.

He committed Julian "Chappy" Chapdelaine, neighbor of Rochon, on the same charge. Chapdelaine was said to have thrown a revolver into the Ottawa River and a leather coat into which the bank's money was carried into a lumber yard near his home.

The magistrate announced laying of second charges against Lamarche, Beauseiel and Rochon, the latter two charged with having planned the robbery.

In his address the magistrate described the slaying as a "pure accident". He said, however, that accident, in his opinion, did not relieve those he committed on the charge of conspiracy from their part in a fake-holdup without obtaining cooperation of Martin in the plan. Without him, the plan called for a genuine holdup.

"There is sufficient evidence against these six," he said, "to commit them on a charge of conspiracy to murder to participate and they should have known that they were liable to cause death."

14-Mile Bridle Path Along Niagara River

NiagaraFalls,Ont.,Jan. 11 (CP) —The Niagara Parks Commission has decided to construct a bridle path in the park, along the edge of the Niagara River from Queenston to Chippewa. The path will be 12 feet wide, sufficiently wide for two horses abreast. Plans have been prepared and has given $10,000 toward the cost of the work and will provide all the materials.

An immediate start will be made on the work, it is said, that will follow the route of the abandoned International railway right-of-way.

CANADIAN WHEAT MUCH IN DEMAND

Sales May Bring Wheat Carryover Down to Normal

Winnipeg, Jan. 11 (CP)—Huge sales of wheat to normal carryover, after playing pranks on agrarians several years, was gathering momentum today.

And with higher prices prevailing, Canada's farmers were to be given a launched into its new year with brighter prospects than for several years—perhaps more than many a farmer cared to recall.

Unprecedented sales were reported by the Board of Grain Commissioners here and figures were released by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, Quotations on Winnipeg futures market soared.

Toronto shipping circles reported wheat bookings for export through Canadian lakehead in seven years.

But Canada still had a big supply of wheat to sell. Exports of 7,500,000 bushels have to be surveyed weekly to bring the present supply of approximately 375,000,000 bushels down to the normal 50,000,000 bushels carry-over at the end of the crop year. Receipts exceed 5,000,000 bushels weekly and 4,000,000 bushels weekly. Hint of an increase in this movement was received demand for Canadian wheat.

WHITEFISH, TROUT ARE "EYEING OUT"

A total of 86,000,000 whitefish and 2,800,000 trout are "eying out" in the tanks at the Government fish hatchery at the present time. It was reported by officials today.

The 15m uninitiated the simple statement reveals that this many eying to lie icy condition. Mean as they fish now under culture at the hatchery are in a well developed stage and will soon be able to care for themselves in the shallower tanks, where they will be placed after being liberated from the spawn jars, where culture has been carried on steadily since the first of winter.

When well developed the fish will be placed in cans and despatched to various parts of the province. The trout, particularly, will find their way into the northern lakes in an effort to provide fishermen sport and sustenance during the coming year. The majority of the whitefish will be liberated in the Bay of Quinte to replenish the supply that is annually taken by local fishermen. The number under culture is about the same as last year, it was stated.

EXPECT COMPLETION IN THREE WEEKS

With part of the plumbing and heating system now installed and in operation, workers engaged in the construction of the new Dominion Entomological Laboratory on East Dundas Street, are making rapid progress in the installation of the interior fittings of the building. SNOWBALL MUST HAVE CONTAINED STONE

With snow "sticky" enough at present to make perfect snowballing several juveniles of the city during the past few days have been getting in some target practice with the solidly packed missiles upon themselves and passing motorists. One complaint was registered by a motorist who declared his car was struck on the hood on North Front St. and dented by one of the balls. Wednesday it was pointed out, by him, the snowball had contained a fair sized stone, which would have made it dangerous if the glass of the car had been struck.

EGGS SLIGHTLY DOWN ON MARKET

Nearly Five Cent Decrease Noted From One Week Ago

The bottom dropped out of the egg market this week it was readily apparent by a brief stroll through the Saturday market this morning. Today both grades of eggs were down a cent. Just five cents for a dozen less than that asked one week ago; "extras" were being held at 30 cents the dozen, while pullets' eggs were sold freely at from 23 to 25 cents.

"It's the Montreal market," explained a local egg buyer. "Lately they've been dumping a lot of storage eggs on the open market, causing unsettled conditions. They'll probably be up next week."

"We know the trade," explained a rural vendor. "Our hens haven't been laying for months than they have been for the past month or so so they can't lay the drop to a more plentiful supply. We're selling them at a loss just now."

Potatoes were fairly plentiful selling at from $1.25 to $1.35 per 75-pound bag. Apples will be scarce from now on, warned one dealer, although plentiful today at from $1.25 to $1.50 per bushel according to variety. In the vegetable line no change was noted, with onions and leek being changed at from 30 to 40 cents the peck. Turnips, beets, carrots and the like remained at 20 cents the peck. Cauliflower at from 8 to 15 cents the head and celery at 5 and 10 cents.

In the dairy market butter was still firm; no change was noted over prices asked for the past several weeks. Today a flat bid of 30 cents per pound was asked, although a few cases a two-pound roll could be had for 58 cents.

QUINTE CIRCLE HOLDS MEETING

Install Officers For The Ensuing Year

At the regular meeting of Quinte Circle No. 49 C. O. W. of World held in True Blue Hall on January 8th, 1936. The following officers were duly installed with ceremony in their respective chairs:

Past Com.—Sov. C. St. Louis.
Com. Com.—Sov A. A. Hilton.
Advisory Lieut.—Sov. F. Bell.
Chet—Sov L. M. Lemon.
Banker—Sov. J. I. Fordyce.
Managers—Sov A. Ashburn, Sov O. Young, Sov J. Asselstine.
Escort—Sov L. Oatley.
Chaplain—Sov. L. Phalen.
Sentry—Sov L. G. Mirflin.
Watch—Sov E. Adams.

During general business the retiring Com. Com. Sov C. St. Louis was presented with a handsome umbrella as a token of esteem and goodwill by the members. Sov Young and Palmer extended good wishes from the Lodge and made the presentation. Sov St. Louis thanked the members for their kindness and expressed pleasure obtained in filling the chair. This closed the business of the Lodge. Members then enjoyed games of cards and dainty refreshments were served by January Committee, Sov Stevens and Sov Worrell. Lucky winners were awarded prizes.

POLICE BLOTTER

Three more local motorists fell before the police drive against motor vehicles being operated without the proper lights being displayed in Belleville and on adjacent highways. Last night three local citizens were seen driving "one-eyed" motor cars and charges were laid by the police today. They will appear in the police court on Monday. A concerted drive by city and Provincial Police against "one-eyed" motor vehicles and vehicles travelling the highways at night without adequate rear lights has been launched, with the result, that over a score of cases have been charged locally during the past 48 hours. Substantial fines were paid by first offenders, but the second time will be increased, the courts promised, if the practice is continued.

Local police received several complaints from citizens relative to certain side-walks inside the city limits not being shovelled free from snow. This practice of leaving the snow on the sidewalks makes progress hazardous for pedestrians and is also against the by-law in force. The reported cases will be investigated and doubtless charges laid where the offenders are found delinquent.

No arrests were necessary in Belleville during the past 24 hours while surrounding highways were free from accidents. One dozen transients were afforded warm sleeping quarters at the police station last night.

WEEK OF PRAYER IS CONCLUDED

Rev. R. E. Newman Gives a Challenging Message

The fifth meeting in connection with the week of prayer under the auspices of the Belleville Ministerial Association was held in the Baptist Church last night. Rev. A. G. Sinclair was in charge of the service. Mr. Fred Jobson the choir leader of the church sang a much appreciated solo accompanied by Mrs. Doolittle who presided at the piano during the evening. Rev. R. E. Newman gave a challenging message emphasizing the need of bringing Christian homes as the paramount need of our day. No real happiness or satisfaction can be had by fathers or mothers without the realization that their sons and daughters have started on the Christian pathway of life. The boys and girls and young people are the products of our homes and the kind of homes we have are pretty well indicated by the type of youth they produce. Mr. Newman declared that we should restore the family altar and in a very fine address by admonition and precept tell our boys and girls the story of life in Christ and thus the duty of present generation to learn it from Godly parents.

Rev. G. O. Sinclair pronounced the Benediction.

"JAFSIE" LEAVES FOR THE SOUTH

silence.

Governor Hoffman declined to answer this question:

"Has your investigation been productive of any definite light sufficient to put mind to warrant prosecution or stay the execution?

The governor served formal notice on Attorney General Wilentz, prosecutor of Hauptmann, that the ladder used by the kidnapper and traced to Hauptmann would be required by the court. He also asked Wilentz to have, Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, head of the State Police, who had charge of the investigation of the kidnapping, before the court.

The Governor said he had received the opinion of a handwriting expert a letter to him signed "J. J. Faulkner" and indicated that it was considered was written by the same man who made out a deposit slip accompanying $1,000 ransom put in the New York Federal Reserve Bank on May 1, 1933.

The same day Lindbergh ransom bills amounting to $49,000 were found in the deposit slip, or $2,000 were deposited in the bank. It was the last day gold notes were supposed to be in general circulation.

Says Memo Will Be Material

Colonel Schwarzkopf said the authorities had made scientific, unsuccessful efforts to trace "Faulkner."

Asked whether he thought the Faulkner letter implicated anybody in the kidnap-slaying, the Governor said:

"It would indicate to my mind that some other person than Hauptmann was in the possession of some of the ransom money."

Mrs. Hauptmann who has taken a room at a Trenton hotel, earlier in the week to be near her husband, shares the prisoner's confidence.

"The truth will come out sometimes it takes time," she said. "I am a martyr," she said.

"I don't like people who run away. I wouldn't leave."

A majority of the Pardons Court must vote for clemency if Hauptmann is to be saved from the chair but a significant point is the fact one must vote with that majority.

If seven of the eight voted for clemency and the Governor voted against it, Hauptmann would have to die.

There were only two possible actions the board could take: It could commute Hauptmann's sentence to life imprisonment or refuse to commute.

In the latter event three last desperate hopes lay open to Hauptmann's counsel.

It could ask the sentencing judge, Justice Thomas W. Trenchard to grant a new trial on the basis of newly discovered evidence, seek a writ of habeas corpus in the Federal Court or ask the governor for a reprieve.

New York, Jan. 11 (AP)—The New York American in a copyright story today declared Governor Harold G. Hoffman of New Jersey as saying he does "not believe Bruno Hauptmann was the sole perpetrator of the kidnapping of the Lindbergh baby" and as wishing to question Dr. John P. Condon.

Dr. Condon, the "Jafsie" of the Lindbergh ransom negotiations, sailed last night on a trip-cruise to South America.

Governor Hoffman made his statements, the paper said, after "weeks of intensive study" in the Lindbergh kidnaping case.

"I do not believe the full evidence has been presented to the jury," the executive of Hauptmann, the paper quoted him.

Condon, has written he found evidence in the baby's crib that the child had not been killed there. He also make a the flat statement more than one person was involved in the crime.

Dr. Condon goes so far as to write he knew two of those involved. If Dr. Condon knows these things I feel the authorities should have the information."

The paper declared Governor Hoffman indicated he had been prepared to question Dr. Condon after questioning and that he was "taken by surprise" when he learned Dr. Condon had sailed.

Much Not Yet Learned

After concluding his inquiry, Governor Hoffman said, the paper declared:

"I found innumerable contradictions and seeming inconsistencies which strengthened my belief that there was much that had not yet been learned."

The Governor declined to comment on the decision of the Board of Appeals but the paper said it was obvious he is expecting Hauptmann to die. I will grant Hauptmann's plea for commutation of sentence to life imprisonment.

"If the Court of Pardons does vote to spare Hauptmann's life I will immediately order a thorough investigation by every agency in the state of all the elements in the case which thus far have not been cleared up," the American quoted him.

Six Questions Listed

The paper listed six questions which it said Governor Hoffman expects to try and clear up, including facts of the kidnapping, the trial and evidence presented by the State at the trial.

It named exhibits and affidavits which it asserts Governor Hoffman intends to place before the Pardon Court and declares "it was freely predicted one more session of the Board would be necessary."

At modern Optometry has proven, any eye that can see is a good eye, but — it may have what is known as a "fatigue", which simple "testing" cannot determine. A complete "plotting" of the many evidences necessitates long experience, extreme care and plenty of time. As you realize, only a few cases can be so handled per day. As to prices of materials, we positively will not be undersold!

$580,000 PAID TO SEE 'ROMEO'

William Shakespeare is Most Successful Playwright on Broadway

By KEN CLARK

New York, Jan. 11 (CP)—Some things can happen to you all of the time and most things can happen to you some of the time, but all things can't happen to you all of the time, yet that's what happens to the Gotham to Clifford Odets' latest attack on the current economic system.

In "Paradise Lost", these doughty Thespians of the Group Theatre who carved through fame in Waiting for Lefty and Awake and sang with such eminent success in the last two seasons, take it. That is on the left, they take it.

On the other hand, on the modernistic night of the Zanbiarra in James Hagan's "Midwest" take it up to the last and then it rains pretty good.

Two Ways.

For a day of shuddering how to take it the visitor is recommended to see "Paradise Lost" in the afternoon and "Midwest" in the evening. Then summer is a moderate season, the latter, which opened this week, is still questionable.

Here's what happens to the middle class Gordons' across from Mr. Odets: Leo Gordon, one of those impractical dreamers much better suited to the newspaper "game" than to business, is done dirt by his neurotic partner whose wife cannot have any children; one son dies slowly through their acts, the other sees puts himself in front of some police guns after having married a tough girl; the daughter loses love, in lieu of a violinist, is a piano has her piano taken away. The Gordons are evicted, but Leo makes a speech explaining that now prosperity and everything has departed the house at last has a real foundation.

Cause the stage-whisper of a leftist lady in the sixth row:

"You say something to a Canadian about British institutions and he'll sock you in the jaw."

What Happens.

Here's what happens to the Zanbiarra according to Mr. Hogan:

Tootsboy Zanbiarr, who's been sent to college to satisfy mother's pense, persuades his father's field hands to strike, after which the neighbors hang the boy for Communism; the drought lays low all; Fred Zanbiarr sells out to the big farm and Fred and she with the baby go to Detroit, whereupon there are left, only Lulus and the Mrs. and the body of a hen which has died. Then, at this juncture the sky clouds up and before you can say Jungle Redemption there is a downpour if the rain don't come down in big drops.

As Mid-west's first curtain plunked a second row gent rose menacingly and said: "This big bohoke sacked me (applause and hisses). Well, I'm an Anzac from Iowa and I hissed at deliberate misrepresentation." (Louder cheers and hisses).

A little managerial persuasion and peace ensued.

Ideas Overflow.

As a matter of fact both plays are good entertainment. Ideas mowed down and running over with warm ideas and excellently acted. Particularly noteworthy is the work of Curtis Cooksey, "Lake Zanbiarr" and Jean Adair, "Mother Zanbiarr". Miss Adair is one of those Canadians who have been on Broadway most of their lives. She started off after stock training under William A. Brady and has been "Mother" went on through "Little Women", "Mechanic", "Peg of Old Drury", "Seven Keys to Baldpate", "Murder in the Vanities".

Shakespeare Rules Stage.

Among the more successful playwrights on Broadway at the present is Will Shakespeare. Mr. Shakespeare, for whom great things are predicted when Katharine Cornell produces "Macbeth" and "Antony and Cleopatra" as again demonstrated his box-office drawing power when produced under his own auspices, by grossing about $580,000 during 28 weeks of "Romeo and Juliet" in 24 cities in the U.S. and other cities. Miss Cornell closes the production tonight in Cincinnati.

Margaret Lawrence of Australia, in her first season on the American podium, has definitely established herself as Wagner's "Brunnehilde". On her first appearance as "Isolde" in Kiyrle", a difficult role, she was hailed by the critics as more than competent and retained her reputation as the same dashing and unfortunate prima in "Siegfried".

The dividend record of oil refining companies is probably unsurpassed by that of any other single group—Hickey. Every phase of the production of crude oil through the various stages of production have produced vast dividends to the investors who had the foresight to buy into successful enterprises, even through the depression years.

2. REFINERY—98 barrels per day, which can readily be absorbed in the immediate vicinity.

In offering the securities of the Deseronto Refineries Limited to the public, we would stress these facts:

1. The Company have acquired the rights to produce "Hydrogas", an entirely new process for the commercial refining of crude oil that will produce a higher quality "anti-knock" motor fuel than is now offered to the public and according to J. A. McEvoy, B.Sc. (McGill) it is free of carbon and will give motorists 25% greater mileage at no extra cost.

3. LOCATION—Deseronto as it was a central point for the distribution of products and has both railway and water facilities which will effect an enormous saving in hauling charges.

5. MARKETING—A thorough canvass of the territory which this Refinery will serve was made and it was found that the complete output could be readily disposed of.

6. There are no bonds outstanding, the Preferred Shares ranking as the senior security.

AS END OF TRAIL APPROACHERS FOR BRUNO HAUPTMANN—Alone in his cell in the Trenton state penitentiary, awaiting the last march, many scenes and people must flash through the mind of Bruno Hauptmann as the execution hour approaches. Among the scenes that the camera men have recorded: Betty and Hauptmann There was Whiter Lyle, who escorted him to the paper of the ransom money; Betty Gow, the Lindbergh maid; Isidor Lindbergh, cold and remorseless; the ransom-note symbols; Isidore Fisch; "Jafsie" Condon, the "Doktor"; Hauptmann's entrance into the Trenton penitentiary; and the final words that decreed his death; a long procession that will be with him until the switch is thrown.

COLD, HIGH WINDS, FORM BRIDGE OF ICE AT NIAGARA—This is one place where the Prigidaire can never replace nature's ice man. This ice bridge was formed in the Niagara gorge below the falls by a combination of high winds holding back the water in the upper river in back of the falls, and by the cold snap which formed giant ice cakes. The falls themselves (BACKGROUND) have also been chained by the ice jam which lowered the upper Niagara river to an all-time record.

Calls Starlings An 'Institution'

"In Canada I notice the cry is 'kill the starling'. Wherever you go you hear the same thing. The starling seems to be despised and hated and not even worth a shot gun shell.

"Why is it that in England where the bird has existed for years and years no one bothers him. They are plentiful there, yet they are looked upon as an institution. They are allowed to nest anywhere, in barns, hollow trees, chimneys and everywhere.

"Thus does a local farmer resident of Surrey, England, come to the defence of the bird whose numbers have so greatly increased in this country during the past few years.

"When I was a boy," adds the local resident," we used to have the odd pot pie from the bird, but they never were considered a delicacy, and few are killed for this purpose. They may be ruinous to your fruit trees and gardens over here, but in England no one seems to notice them.

LITTLE EFFORT TO READ BOOK A DAY

Older Readers Frees Library Takes Longer Time

Reading of three hundred books a year may seem a hard task to some people but there are many homeowners at Corby Public Library who read a book a day with little effort. They are chiefly younger men. The big majority of modern stories and the young girls, who search out the lighter type of novels. The older readers take a bit more time to read.

For serious reading a book a week, according to Librarian Miss Adams, Campbellford librarian, is usually the objective of those interested in a thorough reading course. The average reader chooses a new book about every two weeks. Those who have a tendency to read slowly are unfortunate when they decide to read "Anthony Adverse", which is still in special demand. Two weeks only are allowed for the reading of this twelve hundred page novel and the book changes hands several times in the large number seeking it.

Of course, those who choose novels read more quickly than those interested in non-fiction. Travel and biography still leads as the popular choice of the latter class. Books on religion are rarely in demand and have been on the reserve list since the summer while the works of T. R. Glover continue to never lost their position among the most popular non-fiction works.

MYSTERY MAN—Although ostensibly on the African warfront as Reuter newspaper articles, Colonel William (Wild Bill) Donovan, American world war hero and former U.S. assistant attorney-general, is regarded as a "mystery man" in the war area, because he has received privileges not accorded to official foreign military observers. Donovan recently published his credentials from Premier Benito Mussolini.

Proper Lights On Bicycles Are Required

Twelve local youthful cyclists appeared in Belleville's first night police court held before Magistrate Ponton last night at the police station last night, all being charged with riding their bicycles between dusk and dawn without having displayed the proper lights, thereby, as required by Highway Traffic Act. The accused youths all pleaded guilty to the charges and were allowed their freedom upon promising His Worship they would adhere to traffic regulations in the future. Police Constable Anderson, who acted as prosecutor, was complimented by His Worship for their delinquency. No costs were assessed.

His Worship pointed to the lads present, sub-section five, of the H.T.A., which pertains to the lights or reflectors required by operators of bicycles after sundown. The court also warned the cyclists to adhere more carefully to all regulations of the H.T.A. and especially stressed the fact of giving motor vehicles ample room on the street or highway to pass, after horns had been sounded. "Do not crowd the centre line of the road and force vehicle passing you to run too far out on the soft path. When you see a motor vehicle approaching or about to pass you, move over to the right hand side of the road and give the large vehicle ample room to pass you," warned His Worship as he stressed the seriousness of riding bicycles on the sidewalk, this infraction being brought to the court's attention by Chief Kidd from a few disobeying the youths. His Worship explained that they could properly ride upon their bicycles with lights or reflectors if the sidewalks were approved by the Department, and on the back thereof a red lighted lamp or reflector lens covered by the Department, as well as a WHITE SURFACE AT LEAST 3 INCHES SQUARE IN INCHES IN LENGTH AND TWO INCHES IN WIDTH, all of which shall be clearly visible to the drivers of other vehicles".

Future infractions of this act will be more severely dealt with, Chief Kidd announced at the conclusion of the court. "This practice of police receiving numerous complaints regarding the same repeatedly of late," added Chief Kidd.

DOGS BY WEIGHT BASIS FOR TAXES

Argument Waxes Loud And Long But Decision is Postponed

Debate waxed in the executive offices of the city hall this morning, but the debate was a mild one with neither side too aggressive in opposition. It dealt with the advisability of scoring a moral or decisive victory.

Should dogs be taxed by the pound or in this city as one means with which to increase the receipts?

"Yes," declared one alderman, who was buttonholed. "But don't quote me. I don't want to lose the votes of Belleville knocking on my door or sending me mysterious letters. Frankly I prefer the smaller dogs."

"No," frankly declared a civic official. "The bigger the dog the less the bite. I hate those yapping Pomeranians, that chase after your heels down the street. Give me the one every time."

"If they ever start that, I'm going to get me one of those Mexican dogs you can carry around in your pocket. Think of the fun you'd have on a St. Bernard!"

"Where they going to put the weigh scales? How many cars are they going to need to transport all the dogs down to be weighed? And can't you imagine the noise there would be if they had side of the road and give the large vehicle ample room to pass you," warned His Worship as he stressed the seriousness of riding bicycles on the sidewalk, this infraction being brought to the court's attention by Chief Kidd from a few disobeying the youths. His Worship explained that they could properly ride upon their bicycles with lights or reflectors if the sidewalks were approved by the Department, and on the back thereof a red lighted lamp or reflector covered by the Department, as well as a WHITE SURFACE AT LEAST 3 INCHES SQUARE IN INCHES IN LENGTH AND TWO INCHES IN WIDTH, all of which shall be clearly visible to the drivers of other vehicles".

Future infractions of this act will be more severely dealt with, Chief Kidd announced at the conclusion of the court. "This practice of police receiving numerous complaints regarding the same repeatedly of late," added Chief Kidd.

FEAR 300 DEATHS RESULT OF QUAKE

Colombian Towns And Villages Buried by Landslides

Bogoata, Colombia, Jan. 11 (CP)—More than 300 deaths were feared today as have resulted from landslides which crushed the town of Iguanyes and four villages in Colombia's Southwestern Narino Province after a violent earthquake. The government of this South American Republic commissioned Minister of Industries Martinez to organize relief work in the stricken district. He arrived to-day immediately to Pasto, capital of Narino Province.

Belated dispatches from Pasto, bringing only skeleton advices through interrupted communication lines said the landslides descended Thursday night after the entire Narino Province area experienced the strong earthquake.

First reports said more than 36 persons died as the town of Yuquenes and the villages of Saguyes, Alban and Pinson were destroyed.

Later dispatches from Pasto reported the hamlet of La Cruz and near Tuquerres was obliterated by the landslides and that more than 300 persons were killed there.

Even greater casualties were feared as the earthquake affected a heavily populated district.

POETESS OF KITCHENER ON 2 MONTHS' TOUR

Vancouver, Jan. 11—Edna Jaques, the Victoria, Ont., poetess whose homely verse had won her a large audience across Canada in the last few years, left here over the Canadian National Railways on a speaking tour under the auspices of the National Association of Women's Canadian Clubs. She will be away for two months in Ontario and the Maritime Provinces. Her latest book of verse, "From My Kitchen Window," was published recently and has brought her hundreds of letters from all parts of Canada.

NABORHOOD SHOES ARE GOOD SHOES

J. A. McIntosh Elected Director First Time Chamber of Commerce

Messrs. E. P. Bernstein, J. B. Boyce, R. V. Viney, J. A. McIntosh and Mackenzie Robertson were re-elected directors of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce for a two-year term.

This final election followed a primary election which was concluded a week previously and resulted in the nomination of ten of Belleville's leading citizens for the five positions in the directorate. The subsequent election was an exceedingly good-natured affair where none of the candidates did any canvassing. By tacit agreement each accepts the verdict, whatever it may be, as a part of the fortunes of public life and business.

Of the five elected yesterday, Messrs. Bernstein, Boyce, Viney and Robertson were returned to the board from the retiring group. Mr. J. A. McIntosh was a new man to honor. In him an excellent choice has been made. He is one of the younger of our business men and merchants and one of the most capable. He is the eldest son of the late John McIntosh whose untimely death a few years ago removed one of Belleville's business leaders and left upon the shoulders of his young son, the heavy responsibility of carrying on a mercantile business that has branches in several of the surrounding towns. John A. McIntosh has been honored by his fellow merchants by election to the presidency of the Retail Merchants' Association. He has also served as president of the Belleville Kiwanis Club. Other important honors have come to him from the fraternal organizations with which he is connected. He will make a valuable addition to the directorate of the Chamber of Commerce and can act as a representative for the mercantile interest on the board.

Part Time Trapper Says Wolf an Arrant Coward

Only Attack When Hungry Says Orville Kendricks

Is the wolf the big, bad killer, and man chaser that he has at times been labelled?

"Humph!" snorts Orville Kendricks, resident and part time trapper of the district of Baptiste Lake, "definitely not," he adds. He's an arrant coward; he'll run any time. Even in packs. But it will be away from you not toward you. Hungry lantern eyed killers only when made desperately ferocious through hunger.

Kendricks, a visitor to the county buildings yesterday on business, regaled one of his latest experiences to back his assertion.

"About two weeks ago I was out near the lake and was going down a trail through a ravine. I came around a big rock—and face to face with three of them. They were trotting single file down the trail path and it wasn't until we were about twenty-five yards apart that we suddenly saw each other. The leader spotted me first and froze in his tracks. Then it was just for a second while we eyed each other. Then he yelped like a dog and almost upset the others as he whirled to get away. I only had a .22 along or I would have had at least one of them as they high tailed up the trail.

"That's the first time I've seen three together although a pair now and then are fairly common. But even the pair you come across are well out of range unless you surprise each other. Then they go the opposite way.

A fairly mild winter with snow not too deep and generally favorable conditions for wild life has resulted in slim catches along the trap lines this season, stated Mr. Kendricks. Deer are wintering well in the bush and are not so freely sighted.

WITNESS THROWS COUNSEL TO FLOOR

Took Offence at Question Asked in District Court

Sudbury, Ont., Jan. 11 (CP)—District Court was thrown into an uproar when J. A. S. Plouffe, K.C., counsel defending Ernest Lalonde of Blezard Valley, charged with manslaughter, rushed at Joseph Espanola. was attacked by a witness.

The witness, Harry Leblanc, North Bay, brought from district jail to testify, leaped from the witness stand as counsel suggested he had stolen so much he couldn't remember, and pursued Mr. Plouffe around the counsel table, grappling him and throwing him to the floor before police could intervene.

Mr. Plouffe had asked the witness, allowed to stand in front of the witness box, because of defective hearing if he had ever been around the Sudbury market selling stolen goods. Leblanc said he couldn't remember. It was then counsel suggested he had stolen so much he couldn't recall.

Girl Student Found Lying on Street

Toronto, Jan. 11 (CP)—Miss Marie Leahy, 20-year-old business college student, was in hospital today recovering from head injuries she is unable to explain. She was found lying on the street.

Conscious, but shocked and dazed, the young woman told the hospital authorities she had been struck by a heavy blunt object without lights or any warning.

Obituary

The late Mrs. E. S. Allen

Queensboro—Another link with the past was broken in the death in Toronto of Mrs. Robert S. Allen, a resident of Queensboro for many Mr. and Mrs. Allen retired from their farm at the Allen Settlement about forty years ago and came to Queensboro where they lived for several years. Mr. Allen lived until the home was destroyed by fire several years ago. Mr. Allen died about twenty-four years ago.

Mrs. Allen made many friends during her residence in Queensboro and was greatly missed when she went to live with her granddaughter Mrs. Howard Montgomery in Toronto.

Kindly in disposition, helpful as a neighbor and an active and consistent member of the Presbyterian Church of which she was a lifelong member.

Mrs. Allen lived an exemplary life. Her influence as teacher and Christian will live in the lives and minds of those who knew her.

Through the illness of memmonia she had the comfort of being attended by a former Queensboro resident and nurse, Miss Ethel Spoke of her Queensboro friends and the very pleasant hour spent with them. The funeral service in Toronto was attended by Mr. and Mrs. Eckhart, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Shaw, Misses Lois and Fanny Shaw, all former Meaford and Queensboro friends. The remains were brought to Allen's Cemetery for burial on Sunday Jan. 5th.

Woman Found Dead In East York Lot

Toronto, Jan. 11 (CP)—The body of a middle-aged woman not yet identified was found on a vacant lot in East York yesterday. There was no sign of violence, police stated.

Police conducted an all-night search for relatives of the left-home yesterday unaccompanied and they were investigating with Coroner C. E. McLean to find whether it was her body found today.

ITALY'S WORRIES

Europe is becoming increasingly anxious over the war which is being carried on in East Africa. This is proven by the persistence of the efforts to find a solution of the question and put an end to the struggle.

In some circles it is felt that there may be real danger of the collapse of the Mussolini regime, which would bring a state of chaos in Europe, observers predict. The world has but to look back to the days before the rise of Mussolini to realize that he brought strength and unity out of chaos in post-war Italy, that he saved it from Bolshevism and Communism. If anything should happen Mussolini's statue in Italy it is felt that it would mean at the moment a bad time and might lead to a reign of disorders in that land, as well as on the rest of the continent. The effect of collapse is feared from another angle, that of the black, brown and yellow races, who are undoubtedly keeping very close watch on developments.

His adventure in East Africa, undertaken perhaps to strengthen his regime, which has been to show signs of age, by an artificial condition of wartime prosperity, is one of those rash things which dictators and autocrats have been accustomed to do from time immemorial. He has shown most of the fears of the dictator for no rival is found near him. But he is growing older and herein lies one of the causes of anxiety in the long run.

But the immediate anxiety is not who will succeed Mussolini when he steps from the scene but that of the immediate attitude of the people of Italy. Reports that have been reported in North Italy and desertions are common. The monetary question grows more acute, as the war lingers, and the sanctions have left a deep sullen and morale of the people. Meanwhile the campaign which was to be a Fascistic grand march is dawdling with little gains for the enormous expenditure of treasure in the form of bombs, planes, and the general maintenance of the nation in arms.

Observers fear that any general war which would be started to-day would bring a greater depression in its train than the last and so would like to give Il Duce a loophole to back out of the scene, with a certain amount of grace. But small nations want to see him in collapse.

After all Mussolini who might have been one of the great factors in recovery of the world has come to choose his own selfish way to retain power, at the expense of Italy as well as of Europe.

JOHN GILBERT

John Gilbert, one of the great screen figures of the silent film days, has died at thirty nine years of age. He had by no means proven himself in the talkies owing to his high pitched voice, but he had built up in a few years after the 1929 stock market collapse a fortune estimated at a million dollars. This he leaves.

The way of the film star who rises to fame in early years is hard. It is hard to see new galaxies of leading actors coming on to fill one's place, even if wealth remains.

Older theatregoers recall with pleasure the early pictures in which Gilbert figured, they recall those amazing scenes when Rudolph Valentino, the great figure of the long ago silent pictures passed from earth's scene.

SOME SUGGESTIONS

A number of problems were offered for consideration at the annual luncheon of the Chamber of Commerce at which the members of the council were guests. These include city managership, investigation and handling of the preliminary work on the esplanade, better lighting of streets, a new attack on the parking problem, a bathing beach proposal and a spirited publicity and tourist policy.

Members of council who were called upon to speak, expressed themselves as in favor of some of the proposals, lined out some of the suggestions mentioned was advocated firmly by either chamber or council members.

More than usual interest is being manifested in these matters, a sure sign that the depression is disappearing. More will be heard of probably most of these suggestions in the not too distant future.

Meetings such as that of Thursday afternoon at the Chamber of Commerce bring forth suggestions and ideas which tend to clarify local opinion.

THE RETAIL MERCHANTS ASSOCIATION OF BELLEVILLE IS A GOING CONCERN, a group of progressive and energetic merchants, banded together for the purpose of protecting their own interests and working for the betterment of Belleville in every way, working on the principle that the better and more prosperous Belleville can be made the better it will be for every citizen. The merchants have wisely chosen as the head of the organization for the current year Russell Woodley, a native son, and a progressive young business man, full of force and character. President Woodley believes in doing things promptly and in the best manner and getting things done in the same way. He started his business education in Belleville under his father, a business man of many years experience and outstanding success, took a postgraduate course with Big Business in Toronto, then returned to Belleville to put into practice the business lessons he had learned. With the able staff of officers, managing the affairs of the Retail Merchants Association this year should be one of great success and usefulness for the organization. Congratulations.

RING OUT THE OLD, RING IN THE NEW, but in welcoming the new the service and achievement of the old should not be lightly forgotten, and a tribute of praise and appreciation is due the retiring President of the Retail Merchants' Association, Mr. John McIntosh, who has served for the past two years with honor and success. A lot of work and energy and pep to the organization and a leadership which inspired confidence and attracted many new members and enthusiastic staff attended Mr. McIntosh's efforts and made on the executive with the office of Vice-President, completing a staff of officers which can not help but contribute worthily to the betterment of the city.

SALARIES OF OVER FIFTEEN THOUSAND DOLLARS PER YEAR have been under discussion by the United States government which seems to have a way of poking its way into the most unexpected places One salary of half a million dollars per year was reported, that of William Randolph Hearst, who controls vast publishing enterprises. Being the owner and originator and majority stockholder, he takes the salary, no doubt, in lieu of profits to which he is entitled. It is worth a lot of money to direct such a vast enterprise as the Hearst interests and see that the right men are in key positions and carry out their policy worthily and conspicuously. Arthur Brisbane, Hearst chief editor, is credited with an income of $266,000 from his efforts which principally consist of a column of editorial which appears in the Hearst papers. Brisbane is an interesting writer and has a wide knowledge of world affairs. Incidentally it may be noted that Brisbane was born and raised in New Jersey to play with, but he couldn't make it go and it folded up with a loss. Max West seems to lead the film folks in salary for she received $106,666.66 for a year's work. What the 66 cents was for is not explained, but her invitation to "Come up and see me sometime" is still good.

ULDINE UTLEY, 23 years old, a well known girl evangelist of a dozen years ago, was received into the ministry recently in Chicago, when she was ordained by Bishop Kyos Wafford, of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Her evangelistic work was conducted under the auspices of the Baptist Church, being a protege of the late Dr. John Roach Straton. The Methodist Episcopal Church in the United States has for fifteen years admitted women to the ministry, giving them the right to preach, wed, baptize, but has rarely assigned them to regular pulpits. Rev. Uldine Utley is a forceful speaker and an earnest church worker.

HEALTH and PSYCHOLOGY

Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

Copyright, 1935, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Are you taking care of your eyes? Or are you careless about them, not realizing that, as you grow older, they change. For the eyes' constant job is very delicate mechanism which must not be trifled with.

The eye is like a camera. Rays of light pass through the shutter in front, through the pupil, through the lens further back and are then thrown upon the camera plate or film, the sensitive retina.

When you take a photograph with a camera you first adjust the shutter, making it large or small, so that neither too much nor too little light will come through. What you do deliberately, the eye does automatically. That is, the pupil contracts, becomes small, when the light is too strong, and dilates, becomes large, when light is deficient.

The lens of the eye, however, is far superior to the camera lens. The eye lens also adjusts itself. It can focus on an object without any effort on your part. A camera lens, on the other hand, always remains the same.

The human lens has a remarkable power to flatten itself or make itself more round that rays passing through it will meet and throw a clear picture on the retina. Color-weak the object, theoretically, would be focused either in front or behind the retina, as the case might be. You would then be unable to see it clearly or distinctly. In other words, the object viewed would appear to be somewhere where it should be, strictly on the retina.

When we grow old, the lens loses some of its power of elasticity and flattens more or less permanently. Then, as a result, persons can see objects far away, but find it impossible for their lenses to see objects near at hand. Far-sightedness, or hypermetropia, is the condition. Objects near to the eye cannot be focused behind the retina. Again convex glasses are required.

In near-sightedness, or myopia, the opposite condition prevails. The lens is too convex. Objects come to a focus in front of the retina. That is why concave glasses are needed.

Astigmatism, another common eye difficulty, is caused when the lens is even cornea. The cornea, the outermost surface covering of the eyeball, is normally perfectly healthy and protects the parts within.

It is evident, I take it, that the eye is constantly at work, and, when accommodating properly, can readily see far distances. A great strain, demanding glasses or other treatment, if, therefore, your sight is to be preserved. Which by means consult a competent oculist.

Squinting or blobbing of the eyes, known as headaches, likewise demand attention.

Children often require glasses, but only in rare cases. Often, after the strain of accomodating is removed, and they grow older, the need for glasses disappears. Do not hesitate, therefore, to give your children glasses if an oculist prescribes them.

No one can go through life with one pair of glasses, either. They should be changed frequently. To see whether the lenses are correct or not.

ART. TREMBLAY TO STAND TRIAL

Cornwall Carpenter Alleged to Have Killed Rene Tessier

Cornwall, Oct., 31, (Can. 11—(CP) Arthur Tremblay, 20-year-old Cornwall carpenter, will stand trial at the Spring Assizes of the Supreme Court of Ontario next month for the murder of Rene Tessier, C.N.R. section railway worker.

At the preliminary hearing yesterday, Magistrate Raoul Labrosse, Vankleek Hill, Ont., after three Crown witnesses decided there was sufficient evidence to commit Tremblay to stand trial.

Tremblay's body, hammered and chopped about the head, was found in Tremblay's home August 31, about an hour after the crime was committed. Near the body police discovered a bloodstained hammer and axe believed the instruments of death.

Constable W. J. Franks told at the preliminary hearing of a conversation between Tremblay and his father the day after the former was arraigned.

"Tell me everything that happened Saturday or do you remember," Constable Franks quoted the father as asking his son.

"Yes I remember everything," the younger Tremblay was said to reply. "I got so excited when I went in there and found the body I tried to throw myself under the train but I missed."

Defence Counsel strenuously objected to the admission of statements made by Tremblay after his arrest, but Magistrate Labrosse admitted the testimony.

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE CAPITOL

"It's In the Air"

With Jack Benny and Una Merkel

America's Public Hero No. 1 of the Air Waves, Jack Benny, assisted by Una Merkel, is the source of laugh-getters in the picture industry, "It's in the Air."

Una Merkel, who changes her usual characterization and plays the dramatic role of Benny's wife, Ted Healey, in a role that was essentially written for him as Benny's stooge, "Chip" McGurk, and Phil Pendleton, who has also teamed successfully with Healy in five productions, portrays the comic "G-Man" Brady.

Mary Carlisle, who "goes heavy in a light way" and portrays the flapper menace.

The story mixes comedy, drama and thrills.

It concerns Calvin Churchill, a "soldier," and his side-kick "Chip" McGurk, who are being chased by a "G-Man" because they failed to pay their income tax upon the advice of a shyster lawyer.

Ends Federal Pursuers

They elude the federal officer through a series of events that finally goes to the Desert Springs Hotel, where Calvin meets Ann Lee, the free airplane ride to the resort under the pretense that he is going to make a stratosphere flight from the desert resort.

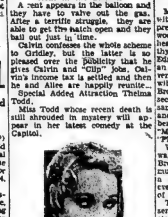
An airplane manufacturer, Gridley, who once built a stratosphere balloon at great cost for an unsuccessful expedition, is at the Desert Springs Hotel. He sees a chance to get rid of his balloon. He has the news out to a group of wealthy business men at the resort, who back the flight for the publicity attached to it.

Calvin accepts eighty-five thousand dollars from the backers to advertise their wares. "Chip" runs away with the money just before the flight and Calvin goes after him.

The manager of the hotel tells the hare crowd, assembled to watch the take-off, that the two fliers are crooks and the flight is off.

Alice Lorna, a debutante, who has been working at the hotel as a tennis instructor and who has been estranged from her husband for five years because of his night life, gets up and tells the crowd that Calvin is her husband and that he is honest.

Calvin and "Chip" arrive, and amid much excitement the flight starts. They reach the record-breaking height for stratosphere ascension. Calvin makes a speech over the radio and advertises the wares of his backers.



A Thrill in the Balloon

A test appears in the balloon and they have to cave out the sand. After a terrific struggle, they are able to get the hatch open and they bail out just in time.

Calvin confesses the whole scheme to Gridley, and the latter is so pleased over the publicity that he gives Calvin and "Chip" job. Calvin's income tax is settled and then he and Alice are happily united.

Special Added Attraction Thelma Todd.

Miss Todd whose recent death is still shrouded in mystery will appear in her latest comedy at the Capitol.

THELMA TODD

Dr. Bisch's Daily Diet Hint

Persons convalescing from a severe illness frequently represent a serious problem by reason of their poor appetite. Their palates must be "tickled" continuously with attractively-served, simple yet nutritious foods. Their diet should be light, easily digested and their meals should be served punctually. The busy host should see that food is also the serving of lukewarm foods.

AT THE BELLE

"Bonnie Scotland"

The Whole Family Will Enjoy The Riotous Fun Films

Rose petals in the pathway of a bride and Hardy, the vanquished pair of screen comedians! For Stanley Laurel and Oliver Hardy, the bards of Hal Roach, the duo has delighted screen fans throughout the world with their inimitable antics in their latest full-length comedy, "Bonnie Scotland," at the Belle lousy and Monday, matinee daily. Starting tonight and running through eight reels of rolling laughter, adventure and intrigue in Scotland, the boys, accompanied by Edith, a trail of merriment and hilarity, a trail of merriment and hilarity.

They Are Sent to India

The opening scenes show the pair in Scotland, Stanley McLaurel, accompanied by his pompous friend, Oliver Hardy, are about to leave Scotland to claim the magnificent estate of deceased uncle. So far as Stan is concerned, however, the entire estate consists of some useless hairlooms for that is his share in the legacy. Then the boys, through mistaken identity, they have signed themselves into the Scottish Highlanders and are sent to India in His Majesty's service. Before they are called upon to demonstrate their commanding officers in an effort to save the four. As in all comedies their action is effective but not until after they have experienced some hazardous adventures. It is perhaps needless to state that Stanley Laurel and Oliver Hardy are unrivalled in their antics ar ever in this comedy classic. Their unsmile, their sneer and bravado they swagger through sequence after sequence. Added in the the hablement of Scottish Highlanders the boys present caricatures of the kiddies from ball and once again top the heights of the art of pantomime.

Love Enters The Plot

Throughout the film is threaded the romance of the beautiful young Miss Bruces, Lorna McLaurel, and poor young law clerk, Hugo Jas. The role of Lorna is excellently done by Daphne Pollard and Willam Janney also gives a splendid performance as the struggling young barrister.

"Bonnie Scotland" should rank among the outstanding pictures of the screen for 1935. Among other well known players supporting the cast are: Anne Grey, Vernon Dent, Eddie Phinjacq, Harold Torence, Maurice Black, Daphne Pollard, Mary Gordon and Lionel Belmore.

Melodious Melodrama

Melodious melodrama that reels with suspense and romance and presentist that Jean Parker from Hollywood who makes a great many Warner Brat films, beautiful Dorothy Page of the lovely voice and Edmund Lowe, who always gives an outstanding performance. Universal's fast moving comedy drama "King Solomon of Broadway" is announced as the second feature attraction on the same program, with Finley Tramble and Miss Page singing three numbers, namely "What You Know," "Moanin' in the Moonlight" and "Flower in My Lapel."

While having to do with Broadway and the "King Solomon of Broadway" does not lean heavily on musical efforts. A shooting, a fight, a kidnapping and other dramatic events add to the "natural" punch of the whole.

Two complete shows will be presented tonight, the first starting at 6.45 and the second complete show at 9.15. Don't miss this outstanding screen program.

His splendid address created in its attentive hearers a renewed and earnestly go on with the good work they are trying to do.

Last evening the members of the Quinte Skating Club held their first social party of the season when some eighty members enjoyed a fine two-hour skate on a perfect sheet of ice. At the close of the evening a lovely luncheon was served by the hostesses, Miss Sprackett, Georgia Smith, Miss Lennox and Miss Barlow. The club now has a director for Monday skaters and also a host for the pleasure skaters. The directors have worked hard to enable new members to enjoy the art of skating and it looks as though this year will be a decided success.

One hundred and twenty couples enjoyed the hospitality of the Library and Athletic Societies of the Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School at their annual at Moses' Lake. Under the general convenorship of Douglas Newby, the committees worked hard to make the evening the splendid success it was. The gymnasium in which the dance held was transformed into a lovely winter picture. The orchestra music was arranged in snow scenes with frosted Christmas trees at the top. Against a background of white, blue and silver figures were outlined around the walls with sleds and snow shoes adding to the sports picture. The Commanders (provided a splendid dance program. Bridge was played in the other gymnasium, and later supper was served here at small, gaily-decorated tables. The prize for bridge was won by Mr. G. W. Proctor and prizes were also given for spot dances. Patrons and patronesses of the dance were Mr. and Mrs. F. C. MacLaurin, Mr. and Mrs. B. O. Elder, Mr. and Mrs. R. Moncrieff, Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Ferguson, Miss V. E. Brown, Miss Rea Symons and Mr. Bruce Wilson. A number of members of the Board of Education and their wives were present at the delightful affair.

FAITH FENTON DIES IN TORONTO

Journalist And Covered Glamorous Gold Rush to Yukon

Toronto, Jan. 11.—(CP)—Pioneers of the Yukon gold rush of '98 will act as pall-bearers at the funeral Monday of Faith Fenton, fadpioneer woman reporter who "covered" the glamorous search for gold for Toronto newspapers, in the country of the Klondyke, she died here yesterday.

Faith Fenton went to the Yukon as a member of the field force of the Victorian Order of Nurses but she also carried a commission to write articles for the Globe. She wrote tales of adventure that thrilled her readers. The feat was intrigued by the picture of a lone woman among the Yukon Sourdoughs.

Before that adventure, undertaken with the encouragement of Lady Aberdeen, wife of then Governor-General, Faith Fenton had established herself as an outstanding reporter. She began writing when she was teaching school and later devoted herself entirely to newspaper work.

She wrote stories for the Toronto Empire before its amalgamation with the Mail, and also reported the affairs in Ottawa she knew such celebrities as Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Sir Mackenzie Bowell and wrote special interviews for the Empire.

Her marriage to Fred Wright took place on New Year's Day, 1900, in Dawson City. Mrs. Wright, who died Dr. Brown had gone into the gold country on the first civil commissioner of the Yukon and was First Secretary, of the Yukon, where he remained until 1906.

CHARGES STERILIZATION—Here is a new posed picture of Miss Ann Cooper Hewitt of San Francisco, who is suing her mother and others for $600,000 damages, alleging she was tricked into sterilization operation. She claims her mother's motive was to gain control of a $10,000,000 estate of the girl's father. Mrs. Maryon McCarthy, the girl's mother, denies the allegations.

The January meeting of the Bethany W.C.T.U. was held at the church on Sunday evening, Jan. 5 with 17 members present.

In the absence of the president, Mrs. John Ritz took charge of the meeting. Hymn 146 was sung and all repeated the Lord's Prayer. Business was then discussed and the treasurer's report read. Hymn 153 was sung followed by a reading by Mrs. Gerald Walker then Mrs. Ritz sang a solo after which the gift box was read. Master Norman Ritz gave a recitation. Readings were given by Miss Reeda Walker, Mrs. John Ritz and Mrs. John Ritz. The meeting closed with hymn 146 and prayer by Mrs. Walker. Collection 54 cents.

CHRIST CHURCH W. A.

The members of the Woman's Auxiliary of Christ Church met in the chapel Wednesday with Mrs. Vanderwoort in the chair. The Epiphany hymn, "O Thou Who By a Star Didst Guide" was played by Mrs. Wright. The W. A. litany and remembrance of those members who have passed on lent a moment's silence. Messages of good cheer from absent members were given between sides letters of thanks read. The president, in her address thanked the officers for their loyalty and support. In reviewing the work of the year, she stressed the hoped-for triumph of the times was not evident but always worked out by a power greater than our hopes as a success. At the conclusion the "Lancia Facie" by Quentin Masers (1466 to 1530) was exhibited. The minutes of 1935 were read by the secretary, Mrs. Scott; the financial report showing a bank balance by Mrs. Wright; report of "Living nonville), the secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Wm. Coles (Shannonville). The rector gave an address on the meaning of life (by request) which was enjoyable and greatly appreciated A standing vote of thanks was taken to Mrs. Vanderwoort who concludes the Woman's Auxiliary on the year's work.

Want to know why my mama's so smart?

She's eating Shredded Wheat, because whenever he needs a laxative she gives him one he likes to take—Cascarets! And does it taste good!

Mothers! You'll be glad to know that Cascarets is made especially for children—even to the taste. You won't have to force it between their protesting lips . . . and that's important! For the revulsion and gagging a child goes through when taking a laxative he hates can shock his nervous system—and upset his tiny stomach.

Remember, Cascaret is safe! There isn't a harmful ingredient in it. It contains no drugs, no narcotics. It is not a harsh purgative—won't cause griping pains.

Eliminate Poisons

By keeping the kidneys active and regular

The human machine is the process of digestion forms poisons which are eliminated through the lungs, the kidneys, the bowels and by perspiration.

The kidneys are the natural filters of the blood and on them is thrown the work of eliminating the poisons from all we eat and drink, especially the latter. If the quantity of poisons is greater than the capacity of the kidneys can look after, we experience pain and serious disease.

The secret of avoiding trouble of this kind is found in the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills because they arouse the action of the liver, kidneys and bowels and promptly eliminate the poisons from the system. The kidneys are relieved of overwork and regain health and vigor. Pains, aches and tired feelings disappear and serious disease is prevented.

Woman Fight Promoter Receives Her Licence
Detroit, Jan. 11.—(AP)—Michigan's only woman fight promoter received her license this week from the State Athletic Board of Control and posted her motto: "Never a postponement."

The new promoter is Mrs. Frank Erne who inherited the business when her husband died. Behind the late Frank Erne who had arranged boxing and wrestling cards here for the last five years.

During that time Mrs. Erne was his business manager, selling tickets, compuling the gladiators' percentages and settling the cheques. When Erne died recently after scheduling a fight, his widow made a prompt decision.

"He would want the fight to go on," she declared, "and it shall. Furthermore, it shall step into his shoes and continue the Friday night fights and others, too, if the boxing commission will let me."

Reviews Outlook in 1936 For Milk Producers
Producers of Milk May Expect as Good Returns as in 1935

MORE COWS
215,000,000 Pounds Butter Produced in 100 Months of Last Year

Cows have their census taken just the same as people. A change in the number of cattle is a matter of great interest to dairymen, buttermakers, cheesemakers; in fact, for almost all persons in the economic structure of dairy products. In June, 1935, the number of milk cows on farms in Canada was less than at the same date in 1934. The expected result would be a reduction in the total amount of milk produced. Actually, an increase has taken place, due to the material improvement in available feed supplies in most parts of Canada, in addition to a higher proportion of the cows actually being milked. It is in such a manner that the Dominion Departments of Agriculture and Trade and Commerce have good about, diagnosing the prospects for dairy products in 1936, in their publication the "Agricultural Situation and Outlook." Producers of milk and milk products in Canada may look forward to returns in 1936 at least as high as in 1935. Summarizing the situation, the "Outlook" states "Examination of the factors which will affect the production of dairy products indicates that production is likely to be maintained at reasonably high levels during 1936 and it is expected that the income of dairymen should be as high as during 1935."

For the first ten months of 1935, Canada produced over 215,000,000 pounds of butter, which is sufficient to spread thinly over about nine thousand acres of bread. Storage stocks of butter in Canada were reduced substantially by exportation during the latter part of 1935. Reports in Great Britain indicated to approximately six million pounds in this period. This left storage stocks comparatively light and assigns the price of butter rises to a point where consumption will be restricted, it is anticipated that domestic requirements will take care of present stocks and winter production.

More Butter Used

The per capita consumption of butter in Canada in 1935 was approximately thirty-one pounds, compared with twenty-five pounds in 1931. Consumption since 1931 has remained about constant.

Cheese production in Canada has been declining for a number of years, but this tendency appears to have been halted in 1935. Ontario and Quebec are the important cheese producing Provinces. A considerable quantity of cheese is imported into Canada, chiefly of the types not manufactured in this country. Canada's Cheddar cheese is well regarded in Great Britain and commands a premium over cheese of the same type from other countries on that market.

The "Outlook" provides up-to-date information on the production and market trends for milk, butter, cheese and concentrated milk products. This publication is available free to farmers and others interested about January 15th, on application to the Publicity and Extension Branch, Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Timothy Seed Supply Plentiful This Year
The supply of timothy seed this year will far exceed the demand, consequently the price will be lower than it has been for a long time and there is unexpected opportunity for farmers who require seed to purchase. Only the best quality, at the time of writing the price of No. 1 seed in Montreal is $4.50 per hundred pounds. This is 75 per cent. of the price demanded last season. There is seldom any serious doubt regarding the germination of timothy seed, but too much attention cannot be paid to its purity or freedom from weed seeds. If a farmer buys seed which turns out to be unsatisfactory for his purposes, he can dispose of it by some means making the best of a bad bargain, and forget about the incident. Unfortunately the same cannot be done with a lot of seed for field crops which contains weed seeds. If weed-infested seed is once put into the ground it cannot be forgotten as the weeds will be a continual reminder. This is particularly true if the weed seeds are from a perennial such as Ox-eye Daisy. The seed is mentioned because it is one of the weeds classed as Primary Noxious under the Seeds Act, and one which is very commonly found in timothy seed. It is difficult to remove during the process of cleaning, and easily passed over when a sample is being examined for impurities. Over 20 per cent. of the samples sent in in 1934 crop which were analyzed in the Seed Laboratory, Ottawa, contained Ox-eye Daisy. In these samples the average number of the seeds of this weed was 32.1 per cent. per ounce. Any lot of timothy seed containing this number of Ox-eye Daisy should be rejected as unfit for seed under the Seeds Act.

A simple calculation will show the number of Ox-eye Daisy seeds which would be sown per acre if this seed were used.

Since timothy seed is plentiful and the price low this season every care should be taken in the purchase and only the cleanest seed should find its way into the ground.

Information from the Dominion Department of Agriculture aims to encourage the general use of good seed by promoting the production of seeds of superior quality in Canada.

Wireworm Ravages Aided by Poor Seed
One of the surest ways to have a thin, spotty, weedy, unproductive stand of wheat is to use poor seed—especially if treated with formaldehyde fields infested by wireworms. Since this pest is rather generally prevalent throughout the prairie provinces, the farmers of the park belt, especially of Saskatchewan, this is a matter of great importance. In the Peace River district, the general increase of the pest during recent years, and the frequently large supply of seed badly damaged by rust, frost or drought. Even very good wireworm fields may start to grow, but germination and early growth are often weak and spindly. These effects are particularly marked if such seed has been treated with formalin. Under such circumstances, assistance is given by the Entomological Branch, Dominion Department of Agriculture, that each wireworm will destroy several times as much as it would be able to do if healthy plants were more used. Moreover, the destruction of weak seeds and plants is particularly heavy when soil moisture and temperature is favorable to the germination of seed. All of these results arise from the fact that wireworm attacks are chiefly serious from the time the seed is placed in the soil until the plants have established strong root systems and have begun to shoot heavily. Thus anything—such as the use of poor seed—which lengthens this critical period multiplies the destructive powers of the pest; while, on the other hand, any practice which shortens it decreases the rate of damage by wireworms.

Market Manipulation Operates Against Can. Bacon in Gt. Britain
Toronto, Jan. 10.—In answer to a Canadian Press dispatch from Ottawa to the effect that Canada may have to limit hog sales to the United States, inasmuch as the price incentive across the border is said to be endangering the market supply in Great Britain, W. B. Somerset, Commissioner of Marketing for the Province of Ontario, stated in an interview today that he saw no reason why Canadian farmers should not be able to cater to the highest bidders.

"In other words," Mr. Somerset stated, "I suppose this might be interpreted to mean that in order to continue the present favorable position the buyers are securing Canadian bacon for less than they should pay for it, some steps should be taken to embargo Canadian hogs or bacon being sold to United States markets. It has always been stated that farmers' prices are fixed by world markets, but I suppose that the new world condition arises where the farmer might be expected to help organization is made that this profit might be taken away from them. Would it not be a more reasonable position to take that the British trade dealer prepare themselves to pay better prices for Canadian bacon? It is an intolerable position that the British trade have been insisting in placing Canadian bacon at a discrimination which it does not deserve. The British bacon agents refuse to buy bacon in our own markets, but insist that our bacon must be sent over to them on consignment, but pay us for it when they think we should have, according to an artificial market called 'official prices,' which official prices have been shown to be merely the result of a gentlemen's agreement between the bacon agents who are supposed to represent Canadian packers and the buyers from whom they secure supplies.

"Real competition in bacon is selling in the British retail shops at the same price as Danish bacon. I see no reason why the present arrangement Canadian bacon is selling from 14 to 16 shillings per cwt. less than Danish. The British market is not purchasing Canadian bacon for any other reason than that they want it, but now is the time, I think, when the bacon producers in this country should insist on selling their bacon on the British market, and they will know what they are going to get for it before it leaves for the British market.

"Canadian bacon packers during the last few years have been subjected severe losses from this type of market manipulation, and the argument that supply improves prices, which appears in the dispatch from Ottawa, is the same argument of the British trade as to why the Canadian packer should be willing to ship at a loss and never know what the loss is going to be assessed against him."

FIT SCHEDULES IN THE MAJORS TO THEIR TEAM

Calls For Shorter And More Frequently Varied Series

'Closing Date' For Both Leagues is Set For September 27

New York, Jan. 11 (AP)— The American and National Baseball Leagues, with indications of considered disregard for the traditional way of doing things, have decided to fit their 1936 schedules to their teams.

The program agreed on yesterday at a conference between Ford Frick, National League President; Harvard Ashmall, Secretary-Treasurer, and William Harridge of Chicago, American League President, calls for shorter and more frequently varied series. It will begin play starting two weeks after the opening and a general speeding up of the program.

This the probable pennant contenders will be able to come to grips within the first month after the campaigns start April 14. The fourth inter-league all-star game was awarded to Boston to be played July 7 in Braves Field. The closing date of the 154-game schedule is Sept. 27.

The various openings date were scheduled as follows: April 14 American: St. Louis at Chicago, Detroit at Cleveland, New York at Washington, Philadelphia at Boston. National: Brooklyn at New York, Boston at Philadelphia, Pittsburgh at Cincinnati, Chicago at St. Louis.

April 17 American: Cleveland at St. Louis, Chicago at Detroit, Washington at Philadelphia, Boston at New York. National: New York at Boston, Philadelphia at Brooklyn, Cincinnati at Chicago and St. Louis at Pittsburgh (April 18). April 21 (first intersectional series) American: Detroit at Washington, St. Louis at Philadelphia, Cleveland at New York, Chicago at Boston. National: Philadelphia at Pittsburgh, Boston at Cincinnati, Brooklyn at Chicago, New York at St. Louis.

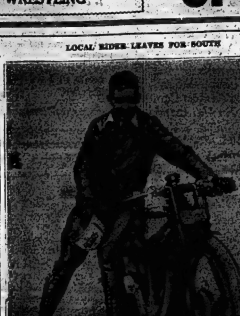
JUVENILE GROUP IN BASKETBALL

Art Cole Takes Over The Coaching Duties of Local Team

With the juvenile group of the K.O.A.R.A. divided into two groups, the Deacon A.C. juveniles of Belleville find themselves grouped with Napanee "Grads" and the Kingston C.K.V.E. in the Ontario Basketball Association this year, three other Kingston teams going to make up groups of three, which at the termination of the regular playing schedules of each group, the group final play-off will be played between the respective winners with the ultimate in the provincial juvenile play-downs.

The Deacon A.C. juniors, under the supervision of Coach Art Cole, have been working out with regularity of late and currently defeated the Albert College senior intermediate squad of basketeers by the score of 43 to 18. Coach Cole has a splendid squad of youthful basketeers to work with in their bid for the group championship for his charges this year.

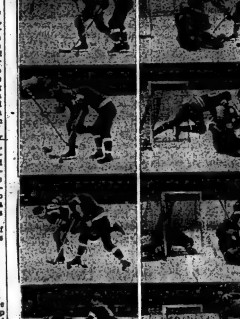
The schedule for section No. 1 of the K.O.A.B.A. in the juvenile series for 1936 is as follows:



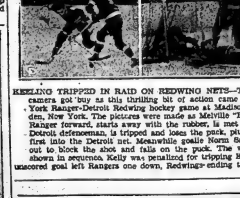
Jan. 17—K.C.V.I. at Napanee.
Jan. 24—Deacon A.C. at Napanee.
Jan. 29—Napanee at Deacon A.C.
Feb. 3—Napanee at K.C.V.I.
Feb. 5—K.C.V.I. at Deacon A.C.
Feb. 19—Deacon A.C. at K.C.V.I.

The play-off dates between the winners of group No 1 and group No. 2 will take place on Feb. 21 and Feb. 26, it was announced.

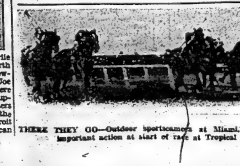
BOXER LOUIS JAM . . . Charlie Retzlaff, dirt farmer from North Dakota, stacks his punching prowess, if any, against Boomer Joe Louis in Chicago on Jan. 17. Here he shows a smile, which is supposed to ooze confidence. Writers give him little chance against the flailing leather of the Detroit heavyweight, but you never can tell—smith.



LOCAL RIDER LEAVES FOR SOUTH



GEORGE PEPPER



Travelling by means of a motor car and hauling his single cylinder motorcycle in a trailer, George Pepper, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Pepper, 90 Chatham St., left for Savannah, Georgia, today accompanied by five other members of the Quinte Motorcycle Club, where Pepper will participate in the annual 200 mile motorcycle road race to be staged near Savannah on Jan. 12th. George Pepper was the only foreign rider even to finish in the annual American Motorcycle Club's annual 200 mile road race, when he completed the course last year at Daytona Beach, Fla. Gear box line trouble during the last 50 mile a hrpk Pepper from finishing well in front of all riders last year, as he was leading the race when the trouble developed, which eliminated his chances of victory.

George Pepper has been working on his single cylinder Norton machine for the past few months and has it tuned to the maximum speed and expects to finish out in front of all competitors this year. The race is staged over a special 3 1-3 mile course outside of Savannah, one of the most hazardous courses in the United States, it was learned recently. Pepper will ride under the colors of the Quinte Motorcycle Club, of which he is a past president and one of the charter members . . . The party, which includes Pepper, Cecil Ling, Henry Wallbridge and Fred Rawson of Belleville and two lads from Madoc, left Belleville today by motor car and expect to be in Savannah by the middle of next week and in time to allow Pepper sufficient time to tune his machine and try out the course prior to the race. Eliminadion contests will also be held at Savannah.

KEELING TRIPPED IN RAID ON REDWING NETS—The Magic Eye camera got 'buy as this thrilling bit of action came during a New York Ranger-Detroit Redwing hockey game at Madison Square Garden, New York. The pictures were made as Melville "Butch" Keeling, Ranger forward, starts away with the rubber, is met by Pete Kelly, Detroit defenseman, is tripped and loses the puck, plunging on head first into the Detroit net. Meanwhile goalie Norm Smith has come out to block the shot and falls on the puck. The whole play is shown in sequence. Kelly was penalized for tripping Keeling, but the uncored goal left Rangers one down, Redwings ending the game 3-1.

CURRENT SPORT

DAY BY DAY

The old Bay of Quinte Hockey League, that flourished prolifficy some years ago, is back in the limelight once again. Last night Napanee agreed to enter the proposed league along with Picton, Trenton and the Belleville Yacht Club, each team having the privilege of playing their home games on their home arena, as it looks as though Thrasher Smith has accomplished something for his "sailors" at last. Trenton agreed to come in the league with their O.H.A. schedule being accepted as league games in the Bay of Quinte loop. Manager Walt. Gerow of Napanee, stated he would forward Duke Smith his selection of dates for the two games with the Belleville Yacht Club and also Picton. The league will commence operations immediately and the large Burrows trophy will be the ultimate goal of the winner of the Bay of Quinte League for 1936. Napanee won over Trenton in the O.H.A. on Thursday night and formd as a guest player in the Bay of Quinte loop as well all remaining games between Napanee and Trenton, Picton and the Belleville Yacht Club will also play a double schedule while a single schedule will be played between Belleville - Picton and Napanee - Trenton. Manager Walt. Gerow is once aggregation in action at Trenton, however, as formly believe that Manager Duke Smith has contracted for something pretty large when he entered a league embracing the other three town, but of course that's what makes hockey, keen competition.

Another good hockey group came into being locally last night when the four senior intermediate boys' schools credited a school league at Bridge-Brandshaigh Memorial Hall. St. Michael's Academy, O.S.D. Albert College and the R.C.I.V.S. are all primed and ready for the fray, which may commence next Wednesday evening at the arena with all four teams appearing in a double header, weather permitting. The spirit of school rivalry is especially in the senior interscholastic series, always appeals to the rank and file of fans, as these players are usually proven packers and play in a sterling game for their Alma Mater. One of the features of the loop is the insertion of "ten cent" hockey, the price of admission being lowered to a tin dime, similar to the Mercantile loop in Toronto.

Through the efforts of President Jack Wilson and Secretary Gerald Barriage the Belleville Industrial Hockey League has been successfully launched and will commence operations with a triple-header on Thursday night, all six teams composing the loop swinging into action and starting at seven bells. The teams to compose the loop are Corbys, Y's Men's Club, American Corbins, Belleville-Gazette, First Presbyterians of St. Andrew's Church Men's Club and an amalgamated team of the local bankers, making up a splendid six teamed loop. The games in this league are played after regular skating hours or following the O.H.A. games at the arena.

Owing to continued mild weather Manager George Clay closed the arena yesterday in order to save the existing ice. "We have not considerable of our depth of ice due to the fact that there has been so much public skating and no hockey, after which we could flood and naturally manufacture more ice than was being used. You see public skating in mild weather lowers our ice surface rapidly," explained Manager Clay. Colder weather is hoped for over the week-end, however.

"Shanghai Rose"

By Anne Forester

"Once you were a wise little girl," he said softly, a dangerous tranquility in his tone. "A wise little girl, in spangles and a curl..... minding her own business, curious as she was, keeping her pretty nose out of things that were none of their affairs! You've changed, my Rose—" Firmly he turned her by the chin to light. "Changed in more ways than the spangles and the curl..... Smart little hussy—woman—telling all she knows—"

With a panic-stricken wrench the girl flung herself free; anger and a wholesome disgust for this man stinging out the sick terror of the moment before.

"I've done nothing of the sort!" she whipped back at him in a strident whisper. "It is my business —what you're doing here! I paid you enough, Austin Deering—everything I owned—to keep the name of the Therolds free from mud! When I cabled that check off Harvey's I left myself without a cent..... I was afraid of you then..... Well, I'm not afraid of you now! If you're fooling Harvey's sister, you can count on me to interfere—even if it means telling all I know!"

"All you know!" Horrible, she thought, that mocking, threatening voice....."I take it by that you continued to protect the name of your dear husband from his family? Why, my dear, do you imagine the Therolds would believe Harvey forged that check? You, as his wife, really forged it, my dear.....or at least that is what I've given them to understand! Forged your husband's unsullied name—and then used his brother's money to buy your own silence. I mean!"

"You—" Stunned horror froze her tongue, a creeping chill riding about her heart. "You mean to tell me that the Therolds believe that of me? You told them such a monstrous lie—You despicable, crafty, sons cheat!" Rose's pointed, grey eyes burning almost black in her white face. Hammering in her rage, finding herself by the very earnestness of her desire, expressing her scorn and loathing for this man becoming incoherent and without words.

"Tell me, Therrold—faltering, she had used his money to save her own skin.....did he order he aided the way he did?.....he wonder that Barbara he did?.....he wonder that Barbara and the rest of them held her in contempt? All the misery and resentful fury of the long summer months rushed over Rose Therrold in a wave. Steadying herself against the counter at her back, she faced Austin Deering with hot eyes and searing voice.

"I'm going up there tonight, do you understand?" she said slowly, weighing each word against a particularly hard breath. "Up to the Therrold house—whether they shut me out or not! I'll tell them what you are, Austin Deering! I've tried to give you warning! I kept my hands off—hoping you'd leave here, hoping you'd let me alone. But now I mean to see it through—do you understand—through! Whether the Therrolds believe me or not! Whether they care or not, I'm going to tell them the whole story about Harvey. Why should I protect him? Why should I let you go on?..... Barbara Therrold is nothing to me," she finished bitterly—"but she might be interested to know the facts about Nadia and about your poor little wife in Shanghai!"

She stopped. Every drop of blood drained from her face at the expression in this man's eyes. Nowhere in all they were, those light, cheerful they were, those light, secretive eyes, in the locked, mirthless face confronting her blurred vision of her own Ruthless and deadly..... those stories in Gobi Desert..... Her heart began to pound again in slow, dull thuds, her throat fell, or sudden, dry, and there was a faint, light humming in her ears.

A heard to be its this—By an effort she walked slowly away from him toward the window at the rear. She would have to get hold of herself—this was something in an impossible farce..... Why, how could he hurt her? Why!

"Just a moment!"

Something dead in the suave, silken voice from the chair by the counter. Something inscrutably menacing in the small, still smile that met the girl's glance when she again she turned. The hand gripping the arm of the wooden chair was clenching slowly. She watched it, standing there—watched the fingers spreading, stiff and wide, under the furry hair, to control.

Then the tall, grey-suited figure rose slowly to its feet. Austin Deering, picking up his hat with deliberity, all the veneer fallen from him as a cloak.

"Good Therrolds," he said softly, "will undoubtedly be delighted to see you, summoned to hear your pretty stories about me. However, there is something you seem to have forgotten, is there not?" The thin lips tightened in a cruel smile. His whole face became pin points of fire in the centre of each dark, piercing pupil. Austin Deering, the boulevardier, the man-about-town, gave place to the adventurer, Austin Deering, the renegade, the blackguard — the unscrupulous scoundrel who saw his dearest plans go glimmering.....

"—don't know what you mean—" Oh, if only he'd get out, thought the girl wildly, shakingly—

"I think you do," the man said casually, turning at last toward the door. "Wasn't there something, my Rose, about the Therrolds wanting to adopt that baby of yours? Provided they could get you away from this town? Ah-h..... that shod the boots, I see! And, of course," he continued soothingly, "you wouldn't consent to such an idea! But if, for instance—let us say, just for the sake of argument—if, for instance, the Therrolds could have proof that you are unfit to raise Harvey Therrold's child? What then, my Rose?"

Under the veiled, suave pronouncement of the words, something stark and terrible seemed leading the quiet place.

"You're crazy!" Rose laughed shortly; a bitter refutation more convincing than words. "Talk's cheap, Captain Deering! You know as well as I that not even you, with your slimy methods, could find one breath of scandal to hang on me.....either here or in Shanghai! Nor can Harvey, either, even if he was a pretty rotten husband. Neither one of us had anything to have our daughter but decent records. And that," she finished calmly, "is that. Don't be a fool!"

Proudly Rose spoke the words, secure in the knowledge that back of them lay absolutely indisputable truth. But the man, laughing softly, his head inclined, shook his head. Rose something flickered and went out something alert, guarded, watchful. In his not inconsiderable experience with women, it had been safe thing for Austin Deering to have them do unexpected, even reckless things, when goaded beyond a certain point. What he had to say now would, he knew, bring results—of one sort or another.

"Goodnight, Rose. But just one question more. What would you say if you heard of an impeccable mother—who spent the night in the rear of a little clothing store.....; with a rather drunken young man?.....Larry, thought Rose. Remembrance a stab sickenly sudden and unexpected. Larry.....that night he had come here! Oh, they could not believe her guilty of anything wrong in that..... The Therrolds..... they might think her unfit to keep Kitten! It was absurd—

"Fainingly she raised her head, words pouring out. But Austin Deering was gone.

CHAPTER XI

"HOME-KEEPING HEARTS"

"So, thanks, Lottie—no more coffee," Larry said finally. "I'll be doing specialties on the chandelier." He turned lazily in his chair, grinning at the shameless small boy grin he usually prefaced some particularly audacious remark. "By the way," he said innocently, "where's that blonde you promised me this year? The one you saw in the cards—you know, with the gold tooth and the cough?"

"Mr. Larry!" Lottie rolled shocked, round blue eyes rigidly to a spot, but over his head. "You know perfectly well I never—" she subsided, giggling. "Oh, you're just foolin' again. Honest, I never know the difference any more. Mis' Therrold," she amended, turning to Rose who had quietly into the room. "Mr. Larry says he's got to go back to the office again tonight. On Christmas Eve, too—I do think that Luke Hewitt is a ghoul!"

"Lottie! Confine yourself to the more distant debates of a figment's veracity," Larry corrected easily. "Besides I said I had to go back later. Not right this moment; Lottie—but later. Didn't you say you and Mr. Harris were going out for awhile?"

"Yes, they are." Rose answered conscious of the flush that stained her cheek. Larry, she reflected, had every intention of seeing that they did. And the secret she got it over with, the better. If only he wouldn't wait to explain about that night and come to the store.....

She had not had a chance for a word alone with him since; he had been working out of town for over a week. Somehow she felt that she couldn't listen to excuses tonight; or to apologies or promises for the future. She felt vaguely ashamed of the unworthiness of her thought the moment they occurred, but somehow she was so tired, so driven by the clamor within herself today by everything else seemed pallid and meaningless by comparison.

"Mr. Larry!" Lottie's flat if she would she had been haunted by the fear that somehow he would bring about the unrest Austin Deering had voiced. She, who had always prided herself with a courage borrowed from yesterday, inquiring not into tomorrow, could find herself yearning for the door-bell, waiting for some sign that she had set in motion.

She had spent a night back of the store with him, she thought. Once again. She had been seen coming home with her husband's partner. It was outrageous, fantastic, that anyone would double her story when she had told them the truth. But who wanted to believe her? Suppose the Therrolds did bring some such charge? They wanted her baby and she could have Kitten. Larry would testify—but who would believe Larry?

Tell him about it, she couldn't. Rose told herself, pressing the flooding her cheeks at the thought. Larry was singing in an elaborate falsetto which all but sent Lottie into convulsions. "Mr. Larry, you want I should have one of my spells?"

"What's so important that you have to go back to the office tonight, Larry?" Rose asked quietly. More from a desire to distract her own thoughts than any particular interest in Luke Hewitt's assignments.

"Special assignment from the county Herald." Larry said with pompous gravity. "Wants an article on how a family of 15 can live on $15 a week. I said 'A family of 15 what?'—but he said, 'Write it!' So I'm going to write it. And if anybody tries to follow me out to the letter," he finished savagely and rose, "I'll make a swell job for some coroner!"

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was doing the crossword puzzle and pop was smoking and thinking in his private chair, and I was thinking in my room. I think in this room is fellows have started a new club called the Flying Trapeze Artists, and they're going to elect me president of it.

My hands aich a name for a club, ma said, and pop said, It doesn't matter what the name is as long as you're a member of it it's club and club to you, isn't that rite, Benny?

It's any about the bed spring, I said. We found a swell 2nd hand bed spring out in the back street waiting for the ash men to take it away, and we rescued it and it's a swell thing to jump on, just like a certain to succeed in life if you are a leeder of meng and every grate leeder of men was once poorly an obscure leeder of boys, he said.

I'm not quite all a ways elected and the one that can keep it in his back yard between meetings is going to be the president of the club, so if I can I am, I said, and ma said, What a nameless old bed spring from we dont know where we dont know, who?

Aw heck, me, holey moses, G rosenhaft, I said, and pop said, I'm afraid there's no use wasting breath about it, I fear you're temporarily a lost leeder because something tells me your mother would never give in, wich relieves me of the necessity of going on record as either affirmative or negative.

Proberly meaning he was doubtfull himself.

TARZAN THE INVINCIBLE (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service)

Zora looked at the profile of the creature that was carrying her. She thought at first that she was the victim of a strange hallucination, for of course she could not measure the time she had been unconscious. The ape had been transformed into a handsome demigod.

Zora thought she would close her eyes again, and when she opened them, she would know whether she was mad or dreaming. When at last she opened them, she was convinced she was experiencing a nightmare. The ape was gone, and in its place was this giant white man.

Plodding along the trail directly behind her was a giant bull elephant. Tarzan, apprised of her returning consciousness by the movement of her head upon his shoulder, turned his own to look at her and saw her gazing at Tantor in wide-eyed astonishment.

The ape-man made no reply. Zora thought of struggling to free herself; but realizing that she was very weak and helpless, she at last resigned herself to her fate and let her cheek fall to the brawny arm of the ape-man.

Royal Bank of Canada 67th Annual Meeting

Morris W. Wilson, President and Managing Director, Sees Upward Trend of Business Definitely Established

Sydney G. Dobson, General Manager, Reports $50,000,000 Increase in Deposits For 3 second Years in Succession

Basis for optimism for the immediate future is to be found in the accompanying statements of the two persons, stated Mr. Morris W. Wilson, President and Managing Director, in the course of his address at the 67th Annual Meeting of The Royal Bank of Canada.

"In every province of Canada", said Mr. Wilson, "the improvement in conditions has reduced unemployment and created increased purchasing power. To the farmers of the west, there is an almost immeasurable difference between a price of 40c and 90c for wheat and there is every prospect that by the end of the crop year, the carryover will be materially reduced. In the cities, the burdens and distress due to unemployment have been reduced by an expansion in all lines of manufacturing. In fact, in recent months the volume of manufacturing has exceeded that of the corresponding year 1929."

Marked expansion in the automobile and allied industries, the chemical industry, the demand for textiles and boots, were also noted by Mr. Wilson, who remarked that for sustained activity in the mining industry during the depression and its expansion in 1934-1935 have been outstanding elements in Canadian recovery.

Mining.

"The payrolls of that industry," said Mr. Wilson, "and its contribution to wages at a time when many of those employed in other industries were on short time or were without work were out of all proportion to the mining industry's relative importance in the depression in Canada would have been much more severe. In spite of low prices and the low level of demand for building materials, the total value of mineral production in 1935 again amounted to more than $600,000,000. The record gold production attained a new high record of $113,000,000. I am of the opinion that the future of the Canadian mineral production is in the future."

Unemployment.

"While unemployment has shown some improvement during the past year, unemployment is still a major problem. Many Canadian families constitute a threatening drain upon the resources of many local communities. While recognizing fully our social obligations, I fear that these expenditures have not always been made with due regard to the public interest. The proportion of the total Dominion Government is swelled with great interest."

Security of Contracts.

Referring to the repudiation last year by one of the Provinces of important long-term power contracts, Mr. Wilson said: "The alleged ground was that of illegality, but it is noteworthy that disregarding all ordinary canons of British fairness the aggrieved investors have been denied even the courts of law to test their claims. Moral considerations aside—laws alone are not to be lightly disregarded—the policy of repudiating contracts that may have become disadvantageous because of changed conditions strikes at the very root of private and economic life. Stated in its lowest terms, however, repudiation does not pay. In the past year it has made heavy inroads to build up and maintain our credit structure. Such acts some means can be found to remove the stain, this incident will be a permanent blot upon the fair name of our country."

Provincial Finances.

"The financial position of some of our provinces has been the subject of frequent discussion during recent months. Economic conditions in Western Canada have necessitated heavy expenditures for relief resulting in deficits and necessitated large advances from the Dominion Government. It was inevitable that sooner or later there would be a protest by the Federal Government over the financing by these Provinces which should be brought up, particularly in view of suggestions put forward that the Federal Government should, in effect, shoulder part of the burden of refunding certain debts so as to reduce the interest charge and thereby assist in balancing the budgets of these Provinces. Assistance by the Federal Government could only be justified if there were set up effective safe-guards against excessive borrowings by provinces in the future, a matter that would seem to involve an amendment to our constitution. With due safeguards, however, I believe that some such plan would merit and receive the support of public opinion in Canada.

Foreign Trade.

"Seven-eighths of our total foreign trade in the past three years has been with the British Empire and the United States. The present upturn in business activity is associated with the increase in exports to these clean goods in Empire markets and in the markets of the United States. In the twelve months ending in November 1935 Canadian exports to the Empire exceeded those of the same months of the previous two years by $28 millions and $106 million respectively. Exports to the United States showed corresponding gains of $64 million and $100 million. Figures show that as yet Canada is not benefiting by any gains in general world buying power, but rather from the recovery which is under way in Great Britain and the United States. It would seem that Canada is indeed fortunate to have secured favorable trade agreements with her two best customers. While the agreement with the United States has been in effect but a few days, to meet the value of $100 million over the past two years, operations have further gains in exports to the United States during 1936 is justified.

Summary.

"I would not feel justified in closing this address without emphasizing that many serious problems still confront us.

"But neither can I close on a pessimistic note. The Canadian people have shown that a country's problems can be conquered—the depression. At this stage we need to listen to the fatal-hearted who have become frightened or discouraged by the events of recent years. Those who now urge default, repudiation or inflation as a solution of our financial problem are false prophets who have not correctly read the signs of the times and for investment people are made of sterner stuff.

"Basis for optimism for business would now seem to be definitely established. In fact, I believe we may look forward to a year crowned with a greater optimism than has been possible at any time in the past six years."

General Manager's Address.

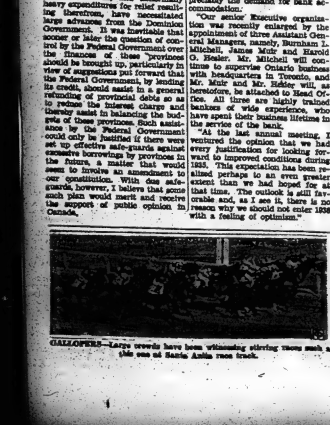
Mr. S. G. Dobson, general manager, referred to the financial statement, as follows:

"The Sixty-Sixth Annual Report and Balance Sheet reflect continuance of the upturn of business which began in 1933, and which, being spread almost without interruption since that time. Totals under present heading are now very large, indicating the steady and continuous growth of the bank.

"A year ago we reported an increase of $50,000,000 in deposits. The past year has likewise shown a further increase of over $50,000,000, making a total increase in only two years—an impressive amount. Deposits in Canada again increased in the twelve months by a substantial sum up over $11,000,000.

"Mortgages have continued lack of demand for commercial loans, the main outlet for investment of the additional funds coming to the purchase of Government and Municipal securities. As a consequence, loans under these headings have increased by $63,000,000 to $190,000,000.

Assets Up $42,000,000.



"Total assets during the year increased $42,000,000 to the new high record $900,919,700, the highest point reached in our history. Liquid assets now total $423,672,881, or 58.73 per cent of total liabilities to the public.

"Net profits for the year increased $2,868,254, while Call Loans outside of Canada decreased $2,000,000.

"Current Loans in Canada have increased by $300,000 and similar additions were made in the United States. While there has been considerable activity in commercial conditions, in fact recovery has not increased appreciably the demand for bank accommodation.

"Our senior Executive organization has recently been altered by the appointment of three Assistant General Managers, namely, Burnham I. Mitchell, James Muir and Gilbert G. Hesler. Mr. Mitchell will continue to supervise Ontario business with headquarters in Toronto, and Mr. Muir and Mr. Hesler will, as heretofore, be attached to Head Office. All three are highly trained officers of wide experience, who have spent their business lifetime in the service of the Bank.

"At the last annual meeting, I ventured the opinion that we had every justification for looking forward to improved conditions during 1935. This expectation has been realized perhaps to an even greater extent than we had hoped for at that time. The outlook is still favorable and, as I see it, there is no reason why we should not enter 1936 with a feeling of optimism."

GALLOPERS—Large crowds have been witnessing stirring races such as this one at Santa Anita race track.

G. PERRY AT 90 STILL IS ACTIVE

Well Known Business Man Celebrates His Birthday

When the purchaser of over one thousand dozen eggs from farmers during the 1935 season looks back in the good old days of thirty and forty years ago was marked off with a day's routine business, as Geo. Perry was known far and wide as the city's first and largest known egg buyers.

Now in his ninety years of age, Mr. Perry, still active and industrious, is known as one of Belleville's best known and highly respected citizens. Time has not changed the tempo of his stride or modulated his outlook on life, which, to translate it literally is "keep busy".

Few there are, who engage in the active business contacts and hard work at the age of ninety and more, but Mr. Perry is still confident on his outlook on life and in the belief, that many more years will be left in which to deal with the local public.

Although born in Montreal, Mr. Perry has lived in Belleville continuously for the past fifty-six years. For many years he conducted the city's largest and most complete tent and awning business on the East Bridge Street, and supervised the erection of the large tents in connection with the Old Home Week celebrations. He coupled this business with the buying of eggs.

Later, he took up business in a smaller store on the Market Square where he continued buying eggs and dairy produce. As a side line he carried on a line of stamp business and window lettering.

The present time he devotes himself solely to window lettering and the rubber stamp business. Aside for the past few years, Mr. Perry even yet may be seen in the downtown streets of the city, perched precariously on some ledge far above the sidewalk, busily engaged in adorning some office window. Hard work and constancy, he declares, is the recipe for longevity and security of mind.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied by Biggar and Crawford by my Financial Service.

Wayside—

The Toronto Stock Exchange has been advised that Wayside Consolidated Gold Mines Limited have sold 30,000 shares at 17½ cents per share, for a total of $5,250 and the purchaser has loaned $34,750 to the company making a total advance of $40,000 in consideration of which the company has delivered promissory notes dated November 15, 1935, for a total of $22,000, bearing interest at the rate of 6% per annum from and maturing on May 15, 1936. As security for the loan the company has given a mortgage providing that in case of default the remedy of the underwriters shall consist only of the right to require of the company to continue to operate the property, paying all moneys recovered from such operation (less only actual operating costs approved by the underwriters) to the underwriters."

Ferron—

Production at Ferron is expected to be installed about the middle of the new 125-ton mill. This mill, it is said, will treat as high as 150 tons per day. Ore reserves are estimated at 97 per cent and millheads of 13.50. on the average. This is assured, as a margin of $6.00 per ton over operating costs is anticipated. On the basis of 125 tons a day, profits should be at an annual rate of well over $200,000. Development intends to double the capacity of the mill early in the spring. Assuming 1 million shares of 25c par tone, next summer, profits would then be at an annual rate of over 25 cents per share on the capital of 2,000,000 shares. The stock has been holding around 20 cents and has around its all time high of $1.25.

An effort is being made on the part of leading business men to aid the Government in its efforts to bring about an increase in building activity. The Dominion Housing Act has not had as great success thus far as yet, and private organizations are looking for further stimulation interest. An increase in construction is of such importance to the country as a whole that a great deal of effort on the part of either the Government or Chambers of Commerce should be encouraged by everyone.

International Nickel has another strong feature. In addition to showing big record profits for earnings in 1935, the Company should also benefit from a building revival. Nickel, through monel metal, can equip a kitchen with everything it requires that is exposed to moisture and rust. The company also advertises its ability to supply nickel alloy products that are guaranteed for the life of the structure. It is evident, therefore, that international Nickel can now be classed as a potential beneficiary from a building upturn.

Purchasers of Canada Cement Preferred are not as much interested in past results as they are in what lies ahead. This company, in common with other firms catering to the building industry, has felt the pinch of the depression but in view of the fact that cement is used in all building work, the recent rise in Canada Cement is by far the most important factor in the building of Canada, accounting for 32% of all cement produced, it becomes evident that any return of prosperity will result in rapid improvement in earnings. At the end of 1935 dividend arrearsons on preferred amounted to $22.75 a share.

The new high in B. A. Oil has resulted in a bullish effect that earnings for 1935 were in the neighborhood of $3.00 a share, or now record. In 1934 B. A. Oil reported $1.25 a share. In view of the fact that Imperial Oil is spending dividend requirements by a margin of well over 2 to 1 it is not surprising if the 80-cent annual rate was augmented before through a bonus or a straight increase.

B. A. Oil

According to official advices the British American Oil Company Limited had a most successful year in 1935 and were able to earn its dividend by a comfortable margin. Present indications are that the Company's working capital and reserves have been improved during 1935. The shares in this company have been active since the turn of the year and accompanied the volume in trading is the information that British American Oil is spending large sums in Oklahoma and that earnings will be augmented as a result. Native tinge to these shares which have had a high investment rating for years.

Republican Does Not Pay, States President of the Royal Bank

In commenting on the repudiation of long-term contracts by one of the Provinces, Mr. M. W. Wilson, President of The Royal Bank of Canada, stated at the annual meeting of shareholders that:—"Almost all the important relationships of life are based on the stability of contracts. Destroy that, and you have chaos, stated in its lowest terms, moreover, repudiation does not pay. In the past we have made heavy sacrifices to build up and maintain our credit abroad. Unless some means can be found to remove the stain, this incident will be a permanent blot upon the fair name of our country." This is a strong statement, but very few people who are familiar with what has taken place in Ontario, and what is still taking place, will regard it as unwarranted.

TORONTO MINES CLOSE

Toronto, Jan. 11 (CP)—Traders were inclined to take down some of the profit on the week's rise today on the mining section of Toronto Exchange and closing prices were moderately in spots under the selling.

Braleme, Pioneer and Wright Hargreaves closed steady to strong. Dome and McIntyre were off fractional narrow fractions. Buffalo-Ankerite was pushed up to $4.50 bid, with a gain of 10 to 15. Other golds up 2 to 5 cents. Base Metals, Kirkland Lake, God's Lake and Canadian Malartic. Macassa advanced about 15 cents, closing mixed with a gain of slightly for Sylvanite, McKenzie-Red Lake, Hollinger and J. M. Consolidated. Noranda lost 4, Falconbridge 15, Ventures 2 to 3, Base Metals Corporation a cent or two and Hudson Bay the minimum fraction.

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, Jan. 11—(AP)—Traders decided today to garner profits in the stock market in cautious week-end trading.

Stocks held fairly even during the process, but numerous lost fractions to around 2 points while they retained a part of all of early gains of as much. The close was somewhat irregular. Transfers aggregated 1,700,000 shares.

Some of the stocks which were in demand included Du Pont, United Carbide, Case, Continental Can, Douglas, Chrysler, Olin Corp. and Bethlehem. Others on the off side were Allied Chemical, U.S. Steel and Loew's.

In the Canadian section of the list small improvement was registered by McIntyre, International Nickel and Dominion Stores while Canadian Pacific slipped a shade lower. On the curb Lake Shore and Hiram Walker were narrow. Dominion Government was firmer fractionally. Canadian funds were 1-32 of a cent higher at 99 31-32 cents.

TORONTO STOCKS—CLOSE

Toronto, Jan. 11—Prices softened by fairly slow trading on the closing session of the week on the Toronto industrial market.

British American Oil held a gain of ¼ at 21½. International Nickel firmed about a half and Imperial Oil held a gain of ¼. McColl-Frontenac and Dominion Textile ruled higher. North Canadian Oils, Nickel and Consolidated Smelters slipped a little and Brazilian and Ford A. dropped a point.

Gains were posted for Canada Cement preferred, Bridges, Base stocks, English Electric A and Oypsum.

Hamilton Theatres pfd. was up 1¾. Tip Top pfd. 6 and B. 1¼. Minor gains were recorded for Dominion Stores, Canners B and Blue Ribbon pfd.

WEATHER

Toronto, Jan. 11 (CP)—The easterly disturbance centred over the Gulf of St. Lawrence, moving northeastward over the land caused strong winds and gales with snow and rain over eastern Quebec, the Maritime provinces and Newfoundland. High pressure and considerably colder weather has spread over Manitoba and Saskatchewan from the northwest while pressure is comparatively low over the Rocky Mountains and the Rocky Mountain States. Light snow has fallen in many parts of the Western Provinces, while in Ontario and Western Quebec it has been generally fair and comparatively mild.

Lake Superior—Cloudy and comparatively mild with some light snow, followed by northerly winds and becoming colder at night and Sunday.

Kenora and Rainy River—Northerly winds; partly cloudy and cold—Sunday and Monday unsettled.

Western Provinces—Partly cloudy and colder; scattered snow flurries.

HAUPTMANN MAY BE GRANTED STAY BY GOVERNOR

Kipling Reported Holding Own After Operation; Condition Very Grave

NEWS BRIEFS AND ODDITIES

Harrisville, Ont., Jan. 12 (CP)—Mr. Smart's 12 pullets are backing at each other aggressively for the honour of the chicken-house's pecking order title. Seven put 12 eggs from the flock in the trap-nest pen, eight were marked in the trap-nests as non-layers and were five more at sundown.

Hamilton, Ont., Jan. 12 (CP)—The mother of Mrs. Ethel Wilson, the eight-year-old Teddy Wilson, who is in his third year as an unidentified inmate on his "whistle and the whistle popped down his throat," has come to Hamilton in Toddy, fully down and ordered. Hamilton today said that the child might as well go home as he was in no immediate danger.

London, Ont., Jan. 13 (CP)—A temporary reservoir was put into use here today by the London section of the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada to study Northern Lights.

Weston, Ont., Jan. 12 (CP)—Two wolves have been killed within 10 miles of this township in Peel-York, in the past two weeks, Ed. Kalbfleisch shot one just north of Weston and Ernest Cook of Howe at Forges Valley claimed the kill for the other. A third wolf is be caught in a trap practically to his buryard.

Charlottetown, Jan. 13 (CP)—A forty-ounce phone will take 20 feet below the surface with a heavy cargo of mail for the Magdalens, Minister of Marine Lapointe, in the belated Gulf of St. Lawrence lobe boasted today in Ottawa. Fowler will be at the controls.

Montreal, Jan. 12 (CP)—Joseph Newby, 16-year-old Hendrick County boy, swallowed $2,000 worth of bonds and refused to cough it up.

Physicians operated, removed the radium and young Newby appparently none the worse for wear. The radium had been inserted in the boy's throat to treat a cancerous growth.

Warsaw, Jan. 13 (CP)—Hangmen have appealed to Minister of Justice today for an extraordinary increase in their salaries after his "issue" attributed to the fact the recent amnesty law commuted death sentences for 1,000 committed before November 1934, to life imprisonment.

The hangman pointed out he received $25 for each "legal" killing, for each death sentence he executed and considers himself grossly underpaid as hangmen are forever "for some time."

Vancouver, Jan. 13 (CP)—Even police admitted this week's no-hanging verdict in Vancouver was more overblown.

"Give me money—$10", said the bandit as he entered the confectionery store of Y. Ohanka, Japanese, with a pistol in one hand concealed in his pocket.

"Why go to a big place. I have no money," replied the Japanese.

"I'm sorry—I won't come back," said the gunman, departing empty handed.

Chicago, Jan. 12 (CP)—Despatches in the closed Standard Nature Study Magazine, which has only pleased bet amused today.

Receiver H. E. Hallenbeck announced the final dividend on checks would make a total of 97 percent received by all of the company on deposit when it closed its doors.

The extra seven percent was interest accumulated since June 1, 1932.

Waynesville, N.C., Jan. 12 (CP)—Anse Phillips, 65, was arrested Saturday on a charge of murder lodged against him 32 years ago—so long ago no one could be found for questioning the details and Phillips refused to talk.

Solicitor Tom Y. Green had a capias issued for Phillips after discovering his name still on a true bill charging him with the killing of Jim Bryson in 1901.

Phillips was said to have returned to the county a few days ago to visit a brother after having been absent since before his indictment. Some older residents remembered the charge against him, said they believed he was dead.

The prisoner declined to say where he had been for the last 36 years.

LINDSAY MAN SENTENCED

Peterborough, Ont., Jan. 13 (CP)—Pleading guilty to two charges of false pretence, Marshall Seward of Lindsay was sentenced today to three months determinate in the Ontario Reformatory.

76 Mile Hurricane Smashes "Iowa" Into Complete Wreckage

BODIES WASHED ASHORE

Wrecked Freighter Appears Ghostly in The Spray

(By Wendell W. Webb, Associated Press Staff Writer)

Astoria, Ore., Jan. 13 (AP)—Thirty-four men were counted lost today as the wild Pacific hurled its battered bodies up on the shore from the wreckaged interocoastal freighter Iowa.

Coast guardsmen said none of the crew of the 415-foot vessel could have survived the pounding seas, that smashed the freighter into wreckage after a 76-mile an hour hurricane tossed it upon Peacock Spit, 20 miles south of the mouth of the Columbia river.

The terrific storm also threatened several other vessels as coast patrolmen sought bodies and other victims.

It was the greatest toll of lives on Peacock Spit since 1913, when 33 were lost on a tanker.

An even greater loss of life was averted yesterday when the coast guard cutter Onondago rescued 10-year-old Peacock Kid and was able barely to inch away from the danger zone, unable to get close enough to shock a life line aboard the doomed Iowa.

The Onondaga left the scene when her commander, Capt. R. Stanley Patch, said no life could live longer aboard the remnants of the 2,566-ton freighter Iowa.

ATTORNEY SLAIN BY IRATE LAWYER

Chicago Judge Ducks Behind Bench From Bullets

Chicago, Jan. 13 (AP) — A disgruntled lawyer shot and killed Attorney Christopher G. Kinney in circuit court here and then fled from the bench as Judge John Gutknecht, presiding. The judge ducked behind the bench and escaped.

The pistol wielding attorney, identified as John W. Smith, 50, ran amok in the judge Pyramid ruled against him in a case he had argued in the municipal court of Chicago yesterday.

Kinney dropped dead beside the judge's bench at the first shot from Keogh's small bore weapon.

Keogh fired three more shots before one of the attorneys in the courtroom overpowered him and with a blow to the jaw.

One, almost directly as Judge Frank Keogh sat on the bench, hit the Judge's heavy chair.

Another of the gunman's crowd struck Keogh's arms, and the third shot, again aimed at the judge, plowed into the ceiling. A fourth went into the floor.

3 COUSINS JAILED ON FOWL THEFTS

Peterborough, Ont., Jan. 13 (CP) —William Dwyer, 29, George Dwyer, 19, and Charles Dwyer, 16, cousins, were sentenced to one month in the county jail today when they appeared for sentence before Magistrate Langley on charges of stealing chickens.

Father Insists Daughter "Slain by Power of God"

Detroit, Jan. 13.—(AP)—Shirley Tapp, 17-year-old High School girl, whose father insists she was slain by the power of God four days ago, lay in a trance-like sleep arms rigidly extended for 44 minutes, while members of a religious sect engaged in exhortation about her bier.

Members of the sect, the "full Salvation Church," said they became unconscious in attaining a state of perfect peace.

Dora Kilgore, assistant pastor of the church's theater, Mich., minister, led the service about the girl's couch last night, declaring the members were witnessing a "manifestation" that God's power is as strong as ever.

Members knelt about the living room of the Tapp home, moaning and praying. A small girl knelt near the couch, crying that she was

'Thirteens' Mark Hauptmann Case

Trenton, N.J., Jan. 13 (AP)—When Justice Thomas W. Trenchard fixed the date of Bruno Richard Hauptmann's trial for "the week of January 13", he added another to the string of "thirteens" that have marked the Hauptmann case.

It was March 13, 1932, Dr. John F. Condon made his first contact with the ransom extortionist.

It was 13 minutes after 11 a.m. the jury retired to consider Hauptmann's fate.

He was convicted in February, 1935—on the 13th.

His conviction was affirmed by New Jersey's Court of Errors and Appeals—the 13th Negro hearing the case.

After failure of his court appeals, Hauptmann was re-sentenced to death. The new date was fixed by Justice Thomas W. Trenchard on Dec. 11.

There are 13 letters in the names of David T. Wilentz, Attorney General who prosecuted Evers and Ward J. Reilly, who defended him unsuccessfully; and Robert Elwood Peacock Sr. and was able barely to inch away from the danger zone, unable to get close enough to shock a life line aboard the doomed Iowa.

The Onondaga left the scene when per commander, Capt. R. Stanley Patch, said no life could live longer aboard the remnants of the 2,566-ton freighter Iowa.

British Colonies Trusts Bound by Loyalty, Pride

By GEORGE HAMBLETON

London, Jan. 13 (CP)—Peace first. Talk of colonies afterwards. This briefly is the attitude in British official circles towards repeated suggestions from certain quarters at sessions from Britain's colonial empire.

German Colonies.

German propaganda for the return of her old colonies is increasingly active. So are declared aims of Italy in the East African War to secure an outlet for her surplus population and open up new fields for raw materials. Italy scorns for raw materials. Italy scorns the German unfairly treated when the former German colonies were distributed among the allies conquerors after the Great War.

The British position, it was emphasized in official quarters, remains as it was stated by Sir Samuel Hoare before the League of Nations Assembly when he was still Foreign Secretary:

1. The British government is prepared to take a share in any collective attempt to find a fair and effective way with the distribution of raw materials.

2. But inquiry into the problem needs calm and dispassionate consideration which is impossible in an atmosphere of war.

The Times, editorially discussing "colonial facts and fallacies", also makes the point that British colonies are trusts.

"British colonies," the Times observes, "are integral parts of the empire to which they are attached by ties of loyalty and pride as well as by self-interest. They are not the objects of barter or purchase to be transferred from one owner to another to fit a political system."

British Colonial Policy.

"The contrary conception is discernable in British colonial policy from the first," continues the editorial. "It became explicit during the nineteenth century and for more than a generation now it has been accepted as the guide and test of British aims and methods.

"The principle is now firmly established that 'paramount' regard is to be administered in the interests of the inhabitants, with the right of the latter to bear in some places and far off in others—when they will qualify to rule themselves."

"In the British view," concludes the Times, "this principle of trusteeship or partnership is ultimately vitally different from the modern passion in a London hospital for a gastric disorder.

Kipling was observed his birthday anniversary just two weeks ago (Dec. 30) when he was in the Bow's-Hotel and in semi-conscious condition. He was in the same conference to the Central Middlesex Hospital this morning.

The first hospital announcement said "urgent operation was performed by Dr. Alfred E. McWhirter, surgeon of the Middlesex Hospital.

It was a very urgent, complicated operation, but the patient's condition is fairly satisfactory now."

Mrs. Kipling accompanied her husband to the hospital, remaining in an ante-room during the operation and returned later to the hotel.

Kipling's condition at 1.15 p.m. was termed satisfactory.

Kipling is the author of ballads and tales of adventure in India observed his 70th birthday in December of last year. He secluded home in the village of Burwash, Sussex, England, and London flats.

A good health but the Middlesex hospital announced today.

Kipling was the star Mr. Rudyard Kipling was taken seriously ill during the night and was immediately taken to the Wooluington wing of the Middlesex Hospital this morning, where an urgent operation was performed.

A hospital authority said the operation was for a gastric ulcer, "some kind of gastric trouble."

Bishop's First Visit
To Pilot To St. Paul's

Sunday afternoon will be the occasion when the Rt. Rev. John Lyons, Lord Bishop of the Diocese of Ontario, will visit St. Paul's Church, Pilot Church, which is part of St. Thomas' Parish, and this includes the Memorial Church. There will be a Confirmation Service conducted by the Venerable Archdeacon Paye, Vicar of St. Thomas' Parish, and the Bishop will be met by the Rev. T. W. Hall, Incumbent of St. Paul's Mission. The sermon will be delivered by the Lord Bishop. In the evening the Bishop will preside at Evensong in St. Thomas' Church and preached a very interesting and informative sermon.

RADIO OWNERS MUST HAVE LICENCES

Owners of radios, who are not in possession of a radio licence, under the requirements of the Dominion Government, will be thoroughly checked in the near future, it was announced by local officers today. A Dominion-wide check-up has been ordered by Federal Government officials, it was said. Inspector J. J. McWatters, radio inspector for the Dominion from this district comprising the territory from Trenton to Fenwick, is in Belleville today and will commence his house-to-house campaign early. It is the hope that officials are desirous to ascertain the names of those radio owners not in possession of their 1935 radio licenses and when they do charges will immediately be laid, no excuses being accepted," stated Mr. McWatters today. Dealers in the matter of radio licenses are advised to immediately purchase licenses for radio licenses as the check-up is to be thorough. On his way to Belleville this morning Inspector McWatters found one had that six radio owners in the district had failed to take out their 1935 licenses. Charges have been preferred in each case, including one dealer in that village.

FROM PLACE OF GLORY TO THE GARBAGE HEAP

Its specimens all too apparently finished, a tarred and sun-dusted Santa Claus jacket, rolled in a neat bundle, was observed reposing in an loneliness on top of an open garbage can before a residence on Front hill this morning. The final touch was given by the aid of a battered Santa mask, still complete with whiskers, which lay nearby.

PLEASE, MISTER CAN YOU SPARE A STAMP?

"Mister, you wouldn't have a three cent stamp so I could send this letter home, would you?" pathetically begged a tattered individual on Front street in front of a downtown drug store Saturday evening. A grimy envelope held in one hand, addressed to a home in the rural district.

The racket is as old as the hills, but it worked. Passersby accosted were out of stamps, but they did down and produced nickles and dimes in such generous quantities. Business was apparently good.

GOOD SUPPLY BUSHMEN FOR WORK IN WOODS

Plenty of the old school type of lumberjack still exist in this district it is revealed by a checkup of reports of the local Employment Service of Canada office. Recently in North Hastings Lumbering Company advertised for two experienced men for the bush. The men, it was stated, must be strong, qualified and able to handle an axe. Up to the present time about thirty applicants have registered for the job, or for future work of that sort.

Requests for farm help are still being made at the local office, it was stated by superintendent James Rose today. On Saturday two men were placed on farms in this district.

SLEIGHING DISAPPEARS AFTER RAINY WEEKEND

Sleighing disappeared in this district over the week-end as rising temperatures and a pounding rain which followed early Monday and continued to drizzle throughout the morning sent rivulets of water running through the streets and roads. With conditions, especially in the rural sections were not all that could be desired, according to stage and truck drivers, and chains were needed for safety. In the city bread and coal drivers turned again to wheels as the snow rapidly disappeared under the rain. One year ago today a heavy fall of snow was received in the district.

NOTHING DEFINITE ON HIGHWAY WORK

Whether or not work will be resumed on the Faulkner Highway this winter is still the chief topic of conversation among motorists at the city but so far no pronouncement has been made by officials of the road.

"I haven't been able to learn a thing regarding it," admitted superintendent James V. Rose of the local Employment Service office. "I was in Toronto today with one of the officials of the road and while he was slightly optomistic over the hope that work might start sometime this week he admitted that there was nothing definite. We will be able to furnish all the labor we can though, if they do start."

PRESENCE OF MIND SAVES MAN'S HOME

Presence of mind in hurling a blazing pan of gasoline he had been using to clean a pair of overalls into the rear of his home at 21 Ferguson street, probably saved Mr. Arthur Glass of this city, from serious burns and the loss of his home by fire late Saturday evening. Today the local resident is nursing badly burned hands, but is otherwise unhurt from the experience.

Firemen of the local department hastily summoned, arrived to find that the back of Glass' garage was badly and fire creeping up the rear of the house. Although well extinguished the flames had scorched the rear of the house and verandah badly.

Fumes from the gasoline he had been using evidently ignited from a nearby stove causing the pan to ignite from an explosion which though badly singed in the attempt Mr. Glass managed to get it out the open window inside damage.

FLOODING OF WALKS DUE TO SOFT SPELL

Flooded sidewalks following the early morning rain and week-end thaw were the principal source of worry to a part of officials of the local department of public works today as telephone calls from the city were kept busy by householders requesting help from the department. In some sections of the city inches of water covered the sides of the walks with the condition aggravated by the fact that sidewalks in the curbs effectually dammed the water. No one called for relief and late were being given work on the streets this morning.

POLICE BLOTTER

Petty thefts of pet animals were reported locally to police authorities over the week-end. Dr. F. C. Wallbridge, 91 Bridge St. reported the loss of his fox terrier, white wire-haired terrier. The canines were last seen on the premises of Dr. Wallbridge on Saturday afternoon. Mr. Lewis, Dunbar St., reported the loss of his collie dog, and theft of two white rabbits. The rabbits were kept in a pen at the rear of the home and were valued at $4 a piece. Both cases are in progress.

A slight motor accident happened at the intersection of Front and Bridge Sts. early Saturday evening when two automobiles skidded and later collided, Fender and hub cap damage was the only damage resulting. Two local motorists were involved and no charges laid without proper lights displayed. Charges were laid and will be heard in Friday's court.

Provincial Police today are investigating a theft, that took place late last week at summer cottages situated at Massanaga Point. Three cottages were reported to have been entered and a quantity of bedding and household goods stolen. Attempts to enter a fourth cottage failed, police stated after primary investigations.

Damage "to private property, that is believed to have been the work of inebriates, was investigated on Sunday by Provincial Constable Wm. Mellson at Deseronto.

According to the officer's findings, doors and windows of Irwin's garage and two private residences were broken, but no attempts were made to enter the premises. The damage was done by means of throwing heavy missiles through the windows of the homes of Michael Gartman and Mrs. Thos. Drummery and Irwin's garage. The front doors of the dwellings were also damaged by the hurling of heavy objects at them. Although no arrests have been made as yet, investigations as to the identity of the destructive culprits is still pending.

Playful Horse Gives Pedestrians a Scare

He was just a dapple grey coal cart horse, hitched to a loaded sleigh parked at the curb in downtown Front Street this morning, but he was fat and comfortable looking and he held himself with the air of a horse in a show ring. There was, however, a wicked slant to the left back ear, and an apparently malevolent gleam in the big eyes which rolled from time to time to the nearby sidewalk.

It was the threat of the bared teeth which clicked in their direction, however, that caused pedestrians to give the horse a decidedly wide berth as they walked along. Occasionally the horse would snap wickedly at imaginary enemies in the air.

"Don't mind him Mister," finally warned the driver busily unhooking as he suddenly became aware that one passerby quickly sidestepped so hard his derby hat was tilted.

"He's feelin' good this morning and just showin' off. He's as tame as a kitten and wouldn't bite anybody, and he knows it. But he likes to pretend he's tough."

Pedestrians continued, however, to make a wide detour.

CENTRE MISSION BAND

A Mission Band New Year's party was held at the home of Mrs. Frank Townsend on Thursday Jan. 2. A happy afternoon was spent in games and singing.

The first meeting of the year was held at the school on Tuesday the 6th. Margaret Bellpoc took the chair and the meeting opened with a hymn after which the minutes were read by the new Secretary Leslie Wynne. A travelling box for receiving saleable articles was started for the year. The Worship Story was then read by Miss K. Vining. Quiet music was played by the pianist. The Call to Worship was given by the president, all responding. The Roll Call was answered with the Memory Verse. After singing a hymn, the leader then told a story, "The Path that was Blocked" from the Study Book and Miss K. Giles offered prayer. The meeting ended in distributing the magazine "World Friends."

EAST SEYMOUR

East Seymour—Mesdames John Thompson, John Rannie and Percy Odlie returned on Saturday evening from Windsor where they attended the fortieth wedding anniversary of their sister and sister-in-law Mrs. Will Varcoe (nee Jean Odlie) on Jan. 1st, 1936. There were over twenty guests at the well laden table adorned with a beautiful wedding cake made by the bride of forty years. A happy time ensued reminiscing. The numerous and costly gifts testified of the esteem in which the happy couple are held by their many friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Varcoe are natives of East Seymour and have many friends here with them many more anniversaries.

The combined meeting of Board's W. A. and W. M. S. was held on Wednesday Jan. 8th at the home of Mrs. Frank Neagle with a fairly good attendance considering the many cases of illness in the district.

Mrs. Frank Neagle, 1st vice president of the W. A. presided. A hymn was sung and the Lord's Prayer was repeated in unison. The Secretary and Treasurer's reports were read and approved. Rev. Dr. Reddick then took the chair and conducted the election of the president as Mrs. Percy Odlie had declined to act owing to ill health. Mrs. Chas. Heard finally accepted the Presidency. Mrs. Frank Rannie, President of the W. M. S. presided over the rest of the meeting. The Secretary, Treasurers and Supply Secretaries. Mrs. W. S. Mills, Pro Supt. Mrs. C. Heard and Mrs. Parks respectfully were read and adopted, after which Mrs. Neagle gave a topic dealing with the Superstitions and customs and superstitutes of Africa which was very illuminating. Mrs. Jim Thompson, Peace Sec. gave an interesting talk. Mrs. Reddick favored with a pleasing piano solo. After the closing hymn and prayer, a dainty lunch was served.

Personals

Tuesday evening union service was held in Board's United Church and Wednesday evening at Petherick's United Church Thursday at Ben Hill Presbyterian Church and on Friday evening in the English Line United Church. It is to be hoped that great good may result from these meetings.

Master Alex Rannie is spending a brief visit with Miss Susie Allaben at Crow Bay.

Mr. Ray Williams is very indisposed and this week went to Toronto to a hospital for X-ray examination and treatment.

Measles, whooping cough, mumps and scarletina are pretty general throughout the district.

Miss Annie Hunter, B. A. Chief Librarian of Willstead Library in the new City of Windsor, formerly of Walkerville, will be heard over CKCW, the Radio station at Sandwich Wednesday evenings from 9.30 to 9.45 E.S.T. beginning Jan. 15th, 1936. Miss Talks will be about books and the new books of the Library. Miss Hunter, a graduate of Queen's University is a second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Hunter of Seymour.

Burnbrae L. A. and W. M. S. were invited to join in the observance of similar organizations on Jan. 8th at 8 p. m. the visitors put on the program which was given in the afternoon and the Wellman's W. M. S. provided lunch.

The East Seymour Women's Institute held their January meeting at the President's home. Mrs. Townsend son's home with 18 members present Jan. 8th. Roll Call was answered by "How I spend my winter evenings."

The Girl's Supper Club met on Monday afternoon at the home of Miss Leala Hay with Miss Mildred Neagle in charge. There were twenty girls in attendance and were very enthusiastic as this is only their second meeting.

PLAINFIELD

Plainfield, Jan. 13—The annual meeting of the Eden Hill Sunday School was held on Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Denyes. The report given showed that a good work had been done during the year and that each of the officers had taken their task seriously enough to give it his best attention. The school raised $12.00 for the M. and M. Fund. The average attendance for the year in school held on fifty of the fifty-two Sundays. Temperance and missionary programs were given regularly. Mrs. Clifford Ketcheson reported for the Social Service work. The following officers and teachers were elected for the ensuing year:—Chesson; Pianist—Margaret Tufts; Secretary—Marion Brough; Cradle Roll-Supt.—Mrs. Clifford Ketcheson; Home Dept.—H. K. Denyes; Missionary Secretary—Mrs. Tufts and Mrs. Fred Sears; Temperance Secretary—Mrs. Tufts. Adult Teachers: Men's Class—Mr. Fred Sears and Mr. H. K. Denyes; Women's Class—Mrs. Fred Sears and Mrs. Fred Sears; Young Men—Cecil Ketcheson and Percy Ray; Young Women—Mrs. Cecil Ketcheson; Junior Boys—Mrs. Tufts and Percy Ray; Junior Girls—Mrs. Clifford Ketcheson and Mrs. Lorne Brough.

The annual meeting of the congregation was held at the church on the same evening and the finances showed an improvement over a year ago. There were 37 regular preaching services during the year. The following were elected members of the finance committee for the ensuing year: Harold Beatty, Myron Hawley, Andrew Creighton, Percy Ray and Cecil Ketcheson. Mr. Ketcheson acts as envelope secretary. Mr. Beatty and Mr. Ketcheson were appointed a supply committee to secure wood, engage a caretaker and look after minor business needs.

The W. M. S. report given by Mrs. Sears showed a splendid year with the givings practically as last year. The M. and M. Fund contributions are not all in at present but it is expected that some advance will be made.

ANNUAL MEETING OF SCOTTS CHURCH

The congregation meeting was held at Scott's United Church, at Sidney, on Tuesday evening, January 7, when a crowd numbering served by the Woman's Association, met at the home of Mr. Maitland Sine.

Following the dinner the W.A. held a meeting to elect the officers for 1936. The Rev. R. B. Johnston presided and they were elected as follows:

President—Mrs. H. W. Rose.

1t Vice President—Mrs. Horace Coleman.

2nd Vice President—Mrs. J. A. Lott.

3rd Vice President—Mrs. Earl Chapman.

Secretary-Treasurer—Mrs. Gerald Sine.

A vote of appreciation was tendered to the retiring executive.

Then came the congregational meeting proper. Report by M. B. Sine, Secretary-Treasurer Trustee Board. Everyone was pleased to note the good report which was an increase over former years. The sum received was $301. After the liabilities were met there still was a small balance.

Treasurer of W. A., Mrs. Gerald Sine reported $118.17 raised in 1935, balance on hand $94.99. Treasurer of W. M. S., Mrs. Howard Dafoe, reported $80.67 raised during year.

Treasurer of Mission Band, Miss Nelle Striker, reported $8.82 raised.

Treasurer of Sunday School, Judy Donald, reported $18.33 on hand after buying supplies etc. $61.42 was raised.

Secretary of Young People's Group, Clara Carr, reported $23.98 raised by class. Voluntarily this class decided to add this to the board. They have a balance of $45.12 on hand.

The W. A. voted $25 to the Trustee Board.

The following are the officers of the church for 1936:

Lay Representative—Mrs. Moon, Howard Dafoe, J. A. Lott, M. B. Scott, Walter Striker, Maitland Sine, Mrs. Sine, Earl Chapman, H. Badgley, H. W. Rose, Frank Moon, Charles Frost.

Stewards—H. W. Rose, Howard Dafoe.

Members of Session—Wm. Moon, Howard Dafoe, J. A. Lott, Earl Chapman.

The meeting was closed with prayer by the pastor.

MELROSE W. M. S.

The Melrose W. M. S. held their January meeting at the home of Mrs. Grace McKinney on Thursday afternoon, January 2nd, 1936, with a good attendance. The newly-elected president, Mrs. Pascoe, presided. Items of business were discussed. A reading was given by Mrs. Pascoe entitled "Mrs. Simpkins. The treasurer's report was given by Miss Jo Mills for 1935. The Year's resolutions were read by several members. Mrs. S. DeMille, 1st Vice President, closed with prayer. Readings were given by Mrs. C. Bowerman. The offering was received. The meeting closed with a hymn. Lunch was served and a social time spent.

Little Benny's Note Book

Me and Puds Simkins was wawking along just wawking along and meeting the judge hoopsnagle out in front of his house with a sad expression saying. You dirty little rascal can go wherever you want but look at me, I got to stay right here in front of the house because some packages get delivered because nobody else isn't home.

Aw, what's that worse than that could happen to you Puds and I told him and Not the way I feel.

Sure it could Puds said. Look what could happen to me Friday I heard my mother order fish on the telephone and Saterdy you know I would rather not eat it's fish so around dinner time I told her I was feeling kind of pale and I did not feel like eating anything much, and I asked if I could go around to the lunch waggon and just eat couple of hot dogs instead and then go to bed, and she looked at my tongue and made me go to bed and gives me with a bowl of crackers and milk, he said.

Well I druther than fish, wasn't it? Shorty said and Puds I don't know but got to go home look I started to smell something wonderful and here she had changed the order and instead of fish we had chickin pie, and I was just starving I'd rather eat than anything sits, it's chickin pie.

Good pie, Shorty said, and I said and look what happened to me Saterday afternoon, my uncle Arty Chapman, in Wedgeboro was visiting and he took me and Puds and had to stay in bed by himself, and combing my hair and all, and it was kind of wet out so I wasn't even aloud to leave the house with my new suit and shoes, I said, Golly, Shorty said, I would, he stayed there feeling a little better and me and Puds kept on going feeling a little worse.

ENGLAND SWEPT BY STORM, WIND AND FLOOD—The recent heavy rains and storms which have swept England have caused the Thames river to rise alarmingly and vast areas of land on the Thames valley are under water. In this scene, taken near Windsor, the Thames has reached out and converted the countryside into a great waterway.

AIR LINES CO-OPERATE

Unification of twenty air services covering the United States and Canada has been agreed upon, a fleet of five hundred planes to serve domestic shippers in over 200 cities.

Plans are underway for a regular Atlantic mail and passenger service.

The invention of the airplane which was made possible by the Great War and has undergone so great developments, is now coming into its full fruition. It has taken years to perfect this modern miracle, but the time is at hand when it is going to take its place as a permanent factor in the civilized world. Twenty-five years have shown a new means of travel. Continents have been crossed and now the ocean is to be spanned by regular service. That this latter is successful the progress of the plane will accelerate still more rapidly. General participation in flying will become possible and a cheaper plane will likely be one of the newer developments.

ETHIOPIAN DEFENCE

There are some important features in barbarous civilizations. The main one before the public notice now is the defence of Ethiopia. It has taken the Italians months to realize that modern warfare is not the only way. The Ethiopian is by another and it may prove effective enough to put an end to the mad Italian attempt to bring this people under subjection.

Mussolini is replacing some of the Blackshirt officers with native officers who know how to fight in the primitive way. But even at this these are half-hearted as compared with the wilder warriors who are fighting for the integrity of their own land, backward as it is.

It will not be war by no mistake that the nations left Abyssinia alone. Nobody tried to crack this nut because it was realized it was too hard to open.—But Mussolini has by his action of an expanded Italy rushed in like the proverbial fool where the wiser nations hesitated to tread.

Rain, the weather, native fastnesses, fever and other diseases, add the intrepid valor of the brown men, set up a formidable combination of defence which is the marvel of the world. It makes one wonder if civilisation's boasted armaments are all they are supposed to be. . Italians have promised a warfare of terror in response to the reported beheading of an Italian aviator, and have bombed hospitals. But even the ignorance of the Ethiopians stands them in their stead as few of them can read the pamphlets dropped by the Italian fliers who are seeking to create a moral effect. Bombs too cannot do much damage.

Reports of skirmishes with a few dead and wounded as casualties indicate the nature of fighting. The Italians seemingly have not been able to draw to a conclusion in any attack they have made.

Modern warfare does not work well against a desperate, freedom-loving barbarous people, who have their own style of defence.

Does modern development of a country lay it open to modern invasion? is a question which might easily be asked. In opening up a country to civilisation, every point of the country is made accessible to ingress as well as egress. On the other hand the undeveloped country leaves its natural barriers to fight for it. But of course Ethiopia is one of the most difficult lands to be conquered owing to the rugged nature of its terrain.

ROME SEEKING NEW PEACE BID?

"There is abundant evidence that the military situation in Ethiopia is far from being what Mussolini ardently desires," says Montreal Gazette. "Indeed, latest news from the 'war fronts' constitutes a sorry commentary on the Duce's boast that he referred to as his "colonial operations" would be a grand parade of Italian forces from Asmara to Addis Ababa, with half of the natives gladly surrendering to the Italians whilst the others would be terrorized into submission by Fascist planes and tanks. There have been some surrenders and some terror created by Italian bombing planes. But the Ethiopians have not by any means been over-awed. On the contrary, they are carrying on a warfare of which makes it appear that it will take the invaders a very long time to conquer the country—longer than public patience at home will stand for. In the circumstances the current reports of new peace moves in the Italo-Ethiopian conflict may prove an intelligent anticipation of coming events. Ill Duce is said to have given, through the French Ambassador to Italy, assurances that he would be less intransigeant to the next peace offer than he was to the ill-fated Hoare-Laval proposals, and while, no doubt, London and Paris will be willing to press upon him the advantages of compromise, it is certain that, having learned a lesson from recent experience, should there be a renewal of peace proposals care will be taken against the risk of failure through the crudity and confusion which marked the plan framed by Premier Laval and Sir Samuel Hoare."

DICTATOR JUAN V. GOMEZ of Venezuela, is dead, an event which many of the inhabitants of that country deemed impossible, thinking that such a man would live forever. He died in his 78th year, a remarkable man in many respects. He has been Dictator of Venezuela for 27 years, part of the time President, during which time he has amassed a fortune said to be $100,000,000. While doing so well for himself, financially, Gomez did not neglect Venzuela, the country which he ruled with a rod of iron. Venzuela has a balanced budget and a treasury surplus. Not a single foreigner owns a Venzuela government bond and her money is sound. Venzuela claims to have the finest highway system in Latin America built entirely since 1912 largely by forced labor of political prisoners. Farmers pay no land tax at all and may borrow up to 50 per cent of the value of their land from a government farm bank. Caracas has been rebuilt. School attendance has been upped 300 per cent. There is little or no unemployment. Oil is the secret of the Gomez amazing success. He permitted foreign capital to exploit the oil fields at a price which benefitted the government and himself.

DOWN BROCKVILLE WAY "NO SMOKING" SIGNS evidently mean No Smoking and not maybe. In the Arena Rink there "No Smoking" signs sent from the Provincial Fire Marshal's office have been placed in prominent positions by the fire chief who states that the rule will be strictly enforced, and if necessary offenders will be expelled from the building. Non-smokers and the players will no doubt appreciate the absence of smoke clouds but how will the seasoned smokeaters exist between periods without their beloved weed?

THE ASSASSINATION OF PRESIDENT ABRAHAM LINCOLN in the Ford Theatre, Washington, by John Wilkes Booth, made the name of the murderer and then little town of Brockville on the banks of the St. Lawrence, but a man has just died who as a citizen of Brockville, was under suspicion of being the fugitive assassin John Wilkes Booth. Dr. Simeon S. Southworth died recently in California, aged 95 years. He was associate owner of the Brockville Arena from 1875 to 1879. After the assassination of Lincoln a great many arrests were made, anyone resembling in the least the assassin, John Wilkes Booth, was taken into custody immediately under suspicion. Unfortunately Simeon Southworth did resemble the fugitive actor and his arrest occurred at Niagara Falls, N.Y. He had not much difficulty establishing his identity and was not at all sure that he appreciated the publicity, for at that time the entire North was seething with excitement and rage at the assassin and suspects were liable to rough usage. Simeon S. Southworth was later connected with the press and practised dentistry in Nevada, finally moving to California where he ended his days recently. John Wilkes Booth was captured and died of wounds received during his flight.

HAVE YOU HEARD THESE?

A tramp had been admitted to the casual ward of an English workhouse late one evening, and the following morning he duly appeared before the master.

"Have you taken a bath this morning?" was the first question he was asked.

"No, sir," answered the man in astonishment, "is there one missing?"

CLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Jan. 13th., 1916.

Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Anderson and son of Carnell, Manitoba, have left for home after visiting Mrs. Anderson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. Leslie, Park street, each of who recently celebrated their 80th. birthday.

Bill Symons, the husky Belleville defence man, is a Brockville boy of ripe experience down around Smith Falls and Brockville. He weighs 185 pounds and in spite of his weight is one of the cleanest defence players in the East. He is the Mummery of the Eastern Intermediate Hockey League; he cuts out the rough stuff. (Toronto Star.)

At the Belleville curling rink two games were played with the following results: Dr. Kinnear, G. H. Scott, S. F. Armstrong, S. Robertson 28; Dr. E. R. Anderson, F. Fletcher, J. S. Cook, A. Jones skip 16; R. H. Spain, D. Jacobs, H. F. Mitchell, C. J. Symons skip 5; W. G. Huffman, A. S. White, A. H. Kerr, J. A. McFee Skip 13.

A meeting of the local Board of Health was held in the city clerk's office this morning for the purpose of organizing for the year. All the members were present namely: Dr. Yeomans, Medical Health Officer; Mayor Sulman, Messrs. A. McGie, R. Hall, Parker, J. A. Laklaw and Walter Alford. Mr. A. McGie was elected chairman.

Col. W. N. Ponton, D. D. O. M. paid an official visit to Stirling Lodge, a number of members of the order from Belleville accompanied him.

In the second game in the City Hockey League the Hardware Company team defeated the Grays of the said Hill, the score being 5 to 3. Sandy Seccombe was referee and he had his work cut out for him trying to make the boys play clean hockey. There was a lot of tripping and many of the lads thought it was much more than was necessary. The following composed the teams: Grays—Minchinton, Campbell, Robb, Alford.—Wallbridge, Spangenberg and Turner, Hardware Company: Phillips, Pepper, Saunders, Gerow, Bowen, Burke and McGuire.

POET LAUREATE LAUDS STEAMER

Says Man Has Not by Any Means Conquered The Sea

Los Angeles, Jan. 13.—(AP) Britain's poet laureate, romantic portrayer of sailing before the mast, lauds the modern liner.

"For excitement," said John Masefield, "there is nothing that has taken thrilled me more than the day I have just completed up to Spanish Main and through the Panama Canal on a steam freighter." Masefield is here for a few night before departing for New York and London.

"We talk of having conquered the sea, but we have not. Sometimes we do not have to struggle with it so hard as we used to," he said.

"My memory of sailing vessels is largely hazy now in the rigging sails, and scenic coloring, as one from the deck. My most delightful and inspiring sea voyage was one to Australia, last year in a luxurious passenger liner."

Masefield, commenting on the State of the world's poetry, deplored pessimism engendered among the younger bards.

"The work of the youngsters express a needless anger at world conditions," he said. "The younger poets should observe the law of history—they would see things are not so bad now."

OTTAWA, Jan. 13.—(CP)— The Dominion Drama Festival, with both finals and regional adjudicators selected, was moving forward today toward the competitive stage.

Announcement over the week-end by Col. H. ... Osborne, honorary director of the Festival, that Harley Granville-Barker, prominent figure in the World of Drama, had accepted an invitation to judge the finals, was expected by the Central Committee to give a fillip to the festival.

With announcement Granville-Barker will judge the finals came a statement from Col. Osborne Allan Wade, finals adjudicator last year and regional judge this year, will arrive in Victoria in a week to get ready for his country-wide tour.

Mr. and Mrs. Wade are expected about January 20. They will go from Ottawa to Victoria, where they start the work of adjudication. From the west coast they will work east taking in various competing groups on the way.

Granville-Barker, the finals adjudicator, is an old friend of Lord Tweedmuir and will be a guest at Government House during the Ottawa Festival Week.

U. S. Interests Seek Rights on Island

SARNIA, Ont., Jan. 13.—(CP)—Indians of Walpole Island, in the St. Clair River, go to the polls today to vote on whether they will, through the department of Indian Affairs, negotiate with United States interests for rights to drill for oil on the Island.

If the Indians vote in favor of the question, negotiations will be opened with F. T. Merrill, Oklahoma Mineralogist, and representative of the interests who seek to lease properties on the Island. The Indians it is understood, would share the proceeds from such contracts as might be made on a per capita basis.

EIGHT CHILDREN AND MOTHER BURN

Dropped 14 Feet When Floor of Bedroom Gave Way

London, Jan. 13 (CP)—Eight children and their mother, Sarah Alice Tyrer, 36, were burned to death early to-day when fire destroyed a miner's home on Green Valley Street at Tyldesley, Lancashire.

Adam Tyrer, the father, was the only survivor. The whole family dropped 14 feet when the floor of the bedroom in which they were sleeping gave way.

One of a long row of cottages occupied by miners, Tyrer's home was gutted. When it cooled a little firemen had to dig them in the ruins to recover the bodies of the nine victims.

Good Manners
By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

DINNER JACKET

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. When, an invitation is given by telephone to a bridge or Sunday night supper party, is it the duty of the hostess to tell the guests what they are to do in regard to dressing — whether the men are to wear "tuxedos" or are you supposed to ask, in case she doesn't say? This is always a problem to know what to wear, and recently caused my husband a lot of embarrassment as every other man, with the exception of one other, wore Tuxedos, while the women guests were dressed in afternoon clothes.

2. When entertaining with a bridge party and you are planning to serve a light supper at the end of the evening, and you wish to serve a cocktail of some sort, is it best to serve the drink when your guests first arrive, or—during the game?

L.

1. When there is a doubt about the correct dress, it is a simple matter for the hostess to indicate the type of dress to her guests. It is she who determines the type of dress she wishes worn at her party, and it is proper for her to make this clear. If she doesn't, it is just as good form for the guests to inquire either when the invitation comes by phone the invitation, or later, when the doubt may arise. It is as you see from your experience, a petty matter of which you speak, as much easier and wiser to do this than to go through the embarrassment of not being properly dressed.

2. If you are planning to serve cocktails at a supper party (this isn't usually done, then it would be best to wait until you are about to serve the refreshments.

FRUIT DESSERT

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Is it correct, when peaches are served as dessert at dinner and plates are left on the table, to put the dessert on the plates and eat it from them, or should it be put in front of plate and eaten from there?

1. The individual service of peaches should be in individual dessert dish, which is placed on a larger under-plate.

INTRODUCTIONS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Is it correct to tip an expressman when he brings a package to my house?

2. What does one say when leaving a person to whom he has just been introduced? So many times I have been at a friend's house and a stranger to me has stopped in for just a few minutes or I have just run in for a few minutes, and have been introduced to someone. Quite often when I am visiting out of town, I am introduced to persons I may never see again.

E.

1. Yes, if you wish to.

2. When we take our leave from a person to whom we have just been introduced — which means that this introduction is probably of the most casual kind — all we need to say is a gracious "Good-by", or, if we are sure that we have caught the name correctly, it is especially gracious to add the name, "Good-by, Mrs. Hall."

However, if we have any special interest in the introduction — and we may have, even in so casual an introduction — it is polite for us to say, "Good-by, Mrs. Hall. I am so glad to have met you", or "Good-by, Mrs. Hall. It's such a pleasure to meet you. I'm sorry that I'm going so soon." Or just "Good-by, Mrs. Hall. I'm sorry that I'm not to have the pleasure of seeing you longer. But I'm delighted at this opportunity of meeting you", or "Good-by Mrs. I'm very happy to have met you and I do hope that I'm to see you again soon".

NO MEN NEEDED

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please advise me whether it is proper for two young ladies over the age of twenty-five years to attend, unaccompanied by gentlemen, a testimonial banquet to be given at a hotel. The tickets sold indicate the affair is to be informal.

Z.

There is usually no reason, at a banquet of this general type, why two women should not attend without a call men partners.

A SCHOOLGIRL calls for a small hat. A charming beret is of Parma violet velvet with the tiny flowers caught in the inverted sucks over the head. There is a velvet bow for trimming. In back, the hat flis lightly, like a jockey's cap.

AN EVENFUL of beauty and glamour is to be found in a full skirted, fitted wrap of black lyons velvet, with enormous cuffs of silver fox and a fur-edged and fur-lined hood. Silver fox is the fur.

SOFT AS SILK and just as supple is the suit made entirely of black carscul. There is a waistline, peplum jacket and a slenderly wrapped skirt. The suit is worn with gloves of suede-palmed carscul.

A TREASURE OF A BAG in black suede and calf has a top made entirely of genuine old gold coins. Another model in dark green suede has gold coins as pois to metal slide fastener.

BACK TO THE PAST go the designers for their ideas. An old world look is given a black velvet evening frock with long sleeves banded by jet buttons and a back drape narrowing a heavy white lace petticoat.

A GOOD FRIEND to the woman who goes out quite a bit is a tiny clutch bag made in black and silver metal. The tight-fitting hip-length jacket has slit pockets and a hood-draped collar.

Hagersville Lady Praises Dodd's Kidney Pills

Mrs. Edwards' Family All Derive Benefit

Hagersville, Ont., Jan. 13 (Special) —"I am sixty-one years of age and have taken Dodd's Kidney Pills for over thirty-eight years," writes Mrs. Geo. W. Edwards, R.R. No. 5, Twenty-three years ago we lived on a farm where the water was bad. It caused pains and cramps. I could hardly do my work. It continued for nearly a month. My husband went to a druggist in Hagersville and he recommended Dodd's Kidney Pills. I can truthfully say I received relief from the very first dose I took. I continued taking them until I had used two boxes. Ever since Dodd's Kidney Pills have been my greatest help. I have a few children and they all used Dodd's Kidney Pills with benefit. I would not be without Dodd's Kidney Pills in the house."

Mayor and City Council Hear 'Ideal City' Sermon

Representatives of Boards And Officials Also Attend Church Service

MARKS OF CITY

When Mayor Harry Hill, aldermen of the city council, representatives of the Belleville Hydro Commission and of the Board of Education, and officials attended service in Bridge Street United Church on Sunday evening, Rev. Dr. James Semple, the minister, spoke on "The Ideal City". The preacher spoke to a large congregation. In highest terms of the Mayor whose integrity and honour he praised. "I trust criticism will be at a minimum this year," Dr. Semple remarked. "You probably stand higher than any other young man in the world, Col. Lindbergh. I think of what happened to Huey Long. There is a great lesson at that point. We know the kidnapper is in Canada. We know they are not free from the gangster in Canada, we know that corrupt influences are at work."

Right of Minorities

Rev. Dr. Semple referred to the recent election in the Dominion, and commented "I hope that the Parliament will pay attention to the minorities. We received a vote in 1935 by which the major parties fed but there is also a right of truth in the minority groups. If there is not proper paid to their contentions the time will come when there will be no more parties. The real issue is to face the problem of law and order. We must see that as far as we are able we must as citizens rid this land of ours of all corrupt influences which may cloak our cities.

Education

"Education. When I give my family the best education in the city? How are its principles applied? In concert courses, its newspapers and their place in the formation of public opinion? Does that due to persons will be offended by what I say but I think not. What about education as being the most important board in any city? Are the boards free to trustees or are the great opportunity which is theirs.

"Education and religion are one. Religion is not something to be added to education. We need but permit a barrier to be erected across the way of education by calling it religion in the schools. The divorce of education and religion in life is one of the calamities of today.

False Distinction

"Men will come profession religious and another secular.

"God forgive us for the false distinction which is only one thing that after all that is sacred—human personality. General education must be essentially religious. The task of the day school teacher is as truly religious as that of the church worker. Education is sacred as it gives values in the life. The school is the largest spiritual influence outside the family. Four hours hour all the children of the community are taught for five days a week. Any institution that ignores life is irreligious. Education without religion is sacrilege to the child.

Dr. Semple spoke of the great contribution which Methodism has made to education through Egerton Ryerson, which he thought greater than any other individual's education in the province's history.

Church

"Place of the church in the community. Few people want to come into any community where there is no church. They are a lot of critics of the churches. The thing for these persons to do is to go to that part of the world where there is no church. They won't stay there very long. Most of the people who don't like the church are those who like church people for neighbors.

Work for Boys. Only that city is the city that takes good care of its youth that can indeed be an ideal city. The boys of the New Jerusalem shall be full of boys and girls playing. "We cannot control the climate but we can control and direct the moral and spiritual welfare of our community. "May our city be an ideal city this year and through years to come."

Advice to the Lovelorn
By Beatrice Fairfax

Gushing, Out of Style
Dates the Gushing Girl

(Copyright, 1935.

King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

If you're pretty near the end of the twenties — say 29, or even 30, please don't gush and be glad. Because "gushing" adds at least ten years to your age.

In mother's day, it was the thing to gush and be glad about pretty nearly everything — the weather, the day of the week, the season of the year, a ham sandwich or a new hat. But with jobs for women, girls have learned to gush less.

Style change in behavior, just as they do in skirts, coats and the eyeletters of feminine garb. Stranger seem those be-plumed hats, which used to flare and sweep over pompadours, when you come across them today in photographs of stage favorites of a couple of generations ago.

And stranger still seems that letter, the gushing girl, in this different and hard-boiled age.

Revolutions in hats and clothes are no greater than revolutions in human behavior. When the older generation formed its habits and its manners, girls weren't as sure of themselves as they are today.

Their "line", when mother was a girl and even a good deal later, was to act school-girlish, ignorant of the world, and bubblingly enthusiastic over everything from sodas to Shakespeare.

The sentimental young thing who could outgush the rest of the bunch was the most popular, and got most of the dates and the beaux as well. Look over the Best Sellers of a generation ago, and the phrase "enchabling, innocent youth" is almost a stencil.

You see, it wasn't enough to be sweet in those days; you had to prove it; and also to this good, gushing note that a good many of the older girls have preserved — and it dates them more than a pompadour would.

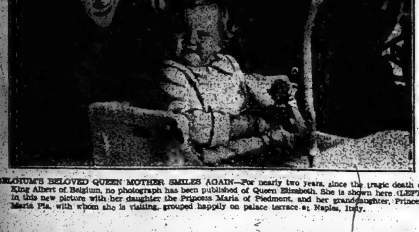
Perhaps Aunt Mayme doesn't look a minute over 20, and could deceive the most seasoned old dowager, or even a boy not long out of college. But when she begins to be bubblingly enthusiastic over everything, in and out of season, we begin to think back to those bustle days were very popular about the time of the Spanish-American war.

The first lesson to be composed, unassuming — perhaps even just a bit aloof. But make no effort to dramatize the fact that she is young and presumably inexperienced. In fact, she often pretends to be more experienced and worldly-wise than she really is.

Indeed, the modern girl is apt to ignore the question of age altogether. She can meet a woman of 50 on equal terms, or she can turn the head of a college boy. And, all said and done, she is a much easier person to encounter than the old-fashioned girl who fell she must never stop smiling or giggling for a moment.

So, my dear young ladies — suppose that milestone of 30 or 35 hail cast its shadow upon you — please don't gush! It will give you away sooner than your first faint crow's foot or grey hair.

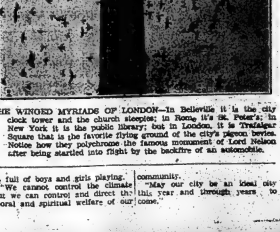
HIS PEOPLE THINK HE MARRIED A "NOBODY"



Dear Miss Fairfax:

A year after we were married, we went to visit his family who lived a great distance away. They threw fits about me, and said he had married a little "nobody", and tried in every way to break us up. So we returned to the city where we lived.

Now my husband has a chance of getting a position in the same town with his folks. I don't know what I shall do if they treat me as they did before. I'm very sensitive, and easily hurt. We have nice children now and I should like them to see their father in a family, yet my friends say I'm foolish to go.



Doubtful.

If you wish to be on friendly terms with your husband's family, why not do a little brushing up? What did the object to about you—your appearance, education, manners, or was it just that old-fashioned jealousy that families sometimes show toward a son's wife? If there isn't anything fundamentally wrong about your appearance, or the other things mentioned, just ignore their lack of cordiality, and perhaps by this time they will be more humane.

BELGIUM'S BELOVED QUEEN MOTHER SMILES AGAIN—For nearly two years, since the tragic death of King Albert of Belgium, no photograph has been published of Queen Elizabeth. She is shown here (LEFT) in this new picture with her daughter, the Princess Maria of Piedmont, and her granddaughter, Princess Maria Pia, while strolling happily on palace terrace at Naples, Italy.

THE WINGED MYRIADS OF LONDON—In Belleville it is the city clock tower and the church steeples; in Rome it's St. Peter's; in New York it is the public library; but in London it is Trafalgar Square that is the favorite flying ground of the city's pigeon bevies. Notice how they polychrome the famous monument of Lord Nelson after being startled into flight by the backfire of an automobile.

FAMILY-TYPE PLANE EXPERIMENTED WITH

Washington, Jan. 13 (AP)—The Ford Motor Company is experimenting with a new two-seater "Flivver" plane powered by a Ford V-8 engine, Officials of the Bureau of Air Commerce revealed today a license for experimental flights in it had been issued about a month ago.

The Air Commerce Bureau has regarded the use of ordinary automobile engines as a possible key to development of a family-type plane within reach of limited incomes.

COMMUNISM TO GAIN IN EVENT OF NEW WAR

Windsor, Ont., Jan. 13 (CP)—Ultimate danger of a general war which would result to the benefit of Communism is foreseen in the Italian Ethiopian dispute by Prof. Parker T. Moon of Columbia University, New York.

"Communism is certainly in a much better position to make use of the next war," remarked the professor during an address under auspices of the Assumption College Lecture League here.

FOLAND SENTENCES 12 TERRORISTS

Warsaw, Jan. 13.— (AP)—Three death verdicts were returned today in the trial of 13 Ukrainian Terrorists, tried on a charge of helping to organize the assassination of Senator Pierackl, Minister of Interior in Premier Skladkowski's cabinet in June of 1934, and aiding the assassin to escape, presumably to Canada.

The death sentences were commuted to life imprisonment, however, as falling under a recent amnesty law.

Robber Ties Victim Then Takes Jewelry

Windsor, Ont., Jan 13 (CP)—The hands of the victim and ankles by an armed, masked robber who invaded her apartment today, Mrs. Inella Chadwick was robbed of her jewelry, in addition to $4 in cash. The jewelry which included two wrist watches and a ring was valued at more than $80.

Mrs. Chadwick said there was a knock at her door and when she opened it a man stepped inside and pointed a revolver at her. She was then forced to lie face down on the bed while trussed up.

After the thug had left Mrs. Chadwick rolled off the bed and managed to hop down the hall to another apartment where she aroused the alarm.

GAGGED BABY FOUND ALIVE IN BUSHES

Boston, Jan. 13 (AP)—An eight-months-old baby boy, found hidden in the shrubbery outside his home tonight, was gagged with a towel, kept soundly today, none the worse for his adventure while police sought those who took him from his crib. David Lesage was found last night in a clump of bushes almost beneath his open first floor window.

Police detective Dennis Haggerty said it was unlikely though someone might have been interrupted in a kidnapping attempt.

● All the countless thousands who buy newspapers every day are potential customers of those who offer goods for sale to the consuming public.

Practically every merchant in Canada will lose customers in 1935 — a law of business. This loss must be replaced or the business will die. The trader who loses customers, even to the danger point, can find them again and increase his turnover beyond normal standard with advertising in the daily newspapers.

People are reading daily newspapers as never before, not from curiosity, but from need to know today the best things offered to supply their daily wants.

Lost markets, which are only other words for lost customers, are now being regained by you or acquired by others. You owe it to yourself and to your business to keep in touch through the newspapers every day with the Canadian buying public.

Leafs Toppled from Top Spot First Time in Three Years Being Swamped by Canadiens

Habitants Make it a Glorious Weekend by Winning Twice

MAROONS BLANKED

Defeat America Saturday But Detroit Proves Sheet-out Over Them

(By A. N. Fulford)

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Coming from behind with a speedy, determined team, that has bruised aside an inferiority complex born of early season defeats and struck pay dirt in recruit material Montreal Canadiens loomed today as a possible foe for the National Hockey League playoffs.

For the first time this season they were just a hurdle from third place in the Canadian division already awarded to New York Americanes by most critics. A tough schedule they must trek through in the next two weeks probably will determine whether they have the reserves to finish among the leaders.

Two week-end victories over teams they had never beaten before this season, pulled Montreal Habitants within a point of the Americans, who lost 3-2 to Montreal Maroons Saturday night in Montreal.

First Canadiens swamped Maple Leafs 7-3 in Toronto, toppling the Torontonians from the Canadian division leadership for the first time in three years. After tagging Leafs also for 3-2, Detroit Maroons took over the top spot today.

Habitants went on to Chicago last night to make the week-end a clean sweep. With the redoubtable Aurel Joliat and Johnny Gagnon cast in fourth line roles, they went behind to defeat Black Hawks in the third period.

Maroons Tagged 6-4

Not so fortunate as their fellow townsmen, Maroons went on to Detroit from the victory the Amerks came to their worst licking of the season. With Doug Young, wing defenseman, Maroons' leading point scoring punch, Jack Adams, team manager, the Americans had a bad night.

The decisive win gave Detroit a five-point lead in the American division over New York Rangers, who were to play Montreal Canadiens in Madison Square Garden, Chicago lead Hawkeyes by a point and Bruins are another half game behind Hawks.

Canadian played so well in Toronto they earned the cheers of 8,000 fans who made the Leafs look mere stooges at the end of the first period. Leafs' back-checking system failed to score and Canadiens rapped in four goals, that gave them their margin of victory.

Joffre Desilets and Goldsworthy, Jack McGill and Pete Lepine all scored for Canadiens, while the disorganized Leafs could get nowhere even while they had a man advantage.

Charlie Conacher, Bob Davidson and Nick Metz tallied for Leafs in a wild-scoring third session but their efforts were in vain. Goalies Rollal Part Hayes and Goldsworthy split duties for the Canadiens total.

Joliat scored the two goals that gave Habitants their victory over Hawks with Gagnon assisting on the second. Wilson tied the score in the final period almost 20 minutes after Bill Kendall had given Chicago lead the lead on Tommy Cook's pass.

Hooley Smith a Hero

Hooley Smith was the hero of the piece at Montreal Saturday night scoring two of the Maroon's three goals. His tallies, the only marker of the first period and after Art Chapman and Sweeney Schriner had put American ahead and Herb Cain had tied it up in the second the Maroon centre tore the game open in the third. Thirty-three years old last week, Smith played one of the best games of his career.

Obviously tired from their hard game against American and the train trip, Maroons made a poor showing against Wings. They got to Jimmie Smith only 19 shots to handle compared to the 32 Bill Beveridge was forced to cope with.

Doug Young was top wing scorer with two goals and an assist and Larry Aurie and Hec Kilrea got a goal and an assist each. Syd Howe and Herb Lewis counted the other goals. Wings piled up two in the first period, one in the second and three in the third.

Twenty-one scoring points were awarded in the high-scoring affair as New York Brains scored three goals before Rangers made a return and never had less than a 4-2 lead thereafter.

"WINK" WILSON SCORES TWO TO BEAT OLYMPIANS

Napanee Wingman Plays Smart Game Against Overseas Brigade

Five Players Absent From Olympic Lineup in Kingston

Kingston, Ont., Jan. 13.—(CP)—The strongest 1935-Olympic games hockey tour in history reached Intercollegiate Athletic Association. Rival teams have treated it with scant respect in competition. It looks even with two wins and two loses in the week but there is a heavy deficit in the seat.

Five players were absent from the lineup, when the Olympians played Kingston Frontenac and Queen's University squad on soft ice Saturday night and the balance were unable to cope with the home team's strong defence.

The Navy had a busy game in five days for the overseas brigade. They were previously beaten by Hamilton Tigers and Toronto Dukes and Varsity, by 3-0 win, Friday night over Brockville Maroons. No previous Olympic team managed to compile more than one win in a series before getting to the games.

Wilson, Napanee, former Napanee wingman, scored both Kingston goals, one in the first period, and the other in the second. Bill Osborne and Mac Scrutton, who shares goal-tending duties for the home squad, turned in brilliant performances to keep the Olympians from the score sheet, especially in the third period.

The team is scheduled to play its ninth exhibition game tonight in Montreal.

FALCONS CROWD LEAGUE LEADERS

Ken Doraty Assists as Cleveland Wins Two Games Over Weekend

(By the Canadian Press)

Cleveland Falcons, led by Ken Doraty, Toronto athlete, and Intercontinental League, pinch-hitters, had a whale bang in the International League standings today and now are in third place this season Detroit's Olympics remain in fourth position.

Doraty, 120-pounder, who accomplished some amazing goal-getting feats in the light sport line when Maple Leafs' unit he was demoted from, collected three goals and an assist to feature Cleveland's uphill fight against Troy. Lloyd Gross had two goals and an assist.

Trailing 4-3 at the start of the third period, the Cleveland Falcons forced the game into overtime on goals by Doraty and Frank Daley. In the extra session Gross and Doraty both scored.

Syracuse Stars, Eastern group leaders, did the unexpected by losing 6-3 to Rochester Cardinals Saturday night but the stars made up for the lapse by trouncing Windsor Bulldogs 5-2 last night. Rochester's victory was the fourth of the season for Mickey Roach's Cards and their second straight.

BELLEVILLE "Y" DEFEAT QUEENS IN CAGE TILT

Score is 38-22 And Locals Look Impressive in Victory

COLE, FAULKNER, STAR

University Quintette Not Quite Strong Enough on Defence

Displaying a far superior brand of basketball, the Belleville "Y" cage squad romped home to a 38 to 22 victory over the Queen's Interfaculties in the opening game of the E.O.A.A.A. at the B.C.I. gymnasium on Saturday night. The Morden-coached quintette from the local Y.M.C.A. carried more punch on the offensive, while the defence laid down by the winners proved the undoing of the "students."

Outstanding for the Queen's team looked rather weak, especially before the onslaught set down by the regular front line of the local "quints" who led the scoring by the wide margin of 17 to 4 at the half-way mark. For the locals the work of Art Cole and Ab Faulkner, both of whom were classified by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Associa-tion, were outstanding. So previous Olympic team managed to compile more than one win in a series before getting to the games.

CURRENT SPORT

DAY BY DAY

Many local hockey leagues are scheduled to get under way this week, the majority of which are playing under the existing O.H.A. rules. Players are reminded also, should bear in mind a new ruling, that was issued by the O.H.A. recently and to the effect that no goal shall be counted when the puck is kicked into the defending team's net by an attacking player, regardless of whether it was done by a defending player or not. In short the rule now reads, as issued by the O.H.A., that a goal can only be scored by means of the use of a hockey stick only. In years past this tangle has always confronted defending teams and officials with the result that many a controversy has resulted. The ruling is quite plain today and local players and officials should well remember the fact—"no goal can be scored legitimately when kicked or pushed by the hand into the defending team's goal". Also another rule being strictly adhered to this year is the interference rule, which says no defending player may body-check any attacking player not in possession of the puck which means that the puck-carrier rule is taboo, only the player in possession of the rubber being eligible to be body-checked.

It remains for the local Owl league to pay off the hockey bill in Belleville this season, when Manager, scheduled to open hostilities after organizing skating hours tonight, weather permitting. On Wednesday night the Owl League will hold a meeting to draw up schedules and their schedule. Teams wishing to enter the Belleville Amateur Hockey League are asked to get in touch with Secretary Gay of the Arena immediately.

Although baseball is the farthest thing from the local sport realm these days, Coach Roy Worden is taking over the local Junior O. B. A. A. activities, having charge of the baseball-minded boys under the age of 20 years at the Y. M. C. A. tonight. All are invited to hold regular monthly meetings for the youngsters, during which the rules of baseball will be explained and blackboard talks will be given. At that the big leaguers are already preparing to trek southward in the near future so why not the kids talk shop?

Showing the results of conditioning personified, Coach Ralph Morden's "Y" boys won the first inaugural game of the O.B.A.A. season with a clean-cut 38 to 22 victory over the Queen's "students" on Saturday night. The locals opened auspiciously in the scoring and finished in the same manner, as they met the onslaught of the Queen squad in the last half and went on to outscore the students in both halves. Although the tri-color staged an early second period rally by threatening to overhaul the locals, Coach Morden's efforts this season will result on Saturday night at the B.C.I. gym when the Belleville squad proved they possessed conditioning and were built in shaks off the last period attacks of the enemy and go on to win the championship manner. The local's starting team of Vic White and Al Wickerson on the defence, Art Cole at centre, flanked by Ab Faulkner and Herb Burley looks like one of the best basketball combinations locally in many a day and at any rate the local squad got off on the right foot Saturday night, but will have much tougher opposition before the curtain is rung down for 1936.

"Shanghai Rose"

By Anne Forester

He was being deliberately flippant, Rose knew; always a bad sign in Larry. Under that pose he sometimes lurked some purpose of his own; devilry being Larry's way of disguising things that mattered to him most deeply. Even as she laughed at him and at Lottie's pranked face, she felt a curious tingling sense of excitement. Whatever it was he had in tell her tonight, he was concealing his own inner excitement very well.

Christmas Eve, Rose thought, her reading eyes going around the little room. Holly for the supper table tonight, brought in by Bertha Harris in a gust of snowy cold. Four red candles bought for the meal five cents ten cent store. Standing in a row in the small silver holders she had been Lottie's donation to the night.

A doll-house, with hinged walls and an amazing row of impossible toys, had been Larry's shabbiest tendered burden on his arrival just before supper tonight. The smaller package for herself, to be opened on the morrow, lay waiting on the table in the inner room.

And about noon, another package had come addressed to the whole family . . . quite a bulky package, with no card of any sort to show the donor. A curly-headed Negro doll, an Indian doll with convincing bead-dress and an enormous baby-doll of some pliable rubber material—startlingly like a real baby when she had lifted it from the box. Holding the amazing toy against herself with an impulsive gesture, the girl was back again for a moment in the shabby room in Shanghai . . . holding again a real baby in those arms . . . Little Kitten growing up now so fast . . . Soon she would have no baby to hold at all—

Again, that horrible, anguishing fear engendered by the thought. There would always be Kitten, she told herself fiercely, always—unless dared anyone think anything else could be? The Therolds weren't like that . . . Austin, Rose-girl . . . a cad, a notorious character . . . Jeffrey wouldn't—

She looked down at the doll in her arms. And at that instant—how somehow knew who had sent it—Jeffrey Therold. But what did it mean? Was it mockery of those gestures, just another pallid flag of token to be followed as always he had followed such gestures before by a hurt that would wrack her to the heart? Wearily she put the thought from her, even as she dropped the doll back into the box. Kitten would be delirious with excitement when tomorrow came. Old enough this year to be enchanted by it all, she had with difficulty been restrained from permanently flattening her small nose against the window pane at Cassile's—where all during the previous week its frosted delights of a mammoth tree had dripped its pinnacles of silver tinsel above a Santa Claus in red flannel and twig whiskers.

"Delicacy," said Larry's decisive voice, "and a certain amount of good old-fashioned home training compel me to refrain from inquiring into your thoughts!"

"Oh—I'm so sorry!" Rose said contritely, even as a slackening of tempo announced the arrival of Lottie's equipage for the evening. Mr. Morgan having thus announced himself, remained firmly outside in the car.

"It's that fender!" Lottie had whispered in a willowing aside to Rose, who followed her to the door. "Mis' Therold, you aint never known a man 'ill wouldn't fuss for Mr. Morin' fender happens to upset 'im. He's had nothin' mad at him but Deering man that it's all my life's worth just to set beside him!"

Even Mr. Morin, Rose reflected as she turned back into the house, felt the chill breath of Austin Deering's presence in the simple town. Even Larry was saying impatiently, "that it never makes you any less determined to have your own way. But I wonder you can't happen to think what it is you want to do. But I would like a moment—just a modicum of your attention for a jot! After all all, it's Christmas Eve—and nothing," he added virtuously, "draws people so closely as being outcasts together!"

"Outcasts!" Had Larry heard something? Did he know of this threat of Austin Deering? The girl felt a fluttering sense of unreality quickly dispelled by the next words the man spoke.

"Just an expression—knowing as I do that you consider me outside the social pale for that last Thanksgression of mine! Oh, forgive me, Rose-girl . . . I'm talking through my hat! You know as well as will as I do that I'm ashamed to the very soul for what happened the other night . . . Ashamed of having gone to Lotte's store in the first place in that condition; and ashamed of having no more stamina than to stick around—when I knew I was swirling worse as the evening wore on. I just can't bear things when I'm like that, Rose—" His voice trailed lightly away.

Can't help it, churned the thought around and around Rose Therold's brain. That was what someone else had once said to say. If Larry could know the terrible danger the visit of his had put in her path today . . . If he could know of the weapon he had placed in Austin Deering's hand . . .

Would he trust it so lightly . . . so remotely . . . Clairvoyantly, she knew that he would. It was part of it all . . .

Larry used to say he couldn't help it, either, Larry," she said as though partly to herself. Larry used to make fun of it too, no matter what the results . . . until bitterness and remorse and self-loathing set in—

Self-loathing!"

The usually quiet, controlled voice of the man before her was shaking in the rough intensity of its change. "Do you call it?" he said, flinging himself suddenly upright from his chair. "God, Rose-girl . . . do you think I've known all along what that is?"

There was more than mere anger in his changing voice now. There was fear, and a confusion of agonish. She saw that his face—a moment before so mockingly slight, was surprisingly haggard and drawn.

"Tell down here for a moment, Rose." Larry, Morgan said softly. "I have something to tell—you—right now."

The tenderness she felt for him breaking through in the confusion about her heart, Rose crossed the room slowly and sat down by his side.

Chapter 12
LARRY TELLS HIS TRUTH

T-Bone, with the injured air peculiar to invalids and neglected lovers, had been regarding Larry all evening with a distain which manifested itself by a series of audible sniffs and averted eyes. T-Bone had seen practically nothing of this master of his for some weeks now. His place by the little stove in the cottage by the river had become a sort of second home—and even the presence of his beloved owner tonight could not entirely win him from keeping an anxious eye on Rose's troubled face.

Larry stood up again, quite mechanically opening the door of the stove and dropping in a crashing armful of wood.

"Rose—" he said, without preface of any sort—"will you marry me?"

For a breathless second the girl made no reply—only bending forward in her chair, both hands pressed to her aching eyes, motionless and quiet. Then she looked up, and he saw the expression on her face. With a quick stride he was across the room, clasping her two chilly hands in his, seeming to reach out and gather all of her to himself.

"Don't answer me now—that was a rotten way to ask a question like that . . . but I've wanted to for so long . . . Gee, honey, you're so damn' sweet—"

She tried to smile back at him, but her mouth quivered instead into a paroxysm of pain. How was she to tell him the truth—that love and marriage were not for her, ever again? He was so dear a friend, his companionship had meant so much to her . . . Oh, he couldn't be hurt like this now. If only she could make him understand—

"It is—" with his usual intuitive reading of her mind, he had guessed her answer from her face—"Rose, is it because of my drinking? Because if it is—oh, sweetheart, I swear with all my soul that you'd never be troubled by that again! I've got a job, Rose—a brand new job! I'm leaving for China—for Peking—day after tomorrow! It's the job I've been working toward for over a year. Oh, you will come with me—say you will! I've wanted it, dear . . . because I thought I might get it for you!

"But, Larry—now, listen, dear! how could that be? You haven't known me for a year! You've known me—how long is it—four months or five? She was talking against time, against the sudden flash of the thought that had leaped suddenly into her mind. To go to Peking, to get away from all of this—away from the heartache, the shame, the grinding necessity for getting through from one day to another in an atmosphere which she now acknowledged to herself would never be anything but hostile—and unkind. To take Kitten away—where the vicious tattle of small, malicious tongues would forever be stilled; to let her grow up as far as possible from these relatives who had treated her so shabbily.

But even as the temptation reared its head, Rose knew that she could not leave Larry. He deserved nothing less than the best. She brought her mind back, to the sound of his voice again, to the astonishing words he had just let fall.

"You're wrong about that, Rose dear," the man was saying quietly. "I have known you—and loved you, for more than—a—year!" Then, answering the amazed stare with which she had turned to survey him, he added, almost guiltily: "I've got a confession to make to you, Rose . . . It isn't a pretty story—but I want you to listen—" Here in Catherwood," Larry's voice went lower still. "I've told you that before. What I haven't told you is that I spent almost two years—just before coming back here—in China—in Shanghai. I used to see you—dancing at Billy Scalminini's Cabaret. I've loved you ever since!"

"But, Larry! Why haven't you ever said—"

He came to that. I grew up with the Therrold boys — played with them, I should say; because, after all, the son of the town dressmaker and the son of Catherwood's richest mill owner cannot exactly be said to be fraternity brothers!" he went on a trifle bitterly. "After we got older, and my mother died—I ill out. Went over to China. Words paint pictures for me—they always have. So I went into the newspaper game. I was making good, too—until—well," a trifle defiantly, "I started to drink."

From the former came the sound of T-Bone's irritated attacks as he monotonously rustled a newspaper.

TARZAN THE INVINCIBLE (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service)

When Tarzan finally stopped and placed the exhausted girl upon the ground, it was in a little clearing through which ran a stream of clear water. Jane Porter realized for the first time how weak she was, for when she attempted to rise, she found she could not.

The great bull elephant standing almost above her and the broad figure of an almost naked giant squatting beside the stream seemed more than ever like a dream. She saw the man fold a leaf and after filling it with water, rise and come toward her.

Without a word he stopped, and putting his arm beneath her shoulders he offered her the water. She drank deeply and then, looking up into the man's face above her, she thanked him, but the man did not reply. She thought naturally that he did not understand her.

When she had satisfied her thirst and he had lowered her gently to the ground again, he swung lightly into a tree and disappeared into the forest. But above her the great elephant stood as though on guard, his huge body swaying gently to and fro.

Current Attractions at Local Theatres

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE BELLE

"Peter Ibbetson"

Gary Cooper Triumphs in This Role

"Cornwall's Finest Entertainment"

Manager

All the delicacy, beauty and poignancy of George DuMaurier's immortal love story lives again in Paramount's picturization of "Peter Ibbetson," starring Gary Cooper in the title role, which comes to the Belle tomorrow and Wednesday, matinee daily.

A pinnacle task at best, in lifting the strangest of strange novels, all concerning in the production of this fascinating fantasy deserve high praise for maintaining the dignity and ethereal atmosphere which characterized Du Maurier classic, as well as giving it an added robustness and warm blooded appeal in its latest screen regalia. Although old fashioned romance and sentiment run riot in the film, its tendency to become saccharine in treatment is skillfully avoided by that astute director, Henry Hathaway, who pays us the highly successful "Lives of a Bengal Lancer."

It is interesting to watch Gary Cooper's fine interpretation as Ibbetson. Cast in a role entirely foreign to any he has attempted, Cooper achieves a memorable characterization, revealing hitherto hidden personalities in luscious makeup just as he displayed amazing undiscovered capabilities in "Lives of a Bengal Lancer". Given the difficult part of Peter Ibbetson, Cooper employs the character with the fine shadings and heart warming appeal the role demands. "Peter Ibbetson" is a distinct achievement for Cooper, definitely stamping him as an actor of great depth and wide range. Ann Harding who appears in the leading feminine role opposite Cooper, as the Duchess of Towers, also can be accorded highest commendation, for her portrayal that has been exacted by so many illustrious forbears. Other favorites in important roles are John Halliday, Ida Lupino, Douglas Dumbrille, and those two juvenile favorites, Virginia Weidler and Dickie Moore.

"Oomadi" Stuart Musical

Lavishly garnished with catchy tunes and bringing two new youthful and talented players to the screen, Paramount's musical romance, "Coronada", announced as the second feature attraction on the same program is a film worth anybody's time and money.

Eddie Duchin and his orchestra provide the musical background for the film and this popular dance band's first motion picture engagement is auspicious to say the least.

The performance of the two leading players, Johnny Downs and Betty Burgess, indicate to this writer that Hollywood has discovered something refreshingly new. These two young people not only act competently . . . they are talented singers and dancers as well. The action takes place at the Hotel Coronada in Southern California, a resort frequented by the upper crust of society.

The cast fills the story perfectly, and there is no end of comedy in the picture, contributed mainly by Jack Haley and Andy Devine as two-marine hating sailors and Jean Errol as father of the two girls. The songs which form an important part of the film were written by Richard Whiting and Sam Coslow. You will like them, especially the featured number "You Took My Breath Away", which Miss Burgess sings. The picture directed by Norman McLeod has superb settings and the dance ensembles, performed by some of the loveliest girls in Hollywood, are staged with a maximum of cleverness.

A Town Talk Show

A perfect two-bit show that is the talk of the town are "Bonnie Scotland", featuring Laurel and Hardy in their latest full-length feature comedy, offering eighty minutes of roars, and "King Solomon of Broadway," a new style melodrama that reeks with suspense and romance, featuring Edmund Lowe, Dorothy Page and Pinky Tomlin. The last complete show starts at 8.30 p.m. If you are shopping for an evening of smart variety entertainment, don't miss this show as every unit is an attraction and a treat!

AT THE CAPITOL

"It's In The Air"

Jack Benny and Una Merkel In Benny's Second Starring Vehicle

It almost broke little Jean Gunn's heart when she had to hit Jack Benny or a scene from "It's In The Air," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer comedy-drama, to be seen today at the Capitol Theatre, but she found a way to lessen the pain in her heart.

Before the scene, Director Charles F. Reaner instructed the five-year-old girl to hit Benny when he leaned down to autograph her book and also to call him a "big stiff."

"Now, Jean, do this scene like you really hated Mr. Benny," said Riemer as he gave the signal for the rehearsal.

After the rehearsal, Jack looked at the little girl and said:

"You don't really hate me, do you?"

"No," answered the baby. "See what I did with my fingers during the scene."

Bad Fingers Crossed

Benny looked in back of the youngster and found that she had been keeping her fingers crossed so that what she said didn't really count!

Benny's second starring vehicle shows him in the characterization of a Broadway "chiseler," who is only one step ahead of the law. By accident he becomes a national hero instead of a "number" through a stratosphere flight that he has been forced into by his estranged wife. The wife is portrayed by Una Merkel, who, incidentally, for the first time in her screen career, has a dramatic rather than a comedy role.

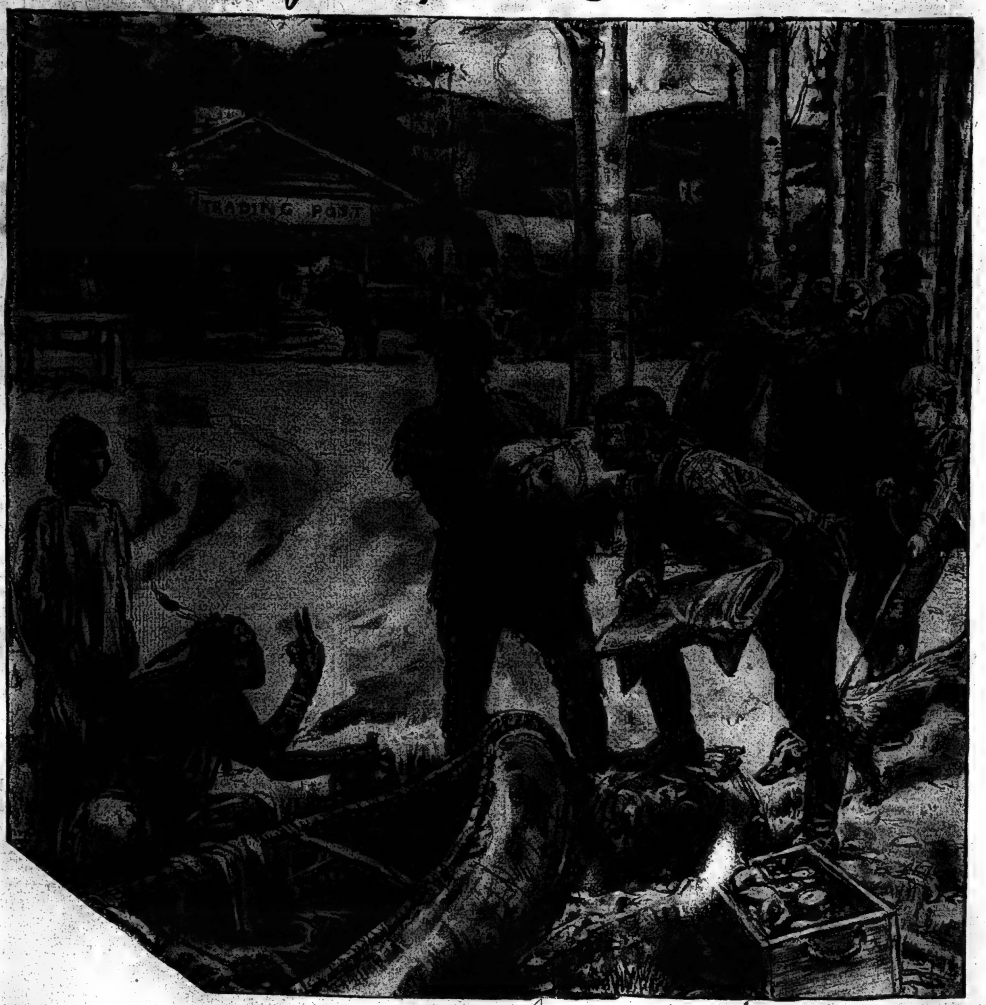
Ted Healy plays Benny's sidekick, while Nat Pendleton is the comical "G-Man." Mary Carlisle, Grant Mitchell and Harvey Stephens are also in the cast.

Thelma Todd

Miss Thelma Todd in "Slightly Static" whose untimely death is still shrouded in mystery, will be seen at the Capitol in her latest comedy.

George Arliss

"Mr. Hobo," coming to the Capitol Thursday for a three day engagement, will star that lovable gentleman, Mr. George Arliss, in a new and different role.



Cambridge, Mass., Jan. 13 (AP)—Miss America, her mother and grandmother and other women relatives spend $300,000,000 annually to "look pretty."

Dr. J. Harper Sinkdell, former instructor in dermatology at Harvard Medical School, gave these figures today as the extent of business of 30,000 beauty shops in the United States. In 1929, he said, there was $62 such shops doing an annual business of $7,-000,000.

T. B. ROBERTSON WINNIPEG, DIES

Assistant Editor of Free Press and Prominent in Labor.

Winnipeg, Jan. 14.—(CP) — Thomas B. Robertson was mourned today by his fellow workers in the newspaper profession and by his host of readers.

The 56-year-old self-educated printer who penned articles by the hundreds and the end assistant editor-in-chief of the Winnipeg Free Press died last night after a short illness.

Rising to prominence under the pen name of "Augustus Columbus" and later under his own initials, T. B., he first as a printer, a market gardener, lumberjack and fruit farmer before he turned definitely to newspaper work in 1918.

He could spin copy out of his memory or a highland mist, the leading of his printer's devil or a tired girl wrapping parcels in a Queen during the depression. Legless tire buildings and sketches of municipal men by the dozen. Person was as brilliant as it was prolific.

Death came to Mr. Robertson exactly 18 years to the day after the first column he was published in the Winnipeg Free Press. He left his job as a printer in a Winnipeg publishing house to become feature writer on the Free Press. Later he became literary editor. In 1928 he became associate editor and in 1931 was appointed assistant editor-in-chief.

Heir to Borden Millions Enjoys Life as "Bell Boy" on Ocean Liner

New York, Jan. 14 (CP)—A $10-a-week "bell boy" on the liner Haiti was here today in the person of Robert St. J. Borden, 24-year-old heir to the fortune pyramided by his father, the late prime minister of Canada.

Borden "likes the work," he said, and plans to make several more trips before quitting the sea as a vocation.

Son of Mrs. Charles P. Scott of New York and Lakeville, Conn., Borden said when he is 25 he will receive the income of a $500,000 trust fund.

Letter Rides Pacific Airways, Returns to Belleville from Manila

E. G. LaBarr of Hotel Quinte Staff Has Novel Way of Collecting Stamps to Mark Inaugural Epoch-Making Clipper Services

Belleville to the Philippines, via ocean San Francisco and the Philippine Air Mail, flying over the Pacific; across the Ocean in the China Clipper and returning via the Philippine Clipper, vanguard of the mighty air fleet that will soon girdle the earth and annihilate time and space, is known, a letter from the Hotel Quinte raced to San Francisco, to Honolulu, to Manila, and then back on the wings of the wind to be delivered at the hotel Monday to E. G. Barr, and a popular young man who prunes behind the register during the rush hours. It remains whether they can have a room with bath or a bath with or without a room.

Mr. LaBarr is an enthusiastic collector of stamps and loses no opportunity to secure samples of new issues. Hence when the Clipper air mail service was inaugurated between San Francisco and the Philippines he made sure of his stamps by addressing a letter to himself at Manilla, capital of the Philippine Islands, with typed instructions to the postmaster of that city to return it to himself in Ont. and called for in the Hotel Quinte, Belleville, Ontario, Canada.

The letter came back duly postpaid, but bearing little signs of its long trip.

San Francisco postmark was Nov. 22; Manila, Philippine Islands, Nov. 23.

Mr. LaBarr has also received recently the return of stamps posted to himself in Oman, that lonely outpost in the southern seas which has been in the news recently as a prospective coaling station. Honolulu has also yielded up postmarks and cancelled air mail stamps so dear to the stamp collector.

Smell-Less Cabbage is Developed In a Strain of House Savoy Cabbage

Discovered by Prof. Myers of Cornell University; Specimens in Storage

15000 SEEDS

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE

Ithaca, N.Y., Jan. 14 (AP)—One hundred million cabbages are under guard at Cornell University—each of them a descendant of a cabbage with the preserved of a century ago.

Those white heaps of cabbage are guarded in greenhouses from contamination with smelly relatives with a view to having enough of the rare cabbage to go commercially on the market in about two years.

The smelly cabbage family did—as Prof. Professor C. H. Myers in a sketch of house Savoy cabbages. It was a beneficial error.

"We decided," Professor Myers said, "to put all our eggs in one basket. For that reason some of the plants were placed in cold storage in a cellar, some in a cold frame, in a trench; still others were stored in a silo; and a few plants (mistakes) were even sheltered in the greenhouse."

When the latter Professor Myers hopes to get 15,000 seeds. These will be sufficient, he said, to start commercial production.

Meanwhile the other seed produced by the aristocratic House of Savoy cabbages will be given to seed producers for trial in gardens.

CHURCH BOMBED, 10 PERSONS DIE

Ten Blinded by Gas Bombs, Says Report From Ethiopia

Addis Ababa, Jan. 14 (CP)—Ethiopian officials announced from Desaye, Emperor Haile Selassie's headquarters, today that Italian planes had bombed the town of Sakota and wrecked the Church of St. Mary on January 10, with ten of the congregation slitsy killed or wounded.

Ten others, Ethiopian, the communique said, were blinded by gas bombs and "fifty people were mercilessly bombed."

The town is being bombed every day, the communique added. It is located about 125 miles northwest of Desaye.

Another report from Desaye said an Italian plane bearing the colors of the Emperor's headquarters in the town today without bombing it.

Officials said several Italian prisoners taken at Desaye identified native Italian troops in the north "officially were ordered to burn churches."

INDIANS VOTE AGAINST LEASE

Will Not Give Oil Rights to American Concern

Walkaskong, Ont., Jan. 14.—(CP) Proposals to lease oil rights on the Walpole Island Indian Reserve in the St. Clair River were abandoned today when the Island announced opposition of the Indians to the plan.

In a vote on the question reterred to residents of the Reserve, 138 to 138 to the lease authorizing the Department of Indian Affairs to proceed with negotiations for leasing the oil rights to a United States interest headed by Fred G. Merritt, Oklahoma mineralogist.

Merritt sought a 30-year lease and it was understood he was prepared to pay the reserve $40,000 for the privilege of drilling as oil was mined. The Indians showed their dislike for the suggested lease at a meeting several days ago and backed up this attitude with their votes yesterday.

Merritt said he did not know what his company would do now but onwards developing oil mining on the reserve, but his agent was open "for suggestions from the Indians, the department or the business men of Ontario."

HOWARD HUGHES NEW SPEED KING OF U.S. AVIATION

Completes Transcontinental Flight in Record Breaking Time

9 HRS. 27 MINS. 10 SEC.

Flew Most of Distance at Altitude of 18,000 Feet

By RICHARD B. TETON
(Associated Press Writer)

New York, Jan. 14 (AP)—Howard Hughes, young millionaire aviation, Howard Hughes, young daredevil from California and screenland film producer, crowned his thrilling air achievements today by completing the fastest transcontinental flight ever made.

Hughes flew without a stop from Burbank Calif., to New York, N.J., in 9 hours, 27 minutes and 10 seconds, eastern standard time, to cut an hour the record of 10 hours, 2 minutes and 31 seconds set by Colonel Roscoe Turner in 1934.

The new record-holder flew most of the distance at 18,000 feet, breathing part of the time from a tank of oxygen.

He made a speed of 386 miles an hour over one long stretch. His flight covered approximately 2,415 miles and he averaged close to 260 miles an hour for the entire distance.

The tall, dark-haired flier, who has established records for land planes last September, when he averaged 352.46 miles an hour in a closed course near Santa Ana, Calif., brought his transcontinental hop to a perfect ending in Newark, N.J., at 12.42:18 a.m. EST. He had taken off exactly two hours earlier, at 10.42:18 p.m. EST.

New Type of Plane

"It develops 700 horsepower at 15,000 feet," he said, "and I flew most of the time higher up to save gas."

The plane, a single seat monoplane, was based upon several models of the Lockheed Vega, a feminine speed flier.

Hughes landed him over Santa Fe, N.M., Kansas City, Indianapolis and Columbus, O., to Indianapolis in 5 hours 26 minutes—about 290 miles an hour.

"When I reached Pittsburg, Hughes said, "I knew I could and I put it up all the way to Newark."

Record Confirmed

At Newark, no one was expecting his arrival until his plane swooped down over the field right at the crowd soon collected.

"I knew that if you've crossed the continent faster than anybody has ever crossed it" someone asked you, you'd have to be thinking about that," Hughes replied.

"I knew that I had to hadn't attempted to make the flight in seconds."

"I just didn't have time to tell anyone when I left," he explained.

Charge Accused Walked Into Trap

Hamilton, Ont., Jan. 14 (CP) — Harold Flannery was arraigned on a charge of attempting to murder Day and the hearing adjourned for one week. He pleaded not guilty.

Detective-Sergeant Eli Jackal, claims he received a letter warning him to go to a man at a certain street corner last night or police would be told certain things. Jackal showed the letter to police and went to the appointed corner with two officers nearby. A few minutes after, Flannery was arrested by the officers.

4TH EXPEDITION STARTS SEARCH FOR P. REDFERN

Hope Revived of Finding Aviator Lost 9 Years Ago in S. A. Jungle

Georgetown, British Guiana, Jan. 14.—(CP)—The jungle search for Captain Redfern, British and United States flier, drew a fourth expedition today to the South American hinterland.

Three rescue parties already penetrated the interior in the hunt for the man who disappeared in a 1927 flight from Atlanta to Rio de Janeiro and for whom hope was only recently revived. He was not expected to report for at least a month.

Dispatches from Cristobal, Canal zone, said the new expedition, from the Fort St. Paul's of the American Legion, sailed yesterday for Trinidad and Paramaribo, Dutch Guiana, vowing not to return until the Redfern mystery was solved.

The leaders of the expedition were reported to be James Ryan, veteran explorer, and Ralph Hamander of the Post.

Three husband, swamps and mountain ranges separated the searchers from the Indian village where it is argued white men, believed by some to be Redfern, was reported to be living among the Indians. Ryan said an Indian to be held captive.

HOME FLEET IS BADLY DEPLETED

Majority of Ships From British Steam Towards Gibraltar

(By Charles P. Nutter, Associated Press Staff Writer)

London, Jan. 14 (AP)—Fresh home fleet ships steamed south today, leaving the Mediterranean and British Isles without the protection of the heavy guns of Britain's fleas, the capital ships.

The aircraft carrier Furious with its flight of fighting planes and its attendant destroyer Sturdy, a few submarines and miscellaneous craft comprised temporarily the fleet entrusted with British home defense.

This almost unprecedented situation, Britain's navy said, disposed the far-reaching effects three and half months of Mussolini's Ethiopian hostilities and resulting European tension have had on the British defense plans.

The other home fleet vessels either are in the Mediterranean or the Mediterranean. When H.M.S. Nelson, Rodney, Hood and Repulse, which have been recalled, arrive in a few days the Furious and Sturdy will join the "spring" cruise.

The admiralty announced the home fleet ships would reach Gibraltar by Thursday, Malta by Saturday and Alexandria by Tuesday, a few days before the Italian troopships are due to arrive with the Italian army of invasion.

The ships will remain at Gibraltar until they can safely pass Italian navy patrols and return to their home ports. The admiralty announced it is impossible for him to answer questions as to the number of ships in the fleet, "since movements are already underway in the Mediterranean, having begun a week ago from Brest."

Disbarment Escaped but Professor Reprimanded by Supreme Court

Washington, Jan. 14 (CP)—The blanket disbarment of the entire law school disbarment in the supreme court bar, but limiting "reprimanded" him.

Ralph J. Baker, Harvard University professor and member of the school faculty, escaped the severest wrath of the highest court Dec. 8. He was ordered to show cause why he should not be disbarred for "unbecoming conduct," failure to cash a $13.45 cheque mailed him by the Supreme Court clerk and ignoring four letters sent to trace the cheque.

The cheque was part of a fee for his appearing before the high court in behalf of workers were unable to close their records in the case until it was cashed.

Baker placed the cheque among his "voluminous papers" and forgot it. When disabled to admit he had lost it and each time a letter arrived he would scramble through his papers and finally forgot to look for it again.

When the disbarment order was issued the professor halted all activities, searched for four hours and found the missing cheque in an extra volume where he had placed it as a "bookmark."

He wrote an apology and the high court accepted it yesterday, dropping the disbarment proceedings but reprimanding him.

2 YEAR TERM FOR BROKER'S CLERK

Pleaded Guilty to Getting $15,00 by Fraud From Arthur Cutten

Toronto, Jan. 14 (CP)—William Jones, 26-year-old broker's clerk, who used without authority the names of A. W. Cutten, Canadian-born Chicago grain trader, K. J. and C. J. Cutten of Toronto today at his dream of financial empire topple as he was sentenced to Ontario Reformatory following a plea of guilty to 30 charges of fraud and uttering and to obtaining $14,943.28 credit by fraud.

Jones, a faultlessly dressed redhead, almost collapsed in the prisoner's box as he heard Magistrate Browne sentence him to two years less one day determination and two years less one day indeterminate after a frank confession.

Evidence showed he used the names of the Cuttens in his grain and stock trading activities which were brought to an end by loss of some $15,000 suffered in a purchase of 400,000 bushels of wheat in 1935.

The loss resulted in investigations by his firm, Harley, Eastman, Plaher and McDonagh.

Counsel for the firm came to employ Jones, Mr. Geo. R. Harley said, "He was introduced to us as a close friend of A. W. Cutten. We considered an account for Cutten under a power of attorney he had given him authorization from Mr. Cutten was in fact. We later discovered it was not. For some months, while alleged to be dealing on behalf of Mr. Cutten, he was in trouble. He would go to the cashier, have cheques for large amounts drawn to Mr. Cutten and take them away. Later we found out that he forged Cutten's name to these last cheques."

Discovery came, said Harley, when Jones purchased 400,000 bushels of wheat alleged to be for A. W. Cutten of Chicago and lost on it. The firm had no trade with Cutten but was dealing to nearly $15,000. Investigations by Mess. Harley said that K. J. Cutten was liable for 30,000 bushels of the 400,000 and A. W. Cutten for none.

In a signed confession made in writing at Toronto police headquarters Monday, Jones said he acted entirely without the knowledge of Arthur Cutten. He told of opening an account in a downtown bank in the name of C. J. Cutten and forging the name to cheques paid to him by the firm for which they were cashed or deposited.

Jones admitted forging the name of R. J. Cutten to other cheques. He told police he had forged letters to obtain credit that would otherwise not have been granted.

NUMEROUS CALLS DISRUPTS SERVICE

Belleville was cold conscious last evening, as chilly winds blew and the temperature dropped down to below zero levels, and the mark was reached in the middle of the evening was to find out what hot work an low zero it was.

Many were in mind, however. Almost disrupted routine work at Belleville Hospital was the telephones ringing — long, sustained rings, every few fifty calls were received from citizens with the single query in mind, "How cold is it?" The hospital switchboard operator was unable to answer the calls, as she was busy with the ordinary work.

Many were in mind giving the people temperatures, even if it is an extra service on our part. But we do not think we will repeat it after o'clock. After that time we have to close down on at the part that it is impossible for him to answer phone calls; it disrupts the whole plant," stated Manager E. T. Aunby today. "After this we will have to refuse this service at night."

HABEAS CORPUS WRIT IS SOUGHT FOR HAUPTMANN

Effort Made to Stave Off Execution of Bronx Carpenter

GOVERNOR SILENT

Brief Distributed by Citizens in Behalf of Man

Trenton, N.J., Jan. 14 (AP) — Bruno Richard Hauptmann's attorneys will move in federal court today for a writ of Habeas Corpus in an effort to stave off the execution of the Bronx carpenter Friday night.

This was learned from a source close to the defence.

The action—there are now five of them since the addition of two Washington lawyers—confirmed for several hours last night and drafted a petition to be presented to a district court judge this afternoon.

Governor Harold G. Hoffman, after a two-day absence from the city, returned today for the opening of the 1936 legislature and withheld all information as to possible developments in the case.

Governor Is Silent

The tense silence prevailing in the office of Governor Hauptmann since he lost his clemency appeal pressed today a delay, perhaps until Thursday, in the decision of Governor Harold G. Hoffman's decision on a reprieve.

The basis of this belief was that Governor Hoffman, if he is considering a reprieve, might wish withholding his decision in the hope he could announce it an hour—4 p.m. Friday night—some development might occur to change the status of the case.

RUDYARD KIPLING IS LITTLE BETTER

Perforated Stomach Ulcer Cause of Emergent Operation

By BURDETTE JOHNS

London, Jan. 14 (CP)—Rudyard Kipling passed a fairly satisfactory condition today, showing slight improvement after an emergency operation and an anxious night during which his wife remained at his bedside.

The Middlesex Hospital announced at 10.15 a.m. (5.15 a.m. E.S.T.) today:

"Kipling has had a restful night. His condition slightly improved and is as satisfactory as can be expected under the circumstances."

The operation he underwent, it was learned, was performed for a perforated stomach ulcer.

A succession of bulletins issued by the surgeon attending him while in London on the eve of a trip to the French Riviera, would be rallied well after the operation but he was not yet out of danger.

Sir Buckston Browne, surgeon who telephoned the hospital two hours after the operation to inquire about Mr's condition, announced it had become "fairly satisfactory".

'SCOTCH NIGHT' AT T'S MEN'S CLUB

Tuesday night was the occasion of the local T's Men's Club at their weekly meeting held in the Y.M.C.A. when a "Scotch Night" was staged. Wilbur Rev. Dr. Andrew Connell, a native of Scotland, was the guest speaker and many others were present and every one enjoyed the programme which was in charge of Bro. L. Bender, organist at Bridge St. United Church, assisted by Bro. Jack Bonnell at the piano. Bro. Wilbur Wilson, also of the Bridge St. Church, was in charge of singing. During the evening the club voted to enter a hockey team in the new Industrial Hockey League as the club's entry in that league. It will be supported by city players solely. Every player must be a T's Man. A meeting will be devoted to "Boy's Work" at which time the club will decide if it can finance a group of "one" and the plan a season of activity for them.

The original T.T. Men's play "A Parade Goes West" written by Geo. M. Cohan, is being rehearsed regularly under the tuition of Mike J. Tutte and will be presented on Friday night, President Marshall announced.

RELIEF FAIRLY WELL BALANCED

Belleville is better off in the matter of caring for her own relief recipients than many municipalities of other municipalities are for, caring for their dependents, it is said, if it was revealed at the local Central Relief office today. As the present time this office is responsible for thirtee or four lodgments who have moved from here to larger centres. On the other hand seven or eight other municipalities are being billed for the care of indigents, who have moved to Belleville and settled here. The period of care is for one year.

WORKMEN CHIP CHANNELS AT CURB

In order to forestall the possibility of ships striking or fouling any thing after the present cold snap, workmen employed by the local dredging works were again engaged today in shipping channels through the ice, and in the north channel through the downtown section of the city today. Twenty men were called from the relief lists were being given work on the job.

CAPACITY OF COUNTY HOME IS TAXED

With registration the highest on record, at the present time the Hastings County goal is housing a total of 94 prisoners, a number existing at the jail are over-taxed in cells built to accommodate a number of incorrigibles. It is expected that within the next month or two ten men will be sent from the County Goal to Kingston Penitentiary, when they will commence their long term sentences.

Upsiline For Licences Set For January 15

After tomorrow, January 15, it will be useless to drive a car or truck with 1935 licence plates. Orders to police in the province have been issued that the Province are to "crack down" on any lately plates that may be found among the motor cars and trucks on the highways. This is about equal to that of the old saying, "Don't put off until tomorrow what you can do today." The number of new plates issued this year will be about equal to that of the old plates, it is reported. There has been no actual rush at the office of R. S. Vermilyea, local issuer of licences, although the office has been taken an active part in the life of this community.

Best Wishes Extended To Mayor And Mrs. Hill

Real wishes and hopes for many years of continued happiness and success are being received this week by Mayor and Mrs. Harry Hill on the occasion of their thirty-eighth wedding anniversary which was observed on Sunday. It was a most unusual incident performed at the home of Mayor Hill's sons, Mr. Simmons in Napanee, thirty-eight years ago, that the ceremony was performed by Rev. Melrose to Mr. Harry Hill. Belleville's mayor of 1935 was then the bone of Mr. and Mrs. Hill, both of whom have taken an active part in the life of this community.

FOURTH OFFENCE BRINGS JAIL TERM

Bernard Boomhower Pleads Guilty to Theft of Radiators

Bernard Boomhower, 17, who gave his home address at 343 Pinnacle Street, was sentenced to serve not less than three months nor more than two years one day in the Ontario Reformatory after he had entered a plea of guilty in today's local police court, held before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., when he faced a charge of the theft of six automobile radiators.

Boomhower was arrested yesterday, by Plainclothes Officer Fred Hand and charged with the theft of the radiators, alleged to have been stolen from the garage of A. Safe Station Street junk dealer. The theft was reported to the authorities yesterday and upon investigation by Constable Izard it was found that a person had gained entrance to the safe warehouse on Station Street by means of crawling under the foundation and then forcing the main part of the building by means of a hole in the floor.

The radiators were removed to the rear of the building by the same route. The entrance had been gained through a hole in the floor and the officer to another junk dealer, a place of business, where the stolen radiators were found. They had been sold by Boomhower for $2.50 each. Boomhower is a young youth and resulted in a signed statement given to Officer Izard yesterday.

Upon being arraigned in court today Boomhower pleaded guilty as charged. Crown Attorney H. J. Donnan, K.C., informed the court, that it was the accused youth's fourth offence for theft which led to the reformatory sentence being handed down.

Obituary

LATE FREDERICK S. ALLEN

Monday afternoon the funeral of Frederick Sutton Allen took place from his late residence, 198 William Street. The service in the house was conducted by Mr. A. E. Rainey of Toronto, assisted by the Rev. W. D. Reid of this city. The service at the Belleville cemetery was conducted by Mr. Blakley.

The pall bearers were Messrs. J. B. Ives, S. Graham, Mark Sprague, Fred G. Chamberlain, C. B. Spalding and Harry Bryant.

MRS. W. R. CARMICHAEL (Toronto)

Old friends in Belleville of Mrs. W. R. Carmichael will regret to learn of her death which occurred in Toronto on Friday, 1934, after a lengthy illness.

Before her late Mrs. Carmichael was the widow of W. R. Carmichael, who for many years conducted a business here. Mrs. Carmichael was prominent in the church and social life of this city during her residence here, the late Mr. and Mrs. Carmichael were actively associated with Bridge Street Methodist church thirty years ago the family went to live in Toronto.

The late Mrs. Carmichael's maiden name was Miss Henrietta Angelina Rose, and she was born in Sidney Township, her parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. John Rose who were prominent pioneer residents of the township. Mrs. Carmichael was a woman of fine personality and character and by many friends she was much highly esteemed.

Surviving to mourn her passing are two sons, Mr. Alex W. Carmichael and Mr. R. M. Carmichael both of Belleville; three daughters, Mrs. E. C. McEmesie of New York City; Mrs. J. J. Kelly of Toronto, and Miss Edna C. Carmichael of New York City.

The funeral will take place at Toronto tomorrow (Wednesday) morning.

Interment will be made in Prospect cemetery.

Minister of Health Pleased With Support

Tentative proposals by officials of the local Victorian Order of Nurses were made at a recent meeting that tuberculosis clinic and sanitarium work established in this immediate section preferably in the Belleville district which would be under the supervision and care of the Order, have received neither official blessing nor comment by the Provincial Department of Health.

Following notification that the scheme was under consideration, Dr. J. A. Faulkner, Ontario Minister of Health, in a letter communication addressed to the local Board stated at the annual meeting that evening pointed out that the matter was one, that had received due consideration by the department for the past many months. "We are pleased to know, however, that we have the moral support of your body behind it," stated Dr. Faulkner.

It was hoped that grants from the government, private donations, county and township grants and pay from private individuals would make the suggested sanitarium a paying proposition.

YOUNG PAINTER IS KNOWN HERE

Carl Schaefer Called One of Leading Artists of Canada

In the exhibition of paintings of the Canadian Group of Painters now on view at the Art Gallery of Toronto is Sunshine Harvest by Carl Schaefer, described as one of the outstanding works in the exhibition. A photograph of this painting appeared in the Toronto Globe on Jan 4th. The artist is a nephew of Mrs. William Michael, of 36 Queen Street.

The Canadian Group of Painters was first organized as the Eastern Group of Seven. Its membership now numbers fifteen.

Concerning the work of Mr. Schaefer, Mr. Charlotte McIntosh, art editor of the Toronto Saturday Night wrote in a recent issue:

"Carl Schaefer, whose picture is one of the foremost of our younger painters, has contributed three to the show, but it is all the better for concentration have at length imposed upon his native sensibility and his native impetuosity a sense of paint, a coherence and a form. Not that, although it is done one must permit him to slop over into beauty. Still his contribution to the show is Schaefer also has a strong vein of mildly satirical humour—I would ask you to look at Orchard. The picture of work he has here—oil and water colour—is full of interesting things—how him now master of himself and his medium. He is going to be very important."

Wonderful Progress Shown by V.O.N. in Annual Statement

Mrs. Thomas Holland Unanimous Choice as President

TREASURER RESIGNS

With the exception of Joseph Imlah, who asked that his resignation be accepted after four years as treasurer, the entire slate of officers for 1936 of the local branch of the Victorian Order of Nurses will again head that organization for 1936, it was unanimously voted at a short meeting of the Order held last evening. The office of president will be filled by Mrs. R. James for the coming term.

The following is the executive of the Order for 1936: President, His Worship Mayor Hill; Hon. Vice-Presidents, Mrs. Mayor, O. O. Tier; Vice-pres. Mrs. Thos. Holland; Past Pres. Mrs. Mercier; 1st Vice Pres., Mrs. D. Rankin and Vice Pres., Mrs. P. R. Foley; Secretary, Miss Bernice Edwards; Treasurer, R. James; Finance Committee, Mr. E. James; Mrs. McGregor, Mrs. Marcell and Dr. Jack Marshall; Well Baby and Nursing Committee, Mrs. F. B. Thompkins, Mrs. Thompkins, Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Roblin, Mrs. Tilley, Mrs. Hazelwood, Mrs. Hargraves and Mrs. Kelly; Supplies, Mrs. Robin, Mrs. Lent, Mrs. Woodley, Miss McMoodon and Mrs. Brown; Hospitality, Mrs. Warbinek, Mrs. Tilley, Miss Arbuckle and Mrs. Boyd.

Mayor Praises Order

At the opening of the meeting, Mayor Harry Hill, an interested visitor, following his introduction by Mrs. Thompkins, thanked Mrs. Thos. Holland, paid tribute to the splendid work that the women are doing and spoke with the promise of as much for 1936.

"The V.O.N.", pointed out Mayor Hill, "is doing a real work in this city and deserves all the support that Belleville can give it. We in this district have been aware of the good that has been done in the past year and at the present I can only state that during the coming year we will be happy to give all the assistance possible."

In her welcome to members present Mrs. Holland took the occasion to thank heartily all officers and members who had assisted her during the past year, stating she declared had been one of the most successful City council and various service organizations and clubs have also contributed generously during that period in helping the Order carry on through their splendid donations and other worthy ways. The Elwanians were specifically referred to by Mrs. Holland for the help made possible the new car for the nurses, purchased through the assistance of the Elwanians and the Lions Club.

In the year's report submitted by Miss Arbuckle, secretary, it was revealed, that aid had been received from widely varying sources during the past year. Even school children had contributed to the Victorian Order through funds raised by Hallowe'en parties, tournaments, a garden party and other methods had been used by officers of the V. O. N. to raise the necessary funds for the past year. Miss Arbuckle was also able to report that 1,000 visits during the past year, which were given wholeheartedly and unstintingly by the nurses of the Order.

Finances Satisfactory

In submitting his report, Treasurer Joseph Imlah revealed that finances of the Order on the basis of whole in eminently satisfactory condition. During the past year the purchase of a new car resulted in considerable expenditure, but generous donations and the efforts of officers and members in raising funds enabled this item to be met.

A vote of thanks for the splendid work performed by Treasurer Imlah upon his retirement this year was voted by Dr. Ruston who referred to Mr. Imlah's splendid work years as treasurer, during which time considerable time and energy had been expended upon the job. Mrs. Holland also paid tribute to Mr. Reg Moncrieff and acknowledged in suitable manner by members present.

In the report of Nurse Miss Soulter for the year it was revealed that a total of 5,900 visits had been made by the nurses to 680 patients. This was an increase of 1,037 visits over the year before and Miss Soulter emphasized in the fact that the work of the V.O.N. was becoming much better known in Belleville. Increased attendance at the Well Baby Clinics during the year was also noted. Besides said members, a vote of thanks for the work that has been carried on by Miss Soulter during the past year was moved and by Mr. Jos. Imlah and seconded by Mrs. F. B. Foley.

Thanked For Co-operation

In accepting the office of president for the second term, Mrs. Thos. Holland thanked members for the support that had been given during the past term and expressed the hope that the co-operation and help would be given during the coming year. "Without that assistance I would have been unable to carry on, but every one of the members and officers have done splendidly. It has been one of the best Boards we have had in some time, and during the coming year we can only hope that the success we have had during the past term will be duplicated this coming year" added Mrs. Holland.

Prior to Mrs. Holland, upon motion of Past President Reg. Moncrief, seconded by Mr. F. D. Hunter and carried by vote of members a motion, that Nurse Miss Webster be given an increase in her remuneration in salary was passed.

During the coming year it was intimated, that a drive would be made locally for new members for the Order and that Victorian Order Nurses' small fee would be asked from each individual who is benefited by belonging to the organization.

POLICE COURT

A seasoned transient, who gave his name as Thomas Evans, 48 and with no home address, appeared before His Worship Mayor Hill, K.C., today and pleaded guilty to a charge of theft. After hearing the evidence submitted, His Worship gave the accused two months in the common jail.

"This man is only travelling and doing odd jobs in the country and causing himself to be a nuisance. He wants to stay in jail during the winter weather, I understand," commented His Worship when he passed sentence of the sentence.

Ralph Clapper, of this city appeared in the court charged with the theft of a quantity of coal from the premises of Mrs. Ellen Bonter. The accused man pleaded guilty and was remanded for sentence. Today Clapper being allowed to return to his home to look after his son, as his assistance he would be present Friday morning.

Pleading guilty to the charge, Clapper stated "I was only trying to get a little coal to cook what I ate," he said holding his hands behind his back to receive a parcel about one foot square.

"I wouldn't have taken even that much coal but I had been two days without wood in the house," he further explained.

"I understand that this man was acting as a lookout," Crown Attorney H. J. Donnan, K.C., which led the court to ask Clapper what he had to say.

Clapper complained he had been in jail and thought he would like to remain at home. Chief Kidd assured the court that Clapper's statement was true in that respect and he was allowed his freedom on his own verbal bail by the Chief.

A local motorist contributed one dollar to the court funds following a plea of guilty when charged with driving his car through the city streets with one of his lights dimmed, it is alleged.

Y's Men Club Prepare For Annual Play

One of the events of the social season which is always looked for with pleasure is the annual presentation of a play by the Y's Men of Belleville. Rehearsals have been in progress for some time now under direction of Miss Jessie Tutte for this year's offering which is a more ambitious play than ever before being no less than George M. Cohan's big Broadway success "A Prince There Was". This play deals with the activities of a young millionaire who leaves home incognito to look for the best in life through the death of his wife and finds it in a small settlement in various ways. He finds a Princess in a shabby dress and there is an engagement combatting forces bent upon making trouble for the adorned Princess. The Cohan comedy touch sprinkles plenty of laughs in the play and the dramatic situations is said to be intense. Under the direction of Miss Tutte the production is bound to provide excellent entertainment. This is one of the means taken by the Y's Men's Club to raise money for Boy's Work which is the chief concern of the club.

The Kinsmen Club held their first meeting of the New Year last evening with Carl Sills, the newly elected President, in the chair. Splendid entertainment was provided by Dr. Stobie who gave an excellent address which certainly was much appreciated. President Carl Sills referred to the annual play being produced in three weeks' time and stated the members to assist as much as possible. It is hoped that strenuous practice would start Tuesday night under the direction of Mr. George Zarfas.

Sir John Aird, President, and Mr. S. H. Logan Address Annual Meeting of THE CANADIAN BANK OF COMMERCE

FOUNDATION OF BETTER ECONOMIC LIFE

Farm Purchasing Power Rose . . . Mining Made New Record . . . Lumber Production Greatest Since 1929 . . . New Print Reached Record Level

Mr. S. H. Logan, General Manager, in discussing the banking system and function of money, said in part:

The Canadian banks have always been conservative institutions in their lending rates but have always been ready and able to see these rates still further.

Interest Rates to Bank

As I have stated on several previous occasions, loan rates in bank lending are largely governed by the cost to the bank of the money which they lend. A careful computation of the interest amount paid on call for 5,000 employees, taxes, rentals, postage, telegraph and telephone, light, stationery and other outlays, plus an allowance for losses, which are unavoidable in banking, shows that our aggregate cost is over 1% of total deposits. When we add to these costs the sum paid in interest to depositors, money we administer costs in appreciably 4%.

Purchasing Power.

We have become so accustomed in this modern world to handling money for all our purchases that it is easy to fail to realize that money is the true and only source of purchasing power and that when the demand for it decrease in a shortage in or a maldistribution of the money supply. That is a fundamental error, for it remains true to-day as in 1932 as it was in the days of barter that the goods or services which a man has to offer are the real source of his purchasing power and the extent of his purchasing power is measured solely by the demand for his goods or services of others which he can obtain in exchange for his own.

The relation of demand to supply governs the money prices which buyers willingly pay sellers to accept. These prices express the money values of the various goods and services offered.

A surplus or deficiency in the supply of money may affect commodity prices, but it does not necessarily follow that there will be corresponding changes in the purchasing power of whole groups of commodities. Nor will any change in the money supply be felt across the board. Just as in war, crop failures, disproportionate expansion of industrial or commercial enterprise based upon long term borrowing, excessive taxation, restricting markets, and sudden changes in tastes, habits and fashions.

"Credit Money."

In Canada substantially the greater part of the bank-money in existence consists of the obligations of the chartered banks which are represented by the amounts of their notes in circulation and of the total deposits on their books. These bank-money obligations are not legal tender but are acknowledgments of debt given by the banks to the holders of their promise to pay that debt in legal tender whenever called upon by owner of an obligation asking that this be done. Bank money like legal tender—rests upon and is fully covered by the assets owned by the various banks. It will thus be seen that the creation-of-bank-money theory is founded on a complete misconception of fact.

Bank-money is created by every purchase which a chartered bank makes in its own notes and every deposit entered on its books whether made over the counter or credited by the bank to someone who has been granted a loan or has sold securities to the bank. Conversely bank-money is extinguished when a bank redeems any of its own obligations in legal tender, when it sells any of its security holdings for bank-money and when bank money is used by a borrower as payment on his loan.

I would impress upon you that the creation of bank-money is totally different thing from the creation of wealth. The bank-money received by a borrower when granted a loan does not increase his wealth by one dollar for it is fully offset by the debt he has incurred to the bank. He does, however, enable him to carry on his business and thus to contribute to the creation of new wealth by his enterprise and activity.

Basis of Credit.

It is against a pledge of his credit that a man applies for a bank loan and the banker grants the loan only if he satisfies him that borrower's credit to be adequate, and if he believes the borrower's character and integrity are such that he will not attempt to evade the debt.

A bank loan, therefore, is in essence an exchange of the borrower's credit, which is effective only where he is well known, for the credit of the bank in the form of bank-money, which is known and accepted everywhere.

I would call your attention particularly to the fact that bank-money obligations of the chartered banks do not maintain the value at which they are accepted per, do they circulate as readily as legal tender, by the authority of any specific statute or Government action. Their full face value and circulate freely solely as the result of the firm belief of the public, based upon long experience that their banks are honestly and efficiently administered and that the liquid assets held by them exceed their liabilities by a margin sufficient to ensure that bank obligations can be honored immediately on presentation. The record of the Canadian banks in this Confederation for redeeming their promises to pay in full has been so satisfactory that bank-money in this country is unquestioningly accepted as readily as legal tender.

Public Confidence is the Base.

May I repeat that the power to create bank money rests entirely on the confidence of the public generally that the credit of bank-money can be forced into circulation only to those entitled for a moment without the willing consent and co-operation of such as those entitled to receive it at present.

Bank's First Duty to Depositors.

I would emphasize a fact which cannot be stated too often: the first responsibility of any bank is to keep the deposits entrusted to it safe and available for withdrawal by their owners. All its other activities, including that of creating money by the enlargement of total primary obligations, must be subordinated to this primary duty. Any bank which departs from this practice is a much more unsatisfactory institution than a disregard that principle and practice.

Farm Loans Refused Than Loans Accepted at a Loss.

Some say the banks have delayed the return of prosperity by refusing loans which would have proven possessed of credit which warranted the accommodation. These critics claim that banks are not prepared to take losses. While I admit that there is the difficult task of estimating the credit standing of a client, bankers—who are no more than human beings—have constantly and flatly deny the general truth of these charges for I am convinced that the number of cases where any legitimate claim for a loan has been refused is far exceeded by the number of those where loans have been made to the borrower's loss.

The banker has at all times a strong inducement—that of increased income—to keep his investments at the lowest point and his loans at the highest point commensurate with the safety of his depositors. That inducement is at present doubly powerful for he has a larger proportion of his funds in liquid investments—chiefly Government obligations—than ever before, while the average return on such investments is now lower than at any time in the history of Canada.

Common Sense View of Bank Loans.

There are certain critics who, observing that total deposits in Canada during 1929 when loans were active were about 200 million dollars higher than at present, attribute the difference to this cause. They, therefore, argue that the Bank of Canada since 200 million dollars in new bank money would have proved to be the lost which has taken place in Canadian buying power. This argument, of fact they are overlooked is that retail prices, as measured by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, are almost and fourth lower now than they were years ago and the fall in wholesale prices is even greater. The total volume of current 200 million dollars less than our present high level of prices. It will to-day the same quantity of goods that were sold in 1929 but at full amount then on deposit. It is not money that people lack the money to buy but rather the will, to use it.

A System Based on Long Experience.

May I say in conclusion that our system of banking is not based on an intricate machine built up suddenly but on principles which many generations and adjusted to meet the ever changing economic circumstances. Whatever its faults—and that it has faults is one to be always ready to admit—the past one hundred years financed and facilitated an increasing volume of production and trade which is without complete parallel as the result that the general standard of living has shown a great advance.

I would ask you to bear these facts in mind when you study suggested monetary experiments, whose advocates promise that their adoption will mean a step toward the millennium. Before we discard the machinery which has served us in the past let us at least be sure that we are not grasping at a shadow and losing the substance.

Sir John Aird, the President, said in part:

Entering the fourth year of the business revival, I think we get a fair prospect of a broader and more regular advance than has been enjoyed for some time.

Improvement in Heavy Trades.

The first half of 1935 was characterized by an irregularity in Canadian business, although there was a slight upward trend. From July, however, there was a more definite quickening in by several industries that had remained relatively inactive in the preceding years. Thus, business improvement was extended to the so-called heavy trades, including construction, which collectively take large in Canadian economy and in normal times employ a large number of men. From the point of view of employment conditions alone we may regard the better record of these industries as one of the most hopeful signs of this year, for it was mainly in this field that employment contracted in the 1929-32 season in which a downturn is first experienced. It is this field upon which we must depend for the largest measure of lifting of these out of work, and it is highly encouraging to find that improvement in this field continues this year.

Farm Purchasing Power.

Of equal importance was the improvement in farm purchasing power during 1935 which is the third successive year, notwithstanding the disastrous crop conditions in parts of the Prairie Provinces. In numerous sections of the West, however, the area of crop failure was considerably smaller than in 1934, thus providing ground for decided betterment in farm purchasing power, however, and there is every reason for seeing in this year to a much more satisfactory level.

Mixed Farming.

Although, as is well known, we have long been a country built upon beyond our powers of reclamation by the sale of agricultural markets, for agricultural products, we have not reduced our cultivated land area to any appreciable extent since 1929, but have diverted more of its output to farming, which has called for an increase in agricultural practice. While change is particularly noticeable in the Prairie Provinces, where there has been a large increase in live stock holdings, coupled with a strong growth in dairying, despite reducing droughts. Accordingly, these Provinces stand to gain the most from the further extension of the American market for Canadian live stock resulting from the new American-Canadian trade treaty.

Mining and Forestry.

Widespread benefits have been derived from a gold production which has risen in value from less than 40 million dollars in 1929 to over 100 million dollars in 1935, exceeding the output I forecasted a few years ago. But mining in all its branches has been a great factor in pushing the margin of industrial recovery ward. It has attracted thousands of pioneers to our shores and during the past few years has been the bright spot in the new Dominion activity. Last year it had another record output valued at 85 million dollars, which represents only a small fraction of the mineral wealth in sight, despite heavy taxation, it discovered throughout the entire Dominion; and it furnished over a third of the tonnage carried by the Canadian railways.

Under market conditions almost unexampled in dependable, our lumber and pulp and paper mills during the past twelvemonth increased their production, in the case of lumber by about 20 per cent over 1934 to the highest point since 1929, and in respect of newsprint by 6 per cent. to a record level.

A Broader National Economy.

The gold mining industry has been instrumental in raising our total output to the highest since 1930, and in a quantitative sense to over 70 per cent. of normal. Apart from the splendid production record of our mines, they have a highly important to note that with a remarkable development in the metallurgical and marketing practices of the industry the value of its larger exports flowed in the form of fabricated metals to the country contributed a very significant quantities in 1935, as specially as to the value of raw materials which thirteen corresponding years ago went to Europe. Both the lumber and newsprint industries also developed more diversified markets, for last year lumber was sold in impressive volume in thirty-five countries in comparison with twenty-six in 1929, while nearly 20 per cent. of our newsprint was exported overseas, against about 13 per cent. six years ago. We have, therefore, a higher quality in some of our major exportable products and are no longer dependent upon one or a few markets for the bulk of them, and consequently are less subject to price dictation.

Conditions Abroad.

American industry has shown exceptional adaptability to the changed conditions imposed upon it by the depression and by statutory regulations of a far reaching character. The present business upturn is not due to the duration of the only comparatively healthy movement in which we drew your attention a year ago, but is the most prolonged since 1928. It is a momentum of this general business revival which may carry the United States to higher ground, notwithstanding the uncertainties induced by the Government's presidential election campaign. In fact, the most urgent problem is not whether the process of American recovery will be hastened but whether unhealthy stimulus through unwise use of the redundant capital and credit reserves which now exist can be avoided.

Britain True to Principles.

Surrounded by political and economic experiments of every type, Great Britain has been the foremost champion of the true principles of democracy, of sound economic practices and of the rights of the individual as the privileged people. Thus we have witnessed during the past year probably the most heartfelt demonstration of loyalty ever tendered the throne by a people at the reigning head of a nation, while public opinion rejected every Utopian devices for social reform and massed its great political strength in favour of peace—all these impressive developments occurring in the midst of world conditions which, though of changing character, remain gravely unsettled, with no sound foundation than that of any other country.

In Continental Europe a large part of the industrial machine operates under the stimulus of re-armament programmes and is therefore dangerously dependent upon destructive elements. Notwithstanding the unsettled political tension and of financial strain there are some encouraging signs of a crop recuperation, notably, good harvests over most of Asia are in prospect and a semblance of stability in French finance.

A lull in Japanese industry during 1935 is now giving way to renewed advance in the autumn, but the pace of its progress seems definitely to have slowed.

State Intervention In Business.

The present era is in striking contrast with that of pre-war years, when there was a widespread belief that governments could best promote a sound economy by keeping the sanctity of human life and property, and by non-interference with private enterprises. A c o m paratively peaceful and prosperous year, accompanied by a rising standard of living, not only saw the rise to power of the principle of state intervention of power machinery, but also became a smooth-working financial system had been built up through which trade was based upon quite stable exchange rates. Price levels in the great countries were kept closely related and capital for productive purposes flowed freely across frontiers.

Aftermath of the War.

In previous addresses I reminded you that the economic dislocations of the Great War and its aftermath were primarily responsible for the onset of the depression and that the resulting disequilibrium in domestic and international trade called for wise and courageous action on the part of governments, no less than by individuals. You are aware of the various expedients, under governmental strategy, which have been undertaken at protective measures, ranging from a high tariff to the most restrictive forms of price fixing, commodity destruction, monetary manipulation and elaborate programmes of mass-production and relief. As a result of these policies there is now a rigidity in the economic system which might easily bring about a permanent subnormal condition in the trade of nations of the world. The lesson from this would seem to be that natural forces should now be allowed free play if the full power of the energies of its former economic flexibility. So far governments might well decide to avoid further obstructive intervention in the spheres of economic activity, and thus permit business enterprise to adjust production, prices and trading activities nearer to the competitive basis which is of the essence of their communities.

Canada's Credit Maintained.

It is most gratifying to be able to record a year of progress, of loan and trying period of the depression from which Canada is now emerging, the Dominion and Provincial Governments and all sections of public Canada have maintained their credit unimpaired by the assignment of all obligations to the holders of its bonds, whether payable in Canadian or external currencies. Credit is a most valuable thing and for that reason its importance is not adequately realized by many.

Canada Requires Increased Capital.

Its firm maintenance, however, is vital to all progressive communities and to none more than to Canada, where capital will be increasingly required for the development of our resources and the financing of our Governments. Canada is still in the early stage of her potential development and the full development of capital is indispensable. Only the most scrupulous maintenance of our credit will ensure the continued availability of that capital as required.

Need for financial fastness, in addition of a million of suitable amount of a good credit stands as the test of Canadian credit. Large capital expenditures necessary to support the present over-expanded transportation system would also go far to solve our relief problem, while developing new lines of natural resources have some people to support than before the great War, with new prospective ca p a b l e and productive facilities and the question may well be asked how the Dominion is expending its money. It was the Statesman who said that the unemployed—In sense by the militarizing them—would not increase humanity's great in establishing the excess population in the five great settlement lands of the world, namely, Canada, Australia, Africa, South America and Siberia.

Public Finance.

For many years this Bank has urged the adoption of legislative l a t i v e and administrative measures for the rehabilitation of our numerous governmental bodies. These ranged from legislation to bring some of our Provinces and reduction in the number of municipalities to economy in expenditures, in order to bring about a balance between and to taxation reform.

The Bank is generally agreed that continuous borrowing to cover deficits and to maintain the public works on the present scale cannot go on indefinitely. Even with small annual but rigid public economy and with the utmost efficiency. Intensive study should be given to the problem of establishing a system of more equitable basis of taxation. In this connection the millions of dollars provide turnover tax as more likely than any other to yield the type to meet the need of a balanced Dominion revenue.

Confidence the Key to Recovery.

In conclusion, I should like to stress the fact that the key to recovery for which the world is hoping for tangible intent is confidence is indispensable. As long as there exists uncertainty as to the future of vital matters as world peace, stabilization of currencies, trade relations, the attitude of Governments to business and finance and good faith as to public contractual obligations, permanent improvement in world conditions is impossible. Without that confidence there will be no real revival of trade and industry, no abundance the most powerful influence in business, and instead all re-lations between man and man and of nation with nation, both domestic and international, economic conditions must remain unsatisfactory and unstable. With it all things can be accomplished.

COUNTY ELECTIONS

Bancroft—Nov. 4 In years has the Village of Bancroft experienced a contested municipal contest as this season's. One of the heaviest votes cast in years was recorded, over four hundred voters registering at the polling booth. The following were the candidates and the vote cast in their favor:

For Reeve—Dr. S. S. Lumb 327; E. L. Reid 133.

By the largest majority given any man for the past twenty years, Dr. S. S. McWhirter defeated Mr. Henry Haryett for the Reeveship in Carlow township by 21 of a majority.

In a three-cornered fight for the Reeveship, Mr. D. Mawson was elected reeve of the township of Limerick, on Monday, with a majority of two votes. Mr. Mawson's opponents, R. C. Brett and Joseph M. Lynch.

Scarcely half the electors of the municipality of Hominda and Monteagle took the trouble to go to the polls on Monday to elect a Reeve for the year. Result of the ballot is as follows:

Reeve—J. Anderson 309; W. C. Summers 178. Majority for Anderson 93.

CITY LEADERS ARE ENTERTAINED AT ALBERT COLLEGE

Mayor Hill, Aldermen And Rotarians Dine Together at Albert

Albert College, the new, which standeth upon a hill, overlooking the broad Highway which connects the provinces of Ontario and Quebec—also the historic waters of the Bay of Quinte and the ancient harbor of Kingston—was the scene of a unique gathering on Monday evening when the Mayor and Aldermen of the City of Belleville and the County of Prince Edward—held a distinguished gathering Monday at noon when the Principal, Rev. Bert Howard and the principal Emeritus Rev. Dr. Baker, entertained the newly elected Mayor of Belleville, city Council, city Officials, Harbor Commission, Board of Education, and members of the Belleville Rotary Club.

Rotary President Bert Boyce occupied the chair efficiently, and after a very well-cooked and appetizing meal, which reflected much credit upon the cook, the entertainment for the college kitchens, the program began with Song Leader Sandy Burrows, assisted by Pianist Les Riggs playing the latest songs of melody started and everybody in good spirits.

Rev. Bert Howard, Principal of Albert College welcomed the visitors, deeming it an honour to receive them, although he felt that the visitors were honoring the building materialized in a building which means so much to Belleville and to the whole district and to the world, who have become makers of history in the twenty-nine years everything that is best in life. Without Albert the world would not have produced four score leaders would not have been available, so Albert has made a distinct impression on the world for good. The speaker asked for the hearty co-operation of all Belleville citizens in maintaining the proud record of Albert College, which has been the inspiration and glory of the old Albert, so full and fraught with pleasant memories of the past year.

Referring to the change in the Government's attitude toward the upkeep of Stanley Park. It is understood the Government still pocts to sell the place.

It is understood at Queen's Park that Lieutenant-Governor Hon. Herbert Bruce does not intend to intender a state dinner this year.

NABORHOOD SHOES ARE GOOD SHOES

SENATE SPEAKER—Formerly premier of New Brunswick, Hon. W. E. Foster has been appointed Speaker of the Senate for the coming session at Ottawa. Mr. Foster has been a member of the Senate since 1926.

LIBERALS WILL ATTEND LEVEE

Acting-Premier Nixon to Lead Way to Government House

Toronto, Jan. 14—Members of the Hepburn Government will attend the reception at Government House following the opening of the Legislature, Hon. Harry C. Nixon, Acting Premier, stated.

"This is a reception given to all who attend the opening. It is not a state dinner," said Mr. Nixon, and as the state dinner which the Hepburn Cabinet declined to attend last year.

Despite the change in the Government's attitude toward the upkeep of Stanley Park, it is understood the Government still posts to sell the place.

It is understood at Queen's Park that Lieutenant-Governor Hon. Herbert Bruce does not intend to intender a state dinner this year.

The dividend record of all refining companies is probably unsurpassed by that of any other single group—Investments made in sound oil companies have been better protected and more profitable than investments in any other production of crude oil through the various stages of production have produced vast dividends to the investors who had the foresight to buy into successful enterprises, even through the depression years.

In offering the securities of the Deseronto Refineries Limited to the public, we would stress these facts:

1. The Company have acquired the rights to produce "Hydrogas", a new and improved process for the conversion of crude oil that will produce a higher quality "anti-knock" motor fuel than is now offered to the public and at lower cost.

2. By J. A. McVey, B.Sc. (McGill) it is free of carbon and will give materials 5% greater mileage at an extra cost.

3. There are no bonds outstanding. The Preferred Shares ranking as the senior security.

4. LOCATION—Deseronto as it was a central point for the distribution of products and has both railway and water facilities which will effect an enormous saving in hauling charges.

5. REFINERY—300 barrels per day, which can readily be absorbed in the immediate vicinity.

6. MARKETING—A thorough canvass of the territory which this Refinery will serve was made and it was found that the complete output could be readily absorbed.

FOR LIMITED TIME ONLY WE OFFER DESERONTO REFINERIES LIMITED SHARES

RADIO CARS EFFECTIVE

Police radio cars are doing effective work throughout the province. On Sunday a message from Toronto was picked up by a detective on his way to Stouffville and led to the arrest of two alleged car thieves.

Belleville police are working on a broadcast and reception system which will cover the city. It is expected that when the system is put in operation, the police car will be able to do very effective work both day and night.

One has not to be a great prophet to see the entire province soon linked in a network which will consolidate the efforts to capture fugitives and suspects and to give aid in event of accident.

DOG VALUES

Dogs may bark when barking is not desired for the quality of barking has been developed in the dog all through the ages. The baying of the moon is the most mournful man knows and he dislikes it accordingly, for man probably like the dog feels sentimental under the cold moon light.

But there is a time when barking is at a premium. The householder will pay any price for a dog that knows enough to bark when burglars are about. The comics have defamed the dog as a sleuther when the locks are being picked and the windows pried open, but the reputation of the dog is still good.

A Hamilton dog frightened yeggmen who were trying to get into a coal company's plant. Now the dog was not owned by the coal company but by a neighbor and the dog's owner tried the night out for ten minutes but in vain. When he switched on the light he heard a car roar and investigation showed that thieves had abandoned a plan to blow a safe in the coal office.

So the man who keeps a dog about his home has a protector of real value. Besides the companionship of the dog for adults and children, the importance of interest in a living creature, and the real fun a dog can give to the non-dog-owner cannot dream of, there is this value that perhaps the dog will save life and property by giving an alarm of fire, of escaping gas, of thieves, or accidents.

Over and beyond all this is the reaction on the dog himself. He loves companionship, he is self-sacrificing when the members of the family are concerned. They can see the throb of what might be termed thought and love in those wailing eyes of his, they can catch a glimpse of dog soul. It means something to have seen that.

THE IDEAL CITY

It was an apt occasion for the sermon on "The Ideal City" which Rev. Dr. Semple delivered in Bridge Street Church on Sunday evening. The new council has been organised and is ready to undertake the business of the city for the year, various boards are ready to perform their duties and the stressing of the high ideal of the ideal city was something which left a deep impression upon the minds of those who heard.

Many persons no doubt think of a city as a Topsy which 'just grew'. There is more than mere growth—there is control and there is direction. That was pointed out.

It was a fine gesture to have members of the council and other civic bodies attend a religious service at this auspicious season of the year.

HOLLYWOOD STRENUOUSNESS

Those who have read of the inroad of death on the Hollywood colony realize that strenuous life, insufficient rest, rich foods, lack of exercise and too great excitement wear out the stoutest. Surely the long record of early deaths added to last week by the death of John Gilbert should point the need of rest and relaxation. Of course the public demands the almost impossible of its film heroes and heroines but these owe it to themselves to preserve their health. The old adage

"Early to bed and early to rise Makes a man, healthy wealthy and wise," still obtains along with a little other sage advice to take not only work but pleasures moderately.

KIPLING'S CONDITION

Readers of the great Rudyard Kipling who has been before the British reading public for many decades will rejoice him a rapid recovery from the very serious condition which has developed in his health. He has just passed the three score and ten mark of his life and yet is not an old man. That he may continue to live many years to enjoy the peace of that land, England, which he has worked to maintain for so many years, is the wish of people throughout the world.

Kipling is the type of artist with a political message which naturally is not approved by some. He has been looked upon as too much a believer in the strength of arms. Well, he has spoken for preparedness and few can say that he has done anything to bring about such a condition as exists in the world today when even the most insistent peace advocates agree that there must be some guard and security.

The poet has written some fine stories and poetry, which will doubtless live.

Early today his condition was still reported as very grave.

WILLIAMSBURG, THE SUMMER CITY OF ACHING FEET, and other allments has returned to its winter calm. From an average daily floating population of 2,500 only about 75 now are daily exposing their feet and ankles to the magic manipulation of Dr. Locke, to whom the high and low look alike and a "grand" or a "century" look no larger than the sweetingman's hard-earned "buck"—the humble "buck" meaning one dollar, if you don't know, while the "century" in smart slanguage is one hundred dollars, and a "grand" is the aristocrat of money, the lordly thousand dollar bill which is not quite as common as the "buck" with most people.) All of which means that Dr. Locke's minimum and maximum fee for one treatment is one dollar — and wait your turn—rather remarkable in its way, but under mass manipulation means one thousand and more dollars a day during the summer for the worthy doctor, so the dollar doctor is in no immediate danger of suffering from lack of coin of the realm—as long as the supply of aching feet holds out.

CONSIDER THE RAT, THE COMMON BROWN RAT, which meets with very little consideration when seen and is not considered much when unseen, having no friends, apparently, and justly so, for it is known in this and many countries, just being one of those pests which seem to have been created for no good purpose. But its rat is capable of great damage in the country and in the city. With assance wherever it appears in the city. With this in view the Entomological Branch, Dominion Department of Agriculture, has compiled a leaflet on the control of rats which can be obtained by writing to the Publicity and Extension Branch, Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa. The brown rat in Canada invades houses, store, warehouses and markets, and besides destroying fabrics and leather goods, it attacks all kind of foods, meat, groceries, fruit, vegetables, and so on. In town and country it attacks poultry, destroying eggs and chickens. The foundations of buildings are also damaged by its activities. To the list of minor depredations which the brown rat is responsible for the greater menace must be added of its danger to public health. It is a carrier of bubonic plague, one of the most devastating of human diseases which has been spread all over the world by the rat. In the 14th century it is estimated that about 25,000,000 people died in Europe from the "Black Death" as this disease was then called, and 2,000,000 deaths are stated to have occurred during the epidemic in India in 1907. Bubonic plague is transmitted to humans from rats by fleas. Modern methods of preventing the spread of the plague involve the most vigorous eradication of rats and the prevention of their landing in seaports from ocean-going vessels. So it is well to consider the rat and consider carefully ways and means of its eradication wherever its presence is detected.

TRISTAN DA CUNHA ISLANDS in the south Atlantic are said to be the loneliest place in the world, according to those who have visited this out of the way section of the world. A ship comes once a year from England, and this is the great event in the lives of the islanders for they get fresh supplies and new reading matter with the chance to learn what the great world outside their ken his been doing in the twelve-month. The British steamship Sylvia De Larrinaga recently visited the islands with the year's mail, according to a press despatch. The ship also carried gifts from King George to his subjects in the far outpost of Empire. Midway between South Africa and South America, the islands were discovered in 1506 by the Portugese Admiral Tristao Da Cunha, but the Tristan Da Cunha had no permanent inhabitants until long after when Thomas Currie landed there. He was later joined by two other men and they raised vegetables, grain and pigs. During the war of 1812 American cruisers which raided British merchant ships, used the islands as a base, and as a consequence Britain annexed the islands in 1816. A temporary garrison was placed on the islands, but being withdrawn later, leaving William Glass, his wife and two children behind. Shipwrecked mariners and others have since settled there but the population at the present time is only 125. There is no written laws there and no crime—which might suggest to some that the less law the less crime, which of course would be unthinkable except in such picked communities as Tristan Da Cunha.

Just as the congregation had left the Rednersville Methodist Church Sunday evening and the caretaker was putting out the lights the large chandelier in the centre of the church fell setting fire to the carpet and matting. The fire was extinguished before much damage was done.

The quietness which prevails in police circles here may be gathered from the fact that there has only been one arrest made since Dec. 23, which was for the theft of a horse and rig. No arrest for drunkenness has been made for three weeks which is a record.

Mrs. James Boland of Toronto, who has been visiting relatives here, has returned home.

The annual district meeting of the Loyal Orange Lodge, District No. 3, Prnth Hastings, was held at Plainfield with District Master Geo. F. Reed in the chair. After the routine business had been transacted Past County Master W. J. Hill took the chair and conducted the election and installation of the following officers: District Master, H. J. Agnew, L.O.L. No. 3; Deputy District Master, F. R. Sullivan, L.O.L. No. 295; Chaplain, M. Tummon, L.O.L. No. 179; Rec. Sec., Wilmot Reynolds, L.O.L. No. 3; Fin. Sec., Harry Dafoe, L.O.L. No. 179; Treasurer, Geo. The annual meeting of the Bay of Quinte Bridge Company was held last evening at the city hall. In the absence of the President, Mr. Thos. Ritchie, the chair was occupied by the Vice President, Mr. Arnold. The directors reported that the bridge was leased to Mr. Arnott from April 1st, 1895 to March 1st, 1896 for the sum of $4,450.00, being an increase of $1500.00 over the previous year. Mr. Arnold lived up to his contract and paid the full amount by Dec. 31st., 1895. Considerable repairs will have to be made to the bridge and sub-structure during this year. The old board of directors was re-elected for the ensuing year. They are Messrs. Thos. Ritchie, J. W. Walker, R. Donald, H. Corby, E. Thompson and Messrs. Brown and Mayor Walmsley.

Mr. A. Jones left for New York yesterday to resume his medical studies at Bellevue Hospital.

It has been decided by the pastor and congregation of Bridge Street Methodist Church that the services on Sunday in future and until the new church is erected will be held in the opera house. Since the fire the services have been held in the opera house and the Sunday School has assembled in Oddfellows' Hall. The congregation has expressed sincere appreciation of the kindness of the officials of the Tabernacle Church in offering their church to be used jointly by the two congregations, but it was considered more feasible to use the opera house. At the time of the fire there were 62 holders of pews in Bridge Street Church and about 200 persons without pews attended the services and were seated by the ushers.

TEN YEARS FOR 16 INDICTMENTS

James Short, of Linwood Caught in Act of Cracking Safe

Kitchener, Ont., Jan. 14.— (CP) —Not an expert cracksman but an energetic safe-worker at that, 22-year-old James Short of Linwood, Ont., headed for Kingston Penitentiary today to serve a sentence of ten years under 16 indictments. Police said he damaged many safes in Western Ontario.

Short was at work on a safe in the Linwood store of A. O. Schnurr the day after New Year's when he was caught. He was using a pick and crowbar on the door box and a citizen heard him. Without Short being aware of the fact, a cordon surrounded the store until provincial police arrived and arrested the crude crackman.

Pleading guilty to 16 charges involving breaking and entering, theft and fraud, Short heard sentences totalling 112 years, three months read against him. The longest terms were 10 years, however, and all will run concurrently with the longest.

LUCKY SINGER—Lady Luck and last minute illness of Richard Crooks, opera singer, combined to give Joseph Bentonelli, above, 33-year-old Oklahoma tenor, a chance with the Metropolitan Opera Company in New York. Bentonelli, who made his debut in "Manon" had been given an audition only a week previously, and just "happened" to be around when Crooks' illness was reported. Bentonelli now has a contract to sing in several other presentations during the season. His name —originally Benton in Oklahoma —became Bentonelli when he sang in Italy.

CONSERVATIVES MEET IN CAUCUS

Make Plans For Short Session to Convene in Week

Toronto, Jan. 14.—(CP)—Conservative members of the Ontario Legislature were scheduled to meet in caucus here today to make plans for the short session which opens in a week's time.

At a meeting attended by the sitting members and the defeated Conservative candidates in the last provincial election, 25 of their number were selected to represent them on the party convention committee which plans to reorganize Ontario forces together and name a leader. Sixteen more of those who attended yesterday's meeting were named to the convention committee because of their positions on the executive, because they represent certain sections of the province.

Today's caucus also is likely to deal with the Conservative campaign for the major session of the Legislature expected to begin late in February.

KENNY FARMER TO JOIN TEAM

Montreal, Jan. 14.—(CP)—Kenny Farmer, wing man of Montreal Victorias, hockey was chosen as a member of Canada's Olympic hockey team at a meeting of Ontario selectors together and name a leader.

Farmer's nomination to the Olympic squad followed his brilliant work last night, when he played with the Canadian squad against a bolstered Montreal Royals' team. The Olympics won 4-0 with Farmer scoring two goals and getting an assist on another.

The selection of Farmer marked the fifth Montrealer to gain a place on the team. Others being Herman Murray, chosen captain yesterday, Dave Neville, Ralph St. Germain and Hugh Farquharson.

Toronto, Jan. 14.—(CP)—Eddie Gerald, 21-year-old shortstop in the Toronto Major Amateur Baseball League, will try out with Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League at Haines City, Florida, this Spring.

Tweed and District

Tweed—Fred Sulpitsk head of Tweed Lodge, I.O.O.F., handed Walter K. Rest, wife, a smoking cabinet, and Mrs. Rest with a table lamp, at Rest's home, when the organization made the presentation.

Mr. Ralph H. Spackman, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Spackman of Tweed, who for the past year and a half has been employed in the staff of Farming Editor of the Brandon Sun, has been transferred to the branch in Aylmer.

The junior branch of the W. A. of St. James's Anglican Church at Tweed meeting elected the following officers for 1936:

Supt.—Mrs. Geo. H. Clark.
Assistant Supt.—Mrs. Clark.
Pres.—Dorothy Lee.
Secretary—Helen Baker.
Treasurer—Gladys Shearing
Pianist—Charlotte Lee.

Mr. and Mrs. White and family have taken up their residence in Tweed, in the Fitzgerald house on McGowan Street. They lived formerly in Vancouver for some years. Mr. White is manager of the Rich Rock Gold Mine at Flinton.

Gladys McGuire, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. McGuire was taken to Kingston Hospital on Friday. It is thought an appendix operation may be necessary.

Mrs. Whitby Sr., of Stirling, is visiting relatives at Tweed in the Fitzgerald house on McGowan Street. She lived formerly in Vancouver for some years. Mr. White is manager of the Rich Rock Gold Mine at Flinton.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Jones of Orono celebrated the 50th wedding anniversary of their wedding a short time ago. Many gifts were given by friends and relatives.

Mr. F. Baldwin, former C.P.R. agent at Bellrock, Ont., is selling agent at Tweed for Mr. Frank La Rose who moved to Tweed from Windsor. Mr. La Rose returned to resume his duties on Wednesday.

Tweed High School defeated Madoc on the local rink on Thursday night by a score of 3 to 1. The victory lessened their goal average in the first period with D. Pigden the successful marksman. Both sides tied 1 up on Lofthaus's pass in the second period. The same two players combined in the winning effort for the second goal, with the latter on the scoring end. Tweed's goal was also scored by Lee who played a beau-up game on the defensive. Players in Tweed lineup were: Lofthaus, Lee, Tummon, and Don Courteyne; subs were best for locals after Lee; and Tweed's goal, Reeves, Wellman and Martin were best for Madoc.

Madoc High School—Goal, A. Martin; defence, E. Wellman, T. Hawthorne; centre, D. Parks; wings, D. Pigden, M. Martin; subs, W. Mckenzie, K. Bird, M. Irwin, F. Stewart.

Tweed High School—Goal, Sayers; defence, Lee, Lofthaus; centre, Tummon; wings, Courneyea, Reeves; subs, Lloyd, Cronkwright, Trumpour, Colin.

Referee—"Mickey" McGuire.
Mr. Edgar Bateman, son of Mr. St. Patrick's school, Cobalt, and formerly teacher at Stono was a visitor in Tweed this week.

Mr. A. W. Lemon of Tweed Furniture Factory has left for Toronto on business last week.

Several cases came before Magistrate Lazier in the police court on Friday. David Sharpe, a young man of Madoc, was charged with reading in Tweed, pleaded guilty to the charge and was fined $10 and costs or ten days in jail. He was assessed a fine of $200 and costs or three months in jail. He chose the jail term. Sharpe was also charged with the theft of a heater from Alphonse De Marsh while residing a mile north of Tweed. He was found guilty of the offence and sentenced to four months with hard labour at the Ontario Reformatory to run concurrently. Joseph Sharpe, brother, was charged with being on the same charge of stealing a team of horses. His evidence, which was taken out on the preliminary hearing, pleaded that he was not guilty. Constable J. O. Hayes who investigated the case said that Joseph Sharpe is deserving of particular credit for his evidence as he was the only one in running these thieves to earth as he had only very meagre clues on which to work.

Each of the Sharkeys possess a long criminal record which was read into the court records by Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan who was present on behalf of the prosecution.

John Freeburn of Elsmir township appeared on a charge of reckless driving following a complaint laid by Provincial Police Sergeant Shorey of Tweed, who claimed that he had been forced off the road near Bethel church on December 29th by Freeburn. Later when the case was heard by I. D. Corcoran was found guilty and assessed a fine of ten dollars and costs.

Louis Woodcock, Bernard Agar, Lyle Sedore and Harold Way of Actinolite were charged with disorderly conduct and disturbing the peace in the village on the night of December 24th. They were found guilty and paid the minimum fine of ten dollars and costs each.

Albert W. High of Belleville was fined 25 dollars and costs for being in the possession of a quantity of beer contrary to the Liquor Act. He was defended by I. D. Corcoran, Tweed.

Alex Garrison, hotel keeper of Marlbank was fined $100 and costs on pleading guilty to a liquor charge.

VICKS PLAN — CONTROL OF COLDS

Stirling and District

Stirling—Stirling High School hockey team had their first game when they defeated on Thursday night by Marmora in ten minutes of overtime at the end of regulation time. The score was 3-3 and in the overtime period Marmora scored. The Stirling team turned in a fine effort and the nicest play of the game was the pretty play that tied up the game with only 3 minutes left to play, they carried down through to the corner and passed out to Butler who passed back to Reid, he raced forward line and a stone well defence. Knorr was the goal goaler for the boys in grey getting two out of the five. Butler, Thompson and Reid were the goals for the Stirling team. Reid, the flashy centre man of the Stirling five was the fastest skater on the ice he led fallied to notch a couple of goals. Reid and Butler showed both teams were on hand to make the seven to seven Collegiate tie with Trenton. The line-ups were:

Marmora—Gray, goal; O'Neil and Hart; Knorr, Barrage, Loomed; Lovelace, Reynolds, Lovesace and McCall.

Dance Well Attended

A large crowd of dance lovers attended the dance given by a group of neighbors from the River Valley district in the Stirling Community Hall on Thursday night. Splendid music was supplied by Garney Reid and his orchestra and every type of dance lovers had the favorite kind of dance. Lunch was served during the program. The committee in charge of this very successful affair were Messrs Don Donohue, Jack Cain, Fred Wannamaker and Bert Cain. They were assisted by a committee of ladies who assisted with the lunch.

Bethel And Deseronto Win

Two teams greatly improved their standing in the league on Friday night when a double header was played in the Stirling Community Hall League. Bethel defeated West Huntingdon and the newly entered team from Foxboro gave Stirling a lacing. West Huntingdon greatly fell the absence of their star defence man Mott and also Don Rodgers. While the Glen Ross team was weakened considerably by the absence of the fast skating Fraser brothers from their lineup. In their first game Foxboro won by a score of 5 to 3 and in the second fixture Glen Ross took the low end of a 2-0 score.

First Game

Alibo. Parks, flashy wing man of the Bethel team was unable to uniform the new team started in at a fast pace and in the opening minutes of the first line Johnston, Lee and Ketcheson was a combination worthy of the name. Reid, Scott got the first counter for the Glen Ross forward line. Johnston and Lee each netted one in the second period for Foxboro. Johnston and Lee each got up a great fight throughout the entire game with several fine individual rushes by Lee and Brown. Armstrong went through on several occasions but failed to beat Brown in the Foxboro net. Glen Ross never gave up trying and it was when Brown was off that Foxboro turned it on to run in three fast ones, two of which were from the stick of Lee who was the shining star of the game. It was fast clean hockey and both teams got a great hand from the crowd for their splendid effort.

The line-ups:

Foxboro—Hockey, goal; Crawder and Johnston; Lee, Lee; Ketcheson and Johnston; Day, Chapelle, Guay, Connors, Wright.

Glen Ross—Hagerman, goal; Armstrong and Brown, defence; Ist line, Reid, Scott, Fraser; 2nd, Fraser; Harry Brooks, Scott, Hagerman.

Referee—Simms of Bethel.
Second Game

In the last half of the evenings entertainment the fans saw the following line-up when West Huntingdon team weakened by the absence of Mott and Rodgers lined in a fierce game against Bethel but Bethel was the best by two counters and the fans got a thrill when Alibo. Parks netted a green on a solo rush, Simms clicked for one in the second period and Bethel put up the scoring for the game but not by hockey. Toward the end of the game Bethel pulled a team work on the ice but failed to notch a counter. Bethel was also given a fine showing and both teams were on hand to make the seven to seven Collegiate tie with Trenton. The line-ups were:

West Huntingdon—Garlies, goal; McGowan brothers, defence; Reynolds, Lovelace; Cook and Thompson.

Bethel—Coal, Dickey, defence Colhane, Cranston; K. Dickey, Simms, Dickey, Coal, centres.

Referee—Armstrong of Glen Ross.

League Standing

	P.	W.	L.	T.	P.
Bethel	2	1	0	1	6
West Huntingdon	2	1	0	1	6
Foxboro	2	1	1	0	4
Glen Ross	2	0	2	0	0

Injured At Hockey Match

Mrs. Harry Thompson of West Huntingdon received a painful injury while watching the hockey match between West Huntingdon and Bethel at the Stirling rink on Friday night. She was struck about the peak with terrific force and left a deep gash over the eye. She was taken to the office of Dr. Pedley for treatment and received several stitches to close the wound. It was a most unfortunate accident with the blow attached to anyone. Mrs. Thompson was able to return to her home in the afternoon after the game.

Messrs William Sutherland, John Gregory and Arthur Church left Saturday to their studies at Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph this week.

Mrs. Ernest Bird is ill this week at their respective homes here.

Miss Nina Carlisle left for North Bay where she has accepted a position with the new team started in at a late date in the Nipissing intermediate O.H.A. Johnston and Lee each netted one in the second period for Foxboro. Johnston and Lee each got up a great fight throughout the entire game with several fine individual rushes by Lee and Brown. Armstrong went through on several occasions but failed to beat Brown in the Foxboro net. Glen Ross never gave up trying and it was when Brown was off that Foxboro turned it on to run in three fast ones, two of which were from the stick of Lee who was the shining star of the game. It was fast clean hockey

Marmora—Due to the enforced resignation of reeve-elect D. K. Bell (ill health) a nomination meeting was held in the Town Hall on Friday evening to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Marmora. At eight o'clock Mr. E. C. Prentice, clerk, took the chair and called G. B. Aitken elected by acclamation. The nominee was proposed by Councillor W. R. Bell and seconded by Councillor T. R. Weaver. Mr. Aitken thanked the citizens of the village as reeve for ten years and is an ex-warden of Peterboro County. Dec. 19 is the fact that Mr. Aitken has greater interests in the lumber business than formerly by acceptance of the resolution is very much appreciated. The new reeve and council will be sworn in on Monday morning in accepting the township. Mr. Aitken's resignation from the Marmora High School Board. His successor will be appointed by the village council. Following the announcement that Mr. Aitken would be sworn in a small gathering of electors quietly dispersed.

The regular meeting of the Marmora Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Jas. Gardiner on Tuesday evening. Mrs. E. C. Prentice, president, was in charge and attendance which included three visitors. The meeting opened with the Institute Ode, following which the roll was called. The members responded to the first name on the roll call which was "a beautiful thought in poetry or song." The business portion of the meeting came next during which an addition sum of fifteen dollars was granted to Marmora Public Library, making a total yearly grant of seventy-five dollars.

The program opened with an interesting paper on "Current Events" by Mrs. C. Nichol, followed by a paper "Musical Reminiscences" by Mrs. W. C. Spry. Mrs. Ethel Gray greatly amused the members with the reading of an humorous poem "Two weeks from Christmas". Vernon Jones and Mrs. Gardiner Servadacs rendered several pieces to the delight of the audience. The refreshments are composed of the following boys: Vernon Green, violin; Richard Cook, violin; Jack Cale, violin; Eugene Reynolds, guitar; Jack Cale, guitar; Bert Sharp, banjo. Following these orchestral selections the members enjoyed several games of progressive euchre. At this refreshments were served. At this social session was presented Mrs. D. E. Bell with a beautiful finger-ring. Mrs. Bell is leaving Marmora shortly, her boarding is leaving soon to reside in Peterboro where her husband has been transferred to the Canadian National Telegraph office. Mrs. H. Wells and Mrs. Fraser for services at St. Andrew's United Church on Sunday morning which he officiated, preached from Mark. 24:44. After mentioning that the Christian religion was the human beings for the affairs of life, he pointed out the importance of the fact that less preparation is made in so many cases for the eternal life. Telling the story of the rich fool and the log virgins, he pointed out that the latter were blameless for eternity. The hymns sung were "O God our help in ages past" and "What a friend we have in Jesus". The choir also sang a solo and duet. The offertory solo was attended by a large number of members and friends. Arrangements were made in Marmora Protestant Cemetery. The pall-bearers were D. Nichol, Lt. R. E. Neal, T. Warren and F. Rogers.

Marmora and Lake Council held the inaugural meeting for 1936 in the council chamber on January 7th. The council took the declaration of office as follows: Reeve, L. A. Aitken; Deputy-reeve, C. Tompkins. W. J. Pack and Wm. Hagerman. They then proceeded to business discussion and plans were made for work on the roads etc. for the coming year.

A euchre party and dance was held in the Methodist church hall on the evening, January 10th. Fifteen tables of euchre were played and the prize winners were Ladies' first, Mrs. Wm. Reynolds, second, Mrs. Eileen Hagerman; Gentlemen's first, Mr. J. Hulsman, second Mr. Wilfred Lynch. Booby prize, Mrs. Beulah Doyle. Refreshments were served after the cards and then dancing was resumed with Bert Sharp's orchestra in charge. Music for dancing was supplied by Kay Doyle and Eileen Hagerman.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of Marmora Branch No. 237 Canadian Legion held their annual constitution meeting in the Legion rooms on Friday evening. Due to the fact that the auxiliary was organized on December, 1935, all officers were re-elected. The officers are as follows: President, Mrs. F. Gray; 1st Vice-President, Mrs. F. Gray; 2nd Vice-President, Mrs. C. Gunning; Secretary-treasurer, Mrs. J. H. wright; Executive, Mesdames Hudson and Mrs. V. Hall; Standard-bearer, Mrs. S. Palmatier.

Rawdon friends were sorry to learn of the death of Mr. John W. Hubble of North Sidney, Nova Scotia on December 14th, 1935 following a severe motor accident the day previous which he never regained consciousness. The late Mr. Hubble was born in Rawdon Township, Hastings County, Ont., and was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Ira Hubble. He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Ira Hubble, one brother, George Hubble who resides in Rawdon Township.

The Hubble family had just purchased a home in Sydney and had spent the Christmas holidays with relatives in Rawdon Township. On the morning of December 14th Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Hubble, Mr. and Mrs. Ira Hubble and Mrs. Hubble's old son Walter and Miss Johnson left Sydney for Rawdon. They stopped for a three weeks trip, but when they were best Terry, Montana the car skidded on the ice due to the slippery condition of the road, and turned over twice, pinning them all and the car was badly demolished.

The Hubbles were rushed to Terry Hospital and specialists summoned but Mr. Hubble died. Mrs. Hubble passed away a few hours later. Mrs. Ira Hubble, mother of Mr. Harry Hubble, sleeps quietly in the Rawdon cemetery. Mrs. Harry Hubble was seriously injured sustaining a broken leg and internal injuries. Mr. Walter Hubble was badly hurt, sustaining a broken leg, but his injuries were not considered as serious. Mrs. Johnson received a broken leg and several fractured ribs. Mrs. Johnson's husband and brother hurried to Montana. However all of the Hubble family are reported to be recovering according to recent news.

The funeral service of the late Mr. John W. Hubble was held at Beach Congregational Church on Wednesday, Dec. 18th and the church was filled to overflowing with sorrowing relatives and a host of friends.

All places of business were closed in the city during the service as a tribute of esteem to one of its most estimable citizens.

A large number of Rawdon folk attended the funeral of Mr. Barton Wallbridge who passed away at the age of 86 years. Rev. Canon Swayne conducted the funeral service at the home and the interment was made in the 13th Line Cemetery.

Home Nursing Classes Planned

Red Cross Course Will be Given to City Groups

Classes in the Red Cross home-nursing course will begin in the city this week. On Wednesday evening a group will meet in the Y.M. C.A. with Mrs. J. G. Foster as teacher. On Friday evening a group of Sodality girls of St. Michael's Church will begin the course with Miss Helen Treadell, Reg. N. as teacher, at the Y.M.C.A.

The course covers twelve lessons, eight of which are given by the nurse-teachers, two by physicians and two by dietitians. A very complete instruction in home nursing is afforded in all these lectures and a large number in Belleville have taken the course in previous years. Anyone desiring to become a member of the groups should phone Mrs. A. D. Archibald, 1816-W, at once.

Small, Bright Nursery is Advised

Expert Reminds It is Not Created Solely For Adult Interest

(By Ian Grenville)

Mistakes had all sorts of nasty ideas for the nursery, She had been collecting them for years.

Father, of course, didn't approve. Nasty ideas about nurseries, especially mother's were sure to run into money. He said children never noticed, and they always made a mess and destroyed everything anyway. Grandma's old stuff was good enough for the nursery.

Fads, said Tour, listened to her father and mother fighting over her nursery with her fingers in her mouth. She didn't understand her mother's ideas, and thought grandma's furniture was too big. Fads wanted everything small, with lots of shelves for toys and some pollywogs.

And Fads was right. Everything in a child's room, a child's nursery, should be small and simple, strong and inexpensive and of some bright, cheerful color. There should be a goldfish or a canary—something smaller and more helpless than father himself, something to watch over and care for.

There should be plenty of shelves, too, and as many of them as possible within reach. Nothing, not even the books, should be very high. There should be a chest, a small chair, a low table or seat, and where things can be dug for and found. Low to the floor is best for things. A treasure pulled out from under is always particularly exciting.

It is a temptation to dress nurseries up, like garden-baking "authentic children." But it is also a great mistake. Nurseries are not intended to be an adult creation and merely to be exhibited and admired by grown-ups.

Nurseries should be sunny. They should be cool and dry, large enough, as say rats, for the child to play on the floor. A small room children prefer to play on the floor.

There should be nothing fussy or over-breakable about. No really unbreakable toys, just the kind that will dent. There should be many toys on exhibition. The fewer the better. Toys should be those that are appropriate to his age and taste, the more he enjoys them. Too many toys confuse him, and are inclined to make him destructive and discontented.

MISSION BAND

Mission Band was held in Maple Leaf School House on January 10th, 1936, under the capable leadership of Miss Olive Searles.

The worship service had as its theme the idea of friendliness through helping others.

Readings combined this part of the meeting. It was opened by singing a hymn. The Scripture Lesson was taken from Mark 2:1-12 and was read by June Ray. A Friendship prayer repeated by the group ended the worship service.

The newly elected president, Gerald Tummon, took the chair at this time, and opened with a hymn. The secretary, Lee Ray, read the minutes of the last meeting and called the roll. Each member answered with a verse of Scripture. A few business items were attended to, then Miss Olive Searles took the Study Book, which was a story of a little Japanese boy, who had great ambitions in life and also many difficulties. This story proved very interesting to the children. Mary Sherson sang a solo about little children, dressed in the quaint Japanese costume. A reading was given by Phyllis Ray, after which the meeting was taken. The children took a hearty interest in the game, "Aeroplane". Hymn 90 closed the meeting.

SALEM W. M. S.

The regular monthly meeting of the Salem W. M. S. was held in the home of Mrs. Robert Sparrow on Wednesday January the 8th with an attendance of 18 members and 3 visitors. Mrs. Tom Leslie, president, opened the meeting with the call to worship, Mrs. Leslie thanked all those who helped her during the last two years. She asked each member to bow their heads in silent prayer asking God's guidance through the coming year. A hymn was sung. Mrs. Jim Sills led in prayer. Mrs. Jim Cole read the Scripture lesson. The Roll call was answered by a verse from the Bible containing the word Blest. The minutes were read and adopted. Mrs. J. Hanna then gave the annual report.
